DEAR MISS DIX: I have been keeping company with a very nice young man for nearly a year. I love him very dearly, but he is of a different background and nationality, and I find him unwilling to participate in the activities that I was brought up to enjoy. He wants only to associate with friends of his nationality and to attend dances and parties given by them. We never have a good laugh or a good time. He tells me he does not want to marry now as he is not ready and not accustomed to this country. Do you think love can bind the difference between us and that there is a chance for happiness?

✧ ✧ ✧ MILDRED

ANSWER: It you can't share a laugh or a good time with your young man before marriage, what in the world do you expect to be able to base your future on?

Love in your case seems to be solely a physical attraction, and believe me, Mildred, that can't last very long with all the other drawbacks to your union. Since your friend seems a little reluctant to embark on matrimony himself, love in this case seems a little one-sided.

Aren't you inclined to idealize the foreign traits that set him apart from the seemingly ordinary men you know? Try to shake off your illusions for a while and face the situation squarely. First, do you really think he loves you? Second, do you honestly think permanent happiness is possible where there is so little common interest, so many divergent opinions on vital matters?

The fact that two people are of different backgrounds and nationalities is in itself no barrier to happiness, but there must be accord on major issues. Congeniality of tastes, similar likes and dislikes, and at least a tolerance for each other's opinions must contribute to an enduring relationship.

Think this over, Mildred, and see if you don't agree that you'd be happier with a boy you could meet on common ground.

LITTLE IODINE by JIMMY HATLO

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION: I enjoy your friendly Column very much, and your willingness to share ideas and recipes—and so I would like to share one of mine with you. It came from California and won me a prize in British Columbia, and it is so good that I eat lettuce so I can use it. Right? — Glenna B.

Norma's French Dressing

(Contributed by Glenna B.)

One teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon Lea & Perrin's sauce, one small onion diced very fine, one clove garlic, 1 cup olive oil, one small cup vinegar, two tablespoons sugar, two teaspoons salt, one teaspoon dry mustard, one can Campbell's tomato soup.

(PS—If Lea & Perin's is an American product I presume Worcestershire sauce would do— G.B.)

ANSWER: I made up this Fench Dessingr when you letter came and chopped the garlic clove very fine too. Was that right? It is very good especially on quartered head lettuce for a head lettuce salad. Thank you.

QUESTION: I see where another lady has had trouble making Elsie's frosting. I wonder if it is because she had beaten the egg a little before adding to the sugar and chocolate mixture and added about two tablespoons of milk and then beat with rotary beater. I report that it was delicious. I did add 1½ cups sugar.

Mary, would you please print me a recipe for butter horns? I believe they are made from a bread dough. I am trying several of your recipes and find them wonderful. Do keep on with the ones for the main dish. My husband is not a meat eater, and I find it hard to substitute.— Etta D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I have not tried using 1½ cups sugar in Elsie's frosting, but can see it might make it a little less temperamental.

Butterhorns

One cup scalded milk, ¾ cup butter or margarine, ¼ cup of sugar, one tablespoon salt, one package dry granular yeast or one cake compressed yeast, two eggs, five cups sifted bread flour (approximately). To the hot milk add ½ cup butter, sugar, and salt, then let it cool to lukewarm. Add crumbled yeast (if dry yeast is used dissolve it according to directions on package but omit the amount of liquid used from the liquid in the recipe.) Add slightly beaten eggs and mix well. Add flour gradually to make a stiff dough, mixing until dough is soft and well blended. Knead on floured board until dough squeaks and is elastic. Place dough in large buttered bowl and cover. Now this may or may not be chilled. If it is chilled it requires twice as long to rise after it comes from refrigerator. To make horns, cut down fully risen dough and using one-quarter of it at a time roll out to one-quarter inch thickness on floured board. Cut in wedge-shaped pieces having the bottom of the triangle about 4 inches wide and the full length of the triangle about 5 inches. Start with wide end to roll into a horn. Moisten point and seal. Place on buttered baking sheet and brush with melted butter. Let rise in warm place until light and doubled—preferably at 80 to 85 degrees Fahr. Bake at 425 degrees Fahr. for about 25 minutes. These amounts make 40 rolls.

I hope you saw the column containing main dishes without meat which appeared earlier this week, for your benefit.

What's Right?

You are another person's guest at lunch in a restaurant.

WRONG: Say, "Let me leave the tip."

RIGHT: Let the person whose guest you are take care of everything.

FOR PARENTS ONLY

Happy Times Outdoors...

By NANCY CLEAVER

"I can't keep Johnny in his own yard! He is only four and already he is roaming all over the neighborhood. I am terrified he'll get run over or wander off and get lost. Spanking has failed to keep him home. What am I to do."

How many parents of preschool children are puzzled by the difficulty of keeping their child at home! What could Johnny's mother do to solve her problem?

First of all, she should try to put herself in Johnny's shoes, to discover why he wanders off. Likely he is seeking something to do. What healthy child ever wanted to be idle? Then, too, he wants companionship. He is looking for other children to play with.

Johnny's mother should try to see their back yard through Johnny's eyes. Is it a very appealing sight? Has time or thought or money been spent on play equipment?

Play is a child's work—and he needs "tools" to keep him employed. He also needs friends for part of his playtime. The task of keeping an eye on the "small fry" is very much easier if they are busy.

For the very tiny tot an outdoor enclosed play space is a health and safety necessity. When he grows out of his play pen, he is still too young to be trusted to play near a busy road. Any parent reading a daily newspaper, with its numerous accounts of small children who have been knocked down and injured or even killed by passing traffic, will not dispute this.

A good sand box is one of the best investments for small children. Look at the picture of one in any large catalogue. You will likely decide that it can be built by father out of large, discarded wooden boxes at a fraction of the cost of a "store sand box." A low wall of bricks may be used instead of wood.

A little shade for sunny days is appreciated by the sand diggers. If no kind tree spreads its limbs in the yard, a sun umbrella, or an awning shade, on four corner supports can be constructed. Small seats, either in the corners or built around the outside, add to the children's comfort. A wooden box for small pails, shovels and little cars should be nearby. The box should be covered at night with a canvas or wooden cover in order to keep the sand clean.

A swing is another wonderful source of fun and provides exercise for a variety of muscles. The movement of a swing has a fascination for a child. Older children delight in a jungle gym or monkey bars for climbing, and these too, can be made by an enterprising father.

If no convenient tree's limbs are handy for a swing, plan to construct a safe, durable framework. If possible, make it a double swing—so two children can use it. Dig two holes for the posts and construct a wall for the underground cement base. Rocks add to the anchorage. The cross bar must be firmly fastened to the upright posts. Side supports for the posts or guy wires are a help too.

A child's play house, made from odds and ends of lumber is another wonderful centre of activity for tea parties and housekeeping with a doll family. Little boys glory in a tent or tepee and this can be made from ordinary potato bags if heavier factory cotton or tent material is too expensive.

Other ideas for play equipment are described in books on Recreation in the Public Library. Take a look at them and see if there is something which you can make which your family would enjoy.

If possible, visit a sports department in a store and look over their "best sellers." The old fashioned games like lawn croquet and horse-shoes with rubber shoes (for small fingers) and quorts are much in demand. There are also many customers asking for hammocks and two seated lawn swings. Don't neglect the inexpensive items like skipping ropes. Perhaps you could stretch your budget to include one of these ready-made articles.

Discuss plans for play equipment in an informal family council, if your children are of school age. Let everyone share in the plans and the work and the cost of new recreation material—because everyone will enjoy it. Good times at home unify a family and give the children golden memories of their childhood. John Masefield wrote truly for both children and grownups when he said: "Best trust the happy moments!" and "The days that make us happy make us wise."

Troops Get Jobs Back After Service In Korea

OTTAWA, July 14 (CP). — A Canadian can enlist in the armed forces now, serve up to three years and then go back to his old civilian employer and demand a job as good as he would have had if he'd been with the firm all that time.

The Labor Department Friday issued a statement on just where the ex-serviceman and the employer stand under the law arising from Canada's twilight mobilization.

It is an explanation of the provisions of the Veterans' Benefit Act, passed at the recent session of parliament primarily to cover Korea veterans.

The right to reinstatement in employment, however, is being extended to any man—or woman—who enlists and serves up to three years. Members of the army's special force can re-enlist in the regular force, serve three years and then apply for their old job. Or they can get it back if they don't go into the regular force.

The rights are those granted veterans of the last war under the reinstatement in Civil Employment Act. They go to any person enlisting after July 5, 1950.

Under that act, a discharged soldier may claim reinstatement either verbally or in writing, usually within three months of discharge in Canada or four months if discharged overseas.

Provide For Extension

There is provision for extension of this time when through a condition of health the employee cannot return to his employment this soon, but the employer must be notified in three or four months, as th case may be, and a reinstatement officer should be consulted.

The employee must be reinstated under conditions not less favorable than he would have enjoyed had he continued on in employment instead of joining the forces. This means:

1. That the period with the services is to count for seniority rights, pension rights, vacations with pay and other benefits.
2. Returning employees are to be given promotions or pay increases they would have received had they remained in continuous employment.
3. Any skill acquired while in the service, and useful to the employer, is to be taken into account in adjusting the wage rates.
4. Any period of mental or physical disability following discharge which warrants delay in reinstatement under the act, is to be counted as a period of service in the armed forces, and as a period of service with the employer.

When a discharged person cannot perform his former duties, the employer must reinstate him in the most suitable employment available at which he is capable of working.

Radar Scheme To Be Tried Out

MONTREAL, July 14 (CP). — Montreal detachments of No. 1 radar and communications unit, RCAF (reserve), join with the unit's detachment at Quebec City, Sherbrooke, Ottawa and Ste. Anne De Bellevue in an intensive two-week inter-provincial training scheme, starting today.

The exercises will cover the above areas, protected from air attack by a radar network operated by civilians in their spare time.

The Sherbrooke detachment will operate in the Quebec City area; the Ste. Anne De Bellevue detachment at Kingston, Ont.; and the Ottawa detachment at Uplands. The Quebec City detachment took summer training last month.

The unit's Montreal detachment will operate for some time at each station.

Chief aim of shifting the detachments is to familiarize them with war-time conditions.

Crews will train in radar detection, fighter interception and wireless communications under field conditions.

Mother, Nine Children Escape Burning House

ST. CATHARINES, July 14. — (CP)—A mother and nine children early today escaped from a fire which completely destroyed their home on the Pelham Road southwest of here. Mrs. R. B. Godden was awakened by her two eldest boys, Freddie, 14, and Ronnie, 13, who had been sleeping upstairs where the fire broke out.

Vernon Burgess, a boarder who was also asleep upstairs, awoke to find his room filled with flames. He jumped from the window and entering the house again helped Mrs. Godden evacuate the younger children who were asleep downstairs.

6 Hurt In Crash

COBOURG, July 14 (ENS). — Six people were taken to hospital at 8:30 this morning following a head-on collision on No. 2 Highway a few miles east of Cobourg. PRE-SCHOOL EXAMS

Medical and dental examination of pre-school children is preceeding better than ever this year, K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, reports. A total of 631 were given medical examinations and in two months 388 children were given dental examinations with 56 more calls from parents that their children's dental work was being done by the family dentist. The improvement, particularly in the dental survey, is attributed to the fact that definite appointments were made for the parents of the children. And the various home and school clubs publicised the value of the surveys among the parents.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

SECOND FLOOR PLAN

HOUSE NO. 1001—Here is a "luxury" house on a small scale. It has all the fine points of a much more expensive home. See the cosy den with the corner window, and the dressing room off the smaller bedroom. Notice also the private character of the living room and the terrace leading from it to the garden. The hall provides a route from the kitchen to the front door, without crossing either the living or dining rooms so common in many homes. This house really couldn't be more conveniently planned for modern living—take the central position of the bathroom for instance; and there is even a second porch for warm weather use. Hanks and Irwin were the architects of this house. Cape Cod character is retained without lavish imitation of any detail.—For working drawings write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Floors Should Be Built To Rigid Specifications

The virtues of a well-laid and serviceable floor need no explanation to the Canadian home owner. A good floor is its own best argument. It is easy to keep clean, and its appearance is an important part of the decorative scheme of the house interior. On the other hand, a floor that develops cracks and irregularities after laying is unsightly, it catches dust and dirt, creaks underfoot, and is a lasting source of exasperation and disappointment.

NHA Requirements

The following requirements for flooring in homes built under the NHA establish good building practice you'll want to follow whether you build under the Act or with private financing.

(a) Sub-floor may be ⅞" boarding, at least equal to the following grades: No. 5 common for White Pine; No. 4 (Quebec 5ths) for Eastern Spruce; No. 1 cull for Red Pine; No. 3 common for Douglas Fir, Western Hemlock, Western Red Cedar and Western Spruce. Boarding shall be laid diagonally and ends shall be cut over joists. A layer of building paper should be placed between the sub and finished flooring. Adequate support must be provided for all ends of sub-flooring.

(b) In one-storey dwellings, the sub-flooring may be omitted, providing the joist spacing does not exceed 16" o.c., and the finished flooring is not less than 25/32" thick hardwood matched flooring No. 2 grade or better or ⅞" edgegrained BC fir.

(c) All upper floors in all dwellings shall have sub-flooring laid diagonally as herein specified.

(d) Plywood for sub-flooring shall be ½" minimum thickness 5-ply "Standard Quality" Sheathing Grade applied length-wise across joists spaced 16" o.c. with ends of panels bearing on joists.

(e) Panels shall be securely nailed to joists with 2¼" common nails spaced 6" at edge bearings and 12" on intermediate supports.

(f) Where floors are to be finished in wood, the material used shall be birch, maple, beech or oak, preferable 25/32" thick matched flooring in No. 2 grade or better, but ⅝" thick hardwood flooring may be used if laid on properly prepared sub-flooring. Douglas Fir, edge grain flooring No. 2 Clear or better, ¾" thick is also acceptable.

Kitchen and Bathroom Floors

(a) Kitchen floors may be of hardwood, or of softwood covered with inlaid, Gauge "A" or better linoleum laid according to manufacturer's instructions. Rubber flooring and asphalt composition colored tiles may also be used.

(b) Bathroom floors of ceramic tile are desirable, or rubber flooring linoleum Gauge "A" or other impervious materials if applied by experienced workmen over a specially prepared underfloor and properly cemented thereto. A suitable underfloor is ⅞" T and G pine flooring or ½" 5-ply "Standard Quality plywood or ⅞" rough flooring covered with 3/16" plywood or ⅛" hardboard or 3/16" Masonite untempered prestwood.

Simplicty In Design Sure To Make Exterior Pleasing

An interior plan which meets the family's living requirements is of first importance in designing a new house but the plan arrangement should lend itself to a pleasing exterior appearance.

For the small house particularly simplicity is the keynote to exterior design while the appearance should also reflect harmony and good taste. An unpretentious, well-balanced exterior finished with a few carefully selected materials which harmonize in color and texture will ensure "eye appeal." The width, length and height of the house should be in good proportion one to another. Doors and windows must be well placed and of proper size to suit the wall space in which they are built. Balance is also obtained by setting the house as low to the ground as possible.

Unbroken roof and eave lines are especially important for small houses as they will give the house the appearance of maximum size.

Emphasis can also be placed on size by treating the house as one large color area and avoiding the use of materials which contrast with one another and break up the exterior into small areas.

Unnecessary gables, dormers and other features which are over-ornamental will mean added expense and are often in poor taste and can spoil the appearance of a house.

Even the simple rectangular house can be attractively dressed. More character and variation from houses in similar design in the neighborhood. A wide variety of exterior materials are available today and the appearance of the house may also be enhanced by a well-designed porch, bay window or other useful addition.

Post Office Plans

OTTAWA, July 14 — (CP) — The Post Office Department is considering the printing of a special commemorative stamp for the Royal Tour in October of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, it was learned Friday.

A spokesman said the Department plans a postal tribute for the occasion. However, one of the difficulties was that, although the Royal visit is some three months away, the time is short for the designing of an appropriate postage stamp.

Therefore the stamp commemorating the Canadian tour may not be issued until the visit is well under way.

Countless Tries For Role In Hollywood

By JACK QUIGG

HOLLYWOOD, July 14, (AP)—Meet a countess with her fingers crossed.

She is Betsy Von Furstenburg, born in a castle in Westphalia, Germany, who prefers not to use her title here.

But in Europe, where they take nobility seriously, she is the Countess Caroline Maria Felicitas Agatha Elizabeth Van Furstenburg. She is the daughter of a former German Industrialist, now an inventor.

Betsy has her fingers crossed because she's here to make a screen test. If it's successful there's a movie contract and possible stardom in her future.

It's not every day that movie-struck countesses come knocking on Hollywood's door, so I looked her up. I found her lounging beside the swimming pool of a lavish hotel where M.G.M. has put her up.

Not Excited

She is due to make her test next Wednesday and I thought she'd be excited. She wasn't. Neither was she movie-struck.

"Why get excited?" she asked. "They'll either like me or they won't. If they don't, I'll go back to New York and look for a play. Or I may go to Europe. Of course, it would be nice to have the test come off well."

Miss Von Furstenburg can afford to be nonchalant—she has $2,000,000. True, it's tied up in Germany and she can't spend it here but even without it she would have no money worries. She has proven she can support herself in style.

No Novice

At 19 she's no novice in show business. She said she studied ballet as a child and at 10 she was the youngest featured player ever to appear at the New york ballet theatre. A couple of years later she won prizes for fancy ice skating.

Last year she had a good part in the Broadway play "Second Threshold." The critics called her promising. They liked her, too, in a picture she made in Italy, "Women Without Names." It won a prize at the Venice Film Festival.

Sour Cherries Said Too High

HAMILTON, July 14 (CP). — If the price of sour cherries is not dropped downward, farmers may be left with a huge crop on their hands and no market, the Canned Foods Association of Ontario said in a telegram Friday to G. F. Perkin, chairman of the Farm Products Marketing Board.

Processors can buy United States cherries at prices including tariffs "much below" Ontario prices, the telegram said. It was understood the US fruit could be delivered to processors for about 8 cents a pound. The Canadian price is 9¾ cents a pound.

The association suggested a price of 8 cents a pound would move the crop. Farmers would be left with no market at the present price.

The same situation, the association added, applies to canned and frozen cherries.

Will Cost $55,000 To Restore King Home

KITCHENER, July 14 (CP)—It will cost $55,000 to restore the boyhood home of the late prime minister Mackenzie King as a national shrine. A building permit in that amount was issued today.

The restoration job started some weeks ago. First stage was to tear down the old home because it was structurally unsound. It now is to be rebuilt as a replica of the old—using as much of the old material as possible.

Lays Foundation Stone

LONDON, July 14 (AP). — Queen Elizabeth Friday laid the foundation stone of Britain's first national theatre, a structure that will stand only a stone's throw from Shakespeare's old Globe Theatre. The late George Bernard Shaw first thought of the idea 50 years ago, and eventually enough money was raised by public subscription to buy a site in residential Kensington.

Stock Markets Up Slightly During Week

By BILL DANIELS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Traders sat on the sidelines in stock markets this week and let prices drift a little higher.

Trading was at its slowest pace of the year. Sales on the Toronto Stock Exchange were less than 1,000,000 shares a day in all five sessions. For the third week in a row, the exchange set a record for the year in slow trading.

Investors were reluctant to enter the market. Many observers thought the long spring slump should end soon with the resumption of last year's bull market.

This week's dealings featured a boderate advance among selected stocks. Base metals were firm, on the Toronto exchange. Otherwise there was no exceptional movement.

Daily Trading Similar

Daily trading on all markets was fairly similar. Prices moved moderately ahead at the opening Monday in continuation of last week's advance. In the afternoon, interest slackened and the Toronto and Montreal exchanges closed fairly mixed. New York remained a little higher.

Tuesday prices ended mixed to a little lower. Sales were very slow in New York.

Wednesday's trading was trendless on Canadian exchanges. Gains and losses were about balanced and price changes were small. Mild strength in steels and rails caused New York to chalk up a quiet advance in slow sales.

New York continued upward on Thursday under selective buying. Canadian markets edged higher. Base metals found the most support in Toronto while papers were ahead in Montreal.

Friday, all markets gave their best performance of the week. In New York a wide list of issues posted good gains. The Canadian upswing was not as strong but prices made a fair showing.

From Friday to Friday the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials up 1.25 at 324.76, golds down 1.96 at 77.82, base metals up 2.92 at 171.01, and Western Oils down 1.20 at 101.84.

In the Montreal averages, industrials were up 3.4 at 223, papers up 9.74 at 801.2, banks up 0.22 at 29.75, utilities unchanged at 84.9, combined up 2.3 at 177, and golds down 0.3 at 60.08.

In New York Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1.30 at 92.20.

Always In Frock Coat Fred Mallison Dies

TORONTO, July 14—(CP)—Fred Mallison, 75, who always went to business in a top hat and frock coat, died Friday.

Described as the last Toronto supporter of the traditional dress of an English business man, in his high silk hat, Prince Albert coat, striped trousers and grey vest, he was a familiar figure in Toronto's financial district.

He retired in 1945 as Canadian sales agent for the Dominion Textile Company, but continued to look after the Canadian affairs of his family firm of Mallison's Limited of England.

A topper and a frock coat were required when, at 16, he became the youngest member of the Royal Cotton Exchange in Manchester, England. After he came to Canada in 1896, he refused to change the style.

Trial Shipment Sent From Churchill Port

CHURCHILL, Man., July 14 — (CP)—A trial shipment of 500 tons of pulpwood will leave this Hudson Bay port soon, it was learned Friday. The cargo is destined for France.

It is hoped here that if the Canadian National Railways can reduce freight rates to make such shipments practical, the amount will be increased to 100,000 tons per season.

Importing firms have also indicated they are prepared to assist in the increase of two-way traffic through the port. Hitherto many ships have arrived in ballast and most of the freight cars coming in with wheat have returned south empty. This year's shipping season here runs from Aug. 5 to Oct. 10.

ROK Soldiers Good If Given Fair Chance

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, July 14—(CP)—Patronized and belittled in good times, the soldier in the Republic of Korea Army seems to catch all the blame when things go wrong.

Communiques tell of ROK formations giving away, troops affect dismay when they hear the ROKS are on a flank and newspapers dismiss them in an offhand key. The attitude toward them is that of the unwanted cousin.

In the light of astronomical United States expenditures on equipping them and the fact that if all goes well, the South Koreans are one day going to have the responsibility for garrisoning Korea, the attitude seems astonishing.

Last year, for instance, established that the trained Korean is a good soldier. The North Korean's Peoples' Army did that.

Still Koreans

Koreans, be they from south or north, are still Koreans. They are of the same race, have the same characteristics, live the same way and speak the same language.

Yet North Korea produced a fighting army, while the South's at best still isn't, though of its 14 divisions two or three are considered sound.

Why?

1. One was properly trained, the other not.

2. One had good officer and non-commissioned-officer cadres, the other not.

3. One had a cause, hence good morale, the other not.

4. One seems to have had the continuing respect of its allies, the other not; and stemming therefrom.

5. One has kept its pride, the other not.

The North Korean Army which moved into the peninsula through Manchuria before last year's aggression was a fully-trained force with operational experience under both Communist Chinese and Russian command. It had been in existence upwards of four years.

Quite a Difference

The South Korean Army which had to meet it had two sound divisions and a dilatory training establishment advised by the United States Army.

There was no material for expansion of the Korean force at the outset and when manpower was levied, it was on the old press-gang haphazard principle.

The necessary manpower was raised in 21 to 28 days before the date, "trained," and at the appointed time took over its equipment. One division was raised and "trained" in 16 days.

Military purists consider 18 months the time necessary to produce a good private soldier, and two years for a NCO.

The northerners, Communists or mercenaries, were fighting either for a cause or because they liked soldiering. They had the confidence of their training. And they had the evidence of the positive steps their government had taken to change the lot of their people—steps of which, with their ideology, they approved.

The southerners were unwilling conscripts in the service of a feudal society. A police state and a corrupt, despotic government: at a glance, hardly likely to become good soldiers.

Has What It Takes

The Korean is cheerful, incredibly long-suffering, diligent and hard-working, inured to discomfort and, under normal circumstances, scrupulously honest. He has what it takes to be a good soldier, given the chance.

But the South Korean hasn't had that chance.

The Northerners, and then the Chinese, knew the score. And every time a major offensive was to be mounted it was preceded by patient probing of the line for the South Korean sectors. There the pile-up happened and there the blow was struck.

Small wonder the South Korean Army isn't the U.N.'s best.

All of which doesn't mean that it couldn't be—it has to be if the U.N. ever is to turn Korea over to the South to garrison.

It could be that the most efficient surgery would be to strip the whole organization apart, right down to company level, and allocate companies out among th U.N. battalions, later into brigades and then divisions.

Japan Renews Pledge On Fisheries Pact

TOKYO, July 14 — (Reuters) —Japan renewed her pledge Friday that she is willing to join all international action for the conservation of world fisheries.

In a statement issued by the government she reaffirmed the principle defined in a letter on February 7, to join Foster Dulles, Presidential envoy and treaty maker.

Today's statement said that Japan will enter into negotiations for the conservation of fisheries as soon as full sovereignty is restored to her.

In the meantime, Japan will prohibit its nationals and registered vessels from fishing in waters governed by international agreement or domestic acts to preserve fisheries, the statement added.

1,000 Electricians Strike In Toronto

TORONTO, July 14 (CP)—One thousand Toronto electricians went on strike Friday to enforce demands for a pay raise of 40 cents an hour.

The men are members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL). If their demand was granted, their wage rate would be brought to $2.25 an hour.

The 55 contractors concerned offered an increase of 20 cents an hour this year and an additional five cents next year on a two-year agreement.

The strike's effect will not be felt until Monday, since the men do not normally work Saturdays. It will halt some construction work and will hold up the subway project, on which the electrical workers have been laying conduits.

Get Out Machinery In $25,000 Blaze

UNIONVILLE, July 14—(CP)—Firemen from Markham, Agincourt and Stouffville were called out Friday night to fight a $25,000 blaze that destroyed a two-storey building in which Markham township stored machinery.

The firemen prevented the spread of the fire which threw sparks hundreds of feet into the air. They moved some township equipment from the burning building, although one road grader was lost.

Looks Like Butter But Isn't; Plan Check-up

QUEBEC, July 14—(CP)—It looks and tastes something like butter: but it isn't.

That was the verdict of people who tried a "spread" manufactured at Ste. Anne de la Perade and on sale Friday in Quebec grocery stores.

But it doesn't conflict with Quebec legislation banning margarine and butter substitutes.

That's what its maker, J. E. Tibault, head of Fromage Champlain Incorporee, said.

There was a minor flurry of excitement when the product was spotted on grocery-store shelves, at 45 cents a pound compared with 65 for butter.

The attorney-general's department, watching for violations of the 1950 anti-margarine law, said it knew nothing about the new product but would investigate.

The agriculture department said its officers, who normally get complaints about appearances of margarine, are out of town.

One of the differences between his product and margarine, said Mr. Tibault, is that his product contains a 20-per-cent proportion of powdered milk. Another difference is that it can't be used as a frying fat.

Mr. Tibault said when he put his product on sale in April he had a clearance from the Quebec Agriculture Department and the federal government as well.

Daring Canoe Trip Saves Prospectors

Two Missing Men Near Starvation, Found By Bushmen

SEPT ILES, Que., July 16.—(CP)—Two Quebec bushmen raced a canoe 80 miles down the Moisie River in seven hours to bring to safety two Toronto prospectors, missing a month in wild country on the fringe of Ungava.

William Crawford, of Toronto, vice-president of Sursho Mining Company employing the prospectors, said today the daring canoe rescue saved the lives of Michael and James Walsh who set out into Northeastern Quebec April 18.

The brothers, Michael, 56, and James, 49, were missing since June 14. They were to have been picked up by a plane at a rendezvous near Lake Ashuanippi, in the tundra country south of Ungava.

Crew of the pick-up plane found in their abandoned camp a note explaining that the veteran prospectors, running short of food, had started a trek 180 miles southwest of Sept Isles, St. Lawrence north shore port.

Near Starvation

Crawford said today the Walsh brothers were found near-starvation and exhaustion in thick bush east of the Moisie River Friday by two of six Sept Iles bushmen bushmen searchers.

The bushmen were Christopher Collin, employee of the Gulf Pulp and Paper Company, and Ludger Eleman, an employee of Northern Wings Limited. They had pulled their canoe from the Moisie to portage around rapids. When they found the Walsh brothers they were crawling on their knees.

Lived On Berries

The men had been living for 24 days on frogs legs, berries and shrubs and estimated that in the last six hours before they were found had travelled less than a mile.

Their bodies were covered with insect bites and torn by their travel through the undergrowth along the line of the river down which they had hoped to travel by raft to Sept Iles.

Crawford said that Sept Iles bush veteran declared the Walsh brothers, who had prospected through Ungava country for seven years, probably would not have survived more than a few hours if they had not been found.

The prospectors were taken to a railway construction camp about 28 miles north of Sept Iles.

A plane picked them up at the camp and flew them here.

Dr. Gerard Beaulieu who examined the two men in a Sept Iles hotel said that considering their ordeal their condition was good. Each man was thought to have lost about 20 pounds.

Like Churchill Best

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, July 16. (Reuters)—Winston Churchill again heads the list of the world's 10 most popular men in this year's annual poll taken by The Netherlands Institute of Public Opinion. Second is Gen. Douglas MacArthur, deposed Far East commander, who pushed Dutch premier Willem Drees into third spot. Next came president Truman, with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower close behind. Premier Joseph Stalin dropped off altogether.

Martial Law Declared After Red Riots

TEHRAN, Iran, July 16 (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh proclaimed martial law in Tehran today and ordered a big roundup of Communists following rioting in which between 4 and 16 persons were killed and more than 150 injured.

Police arrested more than 200 Leftists following Sunday night's rioting, which started with a Communist demonstration protesting the arrival of President Truman's representative, W. Averell Harriman, for talks with Mossadegh on the oil nationalization crisis.

(Reuters News Agency said it was reported that Harriman offered Iran economic aid for reconstruction provided there is "a satisfactory settlement" of the oil dispute.)

Reports varied on the number of casualties in Sunday night's fighting between the Reds and Mossadegh's national frontiers. An official police communique said one policeman and three civilians were killed. Earlier, however, the government radio reported two policemen killed, and a high police source said 14 civilians were dead.

The police communique said 59 policemen were injured seriously enough to be sent to hospital, while 153 others suffered less serious hurts. It said six civilians were critically injured, 55 others sent to hospital and "many others" released after treatment for minor injuries.

The riot in Parliament Square at dusk Sunday night which was broken up by police rifle fire and army tanks, heightened the tension between Communists and Mossadegh's Nationalists which has existed since the nationalization law was passed in May.

Worried About Reds

The Mossadegh, government, while standing firm on its program to get the AIOC out of Iran, is worried about Tudeh (Communist) efforts to use the popular oil nationalization issue to spread Communist influence and disorder.

Today's crackdown on the Tudeh Party is the sharpest since an attempt to assassinate the Shah in 1949. Since then the Tudeh Party has been outlawed, but has continued to flourish under such front organizations as the "Partisans of Peace" and the "Society to Fight the Imperialist Oil Companies."

Harriman told reporters on his arrival Sunday he is confident friendly talks can settle the dispute over Iran's nationalization of the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's billion-dollar properties.

Harriman said he had no specific proposals for a settlement, but emphasized he had full Presidential authority to discuss all aspects of the nationalization dispute plus United States economic aid for Iran.

He brought with him a personal message from Truman to Mossadegh.

UN Reports Progress At Parley

Say Reds Appear To Be Observing Truce Regulations

MUNSAN, Korea, July 16. —(AP)—Cease-fire negotiators reported they made "some progress" in two 55-minute sessions today toward organizing an agenda for their Korean armistice talks.

Their next meeting was scheduled for 11 am Tuesday (9 pm Monday EDT) in war-shattered Kaesong.

After Monday's sessions United Nations negotiators announced:

"The Communists have fulfilled their agreement with respect to the neutrality of the conference site in that no armed personnel were observed."

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief United Nations delegate, commented during the noon recess "It is much better now that we are not surrounded by guards."

Appear In Harmony

Correspondents on the spot said both sides apepared to be in harmony at the end of Monday's session.

Tuesday's meeting was scheduled for 11 am—one hour later than usual—at the request of the Communists. No reason was given for the change in time.

Joy took the entire 55-minute Monday morning session to present further arguments in favor of the agenda proposed by the Allied delegation.

They took a two-hour recess at the Reds' request.

Then in the afternoon, Gen. Nam Il, head of the Red delegation, used another 55 minutes to present his views.

They talked only about agenda items. An Allied announcement said:

Warn Canadians About Truce

By BILL BOSS.

WEST SECTOR, Korea, July 16 — (CP). — Brig. John Rockingham, Commander of Canada's 25th Brigade in Korea, warned his men Sunday not to build their hopes on the current Kaesong cease-fire negotiations bearing fruit.

"I believe that the enemy, if he collapses into a state of inactivity, would choose that precise moment to strike," he said. "Do not relax one iota from complete operational readiness. If you do, there might be trouble."

Brig. Rockingham spoke at the graduation ceremonies of the Brigade's first non-commissioned officers' school.

Baby, 11 Mos. Dies In Train Collision; Truck Driver Killed

Two deaths and eight injuries was the toll Saturday night in two accidents in the Peterborough district. In a train-car crash east of Peterborough, Edward Theobald, 11 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Theobald, 664 Stormont St., was instantly killed when an eastbound CPR train struck a car occupied by him and seven others. John Meincinger, 20, of Indian River, died in hospital with injuries received in a truck-car crash a mile north of Norwood at Killarney Corners.

The 11-months-old baby was instantly killed and seven other occupants of a car were injured early Saturday night when the car, coming toward Peterborough, crashed into a CPR train, six miles east of the city.

Pact Ministers Plan To Meet In Ottawa

LONDON, July 16 (Reuters)—The foreign and finance ministers of the 12 North Atlantic Treaty powers plan to meet in late September probably in Ottawa, a usually-reliable source said here today.

The proposed meeting will make decisions on three major problems under discussion inside the organization for the last four months.

These are: Germany's contribution to Western defence; command structures in the Atlantic, Mediterranean and the Middle East; and drawing up and implementing over-all budget for North Atlantic defence.

Ask Permission To Increase Phone Rates

MONTREAL, July 16 (CP) — The Bell Telephone Company has applied to the Board of Transport Commissioners for permission to increase telephone rates.

Bell president Frederick Johnson made the news known to shareholders in a folder accompanying their regular dividend cheques.

More than 1,500,000 telephone customers in Quebec and Ontario, only provinces served by Bell, had their bills jacked last January.

But, President Johnson says, those new rates were based on the cost level existing in 1949.

In his message to the shareholders he said: "No allowance whatever could be made for future increases in the cost of labor or materials or in taxes. But as everyone knows, costs have not remained stationary since 1945. They have moved upward at an accelerating pace—particularly during the last 12 months."

Have Higher Taxes

"... The combined effect of the two major factors — increased wage costs and higher taxes—would alone make it imperative that we again request authority to increase the price of our service.

Johnson told the board at a hearing concerning the last raise that the company would ask for another boost in 1952.

The increase granted last January was designed to add 20.6 per cent to revenues, equal to $23,900,000 a year.

Ottawa Holds Pension Parley

OTTAWA, July 1 6(CP)—Representatives of the federal and provincial governments met today to discuss terms under which pensions of $40 a month will be paid to needy persons between 65 and 69 and to needy blind persons 21 and over.

The delegates met in private in the Senate's railway committee room. The meetings, under the chairmanship of Health Minister Martin, may continue Tuesday.

The governments will attempt to reach agreement on the conditions a person must meet in order to qualify for a pension.

King Leopold Gives Up Throne To Son

BRUSSELS, July 16. (AP) — King Leopold III gave up his throne today stepping down in favor of his elder son, Prince Baudouin.

The king signed the abdication document ending his 17-year reign at 12:19 p.m. (7:19 a.m. EDT) in the bell room of Brussels' royal palace.

The abdication act was countersigned by Prince Baudouin as chief of state and by Premier Joseph Pholien and Justice Minister Ludovic Moyersoen.

Nearly 200 other prominent government personalities gathered to witness the dramatic ceremony, which came after years of bitter wrangling over the king's marriage to a commoner and his relations with the Germans during the Second World War.

Before he signed, Leopold called on the nation to rally round his son, who succeeded his father immediately as king of the Belgians. Leopold spoke first in Flemish, then in Fresnch — his country's two national languages.

Honorary Title

Leopold, speaking slowly and solemnly, told his son:

"My dear Baudouin, it is with pride that I transmit to you the noble and heavy mission to carry from now on the crown of a Belgium which, in spite of the most terrible of wars and the upsets which followed it, has stayed territorially and morally intact, free and faithful to its traditions."

Leopold keeps the title of king, but no longer will be "of the Belgians." That makes him a sort of honorary monarch, with the prestige and honors but without the responsibilities and powers.

Baudouin does not receive the royal powers until Tuesday when he takes the oath to the constitution before parliament. In the interim 24 hours the cabinet will hold the royal powers.

Hailstones Damage Crops In Alberta

CALGARY, July 16 —(CP)—Hailstones, some as large as golf balls, laid waste thousands of acres of spring crops in south-central Alberta during the week-end.

Damage was patchy but estimates of losses ranged from 20 to 100 per cent. Wheat crops were hardest hit.

The hailstorms cut swaths as wide as six miles and as long as 10 to 12 miles. Rural telephone poles were blown down and trees snapped by strong winds that accompanied the hail.

7-Block Area Still Burning In Flooded Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 16. (AP)—The costliest flood in American history passed its destructive peak in the Kansas City area today and surged on eastward in Missouri. But this metropolitan area of 900,000 persons and eastern and central Kansas still reeled from the impact. The twin furies of fire and flood lashed at Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kas., for the fifth day. Four industrial districts were under water. Transportation was crippled. The water supply was curtailed. A seven-block area burned fiercely—just as it has since last Friday.

In eastern and central Kansas, the swollen Kansas river and its tributaries receded, permitting some of the thousands of homeless to return to mud-caked areas.

More than 75,000 persons in both states were driven from their homes.

But many of the towns still lacked power and water facilities.

Eastward in Missouri, the Missouri river crest rolled towards the central part of the state. There were no great industrial cities in its path.

Seventeen deaths have been caused by the flood.

Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of the army engineers, said Sunday night it appeared the cost will run considerably over the $500,000,000 he estimated last week.

In Washington, President Truman asked Congress for a $15,000,000 emergency fund. A House of Representatives appropriations committee was expected to approve the fund today.

[illegible] waters still swirled over thousands of acres of industrial districts. The depth of the flood water ranged up to 20 feet.

A fire, fed by more than 1,000,000 gallons of oil which has been burning since last Friday, has virtually destroyed 24 buildings and damaged others. At least 14 the flames.

US Advised Against Alliance

LONDON, July 16 (AP)—The foreign office disclosed today Britain has advised the United States against entering any military arrangements with Generalissimo Franco's Spanish regime.

Informed diplomats said, however, the US seems to be disregarding Britain's advice.

In the background was the departure from Washington of Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, US chief of naval operations, for a tour of Europe which will include Spain. Sherman was to discuss with the Spanish military men matters of mutual interest.

The feeling has been expressed in Paris and London that any US-Spanish military arrangements would give Spain a place in the [illegible] obliquely, and there is strong feeling in both Britain and France against the inclusion of Franco's regime in Western defence arrangements.

Sad, Ailing VC Collapses Can't Return to Infantry

OTTAWA, July 16 (CP) — A sad and ailing VC has had to abandon his long-sought return to the infantry.

The army announced today that Lt.-Col. John Keefer Mahony, VC, 37, of New Westminster, BC, has relinquished command of the 1st Canadian infantry battalion of the Europe-bound 27th brigade because of ill health.

His successor at the Valcartier, Que., training base of the brigade is Maj. J. E. L. Castonguay, 37, of Montreal, now with the 1st battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment at Camp Petawawa, Ont. Maj. Castonguay is being promoted to lieutenant-colonel.

Col. Mahony, former head of army public relations, now is convalescing at his home here. He eventually will go to London, Ont. as assitant adjutant and quartermaster-general at headquarters, Western Ontario area.

He has been yearning to get back to the infantry ever since he won the VC on Italy's Melfa river May 24, 1944, and thus automatically ended his fighting career. VC's don't fight again.

The army sent him back to the infantry a month or so ago when the 27th brigade was formed for Atlantic Pact service. He went happily from his public relations desk at army headquarters, pitched into the job of creating a battalion, worked from early morning until late at night and finally collapsed.

For two weeks he was in hospital at Quebec City. Now he's here. He'll take up the new job once the doctors say he's fit.

Three Break-in Suspects Caught

AMHERSTBURG, July 16 — (CP)— Provincial Police are holding three break-in suspects captured in a Detroit River marsh after a four-hour search early Sunday. A fourth suspect was picked up at his home here, his clothing soaking wet.

Police said the four, Edward Gervais, 28, Wilfred Dubreuil, 25 and James Burns, all of Windsor, and Joseph Triolet, of Amherstburg, will be charged with an attempted break-in at an Amherstburg Dominion store.

Provincial Police Constable George Hannah broke up the attempted break-in after two Amherstburg residents almost simultaneously reported four men acting suspiciously near the store.

Constable Hannah sped to the scene and caught sight of the four men as they fled in a car. Constable Morris Nimigon took up the chase and found the car abandoned near an outside phone booth. Near the booth was a heavy crowbar.

Police from Essex and other centres answered a radio call and searched the area. Four hours later, the three Windsor men were arrested after police traced their steps along the muddy banks of the river. Triolet was arrested at his Amherstburg home later, his clothing still wet.

Novelist's Family Wounded By Rifle

HONEY HARBOR, Ont., July 16 —(CP)— The mother and son of Gwethalyn Graham, Canadian novelist, were wounded during the weekend as they examined a .22 calibre rifle.

Mrs. Isobel Bown of Toronto received a bullet wound in the foot and Anthony Graham, 18, a wound in the thigh. The gun is reported to have discharged accidentally late Saturday night. The bullet passed through Graham's thigh and lodged in Mrs. Brown's foot.

The two were brought to a Toronto hospital Sunday where their condition was reported "good."

ONE DEATH, ONE serious injury were caused by this car-truck collision a mile north of Norwood Saturday night. John Meincinger, 20, RR 3, Indian River died in hospital four hours after the crash. The truck, driven by Meincinger, was going north and struck the car of Mayor J. E. Ayrhart, Campbellford, broadside. His half-ton pickup truck overturned causing fatal injuries. Bill Edwards, 52, Toronto, a passenger in the Ayrhart car is critically injured in Civic hospital.

Third Generation In Vancouver Heads Out To Sea

VANCOUVER, (CP)—The third generation of Vancouver's most famous seafaring family is going to sea.

The sons and daughters of Cap'n John, Cap'n Jim and Cap'n Charlei are breaking in on the waterfront.

They are the grandchildren of the man whose name is known along the whole length of Canada's West Coast as another word for tugboating—Capt. Charles H. Cates.

Sylvia, daughter of Capt. Jim, has a summer job in the wharf office of the family concern. The other night she took the wheel of one of the tugs to help her father chase some log pirates in Vancouver Harbor.

Other Cates youngsters have done summer work and knocked about the tugs—John's daughter Anne, Charlie's children, Janet and Suzanne and Jim Jr., who is a deckhand on the Charles H. Cates No. 10.

During the United States Civil War, Capt. Andrew Jackson Cates moved to Canada and his seven children grew up in ragged Reef, N.S.

At least four of them came to British Columbia. One of the seven, John, carried miners to the Yukon in '98 in a small vessel and joined the band of vigilantes who finally got badman Soapy Smith, the vice-king of Alaska.

Back in Vancouver, he started a tugboat business. By the time he died in 1938, Capt. Cates saw his three sons successfully operating the family concern.

Capt. Jim is the most active in water-born operations; Capt. Charlie splits his time between ofice and fleet and is a North Vancouver Alderman; and Capt. John is Labor Minister in the British Columbia Government.

Baby Dies

The eighth occupant of the car was 7-months-old Linda Brand who escaped with a severe bruise on the head and brush burns on one leg.

Didn't See Train

The fatal accident occurred on the Old Nowood road, six miles east of Peterborough. Brand said he did not see the eastbound Havelock-Bobcaygeon mixed train that pulled out of Peterborough station 6.30 p.m. (DST).

He is also believed to have been temporarily blinded by direct glare of the sun which was low on the horizon.

An ironical feature is that Brand decided to take the Old Norwood road back to Peterborough in preference to facing heavy motor traffic on Highway 7. The two families had gone to Campbellford Saturday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Moore, a sister of Mrs. Theobald and Brand.

They found nobody home because the Moores were at the summer home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brand, 250 Carlisle Ave., on Chemong Lake.

Thus a car trip that had been unsuccessful in the first place ended in tragedy when the driver took a short cut home to avoid heavy traffic.

Slight banks on either side of the road over the CPR tracks and tall grass help to obscure the view of the railroad intersection. In addition, Brand was looking straight into the setting sun in the west. The result was that he failed to see the train in time and he crashed into it at the rear of the locomotive.

Knocked 25 Feet

The 1937-model car was spun violently around and knocked 25 feet up the track in an easterly direction. The eight occupants were tossed from their seats and spilled in a semi-circle about the wrecked car.

Eleven-months-old Edward Theobald was torn from his mother's arms where she was sitting in the back seat of the car and he was found dead, by the side of the railway track, some distance from the wreck. Death was from a fractured skull, said Coroner Dr. H. G. Carleton.

The crew of the CPR mixed train tried to make the injured as comfortable as possible. They were helped by two sisters, Thelma Crough, 19, and Dorothy, 21, who live nearby.

Thelma is a nurse's aide at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Scattered Around

"When we arrived the people were lying all over the place—along the track and on the grass," said Miss Crough. "There wasn't very much we could do. We washed the blood off them and tried to make them comfortable until the ambulance arrived."

The first ambulance removed Mrs. Theobald, her son William, Miss Franiski, Mrs. Brand and her son Bobby. It was nearly an hour later that the second arrived to take away Mrs. Brand, who was being nursed by Thelma Crough, her husband, and her seven-months-old daughter Linda, who was looked after by Dorothy Crough.

Husband Helps

Mr. Theobald, a supervisor at Silverwood's Dairy, had just got home Saturday night from work when he was informed that a son had been killed and his wife was in critical condition. He lent what assistance he could at the wreck and accompanied the Brands to hospital in the second ambulance.

There is no wigwag at either approach to the railway intersection. But a railway sign, with the writing obliterated, is located about 150 feet away.

Investigating the fatality were OPP Sgt. Lloyd McClude, Cpl. Joe Hanson and Constable T. H. Armstrong.

The train crew were Engineer Fred Pollock and Conductor W. D. Hamilton of Havelock, and Fireman S. E. Campbell, Toronto.

Funeral for Edward Theobald will be Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the Nisbett funeral home, the Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

Dies From Injuries

In the Norwood accident, one man was killed, another badly injured and a third escaped with a shaking up on Saturday night, when a truck driven by John J. Meinoinger, of RR 3, Indian River, was in collision with an auto driven by Mayor J. E. Ayrhart, of Campbellford.

Meincinger, a farmer, died about four hours after the accident [illegible] Peterborough Civic Hospital as a result of his injuries. He never regained consciousness.

Bill Edwards, 52, Toronto, who was riding in the Ayrhart car, received a broken hip, shock and body bruises and lacerations. His condition is "only fair." Mr. Ayrhart escaped with only a shaking up and a few bruises. The truck was a half-ton 1950 pick-up and the Ayrhart car was a 1951 Lincoln convertible.

The accident occurred one mile north of Norwood at the boundary line of Dummer and Asphodel townships. The Ayrhart car was travelling east approaching the intersection, where it was going to make a right turn to proceed south to Norwood and thence to Campbellford via Hastings. The Meincinger truck was travelling north and the two vehicles reached the intersection at about the same time.

Mayor's Account

In an interview Sunday, Mayor Ayrhart told of the accident in his own words. "Bill Edwards and I had been to Warsaw, and were returning to Campbellford via Hastings because the Campbellford-Havelock road is under construction. As we approached the intersection I blew the horn and slowed down to make a right turn. (There are no stop signs at the intersection.) I was just about to make the turn when I saw the truck travelling quite fast coming north, and from its position on the roadway, I knew it would hit us if I tried to turn. I tried to get out of the way by tramping the accelerator to get over the intersection, but the truck travelled about 60 feet while I was travelling about 10, and it struck us broadside."

Meincinger's Injuries

Meincinger's injuries included facial lacerations, fractured skull, an internal injuries. He was attended by Dr. A. R. Atkinson of Norwood.

Provincial Constable Donald W. Erskine investigated.

Meincinger was born in Magrath Alberta, son of John Meincinger and Annie Haunzar. His parents are now living at the family residence, RR 3, Indian River.

He was educated at Brickley school, Percy township and was a [illegible] Roman Catholic Church, Norwood.

After leaving Alberta the family came to Ontario and Meincinger lived for five years at Hastings and two years at Brooklin. He has been a resident of Otonabee for the last five years.

He leaves two sisters, Mrs. James Sherwood (Ann) and Mrs. Joseph Elroux (Katherine), both of Toronto.

The funeral will be from the family residence to St. Paul's Church, Norwood, for requiem mass at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Burial will be in St. Paul's cemetery.

Rokossovsky Said Missing

FRANKFORT, Germany, July 16 (AP)—Western diplomats in Warsaw are mystified by the apparent disappearance of Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, bemedalled hero of the Soviet Union and Polish defence minister.

It was confirmed here Sunday that rumors of an attempt on Rokossovsky's life are cirulating in Poland, and that Western envoys, without passing judgment on the rumors, have reported them to their governments.

No concrete evidence has been uncovered by diplomatic missions in Warsaw. The one established fact is that the tall, former czarist officer has not been seen by Westerners in the Polish capital for several weeks.

The latest published report concerning Rokossovsky was in the Copenhagen newspaper Berlingske Tidende, which said a Polish major shot Rokossovsky twice two or three weeks ago and then committed suicide. The Danish newspaper said Rokossovsky was taken to Moscow for treatment.

Police, Posse Trap Nude Man On Farm

GODERICH, July 16—(CP)—Albert Mennard, 30, trailed by Ontario Provincial Police for several days, was taken into custody at noon Sunday on a farm north of Amberley by Jack Bradley, after being sought all night by a posse of district farmers.

He was in the nude when taken, and was turned over to provincial police from Goderich and Walkerton, who were taking part in the hunt. He was charged with indecent assault and exposure and lodged in Walkerton jail.

Ever since he had been reported to have appeared in the nude in Southampton district early in the week, Mennard had been sought by police. Reports came in from various points that he had been seen and when it became certain Saturday night that he was in the Amberley area, farmers combed various sections throughout the night.

Postpone Clash

BANGALORE, July 16 (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru apparently decided Sunday to postpone a clash with Congress party President Purushottamdas Tandon over control of the party—India's ruling political group. After six days of secret sessions, the two agreed to drop a proposed shuffling of party leaders asked by Nehru supporters.

Helicopter Pilot Rescues 2 Fliers

TRENTON, July 16—An RCAF search and rescue helicopter pilot on a pleasure flight in a conventional aircraft, heard a faint distress signal over his radio Saturday. The weak message gave the location of a plane which had crash-landed in a swamp, about 10 miles north of here.

The pilot, FO Don Lewis, of Barrie, located the plane, returned here and trundled his helicopter out of its hangar, plucked the two downed airmen off the wing of their plane and set them down beside a waiting ambulance.

Neither FO Ray Price of Vancouver, nor his student, Naval Cadet Andre Crepeau of Montreal, was injured.

They had been flying a Texas trainer, one of 100 loaned to the RCAF by the US Army Air Force. It is believed engine failure was the cause of the crash landing.

When Lewis located the crash scene he radioed the position to Trenton while he flew to his helicopter. An RCAF ambulance sped to the scene and was waiting at the edge of the swamp, about a mile from the grounded plane, when Lewis set down the two men. He used a harness on the end of a cable to lift and lower them while he hovered above.

International Span Given New Look

SARNIA—(CP)—The Blue Water International Bridge is being rejuvenated. The job is costing money—$180,000 in fact.

Eighteen workmen already have begun painting the 1¼-mile span which links Port Huron, Mich. with Sarnia. One coating alone will take 3,000 gallons of paint.

The clean-up job is the responsibility of Michigan State Bridge Commission which also looks after the operation and maintenance of the 8,120-foot structure. However, Canadian workers and firms will share in the contract. Costs will be paid from toll charges.

As soon as $918,000 worth of bonds—the one outstanding debt against the bridge—are retired the structure will become toll-free except possibly for upkeep.

The more traffic, the quicker the bonds will be retired. A total of 4,933,194 cars and 16,561,130 persons crossed the bridge up until the close of the 1950 season.

Urges Union Use Moderation

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (CP—British trade unions must adopt a common sense approach in their demands for increased wages, J. Matthews, national industrial officer, told the annual conference here of the general and municipal workers' union.

It was important, he said, for labor to realize that if the country went bankrupt, union members would suffer the same fate. It was far better to be assured of a reasonable pay packet every week than to enjoy a large one for a brief spell and then be thrown out of work.

"I hope members of our organization will use common sense in pressing their demands for wage increases," Mr. Matthews said. "We want agreements that will not only benefit our members but also the country as a whole."

J. Williamson, general secretary, said some left wing members of the movement thought democracy meant getting as much as possible for themselves and not caring about anything else.

[illegible] tonism," he added. "I call it damned selfishness, that can only lead to disaster."

Trade Unions May Ignore Act

TORONTO, July 16—(CP)—A suggestion that trade unions ignore the Ontario Labor Relations Act unless assurance is given that decisions under it cannot be appealed was made Saturday at a conference of the Ontario Federation of Labor (AFL).

In a resolution to be sent to the Ontario cabinet, delegates said:

"Unless legislation is devised, or assurances given, that the decisions of the Ontario Labor Relations Board shall not be subject to court proceedings, the trade union movement will be forced to operate outside the legislation."

The meeting was called to consider the effect of a recent decision by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court. Mr. Justice Gale quashed a certification granted by the Labor Board to the Toronto Newspaper Guild on behalf of the circulation department employees of the Globe and Mail. He asserted that the paper, refused permission to see Guild membership lists, had been refused "essential justice."

Some Progress

"The United Nations command delegation reports that some progress was made to the formation of a mutual agreement upon agenda."

A press dispatch from the truce city said the five North Korean and Chinese generals were scowling as they left the morning meeting.

But when the afternoon talks ended at 1:55 pm (11:55 pm Sunday EDT) they seemed amiable. The five Red generals smiled and posed for UN photographers.

The cameramen were with the second party of 20 Allied press representatives to go to Kaesong under revised negotiating conditions prescribed by the UN commander, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

At the end of the morning session, Joy said the Communists had asked for a two-hour recess. He said the Allied delegation had talked the entire morning session, and by agreement the Reds would have the floor when the meeting resumed at 1 pm.

After the Communists had had their say, the two delegations appeared to be in accord.

The whole city had taken on a neutral tone as the result of Red acceptance of UN demands. Details were worked out Sunday, when conferences resumed after a three-day break.

Observe Agreement

AP correspondent John Randolph said from all appearances the Communists were observing their agreement.

There were no armed guards along the route from the UN peace camp to Kaesong. There were none at the conference site.

North Korean military police were in Kaesong, as agreed Sunday, but they did not come near the meeting place. They carried Russian-type burp guns.

Randolph, three other correspondents and an army captain strolled freely through the city.

Members of the official Communist party, who had remained aloof Sunday, smiled and attempted to converse through interpreters with Allied newspapermen Monday. Several Red photographers examined cameras carried by the Amerliians.

The UN and Red press parties arrived in Kaesong for the first time Sunday afternoon, and began busily photographing each other.

In a two-hour session Sunday negotiators patched up differences that had led to the interruption of cease-fire talks. Allied headquarters announced conferees agreed:

"1. The road leading to the conference site shall be open to unrestricted use of vehicles of the United Nations command delegation. No notice will be required for such movement.

"2. The neutral area, five miles in radius, with a traffic circle in Kaesong as its centre would contain no armed personnel except the minimum need for military purposes. Such personnel (military police) could be armed with small arms.

"3. Any personnel required for security at the conference site would be unarmed. The conference site would be defined as an area having a radius of one-mile, [illegible] conference house."

Thing went so well in the session that some observers were hopeful the task of drawing up the agenda would be completed in a few days.

Cycle, Potatoes Help Pair To See World

REGINA—(CP)—Potatoes and motorcycles can be very important in life when you want to see the world and haven't got much money.

Globe-trotting artists Lorelli and Arthur McKay found that out during the two years they just spent in England, France and Switzerland.

Mr. and Mrs. McKay, married four years ago in Calgary, have a joint ambition: to see the world and continue their studies in art.

Their shortage of cash didn't deter them when they decided to go to England two years ago.

To cut travelling expenses they bought a motorcycle and rode to Montreal with their bed rolls strapped behind them, then sold the cycle.

In England they took cooks' jobs at a prep school where the regular cook had abandoned his job in a hurry.

Lorelli's artistic fingers peeled hundreds of potatoes and Arthur scraped pots and pans for six months until their finances recovered.

Wonderful Friends

After bicycling over England they went to Paris and enrolled at an art academy.

Lorelli thinks that was the best part of the trip because of the friends they made. "Now we correspond with Parisians, Africans, Americans, English and Swiss," she says.

The 24-year-old couple worked for United States army officials at Orleans for a while, then went to Switzerland where they bought another motorcycle and toured the country thoroughly.

They brought the motorcycle back to Canada with them and rode back to Regina from the east coast.

The cycle will be used for "future trips."

Little Trend Shown On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, July 16 ((CP). — Prices showed little trend as the session progressed on the stock market today.

Industrials were about balanced in dull dealings. Steels, banks and agricultures showed a majority of gains in the groupings. Liquors, utilities, manufacturing companies and constructions were lower and papers, foods, textiles and refining oils were mixed. Most price changes were in small fractions and no issues showed much feature.

Base metals were fairly mixed, but the tendency was to advance. United Asbestos, a feature last week, attracted some attention as it climbed 15 cents in brisk trading to a new high at $1.89. East Sullivan was up 60 cents. Western oils were irregular with little change. Golds continued their sluggish trading of the last three months. A few senior producers were off fractions, while a handful of secondary golds advanced pennies.

37 Weekend Fatalities Across Eastern Canada

By The Canadian Press

Thirty-seven Canadians, some in traffic and some swimming, died in Eastern Canada during the weekend.

With water sports and vacations in full swing, drownings claimed most lives—18—while traffic accidents accounted for 15 fatalities and miscellaneous accidents for four.

A Canadian Press survey showed 18 of the deaths were reported in Ontario, 15 in Quebec and four in Nova Scotia.

Ontario's total consisted of six drownings, nine traffic fatalities, a strangling accident and two reported suicides.

Drowned were: Peter Cajander, 40, of London in Lake Erie after he suffered a heart attack; Alex Holm, 58, of Kitchener, while fishing in a mill pond near London; Eugenius Shimberg, 18, of Sudbury, while bathing in the Vermillion river near Sudbury and Douglas Lawrence, 30, of Oshawa, when he fell from his boat into Rice Lake, southwest of Peterborough.

Police at Sudbury are dragging Donald Lake for the bodies of Russell O'Neill, 40, and Jack Manning, 40, of Garson presumed drowned when their overturned boat was found after a storm on the lake.

Strangled In Crib

Nine-month-old Andrew Yakovishin was strangled when he became entangled in a curtain hanging over his crib at his home in Leamington, Ont.

Neil Winch, 54, and Charles Brown, 57, were killed in separate accidents when they were struck by automobiles as they crossed Toronto streets. Alfred Tocheri, a Port Arthur undertaker was struck by a runaway gravel truck and Theodore Labelle, 74, was struck by a car on the main street of Sudbury.

James McCormack, 16, of Trenton was killed when the car he was riding in crashed into a ditch. J. Meincinger, 20, of Indian River, was killed in a truck-car crash, near Peterborough. Mrs. Jack Boykoff of St. Catharines was killed when a car rolled over her in a ditch near St. Catharines and Emil Shykolowich, 68, of Toronto was thrown headfirst from the sidecar of a motorcycle when it went out of control near Hamilton.

Edward Theobald, 11 months, was killed and seven others injured when their car was struck by a mixed freight train near Peterborough.

In Toronto, Louis Pishker slashed his wrists and throat and jumped out of a two-storey window. Muriel Violet Keith, 20, of Kirkland Lake was found dead in her gas-filled apartment in Toronto. Police said both deaths were suicides.

Find Difficult Problems Retarding Benelux Scheme

By GEORGE FRANKS

THE HAGUE, (Reuters)—Canals, cut flowers, balance of payments harbors, excise duties, and trade policies are the varied obstacles to speedy conclusion of Benelux—full economic union among Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

The plan, born of wartime enthusiasm, was expected by its promoters to be one of the greatest victories of the post-war era. Instead, it has been steadily postponed.

Frequent conferences have proments in principle." These are now taking the form of desperate efforts to prevent the failure of the whole plan, often described as a most striking example of international co-operation.

Except for a rather limited customs agreement, which in many cases has resulted only in raising the excise duties, little progress of practical value has been made.

In official circles on both sides of a frontier which refuses to disappear, it is being admitted that the Benelux Plan "is now in a deep sleep." No one will go so far as to say that it is dead or even suffering from any incurable disease. But the symptons are serious and the cures baffling.

Stalled on Flowers

Even on such a minor problem as the sale of Dutch cut flowers to Belgium, the best solution that could be reached at the latest ministerial conference was "an agreement in principle." No details were worked out beyond a that Holland would "regulate" the export of cut flowers to Belgium (although no figures or quotas were settled), and that at a later date a proposal for an export levy would be considered.

The Benelux problems now are beginning to wear out the patience of the peoples of the three countries.

As the Dutch merchants put it: "Holland last year bought about 1,400,000,000 guilders worth of goods from Belgium and sold only 700,000,000 guilders worth. Yet as soon as Holland tries to close that gap by exporting more horticultural produce, Belgium announces an import ban. How therefore can the balance of payments be levelled up?"

Different Problem

A problem of different kind, because it is so technical and complicated, is that of solving the century-old rivalry between the Dutch port of Rotterdam and the Belgian port of Antwerp. For several years a joint committee has been working, but it has only reached "agreement in principle."

The crux of the problem appears to ba a fair redistribution between Antwerp and the Dutch Rhine ports of a traffic which is much smaller than it was before the war. This seems an almost impossible task.

Fruition of the Benelux scheme is therefore still distant. It will not fail, for all three countries realize that in principle their existence depends upon an economic union, but there are still many ostacles to overcome.

Rail Folk Songs Kept Alive By Yodeller

NEW YORK, July 16 —(AP)—The famous old railroad songs first made nationally-popular by the legendary Jimmy Rodgers will not drift into oblivion.

A one-man crusade to guarantee their longevity is being launched by Hank Snow, veteran country music singer who started singing in western Canada.

Snow comes to Broadway's "Tin Pany Alley" occasionally only to make some new records, sign a new contract with his song publishers and then is off again, riding the rails.

A lifelong enthusiast for the tradition of railroad songs which Rodgers, a lanky yodeller and former railroad brakeman, built up, Snow is perpetuating on records and radio such classics as "The Wreck of Old 97" and "Hobo Bill's Last Ride."

On a quick trip to Broadway from the south the other day, Snow said that "As a child I listened by the hour to my idol, Jimmie Rodgers' records of these railroad songs. Oddly enough, my first recognition in the Tin Pan Alley came with a railroad song which I wrote myself caled 'I'm Movin' On.'

"I almost became a seagoing singer instead of a railroad man," Snow said. "When I was only 14 my stepfather objected so much to my studying singing that he drove me out of the house.

"I got a job as cabin boy on a ship sailing out of Nova Scotia, but when I got back to port I had enough of the sea and turned to railroading.

"The memory of Jimmie Rodgers' singing was so strong that I took a sentimental journey to Texas to meet Rodgers' widow. She gave me Rodgers' guitar and a lot of encouragement.

"I've realized a life's dream in recording this real American folk music. It has been kept alive all these years by the railroad workers. Many of them learned the songs from their fathers, and their fathers before them. They are taken as seriously on the railroads as old-time hymns."

Prisoner Makes Break Climbs Into Chimney

LONDON, July 16 — (AP) — "Nobody loves me," shouted the man on the roof of Wandsworth Prison.

With that he took off his clothes, climbed into a chimney to cover part of his nakedness and for 90 minutes Sunday defied police efforts to get him down.

The man, a prisoner, broke free while being exercised in the prison yard. Wardens finally pried him loose from the chimney by putting ladders up two sides and using one as a decoy while a cop sneaked up behind the prisoner on the other.

Boat Capsizes Fisherman Drowns

AYTON, Ont., July 16 (CP) — A week-end fishing trip ended in disaster here on Saturday night when Alex Helm, 58, of RR 2, Kitchener was drowned in the Saugeen river.

A small rowboat carrying Helm and three companions capsized as they were rowing upstream.

Helm could not swim and his three companions—Norman Frey, Jerome Schaultz and Carl Korrell, all of Kitchener—were poor swimmers. One man caught hold of Helm twice but lost his grip because of Helm's frantic struggling.

Helm's body, tangled in his fishing line, was recovered about two hours later.

Warn Spooners To Keep Out

MONTREAL — (CP) — Speed maniacs and amorous citizens stay away from Ville St. Michel!

The reason: Mayor Charles Lafontaine and Recorder Didier Leroux will not tolerate that the town's vacant lots be used for "necking" purposes and its streets as racetracks for foolish drivers.

Outsiders, 112 of them, paid out $1,100 in less than an hour's session of the court recently.

Said Recorder Leroux: "The war is on in Ville St. Michel against Montrealers who look down on this residential suburb as Montreal's backyard, and want to do their necking there."

Said Mayor Lafontaine: "Ville St Michel has long been considered as a town of no importance where everything was allowed. This is no longer true. We like Montrealers and will welcome them as long as they are respectable. Otherwise, out they go.

This campaign is the second Mayor Lafontaine has inaugurated recently. Some months ago he conducted a raid on a gambling establishment in the district.

Hessian Fly Damages Wheat

HAMILTON, July 16 —(CP)— Considerable damage to wheat crops across the province is being [illegible] this year by an outbreak of the Hessian Fly, Prof. H. W. Goblen of the entomology department of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, said today.

"In some fields of some counties there is quite a bit of damage, while there are other fields with very little damage," he said. Although he had no official estimate, he believed the damage in Wentworth county was moderate, perhaps 10 to 15 per cent.

The outbreak of the Hessian Fly, he said, was connected with the cold, wet spring both last year and this year.

"The outbreak is more serious than for many years except in the Chatham area where they had an attack last year," he said.

He described the Hessian Fly as smaller than a mosquito and said that it laid its eggs in the wheat in late May or early June and again in late August or early September. It then develops in the growing wheat.

Getting Break

EXSHAW, Alta. (CP)— An increased production of 1,200,000 barrels of cement a year will result from The Canada Cement Company's $7,000,000 plant expansion.

Barren Soil Now Produces

PRESTON—(CP)—Norman O. Hipel, a former Ontario Lands and Forests Minister, is busy these days practising what he used to preach.

Shortly after his retirement from active politics, the former member of the Hepburn Liberal cabinet bought a run-down 100-acre farm near this Western Ontario town.

It was so hopeless a proposition that he got the land for only $25 an acre.

Now, through practice of the conservation rules he helped devise, he's reaping his harvest.

In one field last year, rye grew to a height of six feet before mid-June. This field had been abandoned because the topsoil was gone. Mr. Hipel dragged the topsoil back from the gullies and ponds at the base of the field.

This year it will produce three crops of clover.

[illegible] has proven that has a record of 160 per cent growth of the original seedlings. Another is covered with a heavy, healthy stand of mixed evergreens. Still another plot bears 400 of the original hardwoods planted there nine years ago.

Mr. Hipel credits his success to proper planting—near water, with a good leaf mulch—and the building of ponds wherever possible.

The proof of success is in Mr. Hipel's profession—he's now a prosperous lumber dealer.

Couple Nearly Hit By Runaway Boat

BALA, July 16—(CP)—A Toronto man and woman narrowly missed being hit by a runaway motorboat on Lake Muskoka after they were tossed out of the gyrating craft Sunday.

Frank Ashbourne, 28, toppled out of the boat when it was caught by the swell of passing craft and Ruth Miller, 29, also fell into the water in attempting to escape running him down.

While th empty boat buzzed around them, persons in a nearby boat pulled Ashbourne from the water. Miss Miller swam to shore.

Young Men Off For Europe

During the next year or two ten thousand young Canadians are going to have a trip to Europe, on salary, and all expenses paid by the Government. They are the men of the 27th Brigade, now being mustered. Recruiting for the special Brigade to fulfil Canada's obligations as an Atlantic Pact nation began two months ago and already 9,200 men have been posted to it. The goal was 10,000. Although the authorized establishment of a brigade is about 5,000, as many more are needed as replacements, and all told between ten and eleven thousand men are likely to be accepted in its ranks. The majority of them will go overseas, unless there is some major shift in plans and world events.

* * *

This opportunity for truly national service, for travel, for enriching experience, is not one to be passed up lightly by young Canadians of high spirit, and inquiring, adventurous nature. Actually, nearly a third of the men who have volunteered for the 27th Brigade are not youngsters taking a fling at army life; they are men who have had previous military service. Many of these have already tasted the experience of army life in Europe, during the war, and are going back for more.

* * *

It is interesting that the bulk of the Brigade troops are Ontarians and Maritimers. If there is any scarcity of civilian jobs in the Maritimes, there is none in Ontario, so it cannot be said that men are joining merely to get a job. To date 3,238 Ontario men and 2,685 Maritime men have joined—in comparison with only 904 from Manitoba and Saskatchewan, 1,271 from Alberta and British Columbia. Can the reason be that Ontario and Maritime men are more venturesome, more spirited and more aware of the need than Westerners? Quebec has contributed 1,091 men to the Brigade thus far. Whatever their reasons for joining, we salute especially the soldiers from Ontario and the four Maritime provinces who have volunteered for service in Europe. They have a splendid opportunity and are fine examples. But all gain the respect and even envy of those at home, who have joined the 27th Brigade and will join it, destined for Europe where their brothers and fathers have in two wars distinguished themselves and lived vibrantly.

Long Division In Louisiana

The most interesting current political situation in United States is that in Louisiana. In that state, the Long family has for many years run things to suit itself. The current campaign is for the governorship, a position now held by Earl Long, brother of the late Governor and Senator Huey Long. The campaign has just begun, but it has already produced developments which, in Louisiana, are unprecedented.

For one thing, there is a woman candidate, Miss Lucille May Grace; she is the first of her sex ever to run for the office of Governor. For another, candidate Kermit Parker is the first Negro ever to seek the executive post. For still another, there is a candidate willing to challenge the old tradition that neither a Roman Catholic nor a resident of New Orleans can be elected Governor—Representative Hale Boggs of New Orleans.

If these were the only features of the race in Louisiana, it would still be an unusual campaign. Even more unusual, however, is the fact that the race for the governorship has divided the Long family.

Governor Earl Long will not be a candidate for re-election, but is supporting an assorted group of candidates who have only one thing in common—they are all opposing candidates backed by the Governor's nephew, Senator Russell Long. Senator Long, for instance, is backing the tradition-defying Congressman Boggs. Governor Long has intimated that he will teach his nephew "the politicals facts of life." The outcome of the campaign, of course, will determine the state leadership, perhaps for years to come. It seems altogether probable that it will remain in the Long family, but the question is, which branch?

There are other factors involved, in addition to those already mentioned; Senator Long and Representative Boggs have generally supported the Truman administration. Governor Long, on the other hand, is an unreconstructed Southern rebel. There is the further fact that some 100,000 Negroes are expected to cast ballots—the largest Negro vote in Louisiana's history. It might be expected that these would vote almost to a man for the Negro candidate; but the odd point here is that the National Association for the Advancement of Coloured people is openly opposing the Negro candidate.

The campaign may not be featured by the colourful tactics made famous by the late Huey Long. Nevertheless, it seems Louisiana is headed for a summer of political fireworks.

What Would Byron Say?

There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,
There is society where none intrudes,
By the deep sea, and music in its roar:
I love not man the less, but Nature more.

Thus wrote Lord Byron; but what would the irritable poet have written if he had heard of the scheme of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, to warn against carelessness in the forest by means of a loud-speaker attached to an airplane, with a carrying range of five miles? The Department's plane will roam at large over camping grounds, warning all campers and holiday makers to put out cigarettes and matches, and to douse campfires. Even in the pathless woods we shall not be free from the voice of our paternal government, warning us not to do something.

There is another use for this plane with its monstrous voice; it will range over areas where people have become lost in the bush, and will give directions which will help them to make their way toward their rescuers. This use of the device seems to us to be entirely humane and admirable. And if warnings from the air, in a voice which would have convinced any Old Testament prophet that Jehovah was addressing him personally, will help to prevent forest fires, we can endure it, even though it will make some parts of the forests hideous.

We tremble, however, when we think of what might happen if this technique of broadcasting from planes, in a voice audible for five miles, were to be applied to ordinary competitive business. Imagine five planes over Peterborough, each shouting its own message: "Eat Crunchie-Wunchies for breakfast!"; "Don't miss the Buffaloes Giant Bingo"; "Hear William Sabbath, the Bluegrass Evangelist!"; "Smoke Chokies, the Coal Tar Cigarette!"; "Eat Smoothie, the Non-Butter Non-Margarine Spread!" Life, under such circumstances, would not be worth having.

We hope that the Ontario Government means to control the monstrous voice which it has created.

The Spiral Rises

The cost-of-living index has reached a new high: 184.1 above the level of 1935-39. The reason for this is not entirely, or even mainly, any act or lack of action of the Canadian people; nor can it be fully controlled by their Government. The Government can put a lid on inflation by a vast system of price and wage controls, but that itself will not cure or stop inflation.

The reason for the increasing cost of living is that production is not keeping up with demand. The civilian demand is greater than it has ever been before. The military demand has again become enormous; these are not being met by production. The situation is not peculiar to Canada. The United States is facing it; so is Britain. Britain has a burdensome system of controls; nevertheless, the cost of living there has risen sharply and is still going up. The United States is attempting to impose price controls, but is making little headway. Its executives are finding that while the public want lower prices, they do not want controls of wages and prices and distribution sufficiently strong and wide to produce lower prices. Last week, Mr. Michael V. Di Salle, head of the Office of Price Stabilization, reported to the President that unless price "roll-backs" are accepted and enforced, prices will rise continuously, adding as much as seven points in the cost-of-living index within the next few months.

[illegible] attempts to control prices, which production is [illegible] behind consumption, seemed doomed to failure. The United States Government has not shown any ability to control them successfully. The Canadian Government is not likely to succeed if it should start to dabble in controls. And, as we said above, Canadians themselves cannot control the situation in their own country. The reason is that Canada is very dependent on American supplies and prices. If American goods are in short supply and American prices are high and rising higher, Canada must feel it. Economic conditions in the United States are quickly reflected in Canada. The Canadian Government cannot control the cost of living when so much that goes into that cost comes directly or indirectly from the United States.

The cure for the high costs is greater production on both sides of the border, and less consumption.

It is probably a good idea for people in an office to be "just like one big family"—except that the quarreling and arguing sometimes interferes with work.

Persian Lambs 'Black Diamonds'

By JOHN WORRALL
In Capetown

THEY call the karakul lamb the "black diamond" of South-West Africa; and with some reason, for today it is the principal money-spinner of this vast territory, with an export turnover last year of more than £5,000,000.

A very large proportion of the curly black karakul pelts which find their way to the great fur houses of Europe and America, come from South-West, where farmers are experiencing an unprecedented period of prosperity. Their cheques are bigger than ever before, and there is every likelihood of prices rising higher.

FLOCKS of these strange-looking sheep graze across the waterless veld of the territory, much of it virtual desert. But the sheep are merely the vehicles for breeding the tiny black lambs, which are slaughtered soon after birth for their valuable skins.

The karakul, or Persian lamb, as it is more popularly known overseas, was introduced into what was then German South-West Africa as recently as 1909, when Paul Thorer, a German furrier, brought a small flock from Europe.

PERSIAN lamb breeding originated in the Bokhara Province of Russia. Thorer had visited Kokhara on many occasions, and succeeded in smuggling out of the province—for there was an export ban — 25 thoroughbred rams and 255 ewes, which formed the nucleus of the present industry.

The animals adapted themselves rapidly to the arid wastes of their new home. They had remarkable resistance to drought, and with careful husbanding their numbers multiplied. But even when Thorer died in 1920 there were still no signs of the immense growth of industry that was to come, mainly because of the setback caused by the 1914-18 campaigns which ravaged the territory.

GRADUALLY farmers began to see the many advantages of breeding karakul, especially those who had farmed ordinary wool-bearing sheep, which—and especially the lambs—are very susceptible to drought. Such conditions, which are endemic to the country, scarcely affect the karakul breeders because in addition to the fact that karakul are drought-resistant the young lambs are not expected to become adult, unless they are wanted for breeding purposes.

More and more of the shrewd German farmers, with an eye to the future, turned over to karakul breeding until today it has become the principal activity of the territory's farming industry.

THE original pure strain from Bokhara were successfully crossed with the indigenous black-headed sheep and a new breed was produced that is today responsible for some of the finest skins in the world, much in demand for fur coats in America and Northern Europe.

In recent years an increasing number of farmers in the Union have also been turning their attention to the karakul, which has resulted in a big demand for the better type of sheep bred in South-West Africa. But rams are difficult to obtain for breeding purposes because South-West Africa's border is closed and export is forbidden.

THIS has led to a big smuggling racket in pure-bred karakul rams, which are taken secretly over the border and sold for very high prices—and no questions asked. Smuggling is easy because the roads are not guarded. Moreover, as many southern areas of the territory have been declared drought-stricken, farmers can apply to the Administration for permits to take their flocks into the Union for grazing. The only condition is that the same number of sheep are brought back, which is easy to circumvent because there is no reliable check.

Many in the trade say that the only way to stop smuggling is to declare the border open, which has been recommended by the Department of Agriculture to the Administration. This measure, however, is opposed by the South-West African Agricultural Union, which fears that if the border were open Union farmers would flock into the territory to buy karakul stock, thus forcing up prices.

There is, of course, nothing to prevent the Union from opening the border, but this would considerably upset the South-West African farmers and might have political repercussions.

LAST year more than 2,000,000 karakul pelts were exported in the raw state, which at today's prices represented a value of nearly £6,000,000. In the Union, where the industry is much younger, 700,000 pelts were produced.

Hitherto all pelts have been processed abroad, but in recent weeks a £700,000 processing factory has been established in Cape Town, the first in Southern Africa. The factory will export more than 100,000 pelts a year, ready to be made up overseas into fur coats, in addition to what it can sell to markets in Africa. Craftsmen with years of experience have been brought over from Germany to work in the factory.

[illegible] able dollar-earning karakul industry within its borders, which now to all intents and purposes embrace South-West Africa, and the Government is giving it every encouragement. But many doubts are being expressed over the wisdom of allowing it to expand too rapidly in view of the growing meat scarcity.

Already the high wool prices are providing a strong deterrent to farmers to slaughter their sheep, and if more farmers turn over to karakul it is likely to make the meat shortage very much more acute.

Canadian Maturity

Churchill Urges Caution On Rifle

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

MR. Churchill is determined, says the London Times in a recent issue, that the Government shall be compelled in an early Commons debate to explain their decision to adopt a new rifle for the British Army. This time, the newspaper comments, the charge is of going ahead too fast, not of falling behind.

On the same page as the editorial The Times publishes a survey of the development of the rifled musket in the British Army during the past 100 years. And it is interesting to note that this year is by way of being the centenary of the rifle. For it was in 1851 that the War Department made its first issue of the ancient Minie although the British interest in a rifled infantry piece had been aroused as early as 1775-83 when the American colonists fighting the War of Independence, made impressive use of the so-called "Kentucky rifle."

The impact of the rifle on that occasion was such, in fact, that, according to The Times survey, it was decided the only answer to the rifle was another rifle. Accordingly the British employed some bodies of European mercenaries armed with rifled muskets. But the British themselves made no systematic use of such weapons during the war. Actually it was not until 1800 that an experimental rifle corps was formed, specially armed with a type of rifle and assigned to scouting and advance skirmishing.

It was half a century later that the first Minie rifles were issued to the Army and their distribution must have been slow because the 3rd Battalion Grenadier Guards, departing for the Near East in February, 1854, did not have enough of them to replace Brown Bess (a smooth-bore muzzle-loader), originally a flintlock which had been standard issue to British infantry for about 150 years.

And so it was that the British, although it cannot be denied they were doing pretty well at the time, lagged far behind other European nations and America in converting from flintlock to igniting powder, thence to percussion cap, and finally from muzzle to breech-loader and fixed ammunition.

The rifle really proved itself to the British in the Crimean War, as evidenced by a despatch to The Times by its correspondent, William Howard Russell. The lyric read: "The Minie is the king of weapons—Inkerman proved it. The regiments of the Fourth Division and the Marines, armed with the old and much belauded Brown Bess, could do nothing with their thin line of fire against the massive multitudes of the Muscovite infantry; but volleys of the Minie cleft them like the hand of the destroying Angel and they fell like autumn leaves before them."

The Times editorial points out that the British have also lagged in the matter of an autoloading rifle. With respect to the new .280 calibre autoloader with which they have decided to replace the time and battle-tested Lee Enfeld of .303 calibre, it declares that the advantages of the new weapon have been well set out in official statements and that these advantages have been conceded by experts after exhaustive tests. The Times declares that some U.S. authorities agree in principle that the projected .280 calibre rifle is superior to their own present .30 calibre auto-loader.

But Mr. Churchill's demand for an explanation of the Government's decision to adopt the .280, would indicate that he, with many interested observers on this side of the Atlantic, has missed the official setting forth of th new rifle's advantages.

None can say that the .280 would not be another Minie, of which The Times correspondent wrote so glowingly back during the Crimean War, but on the face of it, the weapon will have to embody many advantages indeed to make up for the loss of the advantage of standardization of arms among the nations that are arming together in the Western world.

Certainly, o.. the record of past developments, Mr. Churchill's charge of precipitousness with regard to such a change at this time seems one which cannot be ignored.

Trade Note

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

A delegation from the West Indies and British Guiana is in Ottawa to explore the possibility of expanded trade with Canada. One result of the talks is that Trinidad will buy salt fish on an open competitive basis, starting next year.

The trade of the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland with the West Indies for a long time has been important, and these areas of Eastern Canada are very much dependent on their fish exports. The Commonwealth is not a large fish consumer, and this makes the trade with the West Indies even more vital.

Canada has been running into a trade deficit, the first we ever had since 1921. Hence the announcement that the West Indies will buy more fish is doubly welcome.

This Spreads The Punishment

(Ottawa Journal)

The Lethbridge Herald notes, and with approval, the way taken by Chief Justice Howson of the Alberta Supreme Court to deal with a man convicted in his court of driving an automobile at an excessive speed.

The Chief Justice took into account the fact that the man's job depended upon him having a car; so he ordered that a governor be installed to restrict its speed to 25 miles an hour—and suspended sentence to December 3. Until that date at least one assumes this chap must let the governor regulate his speed.

Ontario has no such provision in its Traffic Act—our judges could not order a governor installed in an offender's car. It is just as well. We can imagine that any considerable number of cars on the streets and highways with a top speed of 25 mph would be a nuisance and a source of peril. They would obstruct traffic, cause dangerous passing, and a driver denied the safety measure of that extra burst of power contained in the normal car at a normal speed might be more of a factor in causing accidents than would be even excessive speed.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father in law, the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the backside of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb. And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: and he looked, and, behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed. And Moses said, I will now turn aside, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

And when the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here am I. And he said, Draw not nigh hither: put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground. Moreover he said, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob....

Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharoah, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt ....And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them? And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you. (Ex. 3: 1-6, 10, 13, 14.)

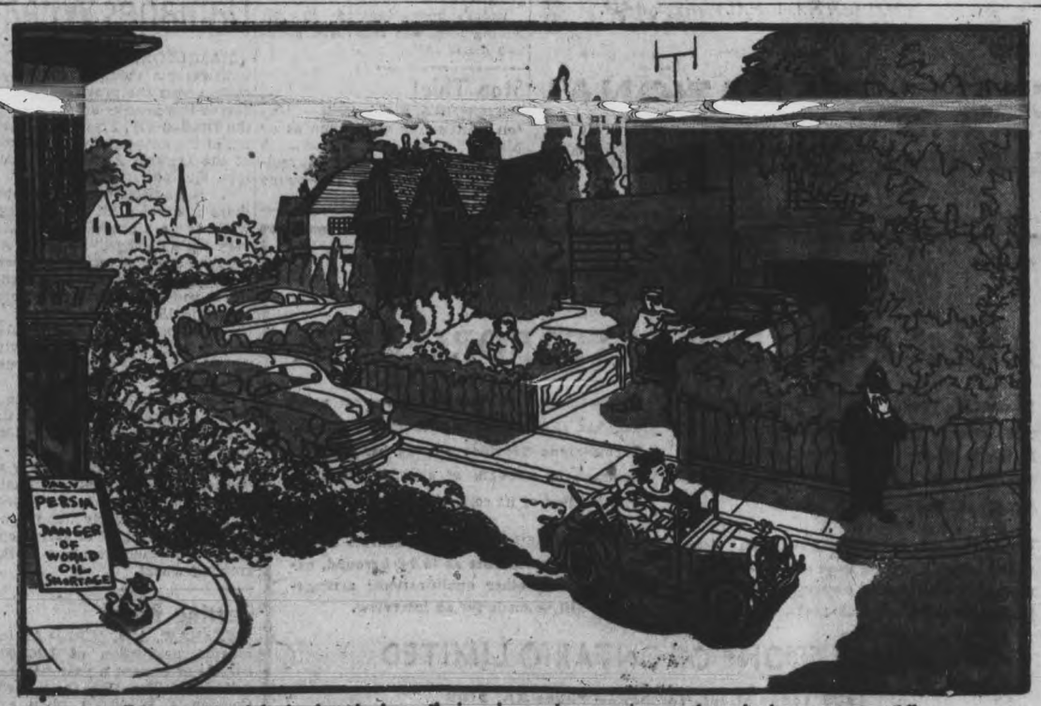
He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death. (Ps. 68: 20.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Now that the dead are raised, even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him. (Luke 20: 37, 38.)



The Japanese Are Back

(Ottawa Journal)

Official Japanese once more are stationed in Ottawa, but they are not diplomats, enjoy no diplomatic privileges. They are business men and their purpose is to develop trade between Japan and Canada—something to which no one will take serious objection. Among Canadians, and very naturally, there must still be a strong feeling that we should not buy Japanese goods, but against that is the practical consideration that if we do not buy from them we cannot expect to sell to them—and we are a trading country, keen for foreign markets.

It is the present expectation in Washington that a peace treaty with Japan will be signed this fall by the Western powers, even if Russia and her satellites abstain. When that comes about no doubt we shall see a Japanese ambassador in Ottawa again, and a Canadian ambassador in Tokyo, and our dealings with Japan no longer will require the good offices of the American occupation forces.

Before Japan was taken over by its military clique and turned into a power for evil Japan and Canada were good friends, and probably we shall be again when the bitterness of Hong Kong and the prison camps has receded farther into the past. Meanwhile we have no objection to letting them buy our goods.

Outside Miners Joining Hollinger Picket Lines

TIMMINS, July 16 (CP) — Some 75 miners from Cobalt, New Liskeard and Kirkland Lake joined picket lines Sunday at Hollinger Consolidated Mines as a strike at the mine neared the end of its first week.

At churches throughout the district, congregations were asked to pray for an early settlement of the walkout that has thrown some 1,600 mine workers and 500 office employees out of work.

Leo Behie, international representative of the United Steel Workers of America (CIO) said the out-of-town miners joined the picket lines to show their support of the Hollinger local.

Their strike for a wage increase of 17 cents an hour and a union dues check-off from Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines — the world's largest — reached its seventh day with no sign of a settlement.

The union rejected a company offer of a raise of two cents an hours plus increases on a job reclassification plan which the company said would average eight cents an hour. Union officials said the plan meant that men could be hired in the future at lower rates on many jobs than now are being paid.

The miners, members of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO), quit when they came off their 11 o'clock shift last Monday night.

Summer School Draws Pupils From Many Lands

BY BERNARD DUFRESNE

QUEBEC — (CP)—This story really should be in French since it is about Laval's University's French Summer School where 325 students from all parts of the world are learning the language.

By crashing a "soiree" put on by the professors, you might find Nina Salto of Cairo, Egypt, trading french words with Manoly Stilianopulos of Manila in the Philippines, in between folk dances and songs.

And you might also ask pert, blonde Suzanne Juneau of Paris, France, why she is attending the school.

A student at Montclair, NJ, state college, she accompanied a group of students giving demonstrations of French folk singing and dancing at school opening.

Loves Quebec

"I fell in love with Quebec," she would answer, "and I wanted to spend part of the summer here." Winner of a scholarship from the United Nations Economics, Social and Cultural Organization, she was due to return to Montclair two weeks ago.

But an 11th-hour scramble provided Suzanne with another scholarship to study literature and a job teaching the beginners.

The summer school was started in 1938 with courses in French and philosophy, and expanded until now about 1,000 students are taking a dozen subjects.

Students take their six-week courses seriously because credits —for those who pass the exams —are recognized by other universities.

George Reynolds, 31-year-old native of New Orleans, is working toward his doctor's degree in languages.

Sticks To French

George, like other students, speaks French at all time around Laval's greystone buildings on the city ramparts. He left his wife and six-months-old daughter, Gloria-Annette, in Philadelphia to come here.

He will join them after his course before going to Lane College, in Jackson, Tenn., to teach.

Reynolds thinks there is a lot of Anglo-Saxon influence in French Quebec, but notes a similarity between the style of buildings here and in New Orleans where he first picked up French.

Struggling happily through her French abc's in Victoria Petersson of Bogota, Columbia.

Victoria, the belle of the summer school, is a student at Toronto's Loretto Abbey. Still troubled by english, she found the school a "good place to study and meet people."

Too Many Boy Friends

The Senorita admitted, however, she is "a bit lazy about homework with so many boy friends to write to."

Wendy Michener of Toronto was here last year with her father, R. D. Michener, former Ontario Provincial Secretary. Mrs. Michener and sister Diana.

A high school senior at Havergal College, North Toronto, she explains in flawless French:

"Nous avons deux langues an Canada, L'Anglais et Le Francais, et je crois qu'il est tres important pour Un Canadien de les parler toutes deux."

Translated: "We have two languages in Canada, English and French, and I think it's very important for a Canadian to speak both."

Bullet Stops Fleeing Youth

TORONTO, July 16—(CP)—A police bullet in the back early Sunday stopped Bruce McManus, 17, as he dashed up a laneway in West-Central Toronto.

Doctors later described his condition as fair but said it was doubtful whether he would ever walk again. The bullet lodged in his spine and paralyzed him from the waist down.

Constable Ralph Kearney, four years on the force, said the shot was fired while he was arresting McManus and Allan Dilbey, 20, on charges of trying to break into a gas station. The officer said that while he struggled with Dilbey, his drawn revolver was discharged.

Teletype-Setters Cutting Down Jobs

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP) —A union's plans to publish nine new daily newspapers to combat "the monopoly newspaper situation" appeared Sunday to be importantly concerned also with the growing use of teletype-setters.

These devices, which cut down the number of jobs in a newspaper composing room, are being installed in more and more newspapers. Some have been put in after strikes were called by the union, the International Typographical Union (ITU), and some for reasons of general economy.

A paper which uses a teletype-setter gets its wire service news in the form of a perforated tape. This tape is run through a device attached to a linotype and trips the mechanism which sets the type.

The ITU, announcing Friday night it plans to start the publication of new papers in nine cities, said their type would be set by Linotype operators.

Higher Pensions for Blind Expected by Next Year

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, July 16—(CP)—The federal government hopes to reach agreement with the provinces before the end of this year on the provision of assistance to an additional 2,000 to 3,000 blind Canadians.

In making an almost complete revision of its old-age security program, the federal government also obtained approval of legislation providing for assistance to the blind under more liberal terms.

At present, the blind are included in the Old-Age Pensions Act. Pensions of $40 a month are paid to needy blind persons 21 years and over who have lived in Canada at least 20 years. The federal government pays 75 per cent of the cost of the pensions and the provinces the remainder.

Approximately 7,240 of the 11,540 persons between 21 and 69 now are in receipt of pensions for the blind. It is estimated that close to 10,000 of them will be covered if the provinces sign new agreements with the federal government.

About 15,000 of the 19,000 blind persons in Canada will be receiving some form of government assistance when the new legislation and the old-age pensions program become operative.

The federal government, starting next Jan. 1, plans to pay pensions of $40 a month to all 70 and over regardless of means, provided they have lived in Canada for at least 20 years. It has offered to share on a 50-50 basis with the provinces the cost of similar pensions to needy persons between 65 and 69.

The new blind persons act marks the first time that the blind have been covered by separate legislation. The act reduces to 10 from 20 years the period of time a person must live in Canada to qualify for assistance.

The act increases the amount of outside income a blind person may receive without having his assistance reduced. For instance, a single blind person will be allowed to earn up to $30 a month and still receive a full pension of $40 a month.

Ceilings Highter

Income ceilings in the blind persons act compared with those in effect prior to 1947 will be:

For a single person, raised to $840 from $500; for a single person with dependents, raised to $1,040 from $700; for a married couple, one of whom is blind, raised to $1,320 from $925, and for a blind couple, raised to $1,440 from $1,000.

If a province decides that it cannot afford to pay the assistance under the more liberal terms, the existing agreements will continue.

Besides offering assistance to additional blind persons, the federal government plans to expand the extent that the provinces are ready to co-operate a program on eye operations on selected blind pensioners. For some years now, the federal government has been paying 75 per cent of the cost of such operations.

Vision Restored

In 50 per cent of the cases to date, vision has been successfully restored and the pensioners have been able to give up their pension and return to normal life in the community.

In introducing the Blind Persons Act, in the commons, Health Minister Martin said:

"In time we can hope that medical science will prevent more people from losing their sight. We can be confident that new drugs and new skills will be developed to lead others back from the unending night of blindness, but those Canadians who are now without the faculty of sight and those who will lose it in the years ahead will continue to command our warm admiration. They can be sure of our unfailing support."

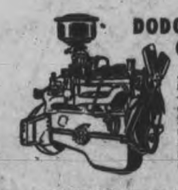
Here's Why DODGE "Job-Rated" EXPRESS and PANEL MODELS Do a better job... Faster... More Economically!

All Dodge express and panel models have the right engine, chassis, transmission, body and tires for the job they have to perform — they're "Job-Rated." And, because they have better vision, turn easier and are easier to load, they operate faster, more economically. Let these good-looking trucks help cut your operating costs.

CHECK THESE QUALITY FEATURES

Before you buy any light truck, test for yourself the many quality features that Dodge offers.



As much as a third extra windshield area over some competitive models — for better vision. Running boards are full foot-width to make loading easier.

DODGE Turns Shorter, Handles Easier

Easier operated worm-and-roller steering gear, wide front treads and shorter wheelbase allows Dodge to turn in shorter circles. Cross steering enables these shorter circles to be made either right or left.

DODGE "Job-Rated" Engine Gives Top Performance

A Dodge "Job-Rated" truck engine is selected for the rating of the truck — for the hauling job it will have to do. For example, Dodge provides a 97 h.p. engine for the ½ ton series and a 105 h.p. engine for the ¾-1 ton series. Consider these four of the many special advantages of Dodge engine design:

CLEANER OIL—The Dodge oil intake is hinged so that it can follow changes in the oil level. It floats just under the surface, selecting the cleanest oil in the crankcase.

MORE UNIFORM COOLING—A distributing tube conducts water from the radiator the length of the block, directing the coolant around each exhaust valve port — the hottest parts of the engine.

BIGGER GENERATOR—The 45-ampere Dodge generator amply meets modern electrical demands.

DIRT-FREE FUEL—Dodge trucks have two fuel filters, double safeguards that harmful dirt will be removed from fuel entering the engine.

Smart, Roomy Panels...

You'll find that the new Dodge panels have exceptional height, length and width. Extra capacity means more load... greater driver and vehicle efficiency.

Petes Lengthen Loop Lead Beating Kingsways, 9 to 3

The Petes lengthened their lead in top lace of the Viaduct Baseball League here Saturday night by trouncing Toronto Kingsways 9-3 before a good-sized crowd. Fresh from a win over Oshawa, the Kingsway crew took an early lead here but saw it dissipated owing to their own errors and some timely hitting by Peterborough in the fifth and sixth innings. Both sides were loose afield, and the visitors argued over a number of decision, one of their coaches being tossed out.

Lefty Bill Dadson racked up another slab win as he kept eight hits well scattered but for three in the second stanza. Tom Melady got by in shaky fashion on the other mound till the sixth, when Bev Bourke came in and finished well. On earned runs, it was 4-0 for the locals, all gained off Melady. Neat catches were pulled off by George Brabin of the winners and Al Kellesher.

Joe Gets Three

Joe Stewart led the viciors at bat with three hits in five tries, two for five each going to Bill Dadson, Bill Huntley and Freddy Garvey. Owing to the death of a brother, Andy Milne was an absentee, and Huntley took his place at third, Maeson playing right. Bill Edger was out sick. Leading Toronto hitter was Tom McKillop with a double and single in three, as Frank Malloy got a double and single in four. Bill Sadler two hits in four tries, and Joe Irvine a pinch-hit single.

Kingsways counted a pair in the second and, after the Petes got one back in their half, they went ahead 3-1 in the third. But again the Whitehill crew fought back with three in the bottom of the third and they never looked back, adding one in the fourth and two each in the fifth and sixth. Bourke halted their parade then for the rest of the route. One of the Kingsway players was hit before the game by a ball in fielding practice and didn't play.

Lindsay Wins Pee-Wee Event

LINDSAY, July 16 (CP) — Sparked by 11-year-old right-hander Lawson Mitchell who played despite an ankle injury Lindsay Police Cadets won the first annual east-central zone pee-wee baseball tournament and the Walkwood trophy here Saturday.

Young Mitchell hurled four-hit ball to oust Peterborough Anthonys 14-6 in the morning opener and came back to limp through a three-hit victory over a tired Aurora team by an 8-2 count in the final. He also came through with three triples, a double and single to lead his mates at the plate.

The Aurora Cubs who had to play an extra game due to the draw were presented with the Trent Valley Bread trophy. Youthful left-hander Jack Brook hurled the Aurora kids into the finals, striking out 20 during the 15 frames in three games, edging Bowmanville 5-2 and Newmarket Optimists in the semi-finals. The Cain twins, Jack and Bill, sparked the Optimists in the first round with a thrilling 9-8 win over Oshawa Cardinals on Francis Ewing's long single with two on in the last of the seventh.

Star's Pride, above, Harry Pownall up, lowered it by one-fifth of a second on the same track. Star's Pride then established a world mile mark for a trotting stallion on a half-mile race track with 2.01 1/5 at Historic Track, Goshen, N.Y. That is also a new low for a four-year-old trotter, and the fastest second heat. It equals Proximity's best for all-age trotters. The 2.02 3/5 and 2.01 1/5 for 4.03 4/5 is a record for a two-heat trotting race.

Mimico junior lacrossers play the Young Petes (sponsored by Filter Queen) at 8.45 tonight in Miller Bowl, weather being right. An OLA junior "A" fixture and an important one. The Mimico boys beat the local lads on the M's pitch not so long back and threaten to become the Vitarelli pack's strongest opposition as the junior gutted-stick schedule wears along. It hasn't too much further to go ere 'tis playoff time, either. While the Peterborough pack won the provincial junior "B" title last season, they've bolstered since and have their sights lined up on the "A" titular target this semester. The Monday melee should be another good one.

* * * * * *

Veteran scribe Clayt Browne of St. Catharines worries aloud on the rugged play seen lately in OLA senior games. Particularly in the clash where Hamilton beat St. Kitts a week ago and roughed up the A's plenty in the process. Clayt thinks it most unsporting for a heavy club like Tigers to soften up the lighter Athletics. What a whale of a difference a few years make. We had a light and rather inexperienced (for "A" company, that is) squad two years ago when the Petes steped up to faster company. The boys got pounded plenty around the circuit but they did no crying—they were just two too light. Nor did the St. Kitts scribe say "tut, tut" to his team or others as they bounced the locals. But the present Petes have weight as well as class, and no one bounces 'em around too much.

Keeping The Bowl Full

The Bowl d'Ashburnham is full to overflowin' these nights but soon enough will be empty quite a lot. Holidays are coming and schedules are drawing to a close. However, lots doing this week to keep the East City saucer flowing. Girls' tilts tonight are Woollens vs. Marines, and Westclox vs. Ashby's. On Wednesday, it'll be Ashby's vs. Westclox, and Cobourg vs. Marines. Latter go to Cobourg on Friday, and we're fresh out of lasses' schedules. Also, the men's schedule winds up there tomorrow eve with Revoy's playing Orphans, and UEW tackling Lakefield. A rest of two weeks then ere the city playoffs commence, second and third teams going in semi-finals.

* * * * * *

Those potent bats of the Petes continue to drum out a dirge for opposing clubs in the Viaduct Ball Loop. They fashioned a 9-3 win o'er Toronto Kingsways here Saturday eve, though errors—on both sides—figured in on many of the runs. Also, our pitching continues good (even though the team didn't get that extra hurler from the States) with Bill Dadson earning another victory. His southpaw slants held 'em in subjection from the third on, while they used two twirlers. Joe Stewart has the old batting eye back and he led with three hits in five. Fred Garvey, Bill Huntley and Dadson were other good ones, and George Brabin still hits in timely manner. The Petes are in Toronto tomorrow, and have Oshawa here on Thursday.

Local Golfers Do Well

Discarding the mace for a mashie, the OGA tourney at Peterborough Golf Club was a big success on Saturday. It drew 73 entries, many from Toronto and one from the Falls. Two members of the northend club won low gross in their lights, Herb Bradburn and Gord Gutsell. Other Peterborough prize winners were Stan Payne, J. R. Murray St. and Don Vyse. And others from this city came close. Bob Abbott and Stan Payne were local directors for the tourney with E. H. Banks of the OGA in charge. The association prexy, Gordon Stevens, was on deck, also. Pro Alf Hill had the course in swell condition and you couldn't improve on the weather. Lots of fun after the competition. Next big tournament here is at Kawartha on the Civic Holiday weekend..

Both local lacrosse clubs came through with flying colors on Saturday. Juniors dumped the Falls here 12-3, mainly on a big second quarter scoring spluge. Lou Nickel paced 'em, with Brian Robinson, Heffernan and O'Reilly also prominent, the whole crew clicking. At Brampton, the seniors eked out a neat 10-9 OLA victory to stay atop the heap —same as the juniors. Don Ashbee forgot about fist-fighting and turned in a starry effort with three goals, as Harry Wipper and Russ Slater poured in a pair apiece for Don Crowe's crowd. Crowe, Arn Dugan and hustling Ross Powless were good for one each in a tight tilt. Wootton as usual was tops. They have Fergus here Wednesday.

Petes Win 10-9 In OLA Over Brampton

Paced by Don Ashbee's three-goal display, the Petes worked to a 5-3 half-time lead and were still sitting on a slim victory margin at the three-quarter mark. Al Garbutt signalled the start of the Excelsior rush at 7.46, blazing his second marker four minutes later to close the gap to a single tally. Setting up their stone-wall defence against the red shirt invaders, the Petes, backed by Moon Wootton's airtight net-minding, lasted out the final four minutes of Excelsior shelling.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Two of Canada's top middle-distance runners—one a veteran, the other just out of junior ranks—came together again Saturday but their big race in the Eastern Canada track and field championships at Toronto didn't come off.

Valdo Lillakas, 29-year-old Estonian who runs for the Montreal track and field, was scheduled to compete against sensational 20-year-old Rich Ferguson of Toronto in a three-mile race.

But Lillakas decided to pass up the match after taking heavy punishment from the heat and a six-mile morning race which he won in record time of 31 minutes 16.7 seconds.

The three-mile race was run without him and Ferguson won easily, although his time of 15.22:3 wasn't close to the Canadian three-mile mark.

Toronto representatives won eight events against five for Montreal and two for Hamilton.

Mickey Mantle, the springtiime wonder boy of New York Yankees was demoted to the minors Sunday.

The 19-year-old rookie, who had rocketed to fame on the strength of a .403 batting average in Spring training, was optioned to Kansas City, New York's farm club in the American Association.

His batting average is .260.

The Sunday edition of the New York Journal-American, in a story by sports editor Max Kase, said Saturday that Edlie Stanky, New York Giants' second-baseman, will become manager of St. Louis Browns.

Kase added that the Giants already have asked waivers on Stanky.

Babe Zaharias and company, now touring England, showed British men golfers — including four Walker Cup players, how it is done.

The women, playing the British men on even terms, won by 6½ to 2½.

Palestinian, a fragile five-year-old galloper from the stable of Isadore Bieber, Saturday sneaked through a tight hole along the rail in the stretch and captured the $57,100 Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct race course.

Leroy (Satchel) Paige will follow Bill Veeck to the St. Louis Browns.

The club announced Saturday that the negro hurler will report Monday to sign a contract. He has been pitching for Chicago Giants, a negro club.

Sickle's Image romped to a convincing victory in the $72,400 Arlington Matron handicap at Arlington Park Saturday.

The purse to the winner was $53,925, the largest won in a single race by a filly or mare in racing history.

Junior Squad Knocks Off Niagara Falls

Filter Queens made it win number seven against a single defeat and tie in the junior lacrosse Saturday night at Miller Bowl as they trimmed Niagara Falls 12-3, to hold a five-point lead atop the loop.

Mimico are second with a game in hand at five wins and a pair of losses; these two met tonight here at the Bowl.

Pete Carruthers, a star for the peninsula boys, opened for the visitors early in the first on a smart solo effort as play opened fast. Steve Morrissey, who ran miles and played a standout game, tallied at 9.30 on a low underhand shot, to tie it up; then Lou Nickle and Brian Robinson combined neatly with the former snaring his first of three goals on a beautiful side drive, late in the frame.

A Big Period

Lou Vitarelli's boys went all out in the second quarter to completely dominate play and virtually tuck the game away as the Falls' defence weakened and proved no match for the wilyplay of Brian Robinson, Jim Heffernan, Lou Nickle, Rock Batley, Gerry O'Reilly (who all dented the mesh; Heffernan twice) and the rest of the gallant crew, while Nicholls proved unbeatable in the home cage. Brian Robinson's single tally in the third highlighted an even frame as the Falls crew tightened up and and continued a fairly even game in the final though edged 3-2 on the play.

Despite 13 penalties, seven to Fliters, the game was clean. Brian Robinson, Heffernan and O'Reilly scored twice; Morrissey, Batley and Gary Robinson once, while double assists were credited to Nickle, Brian Robinson and Frank Farley. O'Reilly had one.

Niagara Falls—Goal, Howe; defence, Moore, Davies; centre, Frick; wings, May, Conradi; rover, Corcoran; alternates, Teal, Labatte, Allan, Cox, Bradshaw, Carruthers.

Fliters—Goal, Nicholls; defence, Fitzgerald, Nickel; centre, O'Reilly; wings, B. Robinson, G. Robinson; rover, Morrissey; alternates, Heffernan, Batley, Farley, Brioux, Burns, Powell, Groves, Simmons.

Referees, Bun Hill, Tiger Hewitt.

Toronto Leafs Sweep Doubleheader

By The Associated Press

Jack Cooke, new owner of Toronto Maple Leafs, is off to a good start in his drive to build up attendance and the Leafs into first-division timber.

Since he took over July 9 Cooke has handed out free drinks hot dogs and orchids and the fans have responded. In addition, the Leafs have started winning and are knocking on the door of the first division.

The largest crowd since Cooke took over—12,122 fans—turned out Sunday to watch the Leafs sweep a doubleheader 3-2 and 5-4, from Buffalo Bisons. The Leafs now have played to 39,862 fans under their new owner.

Bobby Rhawn was the batting star in both games. Rhawn broke up the 11-inning opener with his fourth single in six trips. He blasted a two-run homer in the seventh and final inning to win the second game. The homer was Rhawn's fifth and the third he has hit in the final inning to win a game this year.

Nearing Wings

The sweep moved the Leafs to within two games of the .500 mark and within 4½ of the fourth-place Rochester Red Wings, who dropped a doubleheader to last-place Springfield Cubs, 5-4 and 7-2.

Gene Hooks singled home Carm Mauro with the winning run in the 10-inning opener. Pinch-hitter Frank Lamanna of the Cubs sent the game into overtime with a two-run homer in the ninth. Bill Padget gained his 11th victory in the nightcap.

Montreal Royals and Ottawa Giants split a doubleheader. The Royals won the opener 4-3. The Giants took the nightcap 2-0 behind the three-hit pitching of George Heller.

Claude Corbitt drove in two runs on a triple and three singles to lead Syracuse Chiefs to a 9-7 decision over Baltimore Orioles. Home runs by Anse Moore, Bill Glynn, Russ Kerns and Howie Moss kept the Orioles in business.

Quebec Wins Cricket Match

TORONTO, July 16 (CP) — A Quebec team beat Ontario in an inter-provincial cricket match during the week-end to retain the Atholstan Cup for third straight year.

Jimmy Cameron, who played for Toronto Yorkshire last year, almost won the game single-handed. His 121 total marked one of the few occasions a century has been scored since the interprovincial matches started. Cameron, a McGill University student who plays for Verdun, was also outstanding at bowling and took six Ontario wickets for 24 runs.

When the first innings ended Saturday, Quebec had a lead of 119. Ontario made only 122 in their second chance at bat and Quebec soon overcame the four-run deficit to declare early in the day.

Seven Ontario batsmen reached double figures with Alan Gerard's second-inning 62 being best. Best bowling for Ontario was done by George McLean with six for (2 and Alf Pope with two for 70. The Ontario team proved weak at bat and in the field.

Citation Wins Gold Cup, To Race Again

By PETE ARTHUR

INGLEWOOD, Calif., July 16 (AP)—Citation is the first million-dollar winner in race history, but the big news today is that he isn't through.

Beset by injuries through part of his career, looking like just a so-so horse earlier this season, big Cy hit the peak Saturday when he ran away from the field in the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup to win by four lengths.

It boosted the six-year-old's lifetime earnings to $1,085,769. It was the biggest purse of his career, an even $100,000, which Hollywood Park guarantees the winner of its biggest event.

He also won the $100,000 Kentucky Derby as a three-year-old, but the winner's net was $91,870.

Trainer Jimmy Jones, almost too happy to talk after the smashing triumph, managed to get this much out:

"I guess I can probably say in all truth that this day has provided the greatest thrill of my life. He (meaning Citation) seems to be his old self again. We don't plan to retire him immediately as it would seem very foolish when he's at his present peak condition."

May Run In Windup

Jones added that Citation may run in the Hollywood Park windup next Saturday, the $50,000 Sunset Handicap, "and probably once in Chicago and then in the Jockey Gold Cup in New York.

After that, to the Calumet Farm in November or December to prepare for the 1952 breeding season.

A crowd of 50,625, seemingly all for Citation, turned out Saturday to watch the 12th running of the Gold Cup.

Citation's stablemate, Calumet's Trio, the mare Bewitch, came up for second by a nose over Be Fleet.

Citation's success in becoming a millionaire took an edge off another fine performance. Bewitch's $20,0008 for second made her the biggest money winner among feminine race horses, with $462,605 against the $445,555 for Gallorette, the previous record holder.

KING TO MEET WATKINS

Arthur King, British Empire lightweight champion from Toronto, was signed Saturday to meet Jay Watkins of Flint, Mich., in a 10-round bout at Atwood Stadium in Flint, July 27.

It will be Flint's first outdoor fight since Willie Pep and Luther Burgess met there in 1948.

Chicago Bows to Athletics In Weekend Doubleheader

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Ned Garver...Bob Hooper.... Sam Zoldak....Conrado Marrero ....Murry Dickson...Dutch Leonard....all fine pitchers, but unfortunately they all toil for second division clubs.

There are many observers who rate Garver the best pitcher in the American League. The 25-year-old righthander has won 12 games for the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns. He might now be pushing 20 with a first division outfit.

Garver does not pick his spots either. Seven of his dozen triumphs have been against contenders. He whipped the league-leading Red Sox with five hits 3-1 Sunday in the opener of a double-header.

The Sox won the nightcap 9-5 to widen their lead to two games over Chicago White Sox, who lost to Philadelphia Athletics 3-1 and 5-0.

Hooper, 29-year-old righthander, mastered the White Sox for the third time this season, and Zoldak yielded only one hit, a third-inning single by Chico Carrasquel.

Hooper won his own game with a three-run homer. Zoldak faced only 28 men. He walked one and struck out one.

One Bright Spot

Chicago's one bright spot was the fielding of Carrasquel. Chico set a league record for errorless chances accepted at shortstop at 289 in 51 games. The old mark of 288 was held by New York's Phil Rizzuto.

Marrero, diminutive Cuban righthander, won his ninth game for Washington as the sixth-place Senators split with Cleveland. After Marrero won the opener 7-4, the Indians took the second game behind Mike Garcia 7-2.

The Yankees divided a pair in Detroit to move up within three-tenths of a percentage point of the second-place White Sox. After Fred Hutchinson pitched the Tigers to a 5-3 victory, the Yankees eked out an 8-7 nightcap win.

Vic Wertz, who homered in the second game, won the opener with a two-run triple in the first off Bob Kuzava.

Lose Doubleheader

Brooklyn's National league-leading Dodgers lost both ends of a doubleheader to Cincinnati 5-2 and 6-5. But their lead was shaved only one game, to eight, as both St. Louis Cards and New York Giants divided their twin bills.

Dickson, Pittsburgh's little righthander, held the Giants hitless in four relief innings to register his 11th win as the last-place Pirates won the first game 7-6 in 12 innings. The Giants took the second game 8-3 as Jim Hearn hurled his eighth victory.

Philadelphia's Phils whipped the Cards after St. Louis won the opener, 7-4. Stan Musial paced St. Louis to its first-game win with his 17th and 18th homers.

After Warren Spahn blanked Chicago 7-0 the Cubs came back to whip Boston Braves, 10-4. Leonard registered his seventh victory in relief for the Cubs as Hank Sauer blasted his fifth homer in six days. The shutout was Spahn's fifth of his nine wins.

Border League Fold For Season

GLOVERSVILLE, N.Y., July 16 — (CP) — The Class-C Border Baseball League apparently has folded—at least for this season.

Directors of the six-team Canadian-American League voted unanimously Saturday against a merger with four clubs from the border loop.

That decision and the failure of border-league representatives to attend the meeting apparently marks the end of border league play, for this season at least.

The Can-Am directors passed a resolution opposing the merger and also voted not to transfer any League franchise from the cities now holding them to new locations.

Mount Blanca, the gelding tipsters said might upset the favorites in the Quebec King's Plate, did just that Saturday, winning the 98th running of the classic by a length-and-a-half.

The colt, owned by Mrs. J. Tomlinson of Oakville, Ont., came in strong in the final quarter mile at Montreal to pass favorite Britannia from the E. P. Taylor stables. Irish Canadian was third.

Ashburn Crowds Musial Batting

By RICHARD HOENIG

PHILADELPHIA, July 16 (AP) —The man who stands second among the Major League batting leaders is out to show baseball fans everywhere that he's the biggest centrefielder in the business.

So far as the cheering habitues of Shibe Park are concerned, the easy-going, tow-haired Richie Ashburn of the Philadelphia Phillies is that already. But they grant that perhaps partisans in other places may need a little convincing.

The "Nebraska Comet" has been hitting at a red-hot clip. His batting percentage is .359, exceeded only by the great Stan Musial, and in total hits he tops the leaders in both leagues with 121.

The 24-year-old Ashburn talks about his ambition without trace of bravado. As keen a competitor as you'll find, he figures he has profited by mistakes, had a few sharp jolts here and there and now is aiming for perfection. His pride is that of an athlete who thinks his sport is the finest of them all.

Actually, Ashburn is driving for a goal set in 1948, the year he became the Phils' centrefielder and won a rookie-of-the-year award. He hit .333 that year and finished behind Musial, the St. Louis Cardinal star.

But it's not for his batting prowess alone that the fleet Richie has been acclaimed. Called by Manager Eddie Sawyer "the best defensive outfielder in the National League," Ashburn has shown plenty of fielding finesse.

By The Canadian Press

Kingston Plans Celebrate "Diesel Day"

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Kingston, which saw the birth of Diesel-locomotive manufacture in Canada in 1928, will get back into the Diesel picture with a bang on Aug. 1.

The day will be celebrated as "Kingston Diesel Day" and will mark the "unveiling" by Canadian Locomotive Co., Ltd., of the first locomotive of the company's present line to be produced in the Kingston plant.

The line is known as "The Consolidation" and the locomotive shown Aug. 1 will be a streamlined 3,200 - horsepower road-freight type weighing 520,000 pounds. Other models in the line include high-speed passenger types and switchers, and all will be powered by the Fairbanks-Morse opposed-piston Deisel engine, used in submarine service in the Second World War.

Principal speakers at the ceremony will be Trade Minister Howe, Premier Frost of Ontario, and Mayor Clifford Curtis of Kingston.

Must Rearm

The current monthly letter of the National City Bank of New York, commenting on cease-fire talks in Korea, says:

"It seems certain that the country (the United States) will continue to arm irrespective of Korean developments, until it is strong enough to resist and discourage aggression. Under any likely circumstances, defence expenditures will rise much above present levels.

"On the other hand, the speed of armament and hence the rate of defence spending may be subject to variation.

"If the freezing of designs is deferred, plant and cachinery construction will not necessarily be held up, but output of finished weapons will fall below projected levels.

"On this hypothesis less industrial materials and manpower than recently expected would be taken for armament during the coming year, and more would be left for civilian requirements. The inflationary pressures would be less, because consumer demand could be better supplied. Expectations of such a change would influence business sentiment, discourage buying and encourage inventory reduction.

"Money would be less tight. Fiscal problems would be more readily manageable, and Congress would probably take the view that anti - inflationary measures on the whole could be less rigorous."

However, if no cease-fire comes from present talks, the bank sees the possibility of a "speedup of armament," and adds:

"Industrial production could be expected to remain high in overall terms, employment and money-purchasing power to rise further, and inflationary pressures to gather renewed force. Increased arms output would take up the slack now evident in consumers' goods.

Didn't Talk English Man Struck, Dies

VANCOUVER, July 16 (CP) — A logger died in hospital Sunday and police sought a man who, they said, struck him because he wasn't speaking English.

Dead is Stanley Deren, about 40, struck on the face while standing at a downtown intersection. Eyewitnesses said he fell and hit his head. He died about seven hours later.

Police said Deren was speaking in Polish to a woman when a man walked up and asked: "Why don't you speak English?"

They said Deren replied: "It's a free country."

Then the man struck Deren with his fist.

Lightning Starts Two Fires Near Perth

PERTH, July 16 (CP)—Lightning started two fires in this district Sunday with total loss estimated at $5,000.

Damage of $4,000 was caused to the Perth planing mill and only prompt action of the Perth fire brigade saved the plant. Twelve miles east near Smiths Falls, a bolt of lightning started a fire which caused $1,000 damage to the home of Neil Gillespie.

30 Employees Vote To Return To Work

HAMILTON, July 16 (CP) — Some 30 employees of the Hobbs Glass Company here, on strike since last June 12, will return to work Tuesday, it was announced Sunday.

Oliver Hodges, district organizer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said the men voted to return to work Sunday.

The men, members of the National Union of Vitric and Ceramatic Workers (CCL), walked off the job at the Hobbs plant and the Pilkington Glass Company plant to back demands for a collective bargaining agreement. The Pilkington workers returned to work last week.

Hodges said the companies will be prosecuted for refusing to bargain in good faith if negotiations are not reopened with the union.

Oshawa Man Drowns In Rice Lake

Slips Over Side Walking Back To Help On Motor

BEWDLEY, July 16—(ENS)—While three companions looked on helplessly, Douglas B. Lawrence, 28, of Bruce St., Oshawa, drowned Saturday in Rice Lake, near Bewdley.

It was the first drowning of the year in Rice Lake.

Lawrence, who was on a fishing trip with his three companions, lost his balance while walking about in the boat and fell into the water.

With him at the time were three other Oshawa men: Orville Mulville, Bruce St.; Jim Luke, Ontario St.; and Elmer Luke, Emma St.

Jim Luke was in the stern of the boat handling the outboard motor. The four men were 125 yards of the Bewdley dock at the time. When Luke found difficulty starting the outboard motor Lawrence got up from his seat to go back and give him a hand.

Not Good Swimmer

He lost his balance and fell into the lake and was never seen to surface again. It is believed he got tangled in the thick weeds that grow underwater in the lake. He was not a good swimmer.

The accident occurred at 8:45 p.m., and the body was recovered and hour and 40 minutes later in 10 feet of water.

When Lawrence slipped overboard his three companions shouted to Ben Sidey, Bewdley, who was passing in another boat. They had difficulty attracting his attention, and when he did come over he was unable to be of assistance because boats were drifting. Neither had anchors.

Young Sidey went ashore and got his uncle, Donald Sidey, also of Bewdley. They anchored the boats and began looking for the missing man.

Area Crowded

Tourists, attracted by the search, soon had the water in the immediate area of the drowning covered with boats. Motorists found it almost impossible to get a parking space along the Bewdley shore.

OPP Constables Frank Clough, Lyle Erskine and Cyril Meadows, all of Cobourg, organized dragging operations. Volunteers used pike poles and other make-do equipment to try and find the body. One unidentified man dived repeatedly into the weedy water but was unsuccessful.

Within 10 minutes after the proper dragging equipment arrived, the provincial police, using Norman Sidey's boat, recovered the body. Coroner Dr. J. W. Wright, Millbrook, pronounced death by drowning.

2,000 Disport In Park On CPR Picnic

Two thousand men, women and children poured into the city Saturday morning on the annual CPR picnic for employees and their families.

Special buses were at the station to meet the two trainloads and take them to Nicholls Park. oHt sun and a clear sky made the day ideal picnic weather.

Most of the picnicers sought the shade of the trees of the park. Many had brought their bathing suits and a constant stream of the visitors went back nd forth from the park to Inverlea park where they swam in the river. Life guards had about the largest crowd to watch they have yet had this year.

Many other of the visitors took buses downtown and went shopping and saw the sights. Some were interested in the location of the Zacks building fire.

Races were run for the children and the picnicers had lunch and super in the park before they boarded trains in the evening and returned to Toronto.

CHARGE ADJOURNED

Charged with drunk driving on Water St. July 12, Cecil Finley, 42, of Bethany, pleaded not guilty and the charge was adjourned to July 30. Bail was set at $200.

Birthday Flight

T. Wesley Murray, Bridgenorth, celebrated his 77th birthday Sunday by taking his first airplane ride. During the 15-minute flight the pilot, Dunlop Mathais, treated him to various stunts. "It was wonderful," Mr. Murray exclaimed, when he landed. "All I want to do now is to fly to my former home in Prince Edward Island.

Six Cars Clash In 3 City Accidents

Six cars were involved in three minor accidents over the weekend. Nobody was injured and damage was not extensive in any of them.

Saturday afternoon, Miss Reta Whitmore of Coe Hill was driving west on Hazlitt St., and at the intersection of Rogers St., was in collision with a car driven by Charles Gabriele, 617 Rubidge St., About $60 damage was done to each. Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

A Toronto woman drove through the stop sign on McDonnel at George St. Saturday morning and her car was in collision with an auto driven by Henry Renaud, 648 George St. Mrs. H. R. Bateman told police she didn't see the sign.

On Charlotte St. Saturday afternoon, a car driven by Leo Cleary of Hastings struck an old model car parked on the south curb west of Monaghan Road. Owner of the old car was Donald Reynolds, 689 Park St.

Cleary told police he was trying out a car he had bought, and he said he didn't see the other car. Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

Three Plead Guilty To Liquor Charges

Four liquor charges were disposed of today in police court before Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Ann Taylor, Curve Lake, pleaded guilty to a drunk charge and was fined $10 and costs; John Perrow, 26, 59 Downie St., was fined $10 and costs when he pleaded guilty to illegal consumption of liquor, James Shaver, no fixed address, paid a $10 and $2.50 fine when he pleaded guilty to being drunk.

Jack King, no fixed address, was sentenced to three months in jail when he pleaded guilty to his third offence.

Man, Wife Injured In Collision

Crash Head-On With Cobourg Car On Highway 2

A Montreal couple are in Civic hospital—two of seven people injured in a head-on car crash Saturday, seven miles east of Cobourg on Highway 2.

They are John Larin, 39, broken right knee and bruises, and his 38-year-old wife Gabrielle, broken left leg and head injury. Mr. Larin's condition is described as good but his wife is only fair.

The Larins were two of six occupants in a Quebec car that smashed into the eastbound car of Clifford Earl Fish, Cobourg. Fish's car was knocked into the north ditch while the Quebec car remained on the highway. Both vehicles are wrecked.

Fish is in Cobourg General Hospital with a broken right leg and abrasions. He was alone in the car.

Others inured were Robert Ducap, 28, Lachine, facial cuts and bruises; Lucien Baquette, 22, Montreal, severe concussion and shock; Gerald Gauthier, Montreal, a severe shaking up and shock; and his wife, a fractured wrist and collarbone.

The Larins and the Baquette are still in hospital but the Gauthiers and Ducap have returned home to Montreal.

The head-on accident ended a holiday for the Quebecers after it had just begun. They were westbound and intended to visit the United States.

OPP Constable H. W. Woolgrige, Cobourg, investigated.

Boy Badly Burned Grabbed Live Wire

LONDON, Ont., July 16—(CP)—Eight-year-old Denny Madge, his hands severely burned—the left one through to the bone—as a result of a schoolboy adventure Saturday, today was reported in improved condition in Victoria hospital.

He grabbed a live hydro wire in an attempt to save himself in a fall from the marquee of the Elmwood theatre.

Dozens of children waiting for theatre doors to open saw him writhing 20 feet above the sidewalk after tumbling into the steel scaffolding on the face of the building.

An unidentified youth went to Denny's aid where he lay on a couple of cross plans on the scaffolding. A policeman then climbed a ladder to bring him down.

Truck, Five Cars Pile Up On Beach

OWEN SOUND, July 16 (CP)—Damage estimated at $4,000 was caused Sunday when a truck and five cars piled up as a long line of traffic was leaving Sauble Beach. The beach is 20 miles west of Owen Sound.

George Richardson of Wiarton stopped his half-ton truck prior to making a left hand turn off the Sauble Beach-Hepworth highway. Cars driven by Stephen Strba of Chesley, Maurice Hewitt of Owen Sound and Leonard Stearn of Toronto all stopped behind him.

Then John Rixson of Hanover rammed into the rear of Stearn's car, starting off a chain reaction of crashing cars. No sooner had the dust settled than Harry Spencer crashed into the rear of Rixson's car, starting the chain reaction all over again.

Most of the drivers and passengers were shaken up but none seriously.

NEW GATE

Enlargement of the Park St. gate house at Canadian General Electric Company probably signifies increasing need for more space and accommodation for that personnel department and entrance to the plant. Dimensions are 40 ft. by 25 ft., and construction is of concrete, brick and roughcast, conforming with the simple design of the present building. Estimated cost of the addition is $10,000.

MONTH TO EXHIBITION

The calendar says it is just a month until the Peterborough Exhibition (Aug. 20-25) with uneasy reminding of the seeming acceleration of summer's passing after July 12. Norman McConkey is president this year, succeeding Hugh Stewart.

Cloudburst Hits City With Fury; County Escapes

Main streeters caught in the rain near the corner of Hunter and George Streets Sunday afternoon are going to doubt the report of Jim Harrison, waterworks man who registers the weather, that precipitation was only .06 inches. That looks like 6/100 of an inch, but according to several reports from the centre of the city, main street began to look like Topeka or one of the other flood centres in Kansas.

Surge Of Water

The surge of water down George St. from Hunter soon blocked the water drains and washed over the sidewalks up to the walls of the store fronts. The rain fell in sheets and heavily as boding ill for the standing grain crops. However, from all accounts it was a local soaking, with a diameter of three to five miles around the city. People arriving home from all points of the compass expressed surprise at the evidence of the thorough drenching and washing Peterborough had come through during the afternoon.

The cloudburst was localized centred on Peterborough. It did not affect Lakefield or Norwood. Even the Filtration Plant, at the north end of the city, escaped, which accounts for the modest .06 inches of rain recorded there. A couple of miles south, at the water-trough hill on the Port Hope highway there were only a few drops.

Two Attacks

The cloudburst hit Peterborough with fury shortly before three pm. The first assault lasted ten minutes; a second after three lasted more than 20 minutes. George St. cellars were flooded because storm drains could not handle the flow. Buses splashed carefully through pools on some streets a foot deep, but there was no disruption of service. Some cars came to a complete stop; others got as quickly as they could to home garages.

Hydro and telephone lines and poles stood up well; only the usual number of service difficulties was reported.

One of the oddest sights on George Street during the downpour was a motor-bike rider picking his way along, both feet perched on the handle-bars; riding high and handsome over the flood.

Allied Officers Expect Attack

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, July 16 (AP)—Allied officers said today the Communists are prepared to launch a massive attack if ceasefire negotiations break down.

A pooled dispatch from the advance base at Munsan quoted the unidentified officers as saying the Reds could throw 72 divisions at the Allies. A Red division is usually figured at 9,000 to 10,000 men.

They said the Reds could sustain such an attack five to seven days.

Eighth Army plans in case the cease-fire talks fail are secret.

But officers have noted signs of a Chinese-North Korean buildup. They assert the United Nations troops are ready for whatever the Reds try.

There has been little ground action since the cease-fire talks started. Both sides have had time to rest and rebuild.

The Allied air effort has been slowed only by the weather. UN planes have pounded incessantly at Red airfields to prevent the Commmunists transferring their planes to bases south of the Yalu River boundary with Manchuria.

Morrison Welcomes Intervention By US

LONDON, July 16 (CP) — Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison said today the government welcomes United States interest in the oil dispute with Iran, which was of concern "to the whole world."

In a statement to the House of Commons, he said the government wished President Truman's special envoy, Averell Harriman, "all success in his mission to Tehran."

Morrison refused to say, however, whether the British government would accept any form of mediation by Harriman.

He told questioners that Britain stands by her right to go on producing oil in Iran despite the Tehran government's program to nationalize the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's huge interests.

Rainfall To Blame For Man Going To Jail

If it hadn't rained last Thursday and Friday, Edward Patterson, 46, no fixed address, wouldn't have been charged with vagrancy. Or so he intimated in police court today.

"I hope you won't give me a jail sentence," he said "I came up Thursday to help with haying and it rained then and Friday."

Magistrate W. R. Philp sentenced him to five days in jail (or a $5 fine) and told him "by that time the hay may be dry."

Thieves Break Into Lindsay Office

LINDSAY, July 16 — Second storey men entered the Lindsay branch of the T. Eaton Co. Friday. During the night, entry was gained through an 18-inch-square window, and some suits were stolen from the men's department.

Police have not yet completed their investigation, but believe the thieves entered the window after climbing upon a lean-to at the east side of the building.

Driver Turns Corner Hits Parked Truck

When Miss Alverda Mills, 752 Romaine St., turned east off Monaghan Rd. onto Romaine St., late Friday afternoon, this is what happened:

The sun blinded her, she tried to put on her brakes, but her foot slipped off the brake and hit the accelerator, the car leapt ahead and smashed into the rear of a truck parked at the north curb.

The impact drove the truck 67 feet along the north curb, and 32 feet farther at an angle to the south curb. Miss Mills' forehead banged against the windshield.

The hood of Miss Mills' car was buckled, the radiator smashed, and the left front of the car badly damaged. The rear of the truck, owned by Harry Campbell, of Toronto, was damaged. Constable D. M. Stark investigated.

Saturday Night Accidents Put Pressure on Hospital

Civic hospital received 12 patients Saturday afternoon and evening, all victims of local accidents. The operating room was continuously in use from 7:20 p.m. until midnight.

Emergent circumstances required recalling members of the staff who had gone of duty.

"It was much more than routine demand on the resources of the hospital," John Hornal, superintendent, said today, "but we have to expect and be prepared to take care of such surges of accident and injury needing immediate attention."

Eight of the patients Saturday evening were from one accident at the CPR crossing on the old Norwood Road. The youngest member of the automobile party in that mishap was killed.

Senior student nurses who were off duty were called back to help take care of the rush. Other specialists were also called back on duty to help out.

Store Robbed Five Arrested

Four men and a woman, all from Toronto, were arrested Sunday morning half-an-hour after an Otonabee township storekeeper reported his store had been entered and several pairs of shoes taken.

The five are: Charles McBrien, 30, Melvin Broome, 29, Kenneth Courrier, 28, Robert Innes, 30, and Mrs. Marian Harper, 22.

In police court today, all pleaded not guilty to charges of breaking and entering, after electing summary trial. They were remanded to July 23, and bail was set at $1,000 each.

The storekeeper, Gar Emery, whose store is on Highway 7, telephoned provincial police at 7:30 a.m. Sunday. He reported the license number of a car to the OPP.

Half-an-hour later, provincial constable James Healey arrested the five near Norwood. Several pair of shoes were found in the car.

GATHER UP GLASS

Two small boys took charge of traffic on Park St., opposite the CGE, for a little while this morning while they cleared the pavement of broken glass. Splinters of several bottles were strewn in the centre of the street. One of the youngsters gathered fragments into a pail while the other was pointing cars around the spot. Bus men said they did a fine job.

4 Teen-Agers Hurt As Car Overturns

Car Hits Hole Near Campbellford Turns Over On Side

CAMPBELLFORD, July 16 — (ENS)—Four teen-agers were injured early Sunday when their car hit a hole and overturned on the Campbellford-Hastings road, four miles west of Campbellford.

Gerald Little, 20, RR 4 Hastings, was admitted to Civic Hospital with broken facial bones and facial cuts.

The other three occupants of the car were treated at Trenton hospital.

They are James McCormick, 16, RR 3 Trenton, driver of the car, shock and minor body bruises. He was the least hurt of the four. Marjory Hawkins, 18, Queen St., Trenton, back injuries, and Fay Currie, 16, Frankfort, a punctured abdomen.

The four were going toward Trenton when the accident occurred. The car started down a grade in the road, hit a hole in the road, bounced in the air and rolled over on its right side.

Pinned Under Car

Miss Currie was pinned under the car but the other three were able to get out with the assistance of the two sons of Alex L. Merrill, Percy township.

The accident occurred outside the Merrill home. Mel, one of the sons, assisted the driver to lift the car while Del, the other son, pulled the injured girl clear.

She was taken to the Merrill home and given first aid until the doctor arrived.

One of the sons took Little into Peterborough hospital while OPP Constable Donald Erskine, Campbellford, took the two girls to Trenton.

Constable Erskine said the hole in the road has been responsible for several car accidents recently. And there have been some complaints to the county by nearby residents.

The car was badly damaged and one wheel was broken off.

UK Official Says Russia Arms 4,000,000 Men

BIRMINGHAM, July 16 (P) — Russia now has 22 fully-equipped divisions, including 18 armored, and 5,000 tanks in Eastern Germany alone, Woodrow Wyatt, undersecretary for war, said Sunday night.

In all, Russia has 215 divisions and more than 4,000,000 men under arms, Wyatt said.

He gave the figures in an address in answer, he said, to the so-called "rearmament-without-tears" group in the Labor party. This group had held that it was safe for Britain to scale down rearmament because Russian armed strength is far less than Western governments say it is.

"Russia's satellites alone have 60 to 70 fully-mobilized divisions,' Wyatt said, "while in Russia-occupied Germany 60,000 Germans have been forced into military formations.

Contrast that with British strength of 10 divisions under arms and 750,000 in the armed forces."

Wyatt said the British government has good evidence to show that Russian arms production is far in excess of anything needed for legitimate self-defense and far greater in proportion than Britain's.

GUARD QUELLS RIOT—Illinois National Guardsmen move in on a mob which rioted in Cicero, Ill., when a Negro family attempted to move into an apartment it had rented. Part of the crowd of 3,000 wrecked the apartment furnishings. Police and Guardsmen used tear gas to halt the violence.

Brakeless Truck Kills Undertaker

PORT ARTHUR, July 16 (CP) —A brakeless 10-ton gravel truck careened at a 50-mile-an-hour clip through busy Main Street Saturday, killed an undertaker and plunged off a wharf into Thunder Bay.

The driver leaped to safety.

The vehicle smashed into a light truck at an intersection and killed the driver, Alfred Tocheri, a Port Arthur undertaker.

Driver of the gravel truck, Sinnto Lahti, 43, of Port Arthur, told police the brakes gave out as he travelled down a steep hill approaching Main Street.

Lahti said he threw the truck into low gear when he found the brakes wouldn't work, but the heavy vehicle gained speed as it travelled down the steep hill.

Shoppers scurried for safety as the truck swerved in and out of heavy traffic. Lahti said he hit the truck as Tocheri moved across on the green traffic signal.

Lahti leaped from the vehicle as it neared the wharf.

CAUGHT BY RISING WATERS—The arrow points to a man, trapped at the wheel of his car in Kansas City, Kan. The rising Kaw River waters halted the car, marooning the man. He was out in the current too far to be reached by rescuers, and officials fear he may have been swept to his death.

Theatre Television Gets Off To Fast Start In Race

NEW YORK (AP)—After a slow start, theatre television now is developing at a fast pace.

A milestone was reached this month when a special entertainment program was telecast direct to the new Warner theatre here by the NBC. This was the forerunner of exclusive telecasts of entertainment not available on home sets, which will form the great bulk of theatre TV programming.

In the last few weeks exclusive theatre telecasts of sports events, first tried on a regular basis by United Paramount Theatres with Big Ten football games in the Midwest last fall, have been put on a theatre network basis for prize fights.

An the installation of full screen television projection equipment is proceeding at scores of theatres, with some 25 already equipped.

The Radio Corporation of America, pioneer in the field and currently making the bulk of theatre TV equipment, reportedly has orders for 150 installations. Paramount Pictures Corp. and General Precision Laboratories also produce theatre TV equipment.

NBC, subsidiary of RCA, also has announced details of its plan to make motion picture films, for theatre showing, presenting its television stars in the highlights of top video shows of its 1950-51 season.

All these moves are pointed toward the goal of theatre operators of supplementing their feature films with exclusive telecasts, possibly on a country-wide network basis, of programs not available on home sets.

Sports Telecasts Popular

Most attention perhaps has been centered on the recent exclusive telecasts of two top boxing matches, at which free telecasts to home sets were not permitted. This was mainly because of the possibility that theatre TV may outbid commercial broadcasters on telecasts of big sports events, making them unavailable on home sets.

But even without competing bids from theatre TV, many sports promoters have been dubious about continuing to allow telecasts of their events to home viewers because of the effect on gate receipts.

In any events, telecasts of big sports events would provide only occasional programs for theatre TV. Special telecasts of entertainment programs such as the one produced for the Warner theatre by NBC are expected to provide the backbone of theatre TV programming.

Theatre television is believed to have played an important part in the recent deal for a merger of United Paramount Theatres and the American Broadcasting Company. It will give United Paramount, a pioneer in theatre TV, access to ABC studios, equipment and talent for special telecasts to its chain of theatres.

The Federal Communications Commission has scheduled hearings for Sept. 17 on applications by theatres for special channels on which to operate their own network and distribution channels.

But theatre men insist that movie house television as they plan it will be different from the home variety, and not in competition, as it will be designed for mass audiences rather than family groups at home.

Accuse Council Of Negligence

CRYSTAL BEACH, July 16 — (CP)—Town council in this Lake Erie summer resort, already in the midst of a hubbub about reported crime and corruption, was accused of negligence Saturday.

Chairman William Holmes, of the school board, charged that the council was negligent in raising some $176,000 for a school and allowing construction to cease because of a temporary money shortage.

He said the councillors undertook to build the school and it was up to them to raise the money.

"So far they have failed to meet such commitments and it is estimated that to get construction under way again is going to cost an extra $25,000.

The school building, about one-fourth completed, was started last March. Construction was stopped two weeks ago when council said it was temporarily short of funds.

Long In Burma Missionary Dies

NORFOLK, Va., July 16 (AP)—The Rev. James Francis Ingram, 80, who gave their only written language to the Kachin tribe on the China-Burma border, died Saturday night.

The former missionary to India and Burma was a native of Brockville, Ont., and a graduate of McMaster University.

He became a missionary to the Kachin tribe in 1906. He wrote more than 20 books for the group and translated "Pilgrim's Progress" for them. He also translated more than 100 hymns, Christmas carols and Easter songs for the people.

After contracting a tropical disease, he had to stay 20 years in the area because he was not allowed to return to America.

He became pastor of the Great Bridge Church here in 1924 and remained until his retirement to Florida in 1933. There he set up a Bible school in Daytona which bears his name. He returned here a year ago.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Annie L. Dawson Ingram, of Norfolk, and two sons, C. H. Ingram, of Newport News and E. W. Ingram of Spencerville, Ont.

Rector Absent From Service

TORONTO, July 16 (CP)—The Rev. Henry W. Garbutt, dismissed as rector of St. Barnabas' Anglican Church, did not attend the morning service at the church Sunday. Nor was his wife present. They had been asked to stay away.

The Rev. Hubert C. Cox, temporarily appointed rector, read a letter from Bishop A. R. Beverley, who told the congregation he would try to find an experienced clergyman of proved ability and devotion "to give you leadership at this time."

Mr. Garbutt, dismissed after a church commission found that he had broken Anglican canon law, arranged for his lawyer to hand over the keys of the church Saturday to Dean C. E. Riley, representative of the Bishop.

PEACE PROTEST—South Koreans—part of a crowd of 80,000 that jammed the heart of Seoul—protest the Communist demand that the 38th Parallel boundary be re-established They carry a sign emphasizing their desire for a complete union of all Korea.

Small Island Off China Coast Bay Become Orient Hot Spot

By WARREN WHITE.

QUEMOY, China, July 16 — (Reuters). — This barren island two miles off the Chinese Communist coast and 300 miles north of the British colony of Hong Kong, today remains a tense focal point in the Chinese situation.

Under the muzzles of sporadically active Communist guns, 60,000 of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's best combat troops wait uneasily to defend this last Chinese Nationalist link with their lost mainland.

Once the base of operations for generations of bloodthirsty Chinese and Formosan pirates, Quemoy's occupants today have taken on a purely defensive role. Pirates' lookouts have given place to pill-boxes, barbed-wire entanglements, and machine-gun nests. The only warlike vessels to be seen around the shallow waters of the 50-square-mile island are the slim grey gunboats of the pocket-size Chinese Nationalist Navy.

Seemingly unperturbed by the possibility that their isolated island home could any day become the hottest spot on the China coast, Quemoy's 38,000 population of farmers, fishermen, and shopkeepers, quietly go about their daily tasks, watchful only not to transgress the Nationalist Army's stern military laws.

Took Over In 1949

Chiang's troops first took up defensive positions on Quemoy in September, 1949, as the Communist armies swept south to the borders of Indo-China, Burma, and Tibet.

A serious Communist attempt to capture the island in October, 1949, was driven off by the newly entrenched Nationalists, who claimed the captured or slaughter of nearly half of the 20,000 attacking Communists.

Apart from a half-hearted attack on two tiny islet off Quemoy's shores last September, the Communists have done little to challenge the island's Nationalists defenders other than lob occasional shells onto moving vehicles and soldiers easily visible to the Communist gunners.

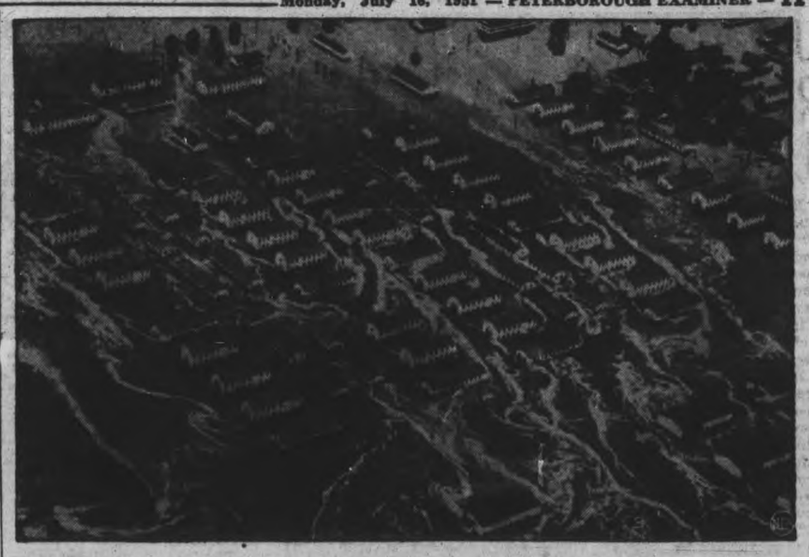
Chiang has stuck to this seemingly "suicide" 'outpost against the advice of most of his foreign counsellors. And now, it would seem, his military gamble has paid off.

Apart from its propaganda value, the presence of 60,000 Nationalist troops with warships and planes only two miles from their front door probably places an additional strain on Communist troop deployment.

Latest Nationalist intelligence reports claim that the Communists have at least four army corps—approximately 120,000 troops—opposite Quemoy deployed solely for fear of Nationalist raids.

Quemoy is less than 10 miles from the busy Communist port of Amoy.

A Nationalist artillery officer on Quemoy said: "We could sink every ship bringing supplies to the Communists in Amoy. They are in easy range. But we have not tried."



Peaceful Routine

Rather than harass foreign shipping, Quemoy's Nationalist defenders prefer to play as inconspicuous a role as possible, leaving the task of dealing with the venturesome foreign "blockade" runners" to the sporadically active Nationalist warships which patrol along the coastal three-mile limit.

Nearly every week some foreign vessel, usually flying a British or Panamanian flag, is intercepted near Quemoy as it heads into the coastal island waterways for Amoy.

Sometimes the vessels are held a few days at Quemoy and turned back. Sometimes they are taken to Formosa where the cargo, if the navy clasifies it war materials, is confiscated and the ship released. But most ships manage to slip through the half-hearted Nationalist blockade.

Life on Quemoy, apart from the occasional artilery shells, is a peaceful routine. Chiang's troops build roads, dig deeper and longer trenches and stronger pill-boxes and cultivate victory gardens which yield them their only supply of fresh vegetables.

Alberta St. Mary River Dam Put In Service

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., July 16 —(CP)—The $7,000,000 St. Mary River dam, part of a vast scheme to irrigate the dry lands of southeastern Alberta, was officially placed in service today.

The dam, 25 miles south of Lethbridge, is the world's largest earth-fill dam. It controls a man-made lake 18 miles long and six miles wide, from which nourishing water will flow to crops through a maze of canals and ditches.

It will take 10 or 15 years to complete the entire $30,000,000 irrigation scheme which it is hoped will turn 400,000 acres of dry range land into one of Canada's richest farming areas. But when it is completed farm homes will have been provided for more than 3,000 families.

At the opening ceremonies this afternoon, speeches were to be made by Mr. Gardiner, Premier E. Manning of Alberta; Chairman Philip Daker of the South Alberta water conservation council.

The 35-piece RCMP band from Regina was to head a procession of Indians and honorary Indian chiefs in tribal dress escorting Mr. Gardiner to an amphitheatre near the control tower of the honorary chief of the Blood Ind- Mr. Gardiner was to be made an honorary chief of the Blood indians by Head Chief Shot-Both-Sides.

The new area to be brought under irrigatoin adds to 120,000 acres already receiving moisture under earlier schemes. Farm experts estimate that agricultural production from this irrigated land has averaged $100 an acre or more a year.

The St. Mary dam was started in 1946. To build it, more than 4,000,000 cubic yards of clay and gravel was piled across the path of the St. Mary River which flows northward in Alberta from Montana.

The St. Mary reservoir, behind the new dam, will store 294,600 acre feet of water—enough to cover 460 square miles of land to a depth of one foot.

Over-All Scheme

The over-all scheme is known as the St. Mary-Milk River project. Talked about as long ago as 1919, it was started in 1945 as a joint federal-provincial scheme. The 120,000 acres of privately-developed irrigation in the area was absorbed.

The total of 500,000 acres is in two sections. One stretches east and west from near Magrath through Raymond, New Dayton and Milk River, a distance of about 60 miles.

The other is from just east of Lethbridge through Taber, Purple Springs, Grassy Lake, Bow Island and Seven Persons to the southern outskirts of Medicine Hat. That section is about 100 miles long and at one point is 35 miles wide.

The terrain is near perfection for irrigation. It is almost flat, dropping gently at from 10 to 30 feet a mile to allow the water to run slowly from farm irrigation ditches across the fields.

Approximately 175 guests were present.

Music for dancing was furnished by Potter's Orchestra. Following the lunch hour, the gathering was called to order and an address was read by Miss Barbara Sherwin. Messrs. Gerald Rogers and Elmer Sherwin, on behalf of those present, made the presentation of a large plate glass mirror and a tri-light floor lamp.

The bride and groom replied briefly and dancing was continued to the small hours.

Hard For Titled Foreigners To Make Honest Dollar In US

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP)—Titled foreigners, no matter how serious their intentions, find it hard to make an honest dollar.

For a prime example, consider a tall, handsome, young blonde noblewoman with a peaches-and-cream complexion and the proud name of Mountbatten.

Lady Iris Mountbatten, great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria, is one who has only recently landed on her feet.

At the moment she is mistress of ceremonies on a Children's television show. On the side she has a poet with a music publishing house and has written a soon-to-be-published song significantly called "Once I Lost My Way."

"I had a very difficult time at first," Lady Iris explained, "because I was very serious about wanting to get a job.

"There were plenty of people around who are anxious to exploit a name, and there are people who are convinced that all you want is to get money without doing any work. And then, on the other side, are the people who ask 'What experience have you had?' So there I was, rather naive, caught between two stools."

Learns Hard Way

Lady Iris learned about the United States the hard way. She made mistakes and trusted the wrong people. Then she went home to England for a visit, came back to the US through Canada under the quota and started all over again.

Actually, her basic education was not designed to equip her for competition in the employment marts. She was born and grew up in Kensington Palace, birthplace of Queen Victoria herself. She underwent the normal education for a girl whose father was a Marquis and who was closely related to most of the reigning and deposed crowned heads of Europe.

During a trip to India she decided to take some Indian brocades to the US as a representative for a British textile firm. When she arrived in New York and learned she would have to pay duties on her samples, she was left without her anticipated means of livelihood and faced with the stern necessity of earning eating money.

After much persistence she wangled a job as a sales girl in the ready-to-wear department of a New York fur store.

When the store went into its dull season, Lady Iris, one of the last hired, was one of the first fired.

"Now," she said, "I'm starting all over again. My heart is really in this television thing. I've felt for a long time I could really do something good if I could work with children. Television is fine for me, because it's one place where they employ people without years of experience."

ARTICLE 10

If this is the summer you've slated for a spanking new line-up of separates . . . switchables . . . matchmates, whatever you want to call them, let's consider crease-resistant linen or broadcloth, or any one of several good, sturdy fabrics you may decide upon as the mainstay in a wardrobe of separates.

Let's choose gray as your basic color, smartest this season in the dark gunmetal tones which almost verge on charcoal. For a cool flavor count in a clear, good green. And to make the whole thing click add coral or flamingo. With these three good companions in mind . . . we're assuming you'll be sewing them yourself or have them made . . . track down a pattern for a slim smooth skirt, preferably side-vented. Then for a long-sleeved jacket, smooth - fitting, front-buttoning from throat to waist.

Make these two patterns up in your gunmetal gray. There's your two-piece casual dress.

Now a pattern for a halter-slung sun-top, strapless sun-top, or, if you're not exposure minded, a very simple, sleeveless blouse. Make this of your coral or flamingo material.

Use the green fabric in shorts and slacks. You now have two tops, one gray, one coral to wear with either your slacks or shorts.

More than likely you'll be able to get another sun-top out of the pieces left over from the gray. You may want to buy enough coral fabric to make an extra, button-up jacket exactly like the gray, but this one with short sleeves. We leave it to you to figure out the commutations and the permutations.

Whatever your fabric choice, you'll be disappointed if you don't insist upon crease-resistant, preshrunken fabrics. Your separates must be completely washable, and it's a great disappointment to invest time and money in material which always looks in need of a good pressing.

The above may not be your color choice. Perhaps one of these has more appeal: basic brown, add gold and green; basic black, add cotton plaid and one of the plaid's brightest shades; basic navy, add light blue and yellow. Or choose companion fabrics like plain rose chambray and its matching striped chambray . . . plain blue with striped.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Shabby Surroundings Said Real Tragedy to Young Girl

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 17 years old, a senior in high school, and am confronted with this problem. I have no place to bring my dates, and never have had because our home hasn't been redecorated in ten years. We bought a house ten years ago and since then nothing has been done except to buy a living room suite. We have no rugs, lamps, tables, draperies or anything that makes a house livable. My mother, who is the dominant member of the family, just never gets around to shopping for these things. We are not too poor to have them, but she simply won't buy them.

My brother, sister and I have coaxed, begged and just about everything to persuade her to get us the furniture we need, but to no avail. My sister and I have had no social life because of the condition of our home. My father is the quiet type and won't get fussed up about anything. Can you offer any advice on the situation? MARGIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A mother's prime responsibility is to make a comfortable, attractive home for her children, and your mother seems to have fallen down on her job woefully. Since there is enough money to buy the things you need, I can't understand her reluctance to make the necessary purchases. Most women delight in fixing up a home, and shopping for the essentials, at least.

Try Dad Again

Since all forms of persuasion have failed with your mother, why not try tackling Dad again? With three of you working on him, you should be able to break down his lackadaisical attitude and coax him to give you enough money to do the shopping yourself. As soon as your mother sees a little improvement in the place she may be prompted into getting into action herself. Between you and your sister you could make the draperies and curtains. Gay curtains can work wonders in a home.

If your mother is just averse to shopping, you might offer to do it for her, and send the furniture home COD. At least that will give her a chance to approve it. Show her some of the handsome color pictures in the women's magazines and perhaps you can arouse her to an interest in her own home. All you really need is a beginning. I'm sure once a slight improvement is made in your surroundings, both Mother and Dad will open their eyes and say, "My, why didn't we do this long ago!"

For the sake of the whole family, I ardently hope that you can come to a happy solution of this problem. A shabby home will ruin the self-confidence of any teen-ager, and it is every child's birthright to have home a place of security and comfort. The atmosphere of home has nothing to do with money; we all know that some of the coziest homes see only small paychecks, and wealth can produce some of the coldest mausoleums imaginable. Bright colors come in cheap paint cans and inexpensive fabrics. They are available to anyone with willing hands. So get to work and may Heaven smile upon your undertaking.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a young man 24 years of age and feel that my life is being ruined by my being prematurely bald. Formerly I was popular. Could date practically any girl I desired. But now I am left out of everything and the girls I formerly went with have something else to do when I ask them to go out. I have acquired the nickname of "Baldy." I have developed a terrible inferiority complex and am extremely sensitive about the loss of my hair. I feel I am destined to bachelorhood because the type of girl I would want as a wife will not even give me a second glance. How can I adjust myself? A READER

ANSWER: By facing your misfortune with a little common sense instead of a lot of maudlin self-pity. What's the matter with you right now is that you have lost your perspective and that is a lot worse than losing your hair.

In the first place, try to realize that none of our friends love us for our hair. It is what's inside of our heads, not what's outside of them that they care for. If you have lost your friends and are no longer invited out and girls don't want to date you, it is not because your hair has fallen out, but because you have let yourself get morbid and sensitive and suspicious and are no longer agreeable or add anything to the party.

You say you feel you are doomed to bachelorhood because of your lack of hair. Stuff and nonsense. Did you ever hear of a woman getting a divorce from her husband because he had lost his hair? Nine-tenths of the middle-aged wives in the world have husbands with only about three strands of hair to cover their shining domes.

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think a girl almost 18 should go steady with a boy 19? I like this boy very much but not enough to devote all my time to him. He wants me to stop going out with anyone else. ANNE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You'd be very foolish to give up all your other friends for a boy you know you don't love. Teen-age time is the time for making friends and looking around for a future husband. Take advantage of it. Tell your friend firmly but politely that you are willing to continue to go out with him but must retain the freedom of choice to see other boys, too.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Deep-Freeze Vegetables Young Fresh From Garden

To keep my promise to "Housewife" and to help our readers who are lucky enough to have deep freezers at home, or who have rented freezer-lockers, I am outlining the procedure for freezing the commoner vegetables.

Frozen green and yellow beans, corn off the cob, and spinach are the biggest sellers, after peas. I gave you peas last week, so will leave them out today. I will give you direction for freezing Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, squash and green lima beans later in the year when they are ready for market.

Commercial processors of frozen vegetables and fruits stress the importance of using freshly gathered produce. They go so far as to advise putting off going through the work at all unless the vegetables or fruits are not more than 12 hours old. Need I say more?

Beans—Green or Wax

Use Kentucky Wonder, Stringless Green Pod, Pencil Pod Black Wax, Burpee's Stringless, Round Pod Kidney Wax or Brittle Wax. These are the varieties that commercial processors use. This does not mean that if you have other varieties in your garden that you would not be successful. Try your own variety but use the following steps: Harvest when young and tender. Select only sound fresh beans. Wash thoroughly and trim off ends and string them if necessary. Leave whole, or slice crosswise or lengthwise. Blanch beans three minutes. (see instructions for blanching below). Cool quickly in cold running water or ice water. Drain. Put in waxed cardboard containers, cover with two per cent brine or pack dry if desired. (see brine instructions below). Leave ½-inch headspace and cover and freeze fast.

Corn Off Cob

Use Golden Bantam, Golden Cross, Dorinny, D2, Early Cory, Seneca or the type you wish to freeze. Harvest early in the morning. Select corn that has shiny kernels full of juicy milk and sweet in flavour. Never use immature or overripe corn. Remove husks and brush off silk with stiff brush. You may cut from cob and blanch and chill, but most flavour is retained by blanching corn on cob, chilling, and cutting off and packing and covering with 2% brine. Leave ½-inch headspace and always cover and fast-freeze.

Preparation of Spinach

Savoy, Broadleaf, Giant Nobel, Bloomsdale and King of Denmark are good varieties to freeze. (New Zealand spinach is not recommended as yet.) Use only the tender bright green leaves. Remove stems, discoloured and wilted leaves. Wash until no trace of sand or soil is left. You may use lukewarm water for this. Blanch 3 minutes. Chill in cold water, lifting leaves to allow water to chill between them. Drain. Add 2% salt brine, leave ½-inch headspace, cover and fast-freeze.

Blanching

This is a partial precook. All vegetables require it. Place in sieve, wire basket or cheesecloth bag, and immerse in actively boiling water,—doing 1 lb. at a time. Count time after water returns to rapid boil after vegetables are immersed in it. Chill them at once.

Brine

A 2% brine is 1 tablespoon non-iodized salt to 5 cups cold water. Stir until salt is dissolved.

Not Shameful To Use Can-Opener

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK — (AP) — On a round-the-world trip a year or so ago, food writer and television cook Poppy Cannon discovered the rest of the world had some pretty strange ideas about the American kitchen.

In Pakistan, for instance, she was asked repeatedly if it was true that American meals consisted entirely of vitamin pills washed down by glasses of water. All over the old world, housewives and homemakers asked how husbands felt about "can-opener meals."

Since then Poppy has made something of an avocation of telling the world how America eats.

The magic ingredient in any good dish, she maintains, is something that can't be purchased—the cook's imagination.

"I know—I've proved to my own satisfaction that you can be a gourmet with a can-opener," she says earnestly. "The can-opener actually permits the woman with little time in the kitchen to become an artist.

Operate Like Chef

"Think of canned foods and frozen foods this way: other people have the responsibility for the selection of the raw materials, cleaning and preparation. When you open a can, you move into that kitchen the way a chef does after a corps of kitchen maids have done the preliminaries."

"It's old-fashioned and uninformed to sneer at the can-opener," Poppy maintains stoutly.

"Open any can of soup," she suggested. "Other hands have made the roux, others have pureed the vegetables. You start from there with added ingredients, herbs and spices."

For an easy lobster newburgh—take canned cream of mushroom soup, dilute it with a quarter cup of dry sherry, add frozen lobster tails cut in large diced chunks and add seasoning to your taste.

Fruit Soups

During the summer months, Miss Cannon occasionally goes in for fruit soups, dear to the hearts of Hungarians and Scandinavians. She buys cans of pureed fruits, put up for babies, adds white wine, cinnamon, sour cream and grates nutmeg over the top. Or she serves cold chicken soup—a can of cream of chicken, some lemon juice, salt and fresh-ground pepper.

Even complicated dishes like chicken tetrazzini aren't hard with a can-opener for a kitchen aid. Start with chicken fricasse out of a can, add ham, and chopped hard-boiled eggs to the sauce.

Cook thin noodles separately, pour the chicken mixture over the noodles, add grated cheese and give it a few minutes under the broiler. The whole thing can be done in minutes.

Or take a can of beef stew, add red wine, herbs and other seasoning. Miracles can be done with a can of meat balls. It can be turned into a Swedish dish by adding all-spice and sour cream; into a Peruvian dish with a raisin and ripe-olive sauce, simmered slowly.

She thinks the busy modern housewife can get along just fine with a big canned goods and preserves closet, plus a spice-and-herbs shelf and a liquor cabinet.

Need Herbs, Spices

"Of course, you need to rely heavily on herbs and spices and condiments, because most canned goods are necessarily very lightly flavored to meet all ranges of tastes."

The kitchen liquor cabinet should have dry sherry; a good white table wine; a good red table wine, rum, brandy and beer. She occasionally puts one or two tablespoons of beer in a beef stew, and also in a shrimp sauce.

She practises what she preaches. The kitchen of her 68th street home in Manhattan where she tests recipes for her writing and daily ABC television show has shelves for spices, condiments and herbs. There's a tiny back yard where Miss Cannon has her fresh herb supply—mint, sweet basil, dill, winter savory, marjoram and parsley.

"All I'm trying to tell the world is that a can-opener isn't a badge of shame," she explains. "It's a magic wand."

FUNNY BUSINESS — By Hershberger

"Could you plan an itinerary for us—good for about ten cups of coffee and a dozen doughnuts?"

What's Right?

You and your husband have invited another couple to dinner.

WRONG: When you go into the dining room wait for them to ask where you want them to sit.

RIGHT: Ask the woman guest if she will sit at your husband's right and have the man guest sit at your right.

Actress Slashes Wrists In Rose Apt.

NEW YORK, July 16 —(AP)— Actress Joyce Mathews, former wife of comedian Milton Berle, slashed her wrists Sunday in a suicide attempt while with showman Billy Rose in his plush midtown apartment.

The drama brought Berle to the hospital bedside of Miss Mathews. Rose summoned his wife, former Olympic swimmer Eleanor Holm, to the apartment located over the Ziegfeld theatre which Rose owns.

Saul Richman, Miss Mathews' special manager, said she had called on Rose to discuss television work and newspaper reports linking her name with Rose's.

In hospital, where her condition was described as not serious, Miss Matthews was reported in good spirits. Asked by police to give the motive for her act, she replied: "I just love razor blades."

No Romance

Police further quoted her as saying that "there is no romantic tieup between me and Billy Rose."

Both Miss Mathews and Rose objected to her being treated at a hospital. They said they were afraid of adverse publicity.

Miss Mathews and Berle, 43, first married in 1941, then remarried in June 1949, after a 1947 divorce. The second marriage ended last year.

One policeman quoted Rose as saying, "I told her something. Then she ran into the bathroom, saying: 'I'm going to cut my wrist.'"

The showman, police said, declined to say what he had told Miss Mathews.

Suggest Ways To Increase Food Supplies

By STAN SWINTON

ROME, July 16—(AP)— How can world agricultural production be progressively increased to feed growing populations and simultaneously raise living standards?

The 18-country council of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization takes a look at the problem in a report just issued.

It says the answer lies in achieving these goals:

Full employment of farm labor

Professional training of farmers.

Improved farm management.

Emigration to and land settlement in underdeveloped areas.

Increased international investments in agriculture.

Technical assistance for underdeveloped countries.

Education to raise the cultural level of farmers in backward areas so they can take full advantage of technical assistance when offered.

In many parts of the world the farmers' main problems are lack of credit facilities, high taxation and the fact farms are too small to be efficient, the report said.

Scientific Planning

The F.A.O. suggests governments scientifically plan action to solve these three-farm management problems.

F.A.O. noted some progress in the field of international farm investment. Loans are being increased to under-developed countries by the international bank for reconstruction and development and the export-import bank.

A training centre at Lahore, Pakistan, has been so successful in instructing technicians in planning economic development of agriculture that two or more are planned, one in Turkey and another in Chile.

Agricultural extension centres similar to one F.A.O. established last year in Mexico are raising farmers' cultural levels in backward areas. More are planned.

Stalin's Daughter Weds Binge Lasts Two Weeks

LONDON, July 16 (AP)—Joe Stalin's favorite daughter, Svetlana, was reported Sunday to have been married in Moscow amid a two-weeks show of glitter and flowing vodka.

The London Sunday Express and three Italian publications reported that the black-haired daughter of the Soviet dictator had married Mihail Kaganovich, son of Politburo member Lazar Kaganovich July 3.

The Rome newspaper Momento Sera, quoting Russian sources in a dispatch from Geneva, said Stalin originally opposed the marriage because the bridegroom is Jewish.

The newspaper also said Stalin would have preferred a statesmen or a military leader for a son-in-law, but that he finally gave in.

Svetlana, 27, had been married before. It was announced in Moscow in 1945 that she had become a mother. The three publications which reported the marriage did not indicate what happened to her first husband.

The Sunday Express said the Russians claimed the nuptial feast "outshone any postwar wedding in the west."

Lots of Variety

"Pink Crimean champagne, sweet Armenian peach brandy and vodka flowed day and night for the thousands of guests invited from the inner party circles by Father Stalin to the Kremlin," the Express said.

The Express report came from its Stockholm correspondent and quoted Iron Curtain newspapers. The same reports were published in the Italian weekly picture magazines Oggi and Europeo, but neither indicated where its information originated.

The Express said Svetlana wore a silver lame gown with multi-colored precious stones and golden beads. It said the gown cost $280,000. The Italian magazines said the dress had a 63-foot train.

"Special orchestras from Stalin's native Georgia and other Caussasian republics were commissioned to play in relays till dawn," the Express said.

"Famous ballerinas from the Bolshoi Theatre gave cabarets at intervals throughout the long summer nights from June 24 to July 3.

"Refreshments were served on the czarist gold plate, and toasts to the bride and bridegroom, Marshal Stalin and his mother, Svetlana's inlaws and to Bolshevik institutions, sometimes numbered as many as 20 in a row."

"For the first time in many months, all 15 members of the Soviet inner cabinet politburo were assembled in Moscow together—a unique occurrence at the height of the Russian summer."

The Express said no diplomats from East or West were invited "since a marriage is officially considered a private affair, terminable by a stroke of the pen."

Costs $900,000

The Italian publication said the wedding cost $900,000, but that a comparatively small number of guests, 160, attended.

The couple was reported now on a honeymoon tour through Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

The Express said that Communists at all the points on the tour had been ordered to spare no expense in feting the newlyweds.

4 Using Raft For Experiment

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., July 16—(AP)—The raft Lethargia will head downriver for New Orleans in a day or two, carrying four young people intent on an experiment in "living in small groups."

Two men and two women, strangers before the raft idea came up, will make the 1,300-mile trip. They hope to finish it by Oct. 1.

The trip will begin on the Allegheny River. At nearby Pittsburgh the raft will swing into the Ohio River, then onto the Mississippi.

Guiding spirit of the experiment is Mary Ellen McGrady, 24 a graduate sociology student at the University of Michigan.

She wrote a piece about the rafting idea in the University of Michigan newspaper, calling for volunteers.

"Out of a school of 20,000 students only two were interested in the adventure," said Mary Ellen.

These two are Milton Borden, 30, an aeronautical engineer student, and Don Brown a sociology student.

The fourth member of the crew is Geraldine Garcia, 23, an artist.

What is this "living in small groups"?

Miss Grady says most people live in towns with thousands of other people around them all the time. She wants to learn:

What are reactions when this companionship is reduced? How do people get along when they see the same persons over and over again, day after day?

Pensions Under 70 Aim At Uniformity

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, July 16 (CP)—Representatives of the Federal and Provincial Governments will meet here today, to discuss plans under which pensions of $40 a month will be paid to needy persons between 65 and 69.

The meeting will attempt to agree on conditions which a person will have to meet to qualify for a pension.

The Federal Government alone, starting next Jan. 1, will pay pensions of $40 a month to all persons 70 and over, regardless of means, who have lived in Canada for at least 20 years. It has offered to share on a 50-50 basis with the Provinces the cost of similar pensions to the needy in the 65-69 age group. It will continue to pay, under more liberal terms, 75 per cent of the cost of $40-a-month pensions to needy blind persons 21 and over.

At present, pensions of $40-a-month—some Provinces pay a little more—are paid to needy persons 70 and over who have lived in Canada for 20 years and who can prove their need for such a pension. The Federal Government pays 75 per cent of the cost and the Provinces the remainder.

Given Authorization

At its recent session, Parliament authorized the Federal Government to conclude agreements with the Provinces for the payment of pensions to the needy in the 65-69 age group. It is not yet known whether all Provinces will conclude agreements in time for the new pensions program to start next Jan. 1.

Some Provinces have indicated that they cannot afford to participate in the program set out by the Federal Government. Others say they may start the pensions at 67 instead of 65. Some have intimated they will pay the pensions to only a limited number in the 65-69 age group.

Health Minister Martin recently said:

"The Federal Government, of course, hopes that all Provinces will utimately adopt a uniform pattern in order to take the fullest advantage of the scope of this Federal legislation. At the same time, it is not the intention of the Government to impose this new program on all Provinces on a 'take it or leave it' basis.

"If any Province comes to the conclusion that it cannot for reasons of its own, implement this part of the program in its jurisdiction at the present time, or that it can only do so on a limited and partial basis, this will not affect the Federal Government's offer as it applies to the other Provinces. Nor will it in any way affect the implementation of the universal pensions program."

145,000 To Qualify

Should all Provinces accept the Federal offer, it is estimated that 145,000 Canadians between 65 and 69 wil qualify for pensions. The cost would amount to $64,000,000 annually, shared equally by the Federal Government and the Provinces.

The Federal Government proposed the residence requirements and income ceilings form part of the eligibility test. Under the Federal offer, a person would have to have lived in Canada at least 20 years in order to qualify. A single pensioner in the 65-69 group could be in receipt of $20 a month or less in outside income and still qualify for a full pension of $40 a month.

In other words, a single 65-69 pensioner could receive up to $240 a year in outside income and still receive a full pension of $480 a year. A married couple, both receiving the full pensions, also would be allowed outside income of $240 a year. In the case of a married couple, of whom one is pensionable and in receipt of the full pension, outside income could total $720 a year.

When outside income goes above the allowable ceilings, the amount of the pension is reduced accordingly. For instance, if a widow, doing odd household jobs, has an income of $40 a month she would be entitled to $20 a month in old-age assistance. On reaching the age of 70 she would qualify for a full pension of $40 a month, no matter what outside income she may have.

Still Qualify

Parents who are in need and who are not receiving anything or a sufficient amount from their children would still qualify for 65-69 assistance unless the Provincial Acts or regulations required otherwise.

For instance, a mother might be living with a married son who was having difficulty making ends meet for his own family. In such a case the mother would qualify for a pension.

Under former legislation, the Federal Government insisted that the Provinces recover the pensions paid from any estate the pensioner might have left. In the new legislation, the Federal Government has removed the provision. It states that it is not interested in any recovery from estates, but if a Province decides to make a recovery then the Federal Government wants half of the amount obtained.

Experience showed that provision for recovery from estates discouraged many needy people from applying for a pension. They feared their relatives would have to reimburse the governments for the amout received in pensions.

In actual practice the amount recovered from estates was very small.

Constable Injured

LONDON, Ont., July 16—(CP)—Provincial Constable Ray Davis suffered severe head injuries early Sunday when his motorcycle collided with an automobile at Wharncliffe Road South and Briscoe Street as he sped to the scene of an earlier accident. The car driver, Charles W. McQuillin, 40-year-old Dashwood schoolteacher who lives during the summer at Lucknow, was charged with dangerous driving.

Silver Treasure Running Out For Mexicans

By L. F. STUNTZ

MEXICO CITY, July 16 (AP)—Mexico's fabled silver treasures are running out.

The silver in the ores is getting thin. Veins are pinching out. Higher labor costs are making poor ores unworkable.

Still the world's greatest producer of silver, Mexico's mines are not as rich as they were 150 years ago when Baron Von Humboldt, the German explorer and scientist, called her "The Treasure House of the World."

Since then Spaniards came more than 400 years ago Mexico has produced nearly 200,000 tons of pure silver. And the tourist can buy a handful of sterling silver trinkets for $1.

Nowadays, more than half Mexico's silver is a by-product of other metals. When lead or zinc are refined, the silver is recovered.

Step Up Production

Higher prices for these cheap metals will probably step up silver production in the next few years. During the second world war, high lead and zinc prices for the base metals dropped. Poor mines shut down. Silver production also dropped—from 2,400 tons a year during the war to about 1,600 tons in 1946-49.

Now lead and zinc prices are up again—and silver production should go up too.

Mexico has always been a silver-producing country. Even before the Spaniards came, subject tribes were sending silver bars to Mexico City as tribute. The Aztecs tried to buy off Cortes with a huge silver plaque, but the wily Spaniard figured there was more silver where that came from. He continued on to Mexico City to look for it.

One mine—the real Del Monte—whose ore once ran a hundred pounds of silver to the ton, now gives less than a pound.

Seeks More Newsprint

MEXICO CITY, July 16—(Reuters)—Antonio M. Baez, minister of National Economy, and two newspaper publishers will leave for Ottawa this week to attempt to buy more newsprint, a well-informed source said Sunday. Mexican imports of newsprint were less than 42,000 tons in 1950 and 52,700 tons this year. Publishers state their requirements are 60,000 tons this year and 70,000 for 1952.

Lou Costello Tries Singing In His First Color Fantasy

By JACK QUIGG

HOLLYWOOD, July 16—(AP)—"I fear nothing, when I am in the right . . . ta-ta-ta-ta-ta-ta," sang the plump little man, rocking his head and juggling up and down in his chair.

Lou Costello, who has done just about everything else for laughs, was demonstrating how he hopes to get them with song. He warbles for the first time on the screen in "Jack and The Bean Stalk."

Seated at his desk in a studio office, clad in the green and orange medieval costume he wears as Jack, he chirped away.

"In every Italian there's a little bit of singer some place," he said, beaming.

"I dance, too," he added, and did a little jig.

"Jack and The Bean Stalk" is Abbott and Costello's biggest project to date.

"It's their first venture into fantasy and it's their first picture in color. They classify it as a musical, another first.

Costello is making the film with his independent movie company—he hires Abbott. He said he got the idea of a "change of pace" film while he was sitting in his library one evening.

"My little girl, Christine, kept asking me to read her 'Jack'," he said. "I read it, looked at the pretty pictures, and thought 'what a movie this would make.' Haven't some of the biggest grossers been fantasies?—the Disneys and 'The Wizard of Oz,' for instance."

The films puts the boys in costume for the first time but they won't be out of character. Lou will still be the comic, pratfalling in and out of scrapes. Bud, plays and avaricious town butcher who goes with Jack to the giant's castle to seize the hen that lays the golden eggs, treats his partner as mean as ever.

UN Reports Some Progress As Reds Raise New Point

Kansas City Begins Cleaning Up, Flood Worst In US

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 17. (AP)—The battered Kansas City area mobilized today for a herculean cleanup task as flood waters, swirling eastward, struck new blows at Missouri River towns. Receding flood waters in this metropolitan area of 900,000 left block after block of muck-covered ruin. And in Kansas, a line of wrecked or partially-damaged towns and cities stretched across the eastern and central parts of the state.

The latest damage estimate for Kansas and Missouri was $750,000,000—costliest flood in United States history.

Water still covered many sections but it was fast slipping back into river channels here and in Kansas.

But to the east of Kansas City, smal towns along the Missouri felt the full force of the turbulent river. Lexington, Wellington, Norbone and Hardin, Mo., were flooded. Some dikes in Central Missouri gave way.

The runoff of Kansas flood waters also buffeted Oklahoma. Miami, in northeastern Oklahoma, suffered its worst flood beating in history from the Neosho-Grand River.

President Truman, reported deeply concerned over the flood situation, planned to fly over the Missouri-Kansas disaster area today.

The flood has brought death to 17 persons, tied up highway and rail transportation, forced more than 70,000 from their homes and severely damaged the industrial capacity of numerous towns and cities.

20 Feet Deep

In Kansas City, Mas., and Kansas City, Mo., four major industrial areas covering thousands of acres were flooded. Water during the height of the flood stood more than 20 feet deep in some places.

A fire that ravaged a seven-block area and injured 14 firemen was left to burn itself out after raging for five days. The flames destroyed or damaged 24 major firms. Preliminary estimates indicated damage would run well over $1,000,000.

North Kansas City, Mo. — a residential and industrial area that has been a ghost town for three days—began returning to normal. Because of flood dangers, the 4,000 residents had been evacuated and business and industry shut down. The Missouri River, however, never did breach the dikes.

John M. Innes Controller Dies In Toronto

TORONTO, July 17 —(CP)— John M. Innes, 65, a Scot from Aberdeen who served 12 years in civic politics, died Monday night without achieving his ambition of becoming mayor of Canada's second-largest city.

But, as vice-chairman of Toronto's four-man board of control, he was acting mayor during Mayor Hiram E. McCallum's recent trip to Britain. The task, added to the heavy duties he undertook as controller, sent him to bed a little more than a week ago for a rest on doctor's orders.

John Innes came to Canada from Scotland in 1904 at the age of 18 as a carpenter's apprentice. Later he took up a successful career as a building contractor. He was first elected in 1939 as alderman for a north-end ward. An office he held until his election to board of control in 1947.

Topped Polls

In the January, 1950, election he received 96,512 votes, more than any other controller in Toronto history. He topped the polls again in the last election. In recent months there has been talk around city hall that he would run for mayor next year if Mayor McCallum retired.

During the Second World War he met almost every troop train that brought Toronto men home from overseas. He organized and directed the Evening Telegram British War Victims' Fund, which, in five years, sent $3,000,000 across the ocean. He also was in charge of Toronto's Farm Commando Brigade.

His wartime work won him the decoration of officer of the Order of the British Empire.

True to his native heath, he was an ardent soccer fan. He kicked off the ball at all big games here between international teams.

His funeral will be held Thursday.

Careless Driver Sent To Jail

KINGSTON, July 17 — (CP)— Making good his promise to impose a prison term on anyone convicted of careless driving, Magistrate James B. Garvin Monday sentenced Ralph Hartley Clark, RR 3, Gananoque, to seven day in jail. Clark was also ordered to pay a $97.90 in court costs.

Clark was charged following an accident June 23 on No. 2 Highway, 14 miles east of Gananoque, when his car was involved in a head-on collision with a car driven by Ernest Gilmour, of Quebec City. Mrs. Mildred Gilmour, wife of the driver, suffered injuries in the crash which completely wrecked both cars.

Magistrate Garvin said last week that at the risk of being socially ostracized he would make the isue where careless drivers were concerned a jail sentence rather than one of proving financial responsibility.

He said the emphasis on drunken driving had been exaggerated. "Why should drunk drivers, when they are not causing accidents, cases of careless driving resulting in accidents have been dealt with by the imposing of fines?" he asked.

Harriman Starts Oil Talks

Fear Latest Effort, At Mediation Doomed To Failure

TEHRAN, Iran, July 17. (Reuters) — Averell Harriman today met Iran's Foreign Minister, Baqir Kazemi, for new talks aimed at an oil truce between Iran and Britain.

Both Iranian and American sources were secretive about the outcome.

The hour-long session between President Truman's special envoy and the Iranian official was believed centred on Iran's rejection of the International Court's recommendation that both sides mark time until a just ruling can be reached.

Harriman's visit late Monday night to the British ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd, was also shrouded in secrecy.

Same Difficulties?

Some observers figured Harriman was running into the same Iranian brick wall attitude which had balked earlier peace-making moves by US Ambassador Henry Grady.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and Kazemi have made it clear to Harriman they are neither prepared to budge from the letter of the oil nationalization law nor ready to accept the world court recommendations.

A repercussion from the bloody rioting in which 20 died, which greeted Harriman's arrival here Sunday, today broke up a meeting of the lower house, the Majlis. The house broke up in an uproar after several deputies accused authorities of engineering the riot in order to unseat the Mossadegh government.

The weekend street fighting began with a Tudeh party (Communist) demonstration against US intervention in the oil struggle. Anti-Communists and police joined in the melee.

Trains Pile Up 3 Die, 11 Hurt

FORT WAYNE, Ind., July 17—(AP)—A Nickel Plate freight and Wabash passenger train collided with a thunderous roar at a cross-over junction Monday night. Three trainmen were killed and 11 persons were hurt.

The trains piled up in a tangled mass near New Haven, seven miles east of here. State police said the freight rammed and sideswiped the passenger train, splintering a day coach.

Both trains were westbound, travelling on rails nearly parallel near the cross-over.

State police said crew members of both trains reported they had green "go-ahead" signals just before the collision.

Election Day In NZ Set For September 1

WELLINGTON, N. Z., July 17 —(Reuters).—Sidney Holland, New Zealand Premier, announced tonight that polling day in the forthcoming general election has been set for Sept. 1.

The government decided to go to the country for a verdict on its handling of the five-month dock strike, which has been severely [illegible] the opposition.

The Nationalist Coalition government has a majority of 12 over Labor on the 80-seat house.

2 Children Have Strange Ailment

HULL, Que., July 17 (CP). — Two small children of an upper Gatineau valley farmer were in critical condition in hospital here Monday night suffering from a mysterious ailment. A young brother died Sunday.

Hospital officials said the condition of Ellard Peck, 6, was "extremely critical with very little hope of recovery." His four-month-old sister, Alice, was given an even chance of living.

Three of the five young children of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Peck, who farm near Danford Lake 40 found miles northwest of here became suddenly ill early last week. A four-year-old son, Elmer was found dead in his cot Sunday morning and the other two were brought to hospital here.

Both the father, 56, and the 22-year-old mother were at a loss to explain the sudden tragedy. Mr. Peck said the family had been drinking water from a spring near a mud lake on their farm and possibly the water caused the illness.

[illegible] was that the children may have become sick from green apples they had been eating.

CROWDS FLEE THE SCENE as an overturned automobile starts to burn during Guatemala City rioting. The vehicle belonged to the director of the national orphanage and was overturned and set on fire in front of the institution. One woman and a child were known to have died of burns during the riots, touched off when Catholic instructors were dismissed from the orphanage run by an allegedly Communist administrator.

If Cease-Fire Agreed On, UN May Adjourn

UNITED NATIONS, NY, July 17 (AP)—Responsible United Nations quarters today suggested the present hold-over general assembly may be adjourned as soon as a Korean cease-fire is agreed upon.

This would postpone major political discussions on Korea until the assembly begins its fall sessions in Paris Nov. 6.

One of those reported favoring this idea was assembly president Nasrollah Entezam of Iran.

The assembly has been on a stand-by basis since its normal adojurnal time in December.

Entezam was reported to feel that it would be better if the present assembly merely received the cease-fire report and approved any supervisory machinery required by the truce terms.

Diplomatic circles explained that the delay in getting down to negotiations on a permanent settlement would provide a cooling-off period of approximately 100 days to test the cease-fire.

At the same time, they said, the delay would promote a better atmosphere for political discussions than would exist immediately after the cessation of fighting.

There are still no definite indications as to the possible lines the peace negotiations will take, but the Communists certainly will again raise the old questions of Formosa and the seating of Red China in the UN.

In any event, it is likely that both the North Korean Communists and the Peiping regime will be invited to send representatives to take part in the discussions.

Find Transfusion Not Necessary

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July [illegible] rushed 35 miles from Hamilton by a police escort—was found unnecessary today.

The blood was intended to replace the blood of a new born "RH positive" child. When the baby was born it turned out to be "RH negative" and perfectly healthy.

Niagara Falls doctors requested the blood from the Hamilton Red Cross Society early this morning. City police escorted a car containing the blood to the outskirts of Hamilton and provincial police sped it to Niagara Falls.

Confirm Missing Envoy A-Bomb Board Member

LONDON, July 17. (Reuters)—A Foreign Office spokesman confirmed today that Donald MacLean, missing British diplomat, was a member of the committee which controlled wartime exchanges between the Western Allies on development of the atom bomb. But he drew attention to a statement by Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison in the House of Commons June 26 that MacLean had no access to confidential technical information on the subject.

Morrison stated that MacLean was concerned with the political aspects of atomic energy matters between January, 1947, and August, 1948, and with discussions on co-operation between Britain, the United States and Canada. His connection with these matters ceased finally in August, 1948.

On Committee

A spokesman of the United States State Department said Monday night MacLean was a member of the International Atomic Policy Committee while on the staff of the British Embassy in Washington. He was commenting on a report in United Nations News and World, unofficial weekly news magazine.

The report said MacLean knew "how many atomic bombs the west had, what were the uranium resources, and how many bombs could be made with existing resources and materials."

MacLean, who disappeared with another member of the British foreign service, Guy Burgess, May 25, became first secretary at the British Embassy in Washington in 1944.

Must Get In Lineup To Come To Canada

BONN, July 17 (Reuters)—L. B. Pearson said today some West Germans are travelling to Britain in the belief that it will make it easier for them to emigrate to Canada.

Canada's external affairs min[illegible] 150,000 west European immigrants next year. The number who wanted to live in Canada far exceeded the shipping space available.

Pearson, touring Canadian diplomatic missions in western Europe, said in Sweden he found Finns were coming all the way to Stockholm on the off-chance of getting a passage to Canada.

Coast Guard Searches For Missing Yacht

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 17 — (AP) — The United States coast guard today launched a search for the missing yacht Cynthia, a straggler in the Chicago-Mackinac race.

Unsighted for nearly 24 hours, the 47-foot ketch is owned by A. J. Rogers of Traverse City, Mich.

Coast guard officials on Mackinac Island said the cutter Mackinaw was searching the northern end of Lake Michigan for the missing craft.

Several craft still have not crossed the finish line of the 331-mile race.

Labor Ministers Have Red Faces

LONDON, July 17 (CP)—Princess Margaret will get her annual allowance starting next month but a lot of red-faced Labor ministers wish the question had never come up.

The House of Commons gave unopposed second reading Monday to a bill enabling £6,000 to be paid annually to Princess Margaret after she comes of age Aug. 21. Prime Minister Attlee explained there had been a small technical omission—a 1937 Act provided for payment but did not authorize it in statutory form.

Then Emrys Hughes, a Pacifist Labor member whose views sometimes outrage his own colleagues, embarked on a 14-year flashback. He reminded the House that in 1937 Labor had opposed the payment. He recalled a Labor amendment calling for "greater simplicity" in the daily life of the court.

Who had voted against the £6,000 annuity? Well, said Hughes, among them were the present prime minister, home secretary Chuter Ede and the chief Labor Whip, William Whiteley.

Attlee, Ede and Whiteley all were present in the House Monday. None replied—not even when the Conservative leader Winston Churchill, grinning happily, called out: "It is never too late to mend."

Argue On Agenda As Allied Bombers Make Biggest Raid

By SAM SUMMERLIN

MUNSAN, Korea, July 17. (AP)—An Allied spokesman said Communists raised a new point in Korean war cease-fire discussions today. But that came as no surprise to the United Nations delegation. The spokesman did not report the nature of the new point. Both he and an official communique said "some progress" was made in the fifth day of armistice conference at Kaesong. Delegates are still arguing about the agenda. The spokesman, Col. James A. Norell, said he had no idea how long delegates would be working on the agenda.

The negotiators spent an hour and 35 minutes on it Tuesday. They will resume at 10 a.m. Wednesday (8 p.m. Tuesday EDT).

There was considerable "back-and-forth discussion," Norell said, but no heated arguments.

Allied announcement about armistice meetings were brief but Communist reports were even shorter. The North Koreans' Pyongyang radio merely gave the time the meeting opened and the time it closed. Its reports have been terse since the talks resumed Sunday.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Communist delegate, opened Tuesday's sessions, a US Eighth Army announcement said. Most of the 55-minute morning session was devoted to a discussion between Nam and Vice-Admidal C. Turner Joy, chief United Nations delegate, of the Allied proposals for the agenda.

In the afternoon Nam elaborated on the Reds' idea of what the agenda should include. He apparently came with the English and Chinese translations of his remarks already prepared.

"The afternoon session of the conference was more formal," the army statement said. It added:

"The United Nations command delegation felt that some progress may be recorded in the conference sessions."

No Red Guards

For the third day there were no Red guards near the tiled building where meetings are held. The Allied party saw only two armed Communists in Kaesong.

Both were North Korean police. One stood in a traffic circle with a red flag in one hand, a white flag in the other. He presumably was directing the almost non-existent traffic. The other was leading an ox cart.

Negotiators appeared in good spirits when they came out of Tuesday's sessions.

As they met, UN bombers swept across the quiet war front, following up the heaviest night raids of the Korean war. The US Fifth Air Force flew 116 sorties Monday night in radar-controlled bombing attacks on Red air fields, troop concentrations and supply centres.

ARGUE ON AGENDA

Storms Strike Across Ontario Damage Heavy

TORONTO, July 17 (CP). — A series of summer thunderstorms moved across Southern Ontario Monday, giving weather-weary residents another afternoon of bailing out cellars.

Oshawa, Pickering and London and Ingersoll districts were hardest hit. In Oshawa, 4,000 employees at the General Motors plant were sent home from the night shift when water flooded part of the plant and the surrounding districts.

Ontario Liberal Leader Walter Thomson had his driveway washed away at nearby Pickering. Elsewhere in the village, five cottages were flooded and No. 2 Highway was partially cut off.

E. L. DeMane said he lost 200 hens when his chicken coop was washed away by flood water from two creeks that overflowed their banks in Pickering.

Heavy Damage

In Western Ontario, the storms gathered momentum and a combination of high winds and lightning caused heavy damage in several areas.

Middlesex and Oxford Counties wheat and oat fields were flattened with some farmers reporting heavy loss. Hail was reported in several districts.

A barn owned by George M. West of North Oxford burned to the ground when lightning struck it. Hydro service in Thamesford near London was interrupted for five hoursm. Streets in Ingersoll were turned into miniature rivers.

Future weather: Clear and cool. No rain for....ah...."a while at least."

Unhealthy Post 2nd Officer Killed

WEST SECTOR, Korea, July 17 (CP)—Maj. J. L. Y. Dube, 33, of Quebec City, acting second in command of the Royal 22nd Regiment, was accidentally killed Monday by a pistol shot.

He had taken over the post in the famous French-Canadian unit after the death of Maj. J. P. L. Gosselin of Verdun, Que., killed July 9 when an armored car blew up.

Maj. Dube was killed by a bullet from a revolver which another officer's batman had just cleaned and given ot a Korean houseboy to return to its holster.

Maj. Dube was standing talking to Capt. J. P. R. (Pat) Tremblay of Quebec City outside the revolver owner's carvan. The shot went through the wall, killing him instanly.

Born at Lac-au-Saumon, Que., [illegible] served during the Second orld War in the United Kingdom, Sicily, Italy and Northwest Europe and later joined the permanent force.

Too Embarrassing

LONDON, July 17. (Reuters)—Rivermen on 80 pleasure boats on the Thames went on strike today because the river pierheads are too high for girls to step into the boats without embarrassment. [illegible] harassing for us and embarrassing for the girls" a burly riverman said. The strikers said they were also striking because boats were not properly equipped.

Cabinet Reshuffle Follows Resignations

ROME, July 17 (AP). — President Luigi Einaudi began politicial talks today to try to broaden Italy's anti-Communist government. Premier Alcide De Gasperi who suit with his cabinet Monday night to make the manoeuvre possible, probably will be named to head a reshuffled regime.

The resignations were decided during a cabinet meeting Monday afternoon.

It was the first time in Italy's parliamentary history that a cabinet resigned without a vote of non-confidence by parliament.

Press comments forecast a long crisis even though De Gasperi is almost certain to be called to form the new government. His Christian Democrat party has a majority in the Chamber of Deputies and is much the largest group in the Senate.

Rumor Ottawa Has Car Subsidy Plan

DETROIT, July 17 — (CP) — The Detroit Times says today in an Ottawa dated story that the Canadian government is preparing to announce a subsidy for automobile manufacturers which will reduce down payments for new car purchasers.

The subsidy plan now under discussion by the cabinet, the story says, will indirectly reduce the present 25 per cent tax on new cars and is expected to break the log jam in new car sales which has clogged new and used car lots to capacity throughout Canada.

The present credit restriction requires a 50-per-cent down payment on car sales with the balance to be paid over a 12-month period.

At Ottawa, Finance Minister Abbott commented tersely, "That's news to me."

Bloody Prison Break Foiled 5 Convicts in Solitary

CANON CITY, Colo., July 17—(AP) — Five subdued convicts stirred restlessly in barren, solitary cells today while officials investigated their bloody attempt to free 10 dangerous criminals from the Colorado state prison.

Two guards were wounded, neither seriously, in the fighting that broke out Monday when the five convicts, brandishing knives and a revolver, tried to spring 10 prisoners from isolation cells. The 10 included incorrigibles placed in solitary for bad behavior.

Heavily-armed guards trapped the five convicts in a cellhouse and quelled them with a torrent of tear gas.

The prisoners held five guards as hostages for a short time during the 45-minute uprising. Warden oy Best said the escape plot was planned by Harold Hathaway, Pueblo (Colo.) robber with a long record of prison rebellion. He is among the 10 in the isolation cells.

Chet Yeo, a captain of the guards, was shot in the back after breaking loose from the convicts. Guard Amon Murley suffered arm and leg wounds from a ricocheting bullet later while the trapped convicts exchanged gunfire with guards.

The prison houses 1,259 convicts.

One of the rebellious convicts, John W. Davis, 31, serving 20 to 30 years for kidnapping and robbery at Denver, told a reporter he took part in the break because "I wanted to go home. ain't got any more comment."

Warden Best directed his investigation toward the source of the prisoners' weapons.

Decide Lord Holden Strangled On Lobster

LONDON, July 17 (AP)—The Coroner found today that Lord Holden, the 51-year-old deputy speaker of the House of Lords, was strangled to death by a piece of lobster.

Holden collapsed and died July 6 while eating lobster salad at the home of a friend.

A pathologist who performed a post mortem examination said the peer had a large lump of lobster flesh lodged in his larynx.

Defeat Motion to Kill Seaway Plan Legislation

By JAMES C. MUNN.

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP). —The House of Representatives Public Works Committee today defeated, 14 to 13, a motion that in effect would have killed legislation to authorize the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Its action was on a motion by Representative Tom Pickett (Dem.-Tex.), an opponent of the project to table the Bill.

Representative George A. Dondero (Rep. Mich.), ranking Republican on the committee and a supporter of the Bill, said todays closed-door session was "far more harmonious" than two preceding ones.

Dondero told reporters a final vote on the Bill "could develop" at another meeting of the committee Wednesday.

Some members of the committee were not inclined to view the defeat of the tabling motion as a positive sign the committee will approve the legislation.

"I'm sure," one representative told reporters, "that some opponents of the Bill voted against tabling."

"They apparently want to see the issue decided on its merits."

Dondero said that at the outset of today's session he appealed to the members "not to let their patience grow thin or indulge in personalities."

Belgium's King Takes Oath Before Crowds

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 17 —(AP)— Twenty-year-old Baudouin I was formally proclaimed King of the Belgians today. He succeeds his father Leopold III, who abdicated Monday after an ill-fated reign of 17 years.

Standing erect in front of his red and gold throne in the National House of Representatives, the young monarch took the oath to uphold the constitution and assumed the Royal powers.

Loud bursts of cheering and applause roared up from the assembly as the youthful king spoke.

Slowly and clearly, Baudouin said: "I swear to observe the constitution and the laws of the Belgian people; to maintain the national independence and integrity of the territory."

The new ruler took the oath in the khaki uniform of a lieutenant-general, highest rank in the Belgian army. He wore only one decoration—the crimson sash of the Order of Leopold .

Different Picture

Outside cannons boomed, church bells pealed and thousands of Belgians cheered in the bright sunlight. It was in marked contrast to Monday's brief, quiet ceremony at which Leopold signed his abdication papers before 250 persons in a royal palace ballroom.

Today, thousands packed the hall, built to house 220 persons.

The 48-year-old Leopold gave up his throne Monday still contending his surrender to the Germans in 1940 was only after the army had "fought valiantly to the extreme limit of its resistance." His enemies had accused him of being pro-German and also condemned his wartime marriage to the beautiful commoner, Mary-Liliane Baels.

Kennedy Considers Selling 2 P.C. Milk to Reduce Price

TORONTO, July 17. (CP)—Agriculture Minister Kennedy said Monday he is studying the possibility of marketing two-percent milk as a means of cutting milk prices in Ontario. Mr. Kennedy said the two-percent milk—whole milk now marketed must contain 3.4 per cent butterfat—has just as much nutritional value for children as whole milk.

"I don't see why we can't have 17- or 18-cent (a quart) milk for children," he said.

The Ontario Milk Control Board has set Toronto milk prices at 21 cents a quart delivered. Store prices are 20 cents, scheduled to fall to 19 cents in September.

Two Toronto doctors, interviewed last night, endorsed the idea. In the view of Dr. J. Harry Ebbs it would be an excellent move. Dr. Nelles Silverthorne said he did not think any child needed milk of a butterfat content higher than 2 per cent.

Two per cent milk, because of the reduced amount of butterfat, would be lower in calories than 5.4 per cent milk. But other fats in the diet adequately look after the calories.

Toy With Idea

Dairies, on their own, had been toying with the idea, said Ald. John McMechan, president of the Donlands Dairy. He pointed out that amendments to present regulations would be needed before 2 per cent milk could be sold, unless it were to be marketed under a trade name. In some US centres, such lower butterfat milk iss old under trade names.

Mr. McMechan's view was that the Kennedy idea was "all right." Two per cent milk, he thought, might sell for from 2½ cents to 3 cents below the whole milk price.

Long Time Yet Ere Mosquitoes Can Resist DDT

OTTAWA — (CP) — Canadian mosquitoes, unlike some of their relatives in the United States, have not become immune to DDT. They just haven't had the time.

According to Dr. C. R. Twinn of the household and medical entomology unit of the department of agriculture, it takes many generations for a mosquito or any other insect to build up resistance to an insecticide.

Canadian mosquitoes, he states, with only about one generation a year, aren't keeping pace with some of their southern cousins who have been able to take on a biological armor to the sprays. And too, the little stingers don't breed in concentrated areas so they don't get exposed to DDT in large numbers like the insects in Florida, for example.

Change Coming

But this is the catch. If Canadians continue to use DDT at the present rate, resistance of the pests to DDT is expected to widen. Already, says Dr. Twinn, houseflies are becoming slightly toughened to our insecticides.

Dr. Twinn says DDT is still the best mosquito control. But if that doesn't work, he suggests trying a spray with five per cent lindane, gunning it on the little pests or their hideouts at three-week intervals during the fly season.

If results still aren't too good, you could try a solution of two per cent chloradane, which must be kept away from food because of contamination.

Dr. Twinn also issues a warning not to mix all three insecticides together because mixing them will speed up the development of resistance in the pests.

Submitted List

The shooting will go on until negotiators agree on armistice terms. Actual cease-fire negotiations could get underway only after completion of the agenda. The first five days of meetings were devoted to drafting the agenda. Each side submitted a list of subjects to be discussed.

Tuesday's sessions began at 11 am local time (9 pm Monday, EDT) in the red-tiled building that has been converted from an exclusive restaurant of pre-war days to an armistice conference hall.

Delegates conferred for 55 minutes, then recessed for lunch until 2 pm. The afternoon session lasted until 2:40.

From all outward appearances, neogtiations went smoothly. But none of the 10 negotiators would discuss what had happened.

Keeps In Touch

Allied delegates flew back to their peace camp. As they stepued from their helicopters at 3:05 pm they were met by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, UN commander. Gen. Ridgway repeatedly has conferrd with Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy and other members of the UN team during neogtiations.

The UN motor convoy travelled to Kaesong Tuesday without incident.

No armed persons were seen within the half-mile radius of the conference building—an area in which no weapons are permitted since th Allies protested against being escorted by armed Reds.

Boy 11 Volunteers To Read For Blind

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., July 17 (AP).—The little boy, two books under his arm, stepped up to the army hospital entrance, and told the military policeman:

"I've come to read for blind patients."

The soldier took 11-year-old Eddie S. Dworchek straight to Col. John M. Welch, commanding officer.

Eddie told the Colonel that his friends in Paoli, 10 miles away, had laughed at his idea of volunteering as a reader. But he figured Eddie explained, that it would be worth hitchhiking to the hospital to offer his help.

The Colonel thought both Eddie and his idea were wonderful, particularly after he listened to the boy read from the two books he hugged under his arm: Biographies of Lou Gehrig and Joe DiMaggio.

So he signed him up, the youngest volunteer ever registered at the army hospital.

Millbrook WI Hears Talk On War Nursing

MILLBROOK, July 17—(ENS) —The Women's Institute held its July meeting at the home of Mrs. the president, Mrs. J. J. Lunn, in the chair. Theme of the program was "Health".

Mrs. Allie Fallis gave a paper on "Nurses trained to handle victims of the atom bomb". She told of the meeting from June 11-13 of 23 Canadian nurses who had studied in the United States the nursing aspects of atomic, bacteriological, and chemical warfare. These nurses met in Ottawa to study a proposed manual of instructions and to make plans for area courses. The plans call for a travelling team headed by a medical officer, to include a scientist, an engineer and an administrative secretary to give a four-day training course to 70 nurses in 5 areas across the country. The 350 nurses thus instructed will conduct short courses for nurses in towns and cities all across the country. In this way it is hoped the greatest number of nurses will be trained in the shortest possible time. Health Minister Martin said that even nurses with battle experience would benefit from such a course.

Reminders about precautions for the prevention of the spread of polio were also given by Mrs. Fallis.

Plans were made for the annual picnic to be held July 19 at the home of the president, Mrs. J. J. Lunn.

Mrs. E. C. Richards was the winner of a guessing contest, and was presented with a prize. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by the social committee.

Free Passage Offered NZ Newcomers

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, NZ—(CP)—Now that the post-war rush of immigrants is slackening New Zealand is paying more attention to assistance for married couples and families wishing to enter the dominion.

Since the war the government has concentrated on obtaining unmarried migrants owing to the acute housing shortage. Under state-assisted schemes it also has adopted a strictly selective policy under which priority has been given to workers for industries for which the labor shortage has been greatest.

So far free passages are granted only to families of workers in a few industries where the need is especially urgent, but these categories are likely to be extended. Most families are being brought out for work on hydro-electric construction projects, and to house these temporary transit housing is being built. Encouragement is also being given to importation of prefabricated houses, the customs duty on which has been temporarily abolished.

Want 10,000 A Year

The government aims at obtaining 10,000 immigrants a year under free passage schemes. One ship, the Atlantis, has been under charter to goverment for some time but as it is due for overhaul at a high cost a newer and larger ship, The Empire Brent, has been chartered instead. Negotiations are in progress for a second vessel.

The government hopes to get as large a proportion as possible of new settlers from Britain, but it will not be possible to get all the migrants needed from there.

About 2,000 Dutch settlers are being brought to New Zealand this year and the number may be increased in subsequent years. In addition the dominion is taking several large drafts of settlers from displaced persons camps in Europe. Among these it has agreed to accept a proportion of elderly people who have been rejected by other countries taking displaced persons.

(Reuters) — Long-term prisoner Victor Franz, 24, made a daring pre-dawn escape from Pentridge jail today by painstakingly chipping a hole in thick stone wall of his cell, climbing over an inner prison wall and then scaling an 18-foot outer wall. Hamilton Postmen Buy Bus Tickets

As in Peterborough, postal carriers in Hamilton have to drop a ticket in the box when they take a bus in there. Hamilton's street railway announced the change on Monday.

Formerly, the post office department at Ottawa paid the street railway a flat $11,000 yearly. This enabled posties to use buses four times daily on the job without tickets.

About two weeks ago, the government contract with the Peterborough Bus Lines expired and has not been renewed. Carriers are now using tickets supplied by the post office.

Veteran Fisherman Dunked Landing Fish

A 19-pound muskie and a 70-year-old fisherman struggled about three quarters of an hour Monday afternoon to see if the fish would yank the man into the lake or the man haul the fish into the boat.

Both won. The muskie was boated after a struggle, but Irvin Moore, Peterborough and Frankford, got a soaking.

Mr. Moore, a veteran fisherman, was fishing in Clear Lake near Young's Point with his son-in-law, Jack Smith, Downie St. He hooked the muskie, but the fish refused to come to heel. The battle gradually drifted toward the shore and the fish was angled into a narrow cut in the shore.

The two fishermen jumped out and killed the muskie. But when Mr. Moore tried to climb back into the boat he slipped and fell into eight feet of water. He had to swim a few feet to shore and climb into the boat from the shore again.

He didn't mind the ducking a bit. He had his muskie. It measured 44 inches in length. His son, Don Moore, at whose cottage on Clear Lake he is holidaying, mounted the head on a board as a trophy.

Trading Irregular On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, July 17 —(CP)— Trading continued irregular and dull as the session progressed on the stock market today.

For the second straight day prices developed little trend.

Industrials firmed with the odd issue moving fractionally ahead under selective buying. Papers, utilities, agricultures and banks showed a majority of gains in the groupings. Textiles, foods weakened and the rest of the board was mixed.

United Asbestos again featured the fractionally higher base metal group. It was the most active stock in the market as it climbed to a new high at $2.34 before settling for a 29-cent increase at $2.29. Quebec Manitou, Golden Manitou, International Nickel, Montauban, Waite Amulet, Labrador and Normetal all posted moderate advances. Consolidated Smelters, a recent big gainer, was down $2 and East Sullivan dipped 25 cents.

Western oils were up pennies. Golds attracted little interest as they continued their recent sluggish dealings. Gains and losses were about balanced in both the senior and secondary lists.

Otonabee Borrows $19,125 Keene to Get Street Lights

A delegation of Keene residents went to the Otonabee township council meeting last week to ask that speed limits in the village be strictly enforced.

It was suggested that speed signs be put up and an appeal made to motorists to slow down. Reeve Richard Stewart was authorized to ask the county engineer for signs for all the built-up areas.

The council passed a bylaw authorizing the township to borrow $19,125 for general township expenses for 1951.

Residents of Riverview Park sent a petition to the council asking that a house now located on the road allowance be moved. The council decided to contact the owner of the house to see if the house could be moved.

As a result of a delegation of Keene residents who asked for street lights in the village, the township council decided to install the lights under the Local Improvements Act.

The council will now contact the Hydro Power Commission to work out a contract under which the Commission would install lights in the village area and maintain them as well as supplying the power to light them. Mr. Aspinall, local manager of the Ontario Rural Hydro, intimated that the project would be completed by late fall of 1951.

The cadets are here to attend the navy's camp Latona on Bambier Island.

In ceremonial procession, the cadets led by Lieut. ernard Leclaire of Midland and Lieut. Edmund Colchester of Vancouver, bore the bottle to Victory Square and sprinkled the contents on a patch of brown grass with an eyedropper.

On Friday, two men camping in the area nearby, Frank Ireland of Hamilton and Taisto Krecko of Garson, discovered an overturned boat floating on the lake. It had been used by the two missing fishermen.

Suggests Racketeers In Nickel Business

DETROIT, July 17 (AP)—Marshall C. Thomas, Norwalk, Conn., materials broker Monday night told a Senate sub-committee looking into critical-materials shortages that he had heard of racketeer links with scarce nickel selling for seven or eight times the regular market price.

Two other witnesses said Thomas had openly mentioned racketeers as his source in offering a Detroit manufacturer 49,000 pounds of nickel annodes at $4.50 a pound.

Thomas volunteered that although there are price ceilings on nickel scrap, there are none on nickel annodes. He said he sometimes had to pay as much as $4.25 a pound for them and sells them for up to $5.50.

Call For Applications For New Police Chief

CRYSTAL BEACH, July 17 — (CP)— Village council in this Lake Erie summer resort Monday night called for applications for the position of police chief to fill the post of Gilbert Robinson, dismissed earlier this month.

During a meeting to discuss improvements in the police administration of the resort, councillors decided on a salary of $3,000 for their new chief—$100 more than paid previously.

They also decided to ask the attorney-general's department for establishment of a police commission to remove the matter from council's hands.

Public hearing of the case of Constable John Sandel, dismissed and later reinstated on the force, was adjourned pending retraction of statements he reportedly gave the press.

Indian Calendar Records 100 Yrs.

REGINA — (CP) — Halfway around the world, people have a different idea of calendars than we have in Canada.

They are made of brass and record periods of 28, 40 and 100 years.

Some of the hand-made calendars imported from India are now in Regina.

The largest—the 100-year calendar—is a circular piece of hammered brass about eight inches in diameter. The middle of the plate revolves according to the year.

Due to the repetition of years, approximately once every 25 years, the whole century can be found on one dial.

It shows every one of the 36,525 days from 1950 to 2050.

To show the right month, the dial is moved to the proper year and the days appear at the bottom.

And leap year hasn't been forgotten—the dial with the red enamel is used instead of the black one.

The 28- and 40-year calendars are smaler and have one and two rows of year figures while the century calendar has three and four rows.

Cobourg Rookie Nabs Stolen Car Suspects

COBOURG, July 17 —(ENS)— A member of the police force for only a few weeks, Constable Tom Shaw got himself a stolen car on Saturday night. Advised by Kingston police that a maroon Mercury had been stolen a few hours before in that city, Constable Shaw was just leaving the Cobourg police office when he observed a maroon car making a U-turn in front of the police station.

He followed in the police cruiser and checking that it was the license number of the car reported stolen to him just a short time before, he chased it up Division street, forced it to a stop. He arrested Robert Marsden of Alderville and Alex Myke of Kingston. A police escort from Kingston took them back to that city.

Toronto Cabbie Fined

COBOURG, July 17 —(ENS)— William L. Neilson, Toronto taxi driver, was fined $10 and costs for speeding, in magistrate's court. Neilson did not appear and the the case was proceeded with. Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine said that he clocked the accused at 65 mph. in Hope township.

"When the driver pulled up he made certain statements, said Constable Erskine.

"I can appreciate the circumstances," was the somewhat cryptic comment of Crown Attorney Harry Deyman.

Don't Like Price

ST. THOMAS, July 17—(CP)— Commercial cherry growers in this district said Monday that canners and processors should pay 18 cents a pound for sour cherries instead of 8 cents a pound, reported to have been offered. "In 1948 the price was 13 cents a pound, in 1949 it was 12 cents, in 1950 they bought hardly any, and now they expect to pay only eight cents, although are costs are up," said H. C. McCormick, commercial fruit grower of Dexter.

Blind People Beat Engineers On Job

TORONTO, July 17 — (CP) — Ten nearly-blind persons are doing a job that several engineering firms were unable to do. They are buffing a trade name off 1,500,000 cellulose tape holders.

The name-erasing became necesary when one firm took over manufacture of the tap from another. It seemed like a simple project at first but several engineering firms declared the job could not be done economically.

In April, Bob Cornell, Canadian National Institute for the Blind industrial placement officer, heard of the company's difficulty and, by June, had worked out a system for doing the work with a metal cut-off wheel much like an emery wheel. Now the institute group he organized expects to buff 200,000 holders a month.

Union Has Meeting After Ford Layoff

WINDSOR, July 17 (CP). —A meeting of the UAW-CIO Local 200 policy committee was called for Monday night following the layoff earlier in the day of several hundred men in plants two and four at the Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd.

Union officials said they will make a statement on the results of the meeting today.

Normal production resumed with the afternoon shift at 4 p.m. Reason for the shutdown, given by the company, was that production was "out of balance" and that some departments got behind.

The lack of balance in production stems from the union's policy to resist what it claims to be an attempt to speed up production while not enlarging the working force.

Bumbling Along In The Department of Finance

Mr. Abbott, the Minister of Finance, is under bombardment from the four corners of Canada. During his four and a half years at the head of his Department his budgetary surpluses have amounted to about a million dollars a day. That much extra money has been taken out of taxpayers' pockets—money beyond what the Government needed to run its business. Mr. Abbott's critics say this is due to errors in judgement. This, they say, is evidence of gross mismanagement and Mr. Abbott should resign.

• • •

We do not question the fact of the surpluses; we question who is responsible for this 'mismanagement' or the 'errors'. The Minister is not expected to be the leading financial wizard of the country. He has to look to his experts. Mr. Abbott's department is loaded with experts. Are they advising him properly? What the Canadian public may ask is this: Is the Minister running his Department; or are the experts, the senior civil servants in the Department of Finance, running him? If Mr. Abbott is at fault, the fault lies there—that as responsible, elected head of the Department he is not in sufficient control of policies and of his Department.

• • •

What kind of policies are they that result in grandiose surpluses? Surpluses in themselves are not necessarily bad; what is wrong is surpluses that have not been budgeted for. Now; either Mr. Abbott's advisers are guessing very badly and are not fulfilling their jobs as experts well enough; or they are deliberately but not openly planning on big surpluses, and keeping the plan secret from the taxpaying public and perhaps from Mr. Abbott. If the Department of Finance is indulging in "cyclical budgeting"—taking in more money than it needs in good times to build up surpluses for bad; using the Budget as an inflationary and deflationary tool—if the Department is doing this the public have a right to know. If it is deliberate policy, is it Mr. Abbott's? Is it the Government's?

• • •

If the surpluses just happen without Mr. Abbott expecting them or his chief advisers anticipating them, the Department is indeed bumbling and there should be a drastic shake-up in the Department. It may be said: 'Oh, well; the bumbling does not do any harm. Big unplanned surpluses are, after all, surpluses, not deficits.' The point is that any bumbling in this matter is bumbling with taxpayers' money. It is not good enough merely to play around with financial and taxation policies, whatever good results may come. Taxes and spending should be according to plans approved by Parliament, not haphazardly according to whimsical guesses, or secretively according to under-cover designs of experts.

A Regime Of Plunder

We do not wish to weary our readers by constantly harping on the fate of La Prensa, the great liberal paper of Buenos Aires, but we think that it is of importance that everyone should know what President Peron of Argentina has done to it, for it is a classic example of the way in which dictators attack their critics. La Prensa, which was a great newspaper, scorned Peron, and gave voice to its scorn. How did Peron silence La Prensa and make it subservient to his own will?

Nearly seven months ago he stopped distribution of the paper by means of a fraudulent protest from the news-vendors' union; unions in Argentina are tools of Peron. Six months ago he stopped employees from entering the newspaper building, by organizing a mob to demonstrate against them. Four months ago he ordered the arrest of the editor, Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, but Gainza Paz escaped to Uruguay. Three months ago he ordered the paper expropriated. Last week an Argentinian court fixed the expropriation price at $1,366,915—a trifle of its real value. From now on, broken and prostituted to Peron, the once-great paper will continue a dishonoured existence.

It is in a way, a compliment to the press that Peron should take so much trouble to crush a newspaper. But make no mistake about it, he has crushed La Prensa. Whatever you may like to think, the pen is not mightier than the sword, and Peron has the sword. He knew that he could not perfect his dictatorship while there was active criticism in Argentina, so he has gone to considerable lengths to acquire the instrument of criticism and make it obedient to his will. As the New York Times says: "It is a confession that his regime is a regime of lies, and the way in which he suppressed it is a confession that it is also a regime of plunder." It is important that the free world should know this, so that it will know what value to place upon statements coming from Argentina about the wonders of the Peron regime.

The Man In The Top Hat

On Friday last Mr. Fred Mallison died in Toronto. We know him only by sight, but we admired him for his persistent adherence to a style of dress which he believed was suitable for his business (the textile trade); he was never seen during the daytime dressed otherwise than in a Prince Albert coat, with the appropriate waistcoat and trousers, and a shining silk hat. This was the fashion which he had adopted as a young man, and he saw no good reason to change it.

Of course people stared at him. Of course little boys jeered at him. Of course street-corner alienists and coffee-shop psychiatrists wondered why a man who was unsually able in business was so apparently crazy as to wear an outfit of that kind. But Mr. Mallison did not care. He had genuine dignity, and he did not see that his clothes were of concern to anybody but himself.

He was an eccentric, perhaps. But it has often occurred to us that Canada would be better off if we had a few more eccentrics, and a few less unthinking conformers. People who come to settle in our country often remark on what a well-behaved, quiet, orderly and biddable people we are. These qualities are virtues, of course, but they can be carried too far. There is quiet orderliness, and there is drab conformity to custom; it is very easy to slip from the one into the other.

Therefore we were always glad when we caught a glimpse of Fred Mallison on the street. He was a living proof that a man does not have to be exactly like his neighbours. He was a sign that in order to be a success in business it is not necessary to conform in every detail to the pattern of the average business man. He was a walking assurance that a man can call his soul his own without first asking the permission of the neighbours. He was a man who knew his own mind, and such men are precious, and can ill be spared.

Guilt By Association

We join with the Kingston Whig-Standard in protesting against the attempts to establish guilt by association—in these cases by association with a particular style of dress—which have been reported in a few Canadian cities. A quotation from The Edmonton Journal will make clear what we mean:

"Police state more than thirty youths wearing the inflammatory draped pants have been picked up by police, questioned and searched, and that on no occasion has a single weapon of any description been found on any of them. On the other hand, servicemen appear to have taken the offensive, disrobing youths wearing these peculiar pants, and even setting fire to them. Incidentally, one case has been reported in which a group of too-enthusiastic soldiers even took a pair of bell-bottomed navy pants off one young fellow."

This appears to mean that Edmonton police associate crime with draped trousers, and have been arresting and searching young men who wear them on suspicion. It must be stated that riots and fights between soldiers stationed at Edmonton and wearers of draped pants have been common. But why arrest or detain a man because of the cut of his clothes?

Because some criminals wear zoot suits there is a tendency to associate zoot suits with crime. This is loose thinking, just as it would be loose thinking to associate evening dress with drunkenness because some people get drunk while wearing it. The zoot suit may be an irritating form of dress, but we have seen it on many thoroughly respectable young men. It will be a bad day for Canada if the custom of arresting or detaining people because of their style of dress becomes common.

Edmonton, like many other Canadian cities, is suffering from rapid growth. When a middle-sized city becomes a big city, many curious people appear there who were not there before. Some of them are innocent and even admirable—musicians, artists and the like; others are far from innocent and most undesirable—dope peddlers, racketeers and sharpies of one sort and another. One of the jobs of the police force in a growing city is to distinguish the sheep from the goats, and it cannot be decided on a basis of dress alone.

NOTE AND COMMENT

What we really need is a child labour law which will prevent children from working their parents to death.

Most people stand adversity better than prosperity because they get more practice with it.

Dorothy Dix tells girls about to marry that an even disposition is very important. And that doesn't mean bad all the time.

The Japanese Peace Treaty

By O. M. GREEN

THE draft peace treaty with Japan, released for publication in London today (Thursday) runs to at least 7,000 words, though its main provisions are few and simple. Certainly nobody in Japan six years ago can have dreamed that she would receive such favourable terms. Henceforth, the preamble states, the relations between Japan and her former enemies are to be those of "sovereign equals" co-operating in friendly association for their common welfare and "to maintain international peace and security". Japan on her side will apply for membership of the United Nations, pledging herself to conform to the U.N. Charter and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, and (a particularly interesting point) "in public and private trade and commerce to conform to internationally accepted fair practices". ❖ ❖ ❖

FOURTEEN signatories are named on the Allied side, among them Burma and Indonesia (though in fact both of them during the war accepted Japanese-created independent governments and can scarcely be said to have been at war with her) and the U.S.S.R. Since, among the former overseas possessions now renounced by Japan, both Southern Sakhalin and Kuriles, now in Russian possession, are included, political reasons alone can account for Moscow's abstention.

It is an open secret that London and Washington could not agree as to whether Peking or Formosa should sign for China. The upshot is Article 26, in which Japan declares her readiness to conclude a peace treaty similar to the present draft with any State "which is not a signatory to the present Treaty", within three years of the latter being signed but not beyond that time.

There is no indication of any differences among the signatories as to the main lines of the Treaty before the expected date of signing up in September, though Great Britain wishes the Article referring to Japan's fishery rights to be elaborated—whales and seals both need protection from Japanese poachers. But all the Treaty's provisions have been anticipated and violently attacked by Peking radio for weeks past, and the draft will undoubtedly raise a loud outcry in China, backed no doubt by Russia.

UNDER the heading of "Security" Japan pledges herself "to settle international disputes by peaceful means" and "to refrain from the threat or use of force". But Article 5 states plainly that "Japan as a sovereign nation possesses the inherent right of individual and collective self-defence" and may voluntarily enter into "collective security arrangements".

The meaning of this last sentence is shown in Article 6. All occupation forces are to be withdrawn from Japan within 90 days of the Treaty coming into force. But this is merely face-saving, since "nothing shall prevent the stationing or retention of foreign armed forces in Japanese territory" by agreements with "one or more of the Allied Powers". Furthermore, Japan agrees with the United States proposal to hold the Ryukyus, and other adjacent islands, under trusteeship for the U.N. "as the sole administering authority" just as she already holds the Marshalls, Carolines and Marianas which were formerly under Japanese mandate. This provision is the main target of China's denunciations of the Treaty. It will be interesting to see what effect it has on the Korea truce negotiations.

ON reparations, Article 14 of the Treaty is perfectly clear: Japan cannot pay them if she is to "maintain a viable economy and meet other obligations" and the Allies waive all claims to them. Instead, "the skill and industry of the Japanese people in manufacturing, salvaging and other services" may be made available to repair damages done by Japan during the war—in which case the Allied Power thus employing the Japanese will pay for the materials used "so as not to throw any foreign burden upon Japan".

The Allies are granted the right to seize and dispose of all Japanese property and rights within their jurisdiction. But from this are excepted property of Japanese nationals who were permitted to reside in an enemy country during the war, all diplomatic and consular buildings with the furniture and private property necessary to them and the property of religious and charitable organizations; with no deductions but "reasonable expenses" for preservation and administration.

❖ ❖ ❖

IN this Article, too, the Allied Powers promise protection for "Japanese trademarks and literary and artistic property rights". Later, in Article 15, Japan gives a similar undertaking as regards foreign "literary and artistic property rights", but trademarks are not mentioned. This clearly needs attention. In earlier days, Japanese imitations of famous British trademarks were one of the grossest scandals of the Far East, but redress was impossible since all such forgeries contained some tiny, unnoticeable flaw which enabled Japanese courts to find that they were not imitations.

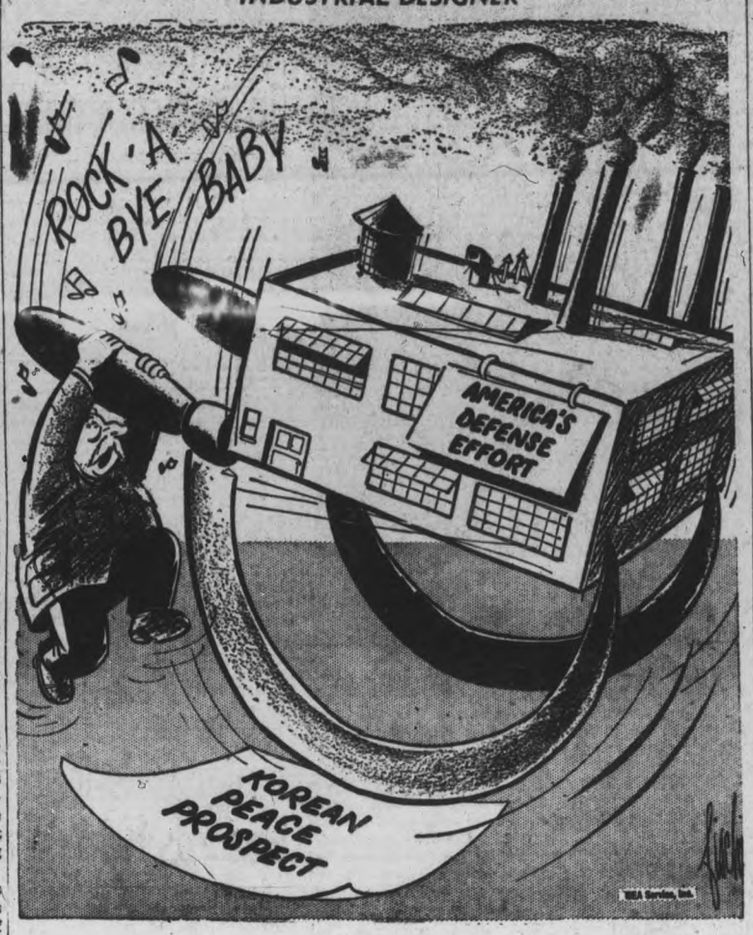
THE sufferings of Allied prisoners of war have not been forgotten. To indemnify them, Japan will make over her own and her nationals' assets in countries that were either neutral or at war with the Allies. These assets will be distributed by the Red Cross. But how far the money will go is problematical. America's P.O.W.s have already been compensated out of Japanese assets in the U.S.A. But British claims on a moderate basis are computed at about nine million pounds, and there will be many other claimants.

As expected, the important question of trading, maritime and other commercial relations is left for future agreements with each Power. Meanwhile, however, Japan binds herself for four years to accord "most favoured-nation" treatment to all the signatories in respect of customs charges, restrictions and other import and export regulations, and "national treatment" (treatment such as the Japanese receive) in "all matters pertaining to the levying and collection of taxes". Even under the occupation British merchants have had occasion to make a strong protest on the latter score. ❖ ❖ ❖

ONE highly important clause in Article 7 must be noted. Within one year of the Treaty coming into force, each Ally must notify Japan which of its pre-war treaties with her it wishes to renew; "all such treaties as to which Japan is not so notified shall be regarded as abrogated". That points the way out of a renewal of Japan's participation in the Congo Basin Treaty which did Lancashire's trade in Central Africa untold harm between the wars.



The clauses dealing with the return of foreign property in Japan, the reconsideration of decisions by Japanese courts during the war, and the obligation of pay debts incurred on contracts made before the war, appear satisfactory; and the Japanese Government expresses its intention "to enter on negotiations at an early date" for the resumption of payment on Japanese foreign loans. Which is pleasant news for the bond-holders with ten years' interest in arrears.

THE Treaty ends with a detailed declaration by Japan that she recognizes "in full force" all the presently effective "multilateral international instruments" to which she was a party before the war and all those that will devolve on her as a member of the United Nations. Among the latter may specially be noted the stringent restrictions framed at Lake Success on the manufacture and distribution of narcotic drugs. In this respect, before the war, Japan was a notorious sinner. It is a point which the British Government was particularly keen on stressing when the Treaty was being drafted.

Anglo-American Relations

By PROFESSOR DENNIS W. BROGAN
(In The Sunday Times, London)

"ANGLO-AMERICAN relations have never been worse." "Anglo-American relations have been astonishingly good when you think back five years." These are two judgements from two reasonably competent observers, and their contradiction illustrates the difficulty of assessing the character of the present crisis in the relations between the two chief supporters of Western civilization.

For there is, or there has been, a crisis. The term is not excessive for such open disagreements openly arrived at as have marked American and British policy over "Red" China, Formosa, and the conduct of the Korean war. And, of course, the differences are much greater between the extremes of anti-American feeling here and of anti-British feeling in America.

But, as the two judgements show, the crisis is not to be simply interpreted or simply resolved. Take the second one first. Five years ago American opinion was by no means unanimous (as it nearly is today) that the U.S.S.R. was an enemy and Great Britain a necessary friend. It was by no means unanimous that it was the necessary interest of the United States to organize resistance to open and secret Soviet aggression. It was by no means unanimous that it was the interest, much less the duty, of the United States to shore up the shattered economies of Western Europe. So the more optimistic view has ample justification.

So has the pessimistic view. For it seems beyond doubt that there has been a grave deterioration since the beginning of the Korean war. ❖ ❖ ❖

THE Americans are conscious of being at war, we are not; and the strain and drain of the war are coming home to ever wider circles. In that atmosphere, British coolness, British moderation, may take a very different appearance. Against the television success of Sir Gladwyn Jebb last year has to be set the television success of General MacArthur this year, a success in part at our expense.

In his testimony, General MacArthur openly snubbed us, and his friends are spreading the story that he is a victim of British cunning, cupidity and cowardice. "MacArthur was fired not for refusing to appease Russia but for not appeasing Britain." This sentiment is widespread, widespread by those who believe it to be true and by those who believe it to be useful, in helping to keep the MacArthur controversy alive longer and make it pay off better. For althought he has many millions of supporters and can still get a rousing reception at a baseball game, he, probably, and his more astute suporters certainly, know that this kind of popularity won't keep, that ticker-tape is a "garland briefer than a girl's." And General MacArthur has always had lots of critics in the Services and they are ceasing to be silent.

But that doesn't end our role or our troubles. For there are some aspects of British policy that perplex our friends, anger neutrals and delight our enemies. Nearly all Americans think that, from a military point of view, none of their Allies (except possibly the Turks) have done nearly enough to share the burden of the Korean war.

THEN, it is an American superstition, however unbelievably silly, that the English do no fighting, that our troops are nearly all Scotch, Welsh, Irish, Canadians, Australians. "The English (or the British, for in America only the English are British) get all the fighting done by other people, above all by Americans." It is nonsense, but there it is.

A more reasonable but equally important attitude is that, by trading with China, we have been making money out of American lives. Since we are always telling Americans how to run their government, it is humiliating to have to explain away the repeated breakdowns in staff work that left the Prime Minister and Mr. Shinwell so palpably ill-informed. The British diplomatic and information services in America have enough on their hands without this type of incompetence.

One result of our trading policy has been to make many Americans rejoice (if not too openly) in our troubles in Iran. "Your policy there is leading to a world war." The speaker who was turning the guns on us was an American with exceptional opportunities of judging and influencing public opinion. And there are other Americans who are quite willing to step into our place in Iran, and can retort: "That is tit for tat for Hong Kong."

One last attitude might be illustrated by a remark made by an Irish-American shopkeeper: "If we had gone in in 1914, there would have been no war in 1939. If we had gone in in 1939, there would be no danger of war now." The implication was obvious: "If we go in now, all out—and you do the same there may be no third war, just a local war cleaned-up."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now when he had ended all his sayings in the audience of the people, he entered into Capernaum. And a certain centurion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick, and ready to die. And when he heard of Jesus, he sent unto him the elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant....

Then Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself: for I am not worthy that thou shouldest enter under my roof: wherefore neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee: but say in a word, and my servant shall be healed. For I also am a man set under authority, having under me soldiers, and I say unto one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

When Jesus heard these things he marvelled at him, and turned him about, and said unto the people that followed him, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel. And they that were sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole that had been sick. (Luke 7: 1-3, 6-10.)

Letter To The Editor

VIVA CHARLOTTE STREET!

Sir: Congratulations to the Engineering Department of Roads in your fair city! Now it is a pleasure to go to town on a Charlotte St. bus, and return thereby—absolutely.

It is to be hoped that whatever the secret formula for re-surfacing is, may it stand up to the rigours of winter with its unpredictable freezes and thaws.

If Charlotte St. "can take it" in the coming winter then indeed is the triumph of the Engineering Department complete. All it will have to do is to re-surface the other bus routes of Peterborough to make this city second to none in desirability.

KATHLEEN I. JENKINS.

Booming BC Looking For Manpower

VANCOUVER, July 17 (CP) — Booming British Columbia, on the threshold of a vast expansion program, needs men to relieve its industrial growing pains.

Industry is eyeing the labor markets on both Eastern Canada and other lands for skilled and semi-skilled workers.

That was the report Monday of William McKinstry, regional superintendent of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Some of the most acute shortages are in the pulp and paper industry, he said. One large BC firm now has a representative in the United Kingdom trying to recruit 200 men. Other firms are seeking workers in prairie points.

The mining industry is manhunting, too.

Vancouver Island Mines, which recently resumed selling coal to Japan and other countries, have been hiring more men. In BC's interior the Bulkley valley Collieries at Telkwa are working to capacity.

Shortages of miners in the coal, base metal and gold fields have existed for several months, and clearance orders have been issued for 80 miners from the east.

Another Drain

The start of a $550,000,000 aluminum company of Canada project in the Tweedsmuir Park area has been another drain on manpower.

Mr. McKinstry said logging camps and mills—the backbone of BC's economy—are having difficulty keeping full crews, while the construction industry can use more men.

Those machine shops and foundries not restricted by steel shortages need workers and demand for machinists and lathe hands is far in excess of present supply.

Shipyard employment has been increasing gradually and another labor shortage is expected to develop there as the Navy expands its building program.

Mr. McKinstry said "preliminary discussions already been held with representatives of a major yard to explore the possibilities of immigration."

Princess Gets Money

LONDON, July 17—(Reuters)—The Commons Monday approved in principle a special bill ensuring that Princess Margaret will receive an annual allowance of $16,800 when she comes of age Aug. 21. The money should have gone to her automatically, but her name had inadverdently been omitted from the family list.

Ex-Premier Slain

AMMAN, Jordan, July 17 (AP) —Riad El Solh, 57, former premier of Lebanon, was assassinated here Monday in a middle-eastern political vendetta. El Solh had just paid a state visit to Jordan's King Abdullah. The official Jordanian radio station in Jerusalem said three members of the Syrian National Party had attacked El Solh as he drove to the Amman airport for the homeward flight to Beirut.

Temporary Shortage

OSHAWA, July 17 — (CP) — Several hundred General Motors employees were sent home from work Monday as a result of a temporary shortage of materials at the Oshawa plant. A company official said production is expected to resume Wednesday, at least on the truck assembly line. There might, however, be a slight delay in the making of automobiles, he said.

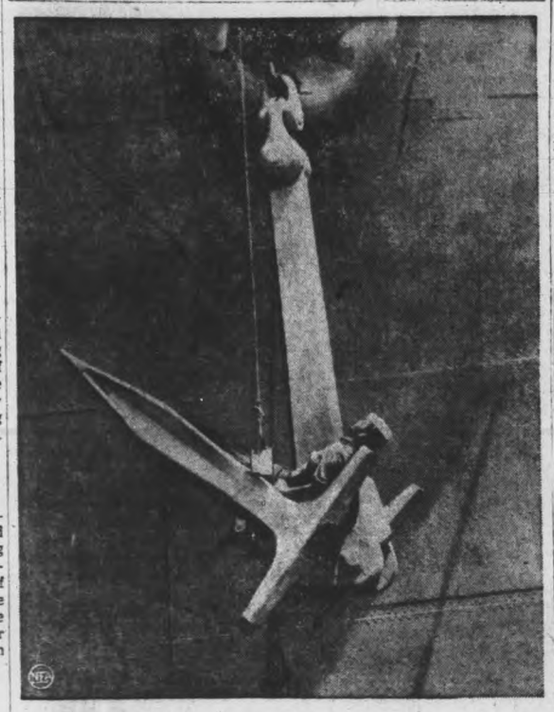
Expect Elizabeth to Visit All Provincial Capitals

OTTAWA, July 17 (CP).—The itinerary of the October tour of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip, still under official consideration, is one of the capital's most closely held secrets and won't be known for some weeks.

Officials drafting the itinerary say it still is skeleton form and that it will be some time before even the Canadian Cabinet has a look at it. It first has to be approved by the Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh and then the detail must be filled in.



Meantime, a spokesman said, speculative reports as to where the Royal couple might or might not go are just that—speculation.

In that speculative realm, it seems to be a fairly safe conclusion that they will visit each of the country's 10 provincial capitals, and possibly the United States.

It is known that they will land at Quebec early in October—probably about Oct. 1 or 2—and it can be assumed that they will spend possibly a day there before going on to Montreal and Ottawa.

President Truman has invited the Princess and the Duke to visit Washington. If they accept, they probably will cross the border after their visit to Western Canada and, upon returning to this country, continue their tour in the Maritime Provinces.

Having arrived at Quebec, it is considered likely that their departure point would be Canada's newest province—Newfoundland —after a visit to the provincial capital of St. John's.

Meal Allowance Up

OTTAWA, July 17 — (CP) — Travelling servicemen now will receive 75 cents more a day for meals, bringing their meal allowance to $6 a day, it was learned Monday. Before the war, a maximum of $3 daily was allowed. Officers and men on journeys now will be reimbursed for meals at these rates: breakfast, $1.65; luncheon, $2; an ddinner, $2.35. The rates formerly were $1.50; $1.75 and $2.

To Reopen Floor

TORONTO, July 17 — (CP) — A 15-bed floor at Toronto's Western Hospital will be reopened as soon as the nurses' holiday peak is over, Superintendent A. J. Swanson said Monday. Mr. Swanson said service was curtailed Monday when the holidays caused a shortage of trained nurses. He said the floor, in the private patients' pavilion, will probably be reopened by Aug. 1.

Warrants Issued

QUEBEC, July 17 (CP)—Provincial police said Monday warrants have been issued for the arrest of Raymond Moisan, 20-year-old Montreal boxer, and Leopold Leblanc, 20, of Verdun, Que. They are charged with attacking and robbing Quebec taxi driver Marc Andre Meloyne last week. The two men are believed to be in Ontario, police said.

Bear Grease Coming Back, Famous Cure-all

RAMORE, Ont. (CP). — It's bad news for bears, but one of the original, although almost forgotten, cure-alls and hair-restorers is coming back.

"Bear grease," says Kelly Chamandy, the big bear man of Northern Ontario, "is good for every ailment of man, but it's particularly good for human hair. Baldness is unknown among the Indians because they use it," he claims.

Kelly, a fur trader in this little bush community north of Kirkland Lake, is building a small industry based on the sale of "bear" grease to customers located from Mexico City to British Columbia. He will reduce about two dozen bears to grease this summer and will buy all the "essence de bear" that surrounding trappers can supply.

Supply Runs Out

This year he already has run out of merchandise and it is still too early for bear rendering. "There is no use trying to get grease from a bear during the spring. He is skinny as a rake when he comes out of hibernation. Now he is beginning to get nice and fat again," he said.

Bear grease reached the pinnacle of fame in great-grandpa's day. His hair and moustache would be all slicked up with it when he took grandma sparking in the buggy. Some years later their children could be seen marching off, well-greased, to Sunday School. But it sunk into obscurity as the bears got rendered right out of existence in the covolized parts of the country.

Now Kelly, himself sporting a new crop of hair, is putting it back on the market.

Would Restrain Sect

BRAMPTON, July 17 (CP). — Town Council Monday night decided to ask the Attorney-Generals Department whether the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect can be restrained in this area. Councillor Donald Ewles said the Witnesses have been knocking on doors and passing out pamphlets ever since they held a rally here on July 7.

Given Seven Years

RIMOUSKI, Que., July 17 (CP) —Mrs. Leonidas Dube Monday was sentenced to seven years after pleading guilty to a charge of manslaughter in the death of her 17-year-old daughter Irene. The charge against Mrs. Dube resulted from the shooting of her daughter in their Matane-sur-Mer, Que., home on April 5, 1949, during a 24-hour drunken party.

Police Capture Escaped Convict

MONTREAL, July 17—(CP)—Provincial police Monday night said Fernand Dumont, 23-year-old escape convict, was re-captured Saturday in Barrie, by an Ontario provincial policeman. He is being held for police here.

Police said Dumont, alias Fernand Dube and Henry Richard, is in Simcoe county jail. He will be brought here by Constables Gerald Duclos and P. E. Beaudry.

Dumont escaped June 10 from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, 20 miles north of Montreal, where he was serving 10 years for burglary and escape. This was his third jail break in a year.

Dumont flitted in and out Sorel jail almost at will. His escapades resulted in an investigation by the attorney-general's department and the retirement of the jail governor.

Kid Gavilan Wins Decision Over Pruden

MILWAUKEE, July 17 (AP)—Feather-footed Kid Gavilan, king of the world's welterweights, fenced his way to a unanimous 10-round decision last night over dead-game Fitzie Pruden of St. Catharines.

Gavilan's title, won from Johnny Bratton two months ago, was not at stake. It was the Cuban's first fight since he beat Bratton.

The aggressive, black-haired Canadian had the solid support of the crowd of 9,069 over most of the distance, but the ring-wise Gavilan put on a brilliant display of footwork and counter-punching to hold off Pruden's bid.

The fight drew a gate of -29,-835. There were no knockdowns but the fans got plenty of action for their money. Both fighters weighed 148¼.

Obviously Ahead

Gavilan was obviously ahead all the way as he used his left to good advantage on Pruden's head and body, Fitzie was cut about the right eye in the eighth and it closed rapidly in the later rounds but he was allowed to continue.

The Cuban used his famed Bolo punch sparingly but quite often wound it up then shot out a left. He gave the fans an exhibition of fancy footwork.

Neither boy was ever in trouble. The pattern was Gavilan scoring in the infighting; Pruden keeping after him in the face of flicking long lefts and then the champ usually stoping Pruden's advance with rapid fire lefts and rights. The crowd rode Gavilan when he elected to back away from Pruden.

Kesselring Has 2-Stroke Lead In Golf Trials

TORONTO, July 17 (CP). — Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener took an additional two-stroke lead over Nick Weslock of Windsor Monday at the end of the second round of the Ontario Willingdon Cup golf trials at Scarboro Golf Club.

Kesselring put together a 69-75 card for the 36 holes to score a 144 over the par 71 course. This, added to his previous 54-hole total in qualifying play, gave him a 356 for 90 holes, 12 ahead of Weslock and 20 ahead of Don Varey of Brantford.

Varey and Bernie Johnson of Chedoke faced off a stiff battle to nail down the remaining two places on the Ontario golf team participating in the interprovincial match in Ottawa next month. With 18 holes to be played at London Hunt course next Wednesday, they were in a virtual tie for third place with Bob Fair of Scarboro, Phil Farley of Scarboro and Gordon Ball of Kitchener and Bill Gidens of Scarboro. All have scores in the high 370's.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Coach Frank Clair's Canadian champion Toronto Argonauts buckled down to their first football practice of the year Monday with a total of 51 huskies battling for berths on the Big Four team.

Most of the holdovers from last year reported in near-championship condition. Halfback Joe Krol, who came in weighing 235 pounds last year, appeared at 218 this year, less than 10 pounds above his playing weight.

Coach Clair said the Big Four Argos will take 40 players West in mid-August for their games with Calgary and Winnipeg. He said he will take his time choosing a squad.

Meanwhile, in Hamilton the Tiger Cats staged their first practice in preparation for the 1951 Interprovincial Rugby Football Union season.

Plans for a four or five team Ontario Rugby Football Union junior series were drafted Sunday at London, it was announced Monday. Sure starters are Windsor, Sarnia, Woodstock, and Kitchener, while Stratford will make a decision about entry this week.

If five teams are entered, play will start Labor Day week-end. The opener will be one week later if only four teams enter.

A New York team earned 901 points to take top honors in the nine-day Delhi bicycle derby which ended here Monday. Chicago was in second place, one lap behind with 362 points. Delhi ranked third, six laps behind with 501 points, Toronto followed 10 laps in the rear with 407 points, and Buffalo shuffled in last 17 laps behind with 194 points.

Seven of nine American imports in the Ottawa Rough Rider camp were on hand Monday night when coach Clem Crowe put the 1951 edition of the Ottawa football team through its first training session.

With less than three weeks to prepare for Riders first exhibition game against Toronto Balmy Beach, Crowe wasted no time getting down to business. He had the 41-man squad out with full equipment. The 300 railbirds appeared to be impressed with both the new coach and the fresh crop of US newcomers.

Henri Rochon and Brendan Macken of Montreal and Lorne Main of Vancouver, leading candidates for Canada's 1951 Davis Cup team, arrived at Quebec on Monday after a two-month tennis tour of England and France.

The Canadian team played in a number of tournaments in England including the Wimbledon championships, and in exhibition matches in France.

Bill Veeck hopes to announce a new manager for St. Louis Browns within "a few days."

The new owner said Monday he has narrowed the field down to a few men—adding there was one man in particular he would like to have.

He wouldn't say whether that man was a manager now.

Commenting on a report from New York that Eddie Stanky was being considered, he said he had never approached the New York Giants for permission to talk with Stanky.

Two Divisions In Hockey Loop

CALGARY, July 17 (CP). — President Al Leader of Seattle Monday night announced that the newly-organized Western Canada Pacific Coast Professional Hockey League will operate with two divisions, each playing a schedule of different lengths.

The Pacific coast circuit was enlarged Sunday at Edmonton when Calgary Stampeders, Edmonton Flyers and Saskatoon Quakers, formerly of the Western Canada Major Hockey League, were admitted as members. Other teams in the league are Vancouver Canucks, New Westminster Royals, Victoria Cougars, Seattle Ironmen and Tacoma Rockets.

The five-team western division on the coast will play a schedule of 35 home games each while the three prairie clubs will play 30 home games each.

Each team in the prairie division will make two swings around the coast circuit and each of the five coast teams will make two trips to the prairies, playing each prairie team once on each trip.

All teams have agreed to this plan.

Out At The Kawartha

The Business Girls' invitation to the male members' competition —postponed from last week—is listed for this Thursday. It is expected that the first of the two-ball foursomes will tee off shortly after five p.m. As the turnout is greater than last year's successful "do", the men are asked to ascertain in advance from the schedule in their locker room whether they start on No. 1 or No. 10 and to hustle there as quickly as their golfing legs will take them. Well over 100 have entered but six more men are needed to balance things up. Otherwise, the last group out may have to be a two-ball eightsome.

The following member qualified to play for the club championship: E. Hanbidge, T. McGillivray, F. Dunfield, H. Woodcox, J. Condon, D. Moulton, J. Menzies, D. Vitarelli, J. Raine, R. Ouimet, J. Gatfield, H. McLean, W. Crowley, H. Correll, S. Csumrik and M. Akers.

In the first round, E. Hanbidge won over T. McGillivray; F. Dunfield over H. Woodcox; W. Moulton over J. Condon; J. Gatfield over H. McLean; W. Crowley over H. Correll; and M. Akers over S. Csumrik.

The sixth annual Kawartha Lakes 54-hole amateur golf tournament will be played on the Kawartha Aug. 4-5-6. Prizes total $1,500 and from all indications the amazing record of entries of last year will be broken this year. One of the highlights will be the dance held in the clubhouse on Aug. 4.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Weather permitting we will play the first two games of the Selkirk Trophy this evening. First game is at 7:30 o'clock. The date of the third game will be announced over the PA system by the committee, before the evening is over.

This coming Wednesday half-holiday our bowlers will attend tournaments all over the district—some will go to Port Hope, some to Port Perry and some to Toronto.

Strange as it may seem, with all this wet weather, there has not been one postponed schedule game so far this season.

Do you know that in this district No. 14, there are 46 tournaments scheduled, and that does not include the ladies' section. The first tournament was scheduled for June 13 at Lindsay and the last one is at Whitby Oct. 6.

We haven't heard when the committee intends to play the novice singles for the P. J. Giffen Trophy.

Senior Petes of diamond lustre head for Toronto's Millen Stadium this e'en to play Staffords in a Viaduct Loop game. Oshawa Merchants are h..e Thursday, and Staffs come to town Saturday Gunner Ed Whitehill's crew have won 16 out of 18 games so far this season, a most impressive record. They're atop the pile by two and a half or three games. We've written the Toronto scorer for the latest standing and may have it tomorrow, but we know the Petes are in front by a fair margin, Oshawa is next, then Kingsways, Staffords and Croftons. Schedule has approximately a month to go yet ere playoffs start.

A bulletin informs us that the lodging office of the 15th Olympiad is working frantically to provide accommodation for the Summer Games next summer in Helsinki, Finland. Hotels there can only handle 4,000, enough for guests of honor and newspapermen. Another 20,000 have been booked in private homes, community lodgings for 50,000 visitors have been registered and camping sites for 40,000 more people have been reserved. Just before the last war, the Olympics were booked for Finland but the Russians suddenly moved in on 'em in warlike manner. The Soviets are securely in the Finnish saddle now and, apparently, have okayed the Olympic Games there.

Played In States, Also

Lacrosse is plenty popular here and in a number of other centres in Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia. Also, as Scribe Clayt Browne of St. Kitts points out, it has its following in parts of the States. Only there, they play a 10-man field game with big colleges usually sponsoring clubs. Such halls of learning as Princeton, Yale, Army, Duke, Virginia, Rutgers, Harvard, Penn State, Georgetown, Ohio and quite a few more. In fact, 56 universities in all. The north-south playoff drew 8,000 at Troy, N.Y., a pre-game sellout at two bucks a ducat—and that's better than any one playoff game for the Mann Cup.

Their rules are somewhat different than those used in Canada. Five minor penalties in a game to a player puts him out, whereas here only two misconducts in a melee suspends him. Every player must wear a small wire face mask, and that has been advocated in this country. Most OLA officials and lacrosse fans in Ontario feel that Canadians are better at passing and stickhandling, while on the other hand it is claimed the USA lacrossers would outrun the Canucks. You see they have 100-yard field and a player must be able to do the 100 in 11 seconds or better. Else he doesn't make the team. That's fast stepping. Remember these players are husky young college athletes. Wonder if we could get a team over for an exhibition boxla tilt.

Concerning The OLA-ers

Let's see the lacrosse setup here, senior and junior, for this week. Rain washed out the OLA junior joust last eve and efforts were being made to have it staged here Saturday. The boys are off to Toronto on Thursday. Next senior scrap at Miller Bowl is tomorrow night at 8.45, Fergus Thistles tackling the leading Petes. Brampton comes here Friday, and the Crowe crew trek to St. Catharines the next day. There was talk, too, of them working in a postponed game Sunday in Toronto, but that would make it a right stiff grind, since they're at Hamilton on Monday. Five games in six days, three of 'em on the road. Petes have 24 points to date, St. Kitts 22, Hamilton 20, Mimico 16, Brampton 14, Toronto 12 and Fergus 10.

Over Ashburnham Bowlward, there's a twin bill for the men softballers tonight, commencing at seven. Revoy's play Orphans, while UEW meets Lakefield under the lights in the nightcap. These are the last games of the '51 schedule. Top three teams tangle in loop playoffs two weeks hence, the layoff being for the factory holidays the last week of July and first one in August. Girls' games last night were cancelled, due to wet weather, but tomorrow it's Ashby's vs. Westclox, and Cobourg vs. Marines. On Friday, Marines are listed for Cobourg, and that's all the schedule we have. No info yet on the lasses playoffs.

Omemee Edged

OMEMEE, July 17 (ENS). — Greenhurst Pavilion came from behind twice to edge Omemee Combines 10-9 in a closely fought tilt in Lindsay last night. Their win leaves the Pavs unbeaten in the Lindsay Softball League.

The O's took a liking to Mucker O'Connell's left-handed pitching and gathered five runs in the first three innings. Haddy Eakins relieved him in the third and allowed only five hits, striking out four and walking two. Tom Parsons went all the way for Combines and in the first four innings held the Pavs to two hits and two runs. In the remaining four frames they notched him for 10 hits. He whiffed seven and issued three passes. A two-run homer by Richards tied the score in the seventh. The Pavs scored another run when Hickson let Plumpton home on a passed ball.

Tom Pogue put Omemee back in the game when he reached second on an error and then stole home to tie the game for the second time. O. Crawford stretched a triple to a circuit to give the Combines the lead again. In the last of the eighth McDougall clouted a two-run homer to end the scoring. The game was called for darkness at the end of the eighth inning. O. Crawford led the O's at bat with four for five and Bill Weir had three safeties in five.

M. C. Rose Does Fastest Mile

TORONTO, July 17 (CP).—M. C. Rose, a trotter competing with a field of better-than-average pacers, provided the harness racing fraternity with some excitement Monday when he trotted the fastest mile of his life to win the seventh dash at Thorncliffe Raceway.

Garnet Rowntree's fine trotter from Weston, Ont., came out of the third hole on the final turn to pay $7 for a $2 ticket. He was clocked in 2.12.

Another horse set a new lifetime mark. Ginnie Lee, owned by G. W. Sherman, of Rodney, Ont., took the third race in easy fashion pacing the distance in 2.09 4-5, clipping more than a second from her previous record.

The feature race of the afternoon was a pacing stake in two divisions, both of which were won by the capable Tom C. Harvester, owned by Clarence Crowe, of Orr Lake, Ont., and driven by Keith Waples.

Royals Dump Bisons 14-4, Leafs Victorious

By The Associated Press.

Montreal Royals are running away with the International League pennant, but it is doubtful if they will equal the record of the 1937 Newark Bears.

The Bears of that year, hailed as the greatest minor-league team ever assembled, won the flag by 25½ games. They won 109 games and lost 43 for a .717 mark.

The Royals today lead by 11 games. In order to match Newark's victory total of 1937 they must win 51 of their remaining 77 games.

Tom Lasorda turned in his 10th victory compared to three defeats as he pitched the Royals to a 14-4 victory over the runner-up Buffalo Bisons Monday night.

The Royals pounded four Buffalo pitchers for 18 hits and wrapped up the game with five runs in the eighth inning. Al Gionfriddo led the attack, driving in four runs on four hits including a home run.

Cuts Edge

The loss cut the Bisons' edge over the third-place Syracuse Chiefs to one percentage point. The Chiefs in turn lead the fourth-place Rochester Red Wings by one percentage point. A game between the Chiefs and Wings was rained out after a scoreless inning of play.

Torontos fifth-place Maple Leafs drew to within one game of the .500 mark as they defeated Ottawa Giants 7-4. Charlie Grant drove in four Toronto runs. Erv Medlinger gained credit for the victory. Bill Gardner and Harvey Gentry homered for Ottawa.

Springfield Cubs edged Baltimore Orioles 2-1 in 13 innings. The Cubs scored the winning run on a two-base error, a walk and fielder's choice. Rookie Vern Fear checked the Orioles on six hits. He fanned 10 and walked two in gainng his second victory in six decisions.

Browns Rally, Edge Boston, White Sox Clip Philadelphia

By JOE REICHLER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The outcome of the Boston-Cleveland and Chicago - New York series during the next three days may tell the story whether the American League race will remain a four-team scramble down to the wire.

Already it has narrowed to a point where only 2½ games separate the first-place Red Sox and the fourth-place Indians. Boston invades Cleveland and the Yankees clash in Chicago in series openers tonight.

Boston blew one game of their league leadership Monday when the last-place Browns overcame a 5-2 lead with a seven-run outburst in the fifth to win 9-5.

The second-place White Sox snapped three-game losing streak by taking the A's 9-5. The Yankees outlasted the Tigers 8-6 to keep third place, 1½ games back of the Red Sox. Holding up the rear first-division spot was Cleveland, easy 8-2 winners over Washington Senators.

Different Story

It's a different story in the National League. The front-running Dodgers snapped their four-game losing streak with a decisive 11-2 win over Cincinnati to retain their eight-game margin.

New York's Giants slipped past St. Louis into second place by edging Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6 in the rubber of their three-game set. A five-run eighth-inning sparked by Tommy Brown's bases-loaded triple kayoed Gerry Staley and gave Philadelphia Phils a 5-2 victory over the Cardinals in a night game. Boston's Braves spotted Chicago four runs in the first inning and came on to win 9-4.

Ted Williams slammed his 18th homer for the Red Sox but it went to waste as the Browns teed off on Ellis Kinder and Bill Wight for seven runs.

Manager Paul Richards shook up his Chicago line-up and the White Sox responded by shellacking a pair of Philadelphia hurlers for 15 hits including homers by Orestes Minoso and Don Lenhardt. Minoso was shifted from the outfield to third base as Bob Dillinger was given a rest. Lenhardt also doubled and singled to account for four RBIS.

Offset Pitching

A two-run homer by Yogi Berra and another four-bagger by Joe Collins offset spotty pitching by Artie Shallock and Frank Shea and gave the Yankees their second straight win over the Tigers.

Luke Easter hammered his 13th and 14th homers and drove in five runs to ead the Indians to victory.

Carl Erskine hurled seven perfect innings and yielded but two hits as the Dodgers snapped Cincinnati's seven-game winning streak. A single by Ted Kluszewski in the eighth ended Erskine's dream of a perfect game as well as a no-hitter. Before the inning was over Erskine lost his shutout as well when Red Stallcup homered with one on.

Wes Westrum's homer in the eighth, his second of the day, snapped a 6-6 tie and won for the Giants over the Pirates.

Three home runs helped the Boston Braves defeat the Chicago Cubs. Sam Jethroe, Earl Torgeson and Sid Gordon were the Braves' power boys.

Walcott Meets Charles Trying For Title

PITTSBURGH, July 17 (AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott, the 37-year-old heavyweight challenger who claims he was robbed in two of his previous attempts to wrest the title from Ezzard Charles and Joe Louis, gets his fifth and probably last chance Wednesday night.

A confident Walcott meets Charles for the third time at Forbes Field (at 10 p.m. EDT). He says he should have won the decision in one of his previous meetings with the champion—and he's equally certain he was a victim in his first fight with Louis.

Stepin Fetchit Returns To Hollywood

By JACK QUIGG

HOLLYWODO, July 17 (AP)—On the screen he was a tall, loose-jointed, shuffling fellow with a sleepy drawl whose sole goal was to stretch out under the nearest tree and snooze. He was billed as the laziest man in the world.

Off the screen he was always on the go, usually in one of his 12 high-powered cars. He had three homes and there was usually a party at one of them.

These were lavish affairs—he employed 21 servants and greeted his guests in suits that cost up to $1,000. When he travelled he thought nothing of tipping a porter $100.

In 1937 he left Hollywood abruptly. The town has heard little of him since. A news item in 1944 said he had gone bankrupt in Chicago to the tune of $4,000,000. The town wondered how any man could pile up that many liabilities, then forgot him again.

Now Stepin Fetchit is back. The most successful Negro movie player of his day says he has changed: this time there will be no mistakes, no more rose-colored limousines with footmen in livery.

"In 1937 I was earning $2,200 a week, 52 weeks a year. I was a big success. Why, one producer even wanted to make me the star of a picture. Then the studios started bringing in bootblacks and trying to make Stepin Fetchits out of them.

"They used anyone who resembled me. Then my studio wanted to cut my salary. I didn't like it so I quit."

On The Road

Step started touring with a song and dance act he had perfected before he came to Hollywood. Slowly his income fell.

But his credit was still good. He kept buying whatever caught his fancy. The inevitable result was bankruptcy.

Step—whose real name is an impressive Lincoln Theodore Monroe Andrew Perry—has landed a job already. A studio wrote a part into a Western script for him and he says it's a good one.

FIREMEN IN WATER to their hips fight a blaze that destroyed a flooded fuel tank depot and lumber yard. Overturned tanks contained part of 500,000 gallons of gasoline, diesel oil and naptha that exploded and burned. Flaming oil spreads over the water in the background to light up charred supports marking the site of the lumber yard.

FLAMES FROM BURNING GASOLINE released after an explosion of storage tanks burns on the surface of flood waters from the swollen Kansas river, reaching into the heart of the twin centres of Kansas City, Kan., and Kansas City, Mo. There was no reason given for the explosion that accompanied the worst floods in the area since 1903.

Daley Approves Board Decision

TORONTO, July 17 — (CP) — Labor Minister Daley said Monday night that he agrees in principle that decisions of the Ontario Labor Relations Board should be final.

But, he said in an interview, it might be desirable for the courts to "look at" a board decision if there might be a miscarriage of justice.

He said he felt the Labor Board acted fairly and properly in certifying the Toronto Newspaper Guild as bargaining agent for circulation employees of the Globe and Mail on the evidence before it.

The certification was later quashed by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court, who said the newspaper had not received "natural justice" at the board hearing because it had been refused permission to examine Guild membership lists. Mr. Justice Gale's ruling will be appealed.

Heavy Investments

MONTREAL, Juy 17 — (CP) — Britain is contempating heavy investments in the Alberta oilfields to offset any loss in the Iranian fields, Clifford B. Powell, of Montreal, said Monday. Mr. Powell returned Monday from Europe where he attended final meetings of the United Kingdom Exports Board.

BIG RESOURCES

India's coal resources are estimated to be sufficient for 2,000 years at the present rate of production.

Electric Power Major Factor In Expansion

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Canada, industrially, is a child of the electrical age, fed by water-power.

Or, as the current Monthly Review of the Bank of Nova Scotia comments:

"It would be difficult to name a country to which the rise of hydro-electric power has been of greater economic significance than it has to Canada. . . .

"In the production of electricity from water power, Canada is surpassed only by the United States, and, if steam-generated power is included, possibly also by Russia and Germany. . . .

"Installed capacity at the end of 1950 was 22 per cent greater than at the end of the Second World War and 55 per cent greater than in 1937, and a further addition of some eight per cent is being made this year. At the end of 1951, capacity will total over 13,500,000 horsepower, and other large projects already under way should bring the total to about 16,000,000 in the next few years." Yet:

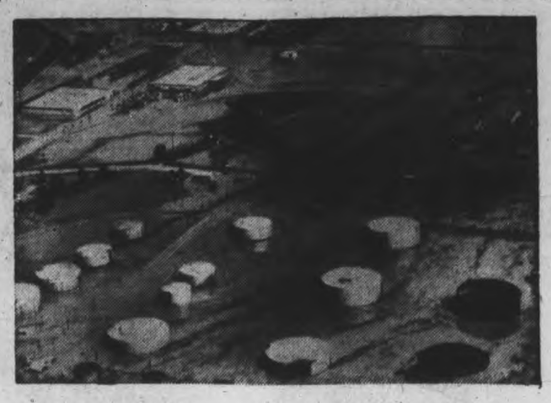
Only Fraction Developed

"Only a fraction—perhaps 25 per cent—of Canada's vast hydro-eleectric potential has so far been developed: it is officially estimated that water-power resources known and evaluated at present would support an installed capacity of 55,000,000 horsepower.

"Many of the large undeveloped sites are, of course, in remote areas from which power cannot be economically transmitted to the places where it is most needed. Thus, some sections, notably southern Ontario, can see the day approaching when, with no new large sites to develop, they must turn to fuel-produced power.

"The large reserves in northern areas seem likely, however, as in the past, to fecilitate the development of mineral discoveries. Moreover, high-voltage transmission may in time make many of these northern power resources more accessible. . . .

"The magnitude of the steam plants under construction makes clear why Ontario is urging an immediate start on the St. Lawrence seaway, with or without United States participation in the navigational part of the project. . .



"All over the country, new hydro-electric facilities are being built in the effort to meet a steadily-rising demand — a demand fed by the needs of new pulp and paper, mining and metallurgical developments; by the great activity in the heavy industries; by the rapidly increasing use of electricity in manufacturing generally; and by a mounting commercial and domestic use of power associated with higher living standards of an expanding population."

THE FLOODING KANSAS river took out one end of a railroad bridge at Manhattan as an unprecedented volume of water poured downstream after days of torrential rains. Note the four-room house, swept away by water, caught among the trees at lower right.

THESE HOGS sought refuge from the flooding Kansas river by climbing on floating debris after water invaded their hut. Many animals from the stockyards district of Kansas City were trapped by the flood which swept into the area at a rapid pace.

THIS AIRVIEW of part of Kansas City's wealthy Fairfax Industrial District shows water surrounding huge petroleum tanks and manufacturing plants and offices. At the upper right corner is the flooded Fairfax airport. Damage in this scene will run to millions of dollars.

Tin Can Game CausesDrowning

MERLIN, Ont., July 17—(CP)—A game with a floating tin can brought death by drowning to a Merlin district boy Monday night in the waters of Lake Erie south of here.

John Schaap, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schaap, disappeared beneath the surface of the water shortly after he told his 12-year-old brother, Martin, he was going after a can he had thrown into the water.

When he failed to reappear dragging operations were started and the body located an hour and a half later.

Got More Rubber

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—The Commerce Department said Monday Communist China apparently got 67,750 tons of natural rubber and Russia 18,000 tons in the first five months of 1951 compared with only 26,250 tons for the two of them together in the same period of 1950.

Face Drug Charges

WINDSOR, July 17 — (CP)—Four men, who face a lengthy list of narcotics and conspiracy charges, were remanded Monday to July 20. They are Leonard Grimaldi, Phillip and William Chiamp and Patrick Charles Riley, all of Windsor.

Four People Injured In Two-Car Collision

SARNIA, July 17 — (CP) — Four persons were injured, three severely in a two-car collision Monday on the highway near here.

In hospital in serious condition are: Ernest Metcalfe, 47, fractured skull, his son, Melvin, 6, unconscious, with undetermined injuries, Mrs. eVra E. Ager, 42, of Muscantine, Iowa, undetermined injuries. In less serious condition is Danial Ager, 47, of Muscantine, fractured ribs and arm abrasions.

Douglas C. Ager, 17, driver of the Iowa vehicle, escaped injury as did his 13-year-old brother, Donald.

Police said the Metcalfe car was proceeding north on Murphy road when it collided with the Ager vehicle going east on No. 7 highway.

Youth Gives Himself Up

MONTREAL, July 17—(CP)—Norman (Red) Roy, 18, wanted by police as a material witness in the slaying of a restaurant counterman, gave himself up to Montreal police Monday night, ending a week-long nation-wide manhunt.

Roy, alias Norman McVeigh, walked into police headquarters accompanied by his parents and a lawyer.

Police have sought him since July 8 when the body of Robert Fowler, 33, was found in a mid-town rooming house. An autopsy showed Fowler died of a broken neck, probably the result of a beating.

Police received a telephone call Monday night from the office of Alexandre Chevalier, the youth's lawyer.

The informant said Mr. Chevalier was on his way to Montreal from Cornwall, accompanied by Roy and Roy's parents.

Straiend Back Fails To Curb Activities

LONDON, July 17 — (CP) — It takes more than a strained back to put Dr. John Dearness out of action for long.

The 99-year-old teacher and botanist is back into the swing of his summer activities after a few days in hospital for treatment of a strain suffered at his home here.

Dr. Dearness hurt himself as he bent to pick up a heavy plant he had stored in his basement during the winter.

But he's home again and working with his plants again—although he admits having to be "a little extra careful" until that back's fully back to normal.

Don't Want Horse Meat

VANCOUVER, July 17—(CP)—Husky British Columbia loggers, who have appetites like horses, don't want horse meat on their cookhouse tables. Local 1-71 of the International Woodworkers of America (CCL) passed a resolution Sunday opposing use of horse meat for human consuption. They hinted that any camp cook who puts it on the table will be run out of the bush.

OIL MAKES A COUNTRY STRONG

"OIL NEEDS A LOT OF THINGS, JIMMY!"

"Tankers, Jimmy, are just one of the things the oil business needs. It needs supplies for pipe lines and new refineries. It needs tank cars and trucks and storage tanks. It needs workers and material from all parts of Canada."

Bringing you oil is a big job. It employs labor and skills and ideas across the nation. In the past five years Imperial Oil alone has undertaken to invest more than $200 millions—about $60 for every family in Canada. Much of this money has been spent to find and develop new oil fields in the prairies, fields which mean new prosperity and new security for all Canada. But almost half of it has been invested in new tankers and pipe lines, in new refining units and in facilities to bring the products to you.

With oil playing an increasingly important part in our daily lives, the oil industry's job is bringing new strength and better living for Canadians everywhere.

About Canada's Oil

Canadians are using almost twice as much oil as they did only five years ago.

Last year Imperial bought equipment and supplies from more than 6,000 Canadian firms.

Imperial's investment in plant and equipment is equivalent to more than $23,000 for each employee.

The wholesale prices of Esso gasolines have increased only a third as much as the average price of all commodities over the past 10 years.

Unknown Girl Rescued From Canal

Fell Into Water Fully Clothed Saved By Hollander

An unidentified girl was rescued from drowning Monday afternoon by a Dutch immigrant, John DeWit, 33, of 337 London St. The rescue was made just north of the Park Hill Rd. bridge over the Trent Canal.

The girl, about 10 years of age and presumably a nearby resident slipped on the east wall of the canal and fell into the water. She was fully clothed at the time. DeWit jumped in and handed her up to where Russell Graham, Trent Canal bridgeman, could catch hold of her and pull her to safety.

She swallowed a couple of mouthfuls of water and was badly frightened but was otherwise all right.

Dewit had been swimming in the canal and was talking to Graham when two little girls came running toward them saying their companion was drowning.

Threshing In Water

The two men went to the west bank of the canal, 100 feet away, and saw the unuidentified girl struggling in the water. Graham was fully clothed and Dewit was wearing trunks so Dewit jumped in.

He handed the frightened girl up to Graham who leaned down over the cement retaining wall and pulled her onto the bank.

Immediately afterwards the trio disappeared and neither of the rescuers know who they saved from a certain drowning.

Lewis Ingram Crashes Tree On Highway 28

Lewis H. Ingram, 56, 1107 Clonsilla Ave. is in Civic hospital with concussion, fractured ribs, and facial cuts after a car accident Monday night on Highway 28, six miles southwest of Peterborough.

His general condition today is "fair."

Mr. Ingram who is vice-president of the Quaker Oats Co., was alone in his 1951-model car when the accident occurred. He was driving home to Peterborough and rain was falling.

When he got to Scott's Corners his car somehow went out of control and it ploughed through the ditch and struck a tree, 270 feet from where it left the paved surface of the highway.

After striking the tree the car turned on its left side pinning Mr. Ingram in behind the steering wheel.

Went to Help

Fred Brockwell, who lives on the Port Hope highway near the scene of the accident, went to Mr. Ingram's assistance. With the aid of his son-in-law, John Hays, and an unidentified man, Mr. Brockwell raised the car back onto its four wheels.

Mr. Ingram was then helped to Mr. Brockwell's home and he was taken to hospital from there.

The impact of hitting the tree smashed in the front of the Ingram car and heavy damage was caused to the vehicle.

Earlier Accident

The accident was at 9.30 p.m. Four hours earlier there was another accident about a mile north of Scott's corners.

Harold Davis, 29, RR 3 Peterborough, who had been driving north on the highway started to make a right turn into his own driveway. A three-ton truck driven by Earl Cooper, 21, RR 2 Warsaw, also going north, clipped the Davis vehicle from the rear doing $150 damage.

Nobody was injured.

OPP Constable Wallace Mohns investigated both accidents.

Elderly Man Killed; Hit By Truck

Pensioner Walking In Centre of Road Died Instantly

An old-age pensioner, 75-year-old John McCracken of Marmora township was killed almost instantly late Monday night when struck by a truck in Marmora.

He was walking near the centre of the road at 11.45 p.m. when struck by the westbound truck of Carl Simpson, 40, Marmora service station proprietor. The accident occurred on Highway 7, 150 yards west of Highway 14, between the CNR railroad tracks and the bridge over the Crowe River.

Carried 25 Feet

The impact carried the elderly man about 25 feet and was violent enough to wedge him between the left front headlight and the left front fender of the truck.

His injuries included a broken neck, broken right arm and broken legs. Coroner Dr. Stanley R. Beatty, Madoc, attributed his death to a broken neck.

A charge of manslaughter may be laid against Simpson. OPP Cpl. Jack Hatch, Madoc, is investigating the fatality and is being assisted by Constable W. H. Gould and Constable Percy Emery, Madoc constable.

McCracken lived just outside the village in Marmora township. He is believed to have started to walk home along the highway, changed his mind and started back again.

He is an old-age pensioner and required the aid of a cane to walk any distance. When struck he was said to be walking in the middle of the road.

Couldn't Avoid

Simpson said he was unable to avoid him and the force of the collision draped the elderly man over the left front of the car. He was still wedged there when police arrived and he was pronounced dead by the coroner.

There were no witnesses to the fatal accident. Richard Cole, 25, Havelock, was a passenger in Simpson's truck.

Simpson was returning from his business and was travelling west along Highway 7 to his home when he struck McCracken.

Truck Overturns 2 Hospitalized

Two Verona men are in St. Joseph's Hospital with injuries received late Monday night when their truck overturned on the west shoulder of Highway 28, just south of Burleigh Falls.

A third occupant of the truck, Joseph Trainer, 18, of Nogies Creek escaped injury.

Allan Hill, 23, has facial cuts and he is being examined for possible back and head injuries. His condition is satisfactory. Donald Ruttan, 25, has facial cuts and bruises.

All three are employees of a Verona well-drilling firm working in Peterborough county. Trainer and Ruttan are working at Apsley and Hill at Buckhorn. Verona is 20 miles south of Sharbot Lake.

Ran Off Shoulder

The trio had been at Young's Point and were returning home when the accident occurred. The half-ton truck, driven by Hill, was travelling north and ran onto the west shoulder of the highway when 500 feet south of Burleigh Falls. It then skidded and turned over.

Damage to the truck was $500.

Hill and Ruttan were taken by police cruiser to Lakefield where they were given first aid by Dr. H. E. Gastle, and then to St. Joseph's.

OPP Constables Tom Fitzpatrick and Russell Pollard investigated.

Seized By Cramps Boy Drowns In Tweed Lake

An after-dinner swim ended in death of 11-year-old Gregory Cole of Toronto in Lake Stoco at Tweed Monday evening.

The boy apparently was seized by cramps. Witnesses said the youngsters swam less than 10 yards after diving into the water.

Belleville firemen tried for three hours to revive him after he was pulled out from 10 feet of water by a 15-year-old youth.

Young Coyle was visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Coyle. He had gone to the lake in Memorial Park shortly after dinner. He dived off a board and swam out only a short distance when his cries for help were heard.

Donnie Reid, nine of Tweed, leaped into the water after his friend. But the struggling Coyle nearly dragged young Reid down with him. Reid wrestled free and called for help from Alex Countryman, 15, Tweed.

In less than 10 minutes after Coyle dived in, Countryman had brought him to the surface. Firemen used a pulmotor on the boy, but Coroner Wr. M. G. Dale pronounced him dead. Dr. Dale said the youth had been seized with cramps.

CONDITION FAIR

The condition of Mrs. Robert Theobald, 31, injured Saturday night in a train-car accident on the old Norwood road, is described today as "fair" by Civic hospital. W. S. Edwards, injured in the accident near Norwood in which John Meincinger of Indian River died, is also in "fair" condition, the hospital reported today.

None Appeal Taxes Set By N. Monaghan Council

With no appeals before them, the North Monaghan council at court of revision Monday confirmed the added assessment on new buildings covering a period of the last six months of 1951. The court also confirmed the business assessments, the majority of which will be taxed for all of 1951, with the exception of some business which has begun this year.

The council itself passed for payment the following accounts: Expense of collecting dog taxes $17.10; printing $6.60; auditing fees $130; bond premium $15; roads and streets $287.13.

City council of Peterborough wrote that they were in "no position to extend their fire fighting services outside the city." The letter was simply received.

Licence Salvage Yards

A copy of the equalized assessment of the county of Peterborough was received from the county clerk. Council also received a copy of the county bylaw No. 1703 licencing and regulating salvage yards such as car-wrecking lots. North Monaghan has had its own bylaw for some time.

A letter from the Ontario government was an inquiry about local housing needs. Enclosed with it was a form to be filled out if the municipality was interested in the new housing policy of the government. No action was taken.

Reeve W. Waterman was appointed to attend the adjourned tax sale of the county of Peterborough, and to purchase in the name of the township all property not bringing in taxes and costs.

To Fix Road

Maintenance and upkeep of Cavan boundary road was provided for in a bylaw which the council passed. Another bylaw authorized the road superintendent, Oscar Dunford, to inspect and report on all proposed construction and extension of new telephone lines in the municipalities for the council's approval.

Council decided to engage the county sprayer to spray the township roads and killing weeds and brush along the sideroads. Expenditure shall not exceed $300.

The township clerk Bruce Johnston was instructed to obtain consent of property owners for the opening of a street of full width of 66 feet from No. 28 Highway south to concession 10. There is a narrow lane at present from the south side of the highway near the foot of "water trough" hill. The owners to be approached, George Hunter, Arthur Kingdon and Norman Stenson. The meeting of the council then adjourned until August 13 at 7 p.m. (DST).

Former Warden Of County Dies

A onetime warden of Peterborough county, Frank P. Moher died Sunday at his home in Edmonton, Alberta, on the eve of his 79th birthday.

Forty years ago Mr. Moher left the county to live in the west, and during his life in Peterborough county was active in municipal affairs. At one time he was reeve of Douro township, later becoming county warden.

Mr. Moher was born in Douro, the son of the late Patrick Moher and Johanna O'Neill. His parents were among the early settlers of Douro township, going there from their home in Ireland.

Douro schools gave Mr. Moher his primary education, and he took his high school work at Norwood. He was a member of St. Joseph's church, Douro.

He is survived by his widow, the former Bridget Allen, five daughters, three sons, and one sister, Mrs. Agnes Condon, of Douro. A brother, Clarence, died about two months ago in Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan.

Mr. Moher was buried today in Edmonton.

To Widen Water St. Behind New City Hall Council Asked To Uproot Nine Stately Trees

Widening of Water St. in the new city hall block by setting back the sidewalk and removing nine trees was recommended to the council in committee of the whole Monday in a report from a special committee by Ald. Hugh Waddell.

"And let's make it clear to the public why the old trees have to come down," said Ald. J. E. Gillespie.

The most of the trees are along the inside of the sidewalk, on Water St., providing a shaded block. The proposal of setting back the sidewalk immediately affects the line of trees, and the grade of the land.

Widening of the road and moving back the sidewalk between Murray and McDonnel Streets, on the west side of Water St., will require the changing of the grade to obtain an easy slope to the new sidewalk level.

New Trees for Replacement

The old trees will come out and will be replaced by new ones of about six inches in diameter. The substitution cannot be made at once, and will be a gradual development in the planning of the permanent grading and lawn-making at the city building.

Ald. Waddell told the committee that some of the present trees were showing signs of incipient decay, especially in crotches; several of them should be removed because of crowding, and moreover they are of different ages.

Eight will be replanted. Cost of landscaping will be charged against the city hall job, and included in the debenture coverage.

A small parking area will be provided for the city engineer's department at rear of the building. Nearby will be larger and general parking accommodation for the staff.

The committee also recommended removal of the white brick walls of garages at the rear of the old Burnham house on the city hall block now used by the department of health.

Board Of Education Urges Gym In New Collegiate At Meeting With Council

Of Great Use To Southwest Community; Council, Board Members To Consult Toronto On Financing Extra $100,000

"The Board of Education would much prefer to include a gymnasium as planned in the Collegiate Institute on Monaghan Road south. It would be of great use to that whole new community in the southwest section of the city." In that reference to neighborhood utility and value, Mr. G. W. Craw, chairman of the board's accommodation committee, presented one phase of the projected school in a discussion of extended financing with the members of the council in committee of the whole Monday afternoon. Mayor M. J. Swanston presided.

"I think it would be foolish not to put in a gymnasium," Mr. Craw said, "although it might be laid over for three or four years. But, we can't tell whether there would be any improvement by then in the matter of cost of building."

Mr. Craw was accompanied by Dr. Ralph Honey, chairman of the Board. All the members of the council were present.

Consult Toronto

A motion by Aldermen Young and Dewart authorized Mayor Swanston to appoint some members of the council to go to Toronto with representatives of the Board of Education to consult the Ontario Municipal Board about financing the new Collegiate on an estimated $100,000 expenditure in excess of the $585,000 approved by the ratepayers at the municipal elections last December.

The deputation will interview the Municipal Board before the end of the month, thereby anticipating its August recess.

Confronted with increased costs on the one hand and the pressure of providing accommodation for the growing school population, the two trustees of the Board of Education stated their problem and position.

The Board estimated last October that the Collegiate would cost $10.50 a square foot, and on that basis arrived at the total of $585,000 which the ratepayers approved.

"In January this year we realized that due to the increase in costs of materials, and also the costs of other schools in the province which were being approved, we could not build for $10.50," Mr. Craw said.

Revised Plans

"We revised the plans, cutting the gymnasium in two, and making changes in material to be used. This permitted us an expenditure of $510,000 at $13 a sq. ft. That was the sum we believed we should spend on the school. The remaining $75,000 would cover $40,000 for equipment and $30,000 for fees.

"We ran into trouble in foundation plans. This delay was not ours or yours, for you are all aware of the difficulty we had in getting possession of the property. The soil tester had his machine smashed. The plans were practically completed by the time the property was turned over to us. But, when the soil tests were made, the architect found that the foundation would have to be changed at an increase in cost of $32,000."

Lowest Bid

The lowest tender for the building of the school was $579,753 by Eastwood Construction Co., Mr. Craw said.

"That was nearly the $585,000 which had been voted on, or a little more than $14 per sq. ft.

What we are short is the $40,000 for equipment, $30,000 for architects' fees, and discount on debentures which may range from $11,600 if they sold for $98, to $23,000 if they sold for $96. These items total $93,200 at the outside. Then there is a premium of $6,141 for

Demi-Suits For Babies Now In Vogue

By GLADYS LENNON

NEW YORK, July 17—(CP)—The fashion-show model appeared in his mother's arms and practically stole the show. But there were approving nods too for his white broadcloth and cotton plaid "demi-suit" with its spirited plaid rocking-horse applique.

It was one of his latest bo-peep fashions for the carriage set, in which designer Hulda Schorr aimed at practicability nad comfort combined with smart appearance.

The "demi-suit" and sister's "demi-dress" are two-piece affairs consising of short, loose-hanging top and plastic-lined diaper-cover-up and bib to match. They are made alike except that sister's top is gathered on a yoke while inverted pleats provide brother with room for movement.

Of interest to mother: the materials are sturdy, color-fast and machine-washable.

For Toddlers

For toddlers of one to three years Mrs. Schorr—whose grandchildren are helping to keep her interested in practical angles—has designed a self-help coverall to aid in teaching the children to care for themselves. The drop-seat of the overall-like garment has a belt which fastens in front with two buttons, large enough to be manageable for small fingers. One style is in navy broadcloth with bright red rickrack points edging collar and cuffs; red cross-stitcing forms the words "good boy" or "good girl" across the front.

Colorfully-embroidered cobbler aprons in denim are among the protective garments Mrs. Schorr features for the small fry. Three big pockets provide space for carrying childhood treasures. Worn with matching slacks, they make sturdy play outfits.

Then there are attractive smocks to wear over school dresses, also obtainable with matching slacks. One of these, in royal blue, has a big red apple forming its pocket.

For the active three-to-six-year-old, the "petti-dress" is a blouse-and-jumper outfit designed to hold together at the waist. The blouse is joined to a ruffled petticoat which, of course, shows just below the skirt of the jumper.

Women Conserve Energy By Efficiency In Housework

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP)—Some women use as much energy making a bed as a male efficiency expert would use in a day's factory work.

Cleaning up the living room after last night's bridge session can be more difficult than digging a ditch all day, if a woman puts her mind to being inefficient about it.

Just doing the regular housework despite push-button appliances, can leave an average putterer in an exhausted state.

All this is pointed out by home-appliance experts, usually male, who claim most women walk useless miles around the house every day.

Take making a bed. The usual procedure is for a woman to pull the sheets and blankets off the bed, walk across the room and pile them in a chair. Then she takes the bottom sheet, walks back, tucks it in on one side, walks around the bed to tuck it in on the other side, and repeats this process with top sheet, blanket, quilt and spread.

An efficiency expert, however, would stand on one side of the bed to straighten and tuck in sheets, blankets and spread before walking around the bed to repeat the process on the other side. The saving in energy: about 200 steps.

Then There's Dishwashing

Then there's dishwashing. Many women, say the efficiency boys, start washing without assembling the dishes. Then they make endless trips between table, sink and cupboards washing and putting away one or two dishes at a time.

The way to do it, they point out, is stack and assemble everything in classified order at a table or counter next to the sink. Next wash, rinse and place in the drainer in order. Modern detergents leave dishes clean without drying, so by the time the last pot is washed, most of the dishes already are dry and can be stacked and put away.

Vacuuming one entire corner of the room—floor, walls, draperies and upholstery—before moving to a new location takes about half as much time and one-tenth the steps as doing each job separately.

DOROTHY DIX

Woman Finds Happiness In Being Able To Live Alone

DEAR MISS DIX: You often urge father and mother to keep their own homes instead of going to live with their children, and inasmuch as an ounce of experience is worth a pound of theory—as the old saying goes—I would like to corroborate what you say. I am a woman of 84. Have two sons and grandchildren and great-grandchildren. I live in an apartment alone for which blessing thanl God. I do my own cooking and marketing, so I can have exactly what I want to eat.

Dorothy Dix

My sons and their wives drop in on me nearly every day, and if I was sick they would rush to see and care for me. I can have the company of my old friends whenever they wish to come, and we can talk of old times without fearing we are boring anybody. I never was so happy in my life because I am free and independent. I am never alone for the unseen friends and those I love who have gone before are always with me.

A READER

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: When I urge old mothers not to go to live with their children if it can possibly be helped I get many angry letters from women who accuse me of not having any sympathy for them. Such an idea is far from my thought. I am thinking of the old woman's happiness. I am trying to make Mother understand that the woman who has been at the head of her own house for thirty or forty years can never be satisfied to take second place in even her own daughter's home.

It Seldom Works

Of course, when Father dies and Mother is left alone her loving children say: "Come and live with us." But, somehow, the plan doesn't work out as she anticipated. She finds she is a guest who is expected to act like a guest and fall in with the way that Mary or John's wife keeps house. Much as she loves her children, she misses her old friends, those to whom she could say, "Don't you remember?" But mainly her trouble is that she feels herself useless and a burden. She wants to be independent, to stand on her own feet, to have her own friends, her own place in the world, and this she cannot do in another woman's house.

And that is why every old mother should hang onto her own home, even if it is only one room in a boarding house. In that she is mistress of all she surveys. She is independent, and that is the one indispensable factor in happiness.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 14 years old. I am going to graduate from the ninth grade soon and I will have to wear my sister's old formal. I suppose it is all right but when she graduated she had her own formal. She is also graduating soon, but from the twelfth grade, and she just got a new gown. Mother says I will have to use that when I graduate from the twelfth grade. Don't you think I should have a new dress instead of wearing all my sister's hand-me-downs? JANE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your mother knows her financial condition better than you do, Jane, and I'm sure she is trying to do her best for both her daughters. There is nothing you can do about this year's problem, except to put a little fresh trimming on your sister's old dress to make it look less like a second-hand model, but I do think with three years ahead of you, it's possible to get a new gown for your next graduation. How about earning a little extra money baby-sitting, or helping a neighbor with her chores, then setting that money aside for a pretty dress? Better yet, why not learn to make yourself a nice formal? This is not a difficult task and it will help you get not only an attractive evening dress, but nicer clothes all year round at a fraction of the cost of ready-made dresses. If your mother can't teach you to sew, I'm sure you can find a course in some school near you, or (here comes that handy neighbor again) you could exchange some household tasks for lessons in dressmaking.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What chance of happiness is there for a girl in her early twenties who is primarily interested in a home of her own, and the man she loves who is in his early thirties and loves to have a good time? He promises faithfully to settle down after marriage. Do you think in this case the difference of character and age could cause unhappiness? JOY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The difference in age is immaterial, but the difference in character is so vast that to my mind it precludes the possibility of a happy marriage. Completely disregard any promisses a man makes to reform after the wedding. If he loves the girl sufficiently he'll do the reforming before. There is no plane on which a home girl and a man-about-town can meet on equal terms, and either one invites disaster by marrying the other. Perhaps the home girl is too cloistered and would be better off for a little gaiety. If the man just likes a generally good time once in a while it would pay her to meet him part way and have a little fun, too, but if riotous living is the end and aim of his existence, she'd better forget him.

FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

"That hard-working latch won't bother you any more—I replaced the knob with a steering wheel!"

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Sponge Cake Has Wide Variety Uses

The instructions on my new electric, portable roaster tell me anything that can be baked in an orthodox oven may be baked in it.

Okay—I wanted a sponge cake. I made it from the recipe which you will read below and it turned out beautifully. (Be sure to see next Thursday's column in which I describe a whole meal I baked in the roaster, for a picnic supper. We carried it in the roaster, in the trunk of the car, to our picnic spot—and when we were settled—lifted the lid and there was our piping hot supper.)

I used the sponge cake three ways: 1) warm and unfrosted with vanilla ice cream when it first came from the roaster-oven, 2) as the sponge-cake part of a pineapple Bavarian (see below), and 3) cut into oblongs and frosted on five sides with thin white icing and dipped in shredded cocoanut.

Large Hot Milk Sponge Cake

Four large eggs, 2 cups sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons butter melted, 1 cup very hot milk, 2 cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Beat the eggs until they double or triple in bulk, then gradually beat in the sugar until the mixture is light and fluffy. This may take 10 minutes with rotary hand beater and about 8 minutes with electric beater. Add the salt and lemon juice. Sift the flour with the baking powder. Add the hot milk and butter to the egg-sugar mixture, fold in then add all of the flour at once, and fold in with flat wire beater until flour just disappears. Pour into large pan about 10 x 14 inches which has been buttered, then lined with waxed paper and buttered again and sprinkled with flour. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 30 to 35 minutes. Turn out on cake cooler and immediately peel off the paper.

Serve within one-half hour to have it at its best when unfrosted, with ice cream or orange sherbet.

Pineapple Bavarian Trifle

In large sherbet glasses place three piece of sponge cake cut in fingers 2 inches long and about ¾-inch square. Pour over Pineapple Bavarian: Heat 1 cup pineapple juice from canned pineapple. Soak 1 tablespoon gelatine in 2 tablespoons cold water 5 minutes, then stand pineapple juice away from heat, stir in the soaked gelatine and ½ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt. Stir until dissolved. Add 1 cup crushed pineapple and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Cool until it begins to set then fold in 1 cup of cream whipped. (I used the heavy cream from the top of cream-top bottles of milk.) Dip this mixture over the cake in the glasses. Sprinkle a little cocoanut on top, put in refrigerator to chill.

The little cakes I made from the remaining cake are actually an imitation of the "Snowballs" we make from angel food cake.

Cut the cake into oblongs or squares. Frost with thin frosting made by beating 1 or 2 tablespoons butter, adding 1½ cups icing sugar and enough cream to make it of thin spreading consistency. Drop these into a plateful of shredded cocoanut, and sprinkle cocoanut over the sides with a spoon to coat as much of the cake as possible. Let them cool in the cocoanut, then lift them to serving plate when icing is set.

Board Of Education

steel to get the building under way this year."

Mr. Craw said the board could build the Monaghan Road school without a gymnasium, "but we hope that you will see your way clear to increase the debenture issue to $685,000. If not, we are prepared to go ahead, and wait until a more opportune time."

The Board had invited dual tenders, one for the school with the gymnasium, and the other without.

Eastwood Construction bids were, respectively, $579,753 and $485,827.

Slightly More

Manifestly, if the Board has to decide to proceed with the school minus the original gymnasium the total cost would be the firm bid of $485,827 plus the $100,000 required for equipment and other items mentioned by Mr. Craw. That would amount to $585,827, only slightly more than the sum approved by the ratepayers.

Mr. Craw said that when the estimate of $585,000 was arrived at by the board, municipal debentures were selling at or above par. Since then, interest rates have increased, and debentures generally have been selling at a discount.

Ald. T. D. Miller suggested that conditions might permit submitting the proposed additional $100,000 to the ratepayers next December. More precise costs would be known and the position of the Board would be clearer.

Mr. Craw said the Board of Education had to be concerned about actually letting the contract because the market for materials was in a state of flux and uncertainty, and Eastwood Construction Company would necessarily require definite decision in order that they could arrange to buy now the materials that would be needed.

Delay Dangerous

In that respect delay could be a serious element, and it was desirable that the acceptance of the contract should be arranged as soon as possible.

Ald. Dewart remarked that he [illegible] government paid 25% as a grant on capital cost and interest, and that another 25% would be obtained from other boards for the education of students from outside Peterborough.

Dr. Honey said that was correct.

"We have to issue the debentures," said Ald. Waddell, "and it actually means you have to raise 50 cents on the dollar of cost."

"As I understand it," said Ald. J. E. Gillespie, "the purpose of the deputation is exploratory, and will also be looking for advice from the Municipal Board."

The main issue is whether the council is to obtain permission from the Municipal Board to borrow the extra $100,000 for the new Collegiate, or submit the question to the ratepayers; likewise involved and unanimously desired by the school trustees is the construction of the entire building as planned or as an alternative some indefinite delay in providing the gymnasium facilities for the school.

Dinghy New Day Before Wins Stony L. Sail Race

The Examiner Trophy sailing event was run off on Sunday on the triangular course between Juniper Island, Viamede and Eagle Mount. Fifteen boats in three classes entered the race and all finished in fast time.

In the sloop class Lyman Crawford-Brown came first, followed by Harry Huff who had tough luck with a broken mainsheet (rope) during the first lap. The third and remaining craft was skippered by David Russell.

Twelve dinghies entered the 14-foot craft event. It was won by Douglas Reed who had purchased a brand new revolutionary style dinghy at a Lakefield factory on Saturday. Others in the race were Kenneth Allen, Paul Killoran, Jim Collins, Fred Huycke, Sue Slater, Jack Rider, Barry Webb, Fred Brook-Hill, Jack Matthews and Ted Welsh.

The catboat class, one craft, was sailed by Jack Eastwood.

Prepare For Big Meet

Of the day's races, Stony Lake Yacht Club Commodore R. Ken Slater said: "It was a good show. We need all kinds of competition of this kind each weekend to get us ready for the Canadian Dinghy Association meet August 15 to 18 on Clear Lake."

This, the fourth annual regatta of the Association, the first time ever held inland from the Great Lakes, will attract fresh water sailors from various points in Canada, United States, England and Bermuda.

Labor Government Moves To Prevent Fuel Crisis

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON

LONDON—(CP) — A special committee to investigate the wider aspects of the national fuel policy has been appointed by the government in an attempt to forestall another coal crisis in Britain next winter.

Fuel Minister P. J. Noel-Baker in making the announcement said domestic consumption was not only rising at a staggering rate, but serious manpower problems also had developed. If the coal industry is unable to find the necessary quota of recruits in the United Kingdom, miners will be sought from the pool of unemployed in other countries.

The new committee which will operate independently of the recently-created fuel economy board, has under consideration several measures it hopes will prevent recurrence of last winter's drastic restraints on supplies. Dim-out restrictions were then imposed throughout the country and coal rations were cut sharply.

Running At Deficit

In the latest government economic survey a warning was given that the country's coal budget for the year is already running at a deficit.

The total maximum output in 1951, including emergency imports from the United States, is estimated at 223,200,000 tons, approximately 1,400,000 below requirements.

Miners throughout the land responded wholeheartedly when the government this spring issued an appeal for stepped-up production. The increased requirements over last year was fixed at 6,000,000 tons. More than half this figure has already been attained but other problems have cropped up.

Not only has consumption during the first quarter of 1951 risen by about four per cent, but stocks have not been piling up at the pace expected.

Below Objective

A stock-pile target of 18,000,000 tons has been set for the coal season beginning November 1. But with only five months to go before the deadline, the reserve is still about 7,000,000 tons below the objective. The answer, the experts [illegible] mediate restrictions on consumption and curtailment of waste. The alternative is heavy additional imports from the United States.

E. H. Browne, director-general of production for the National Coal Board, says that the problem would be met by a speedy, bold and efficient scheme for reorganization of the coal industry.

"For 10 years we have lived from crisis to crisis," he said. "The deep-seated disease in the industry cannot be cured by palliatives. Unless reconstruction forges ahead we are in grave danger of prejudicing the whole economic position and security of the nation within a decade."

Ill-Advised Disputes

Referring to the problems confronting the special investigating committee, Mr. Noel-Baker said annual coal consumption in Britain was running approximately 15,000,000 tons above the 1949 figure. He thought this rate of increase, however, could be more than counter-balanced by effective measures in eliminating waste fuel and power.

He also deplored loss of output as the result of "ill-advised" disputes. Since the beginning of May of this year, more than 200,000 tons had been lost, he said, through disagreements that never should have arisen.

The committee's appointment follows a recent call from the Conservative party's fuel and power committee for drastic reorganization of the coal industry, based on decentralization of control.

Car Hits Hydro Pole, Power Off Two Hours

MARMORA, July 17 (ENS) — The power in the village was off about two hours Monday evening due to the breaking of a hydro pole near Marmora CNR station.

A car driven by Frank Leal struck the pole.

The situation was adjusted by a Hydro gang in time for the local movie to function and for other businesses to carry on without much handicap.

The Alderville cemetery is situated on the Roseneath-Harwood road, two miles west of Roseneath and is known to be the first cemetery in Alnwick township.

Dreamy Music Comes From Instrument

WINNIPEG (CP)—The dreamiest music imaginable comes out of a strange old instrument standing at the foot of the staircase in a suburban Winnipeg home.

The instrument, owned for 25 years by a publicity-shy Irishman, stands nearly seven feet, and is encased in a carved and polished cabinet. It is called a symphonion, and works on much the same principle as a pianola. The music, for comparison, resembled that of a giant musical box.

The notes are made by tiny pegs striking on metal, the pegs being set in motion by a slotted metal disc which is clamped in position across the front of them. The instrument is then wound up, and for minutes will strum out soft, tinkling music.

There are 24 discs measuring about 24 inches across. They give a clue to the instrument's birthplace as "J. W. Curner" and "Made in Germany" are stamped across them in Gothic letters.

Skilfully Orchestrated

The simple tunes — "Home Sweet Home", extracts from Gilbert and Sullivan, pieces by Mendelssohn, and hymns—are carved out on the discs and are elaborately and skilfully orchestrated.

A deep, resonant bass beats the rhythm, a singing treble outlines the melody, and a trilling descant adds ornamentation.

The only thing which the mechanism cannot control is the dynamics. The symphonion cannot play loud and soft. Like a harpsichord, it can indicate fortissimo by playing extra-thick chords and then pausing. In the same way, a single note can sound as pianissimo.

The machine is widely-travelled. Its present owner, when in Ireland, inherited it from a relative who in turn inherited it from his forefathers in the United States.

MONTREAL, July 17—(CP)— Lt.-Col. Harvey Hough, founder of the Montreal firm of Huges Owens Co., Ltd., died Monday at his summer home in St. Patrick, Que., near Riviere Du Loup. He was 85. Born in Napanee, Ont., Col. Hough founded the firm, suppliers of drawing material, in 1900.

Price-Fixing Law For Papers Rouses Alabama

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 17. (AP)—Price-fixing legislation to limit newspapers and radio stations in what they can charge for political advertising has aroused Alabama publishers and broadcasters.

The Alabama state House of Representatives has already passed a bill to prohibit newspapers, magazines and other publications or radio and television stations from charging more for political ads than for other commercial advertising.

Shortly after the measure passed last Friday by a narrow 39-36 margin, notice was given that an attempt would be made to send the bill back to committee when the house meets again today. Should that fail, the proposal would go to the Senate.

Newspaper publishers and radio station owners have protested that the legislature has no more right to tell newspapers what they can charge than it has to fix doctors' or lawyers' fees.

One publisher, Hary M. Ayers of the Anniston Star, said in an editorial Sunday:

". . . one of our Calhoun representatives, because of a personal grudge, is attempting to set up a law that will establish a precedent for the legislature to regulate the price we may charge for our services. And that, too, is cause for concern by every business in the state."

No Elaboration

Ayers did not elaborate on the "grudge" reference.

Emmett Brooks, president of the Alabama Broadcasters Association, called it "unfair in principle for the state to try to regulate prices on anything not classified as a utility, railroad or other public service operation."

Brooks said acceptance of political advertising on the radio almost always necessitates cancellation of commercial programs sold on a long-term contract basis. Extra work and additional expense involved in setting up special broadcasts, he said, justify premium rates.

Actually, Brooks contended, most stations charge no more for political broadcasts than they would for any other advertiser who buys time on an irregular, non-contract basis.

Asks For Entries

TORONTO, July 17 (CP). — Irene Wall of Montreal, president of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada, today issued a special appeal for Ontario entries for the Federation's junior track and field championships at Montreal July 28. Miss Wall said she was particularly anxious to get entries from smaller centres in the province.

Charge Adjuster With Assault

Toronto, July 17. (CP) — George L. Tilley, 50-year-old insurance adjuster, was arrested on Monday night in connection with an attack on a seven-year-old girl in Ottawa July 13.

Tilley, married and a resident of suburban Etobicoke township, was taken into custody by police who raided a house on west-end Bloor St.

Detective Daniel Began of the Etobicoke police said Tilley was charged with rape and abduction.

Ottawa police said they believed a man who lured the child into his automobile and later criminally assaulted her was a salesman or traveller passing through the capital.

An hour after the girl was seen getting into the car, she wandered into a service station at Bell's Corners, five miles southwest of Ottawa. She was treated at hospital for shock and sent home.

Toronto Lieutenant Fires Perfect Score

BISLEY, England, July 17 (CP) —Lieut. G. S. Boa of Toronto fired a perfect 50 Monday to win the £5 first prize in the Bisley Gun Club clay pigeon shoot. He scored four points more than his nearest opponent.

Canadian marksmanship in Britain's national rifle shooting match has been close to the maximum in most of the contests.

In the Conan Doyle long-range match (10 shots at 900 yards) list this weekend were Lieut. E. Ryan of Kingston, 18th and Boa 25th. Both scored 47.

Boa shared top Canadian honors in the 600-yard Alexandra shoot with CSM Norman Beckett of Hamilton who shot 48 of 50.

GOOD SKATE — Sixteen-year-old George Lumsden, of Gresham, Ore., was chosen Roller Skating Queen of America at the opening of the American Roller Skating Championships in Cleveland, Ohio. She won the right to represent her territory by defeating a field of 20 other girls in a contest in Vancouver, BC.

Kansas Flood Costly Answer

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP) — Senator John L. McClellan (Dem.-Ark.) pointed today to the disastrous Kansas-Missouri flood as an expensive answer to critics who call flood control projects "pork barrel" legislation.

"If Congress a few years ago had appropriated $300,000,000 for flood control reservoirs in Kansas," he told a reporter, "we would have been spared this flood loss of at least twice that amount."

Maj.-Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of Army Engineers, has estimated that the damage will be at least $750,000,000 and maybe much higher.

Senator McClellan made the comment in advance of almost certain Senate approval today of a $25,000,000 fund to help finance the relief work which the Federal Government is carrying on in the flood area.

He said similar potential flood danger exists in at least 100 other places over the United States.

But, he said, too often when Congress votes money for flood control someone raises a cry of "pork barrel."

(Definition of pork barrel": a fund of money from the Federal Treasury regarded as appropriate more for local patronage than to make needed improvements.)

New Art College

TORONTO, July 17 (CP). — A north-end Toronto mansion that the University of Toronto did not quite know what to do with has become the new home of the Ontario College of Art. Glendon Hall, bequeathed to the university by the late Mrs. E. R. Wood, will be occupied by the artists under the terms of a three-way agreement between the University, the Education Department, and College of Art.

Western Envoys Keeping Eye In Russ Articles

MOSCOW, July 17 (AP)—Western diplomats here are giving their closest attention to a new Soviet English-language publication, "News" and its theme that peaceful relations between Russia on one hand and the United States and Britain on the other are possible regardless of political differences.

Such talk of peaceful East-West relations has often been voiced in the Soviet press but its specific application to relations with Britain and the US is a line not frequently found of late in Soviet publications.

Western observers are much interested that the Russians are launching a publication with such sentiments at a time when the Soviet has resumed four-power trade talks in Berlin and when the North Korean and Chinese Communists—after Russian suggestions—are holding truce talks in Korea.

The first semi-monthly issue of "News" features articles citing a lengthy historical tradition of friendship between Russia on the one hand and the US and Britain on the other.

Pick Their Writers

The article addressed to Americans is by Alexander Troyanovsky, first Soviet ambassador to the US. That concerning Anglo-Russian friendship is by Eugene Tarle, leading Soviet historian.

Continuance of this traditional warm friendship is possible and desirable, both articles assert, adding that there is no valid reason why such friendship can not exist at present.

Westerners were quick to point out the sharp difference between such sentiments and the address of top Communist ideological expert Peter N. Pospelov last January.

Pospelov quoted extensively from the writings of Nikolai Lenin to show Russia long had been a target of American "imperialism."

"News," however, while condemning current "warmongering," by US and British leaders, is stressing past periods of friendship and co-operation.

6 Granted Bail

TORONTO, July 17 — (CP) — Three youths and three juveniles, awaiting trial on charges of raping a 16-year-old girl in a west-end park last May 15, Monday were granted bail of $5,000. Robert Blair, 21, Donald O'Brien, 16, Tony Capicciotti, 18, and the juveniles were granted bail at the request of their counsel. They were denied bail last July 4 when they were committed for trial in the fall.

Out of Danger

OWEN SOUND, July 17—(CP) —Howard Thompson, 39, of near by Kilsyth, stung by swarms bees in a bee yard last Frid Monday night was reported o of danger. Thompson tried to save his horse when it bolted into the yard and was attacked himself by the insects. The horse was stung to death.

Bus Hits Gas Truck

BIG SPRING, Tex., July 17—(AP)—A crowded Greyhound bus skidded into a parked gasoline truck on a rain-slick highway near here Monday, killing four passengers. Twenty-one others were injured. Passengers were crushed when the big bus crashed broadside into the rear of the transport truck during a rainstorm.

Greece Has Deficit

ATHENS, July 17 — (AP) — Greek Fiance Minister George Mavros presented the 1951-52 budget to parliament Monday night, showing, in dollar terms, revenue amounting to $392,000,000 and expenditures totalling $498,000,000. The deficit of $106,000,000 will be covered by ECA funds, Mavros said. Of the expenditures, $171,000,000 is earmarked for national defence and $37,000,000 for internal security (police and gendarmerie).

Gunners Kept Busy Supporting Infantry

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN KOREA, July 17 (CP). — Neither the wicked (so they say) nor the gunners get rest.

Take the 2nd Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, for instance.

Unlike the rest of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade group, who have had several rests since being committed to action in Korea, the gunners have had no respite whatever.

Ever since May 17, when a battery commanded by Major Sam Pinkerton of Hamilton, fired the regiment's first shells "in anger" the RCHA has been either in action or on the move between gun positions.

It has not been spectacular shooting of late, anyway, but variety has been introduced into the monotony of life by their presence on the strong patrol forces of infantry and tanks which Brig. John M. Rockingham has kept sending out in aggressive probes of the enemy's defences.

But, because they have been constantly employed they have ...ed with a number of forma...ns and for longer periods at a time than have their infantry fellow-countrymen.

Lots of Variety

They've served under both the US Army's 24th, 25th, 3rd and 1st Cavalry Divisions, and have supported US, Australian, Philippine, Puerto Rican, British and Canadian troops. The British units were the King's Shropshire Light Infantry and the King's Own Scottish Borderers.

The patrolling north of the Chorwon area has dug as deep as 10, 12 and 14 miles north of the UN defence lines, and the guns have regularly gone out one-third to one-half the way, set up positions and had their fire on call for the foot-soldiers.

Forward observation officers climb the same hills as the infantry, ready constantly to direct fire wherever it is needed.

One of the better shoots was by Pinkerton's Battery, supporting a sortie of the 2nd Battalion, PPCLI.

As the Patricia patrol advanced toward the ridge it was to probe, it spotted 100 Chinese veacuating a village just below it and mounting a trail leading to the crest.

The battalion's mortars, under Capt. Lloyd Hill of Kentville, NS, lobbed bombs into them.

Then tanks from the Lord Strathcona Horse, under Capt. Ken Kennedy of Halifax opened up.

The Chinese dispersed on either side of the trail, scrambling through the brush to the top. The fire was thickened up by the Patricia machine-guns. Twelve bodies were counted later when the patrol covered the ground.

Plane Helps

Pinkerton's guns plastered the crest, where an estimated seven bodies were seen by the patrol elements that reached it later.

Just as the Chinese pulled out of sight on the north face of the ridge the brigadier's personal aircraft arrived on the scene, piloted by Capt. Howard Tanner of Paramount, Calif., of the 5th Air Force.

Tanner's passenger was Capt. C. A. MacGillivray of Victoria, also a gunner.

MacGillivray's wirelesss was on the same frequency as Pinkerton's, so he took over the shoot.

"Up 200," he ordered, and the next volley cleared the crest and landed squarely in the middle of the retreating Chinese. It was the first time the Brigadier's aircraft had been used as an air observation post.

MacGillivray figured the frist round caused "quite a few" casualties but was unable to estimate.

Catches More

"Add 100," he ordered, dishing up a second volley, which caught a few more just as the enemy were disappearing into previously prepared dugouts.

Commented Lt-Col. A. J. B. Bailey of Duncan, B. C., and Kingston, "It was a really first-class co-ordinated effort."

Pinkerton's battery then was diverted to providing the Patricias, commanded by Capt. Wally Mills of Winnipeg, with a lifting curtain of fire covering the advance, while other allied guns took over MacGillivray's target.

Sticky Time

The patrol had a sticky time on the crest, nonetheless, as an estimated platoon strength of Chinese had remained there in well dug-in positions to contest it.

On another patrol a shell from one of Pinkerton's guns hit a bunker, blowing its Chinese occupant clear out of the position, dead.

One shell from the battery commanded by Major F. P. O. Leask of Duncan, B.C., and Ottawa, hit a machinegun nest square on, shattering the gun and killing its crew. The hit first was reported by the air O-P, and verified later on the ground by the infantry.

However, it isn't only its gunnery which makes the RCHA so cocky an outfit. In the "gunner's union," that's taken for granted. It's a discussion of regimental seniority that puts chips on a gunner's shoulder.

In the British Commonwealth Division that has been settled once and for all—the 2nd Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, has been designated senior artillery regiment of the formation. It changed its tactical signs overnight.

COOLING OFF!

It takes a lot of cooling to keep a Polar Bear happy. This largest member of the bear family is smaller than a porcupine at birth, but often weighs more than three-quarters of a ton when full grown. To this tremendous bulk, add the fact that the bear is covered with a thick, water-proof coat, which is designed to protect him in the Arctic... it's a big job keeping him cool in our zoos.

Scientific Observers Aiding Canadians at Front

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, July 17 (CP)—Science marches with the troops when Canadians go into battle.

Its representative is Maj. Hodgson Goodfellow of Kingston, Ont., whose job is to study the factors that govern the performance of infantry in action.

It keeps him on the hop.

The 36-year-old major, who lives at advanced headquarters of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group, goes out with patrols, studies battle reports, is an inveterate visitor at units where he checks still further for missing details, and works long into the night compiling the data he has assembled.

The sign outside his tent says "Operations Research." Unquestioning troops assume straight off that at the very least his work is nuclear fission or electronics. Less impressed but still hardly-understanding staff officers wish he would look into the general misbehavior of cook-stoves.

A New Field

The major's current job simply is to see how the infantry fights—which means all the conditions governing that—and to find how any of the conditions may be so manipulated as to improve the result.

Operations Research is a new field.

The scientist in Operations Research tries to find better ways of using existing equipment, though sometimes he is able to suggest improvements to it.

Maj. Goodfellow is part of the Canadian Army Operations Research Establishment, located at Kingston and headed by Dr. Otto Maas, scientific advisor to Gen. Simonds.

He has a wealth of examples to illustrate the value of his field.

It determined, for instance, the size of shipping convoys on the seas during the Second World War. At no extra cost it sharply reduced loss through enemy action.

Researchers studied the figures and noted that roughly the same number of ships were lost from each convoy, large or small.

Until they came along the conclusion was almost reached that there was no advantage to company since losses were equal.

The scientists simply pointed out that larger convoys were indeed the answer since the percentages lost were smaller.

May Get Scope

Maj. Goodfellow's principle is that tactics and strategy will always be questions of skill and manoeuvre — art — but that by study and research into the factors governing battles they may increase the powers of tools already at the commanders' service by demonstrating additional scope.

Born in South Shields, England, and by hobby an archaeologist, the major is a University of Saskatchewan graduate in the science of engineering.

During the war he was seconded from the Canadian army to the British Admiralty's Department of Miscellaneous Weapons Development, headed by another Canadian, Sir Charles Goodeve, of Winnipeg.

He is married to the former Josephine Birkill, of London, daughter of John E. Birkill, the violincellist of the BBC Symphony Orchestra and who is planning a concert tour of Canada this year. They have a daughter, Caroline, 7.

Miss Kingan, who was born and educated in Peterborough, was introduced by her father, and thanked by Charles Cummer.

The following guest Rotarians and guests attended Monday's meeting: Lin Richardson, Mimico; Kenneth Madill, Windsor; Alex M. Cadman, Laurenceville, Pennsylvania; J. H. Free Union Director From Montreal Jail

QUEBEC, July 17 — (CP) — The Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor announced Monday Rene Rocque, its deputy director of organization, was released from Montreal's Bordeaux jail last weekend.

The charge arose from disturbances at Asbestos, Que., May 5, 1949, during a 4½-month strike of asbestos miners. The 5,000 miners were members of the Federation of Asbestos Syndicates (CCCL).

German States Plan Reshuffle In Boundaries

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

BONN, July 17 (AP) — West Germany is busy planning a big reshuffle of the boundaries of the 11 states of the federation.

The debate is on how to make the federation work better by eliminating some laender (states) and making others bigger. It seems likely that at least three states eventually will disappear.

The basic reason is economic. Some agricultural areas cannot raise enough taxes to pay their way. The biggest city in West Germany, Hamburg, is an independent state, contributing nothing to the tax burden of the poor rural districts which surround it.

A parliamentary commission is to study new legislation, but there is no lack of advice. Everybody has ideas on the subject.

No Giving Up

All states are willing to absorb more territory, but are reluctant to give any away. The ancient hanseatic cities of Bremen and Hamburg, faced with possible merger into Lower Saxony and Schleswig-Holstein, stoutly declared they will fight for their traditional independence.

Regional loyalties in Germany are strong. Some of the boundaries date back to Roman times. Others were the frontiers of the Garman kingdom, such as Bavaria and Hanover.

When Germany was occupied after the war it was split into four occupation zones. Each zone was divided into states. In the west the zonal boundaries have disappeared.

A new capital to replace isolated Berlin was set up at Bonn to rule the 11 western states as the Federal Republic. But the federation is creaking because of the difference in state wealth and population.

15 Race Fans Injured In Collision

Bus and Car Smash At Intersection; 12 Leave Hospital.

FORT ERIE, Ont., July 18. (CP)—A bus-automobile collision near here Tuesday night sent 15 race track patrons to hospital. All but three were released after treatment.

The bus, carrying 29 passengers bound for Niagara Falls, Hamilton and Toronto, had just left Fort Erie race track when it was in collision at an intersection a mile west of here with an automobile police said was driven by Alfred Neilson, 48, of Waterdown, Ont.

Neilson was reported the most severely injured of the victims. Mr. and Mrs. John Mostacci of Hamilton were among the others treated.

Hits Hydro Pole

Police said the bus, driven by Douglas Fraser, 27, of Hamilton, swerved off the road after the collision and crashed into a hydro pole.

Neilson is suffering from concussion, head injuries and possible internal injuries. Hospital authorities said he is in fair condition.

David Petri, 65, of Leaside, and George Mitchell, 52 of Niagara Falls, NY, suffered severe bruises. The bus driver suffered bruises and rib injuries.

Others treated at hospital were: Mrs. Ann Anderson, 59, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simpson, 30 and 32, Toronto; Bernard Funer, 37, James Manzini, 53, Mrs. Wallace Butters, 49, and Hugh Devereux, 60, all of Niagara Falls, Ont.; Mrs. Ida Wishart, 42, and Margaret Philps, 48, of Niagara Falls, NY.

Flames Damage Frame Hotel

DORCHESTER, Ont., July 18 (CP)—Fire gutted the two-storey frame Dorchester Hotel early today, firemen from Dorchester and nearby London battled the flames for more than two hours with water drawn from the nearby Thames river.

The more than 20 residents of the hotel were forced to grope their way through smoke-filled halls in their night clothes and from the street watched the flames destroy their possessions.

The alarm was turned in about 12.30 a.m. by Ross Sopher. He was in bed when he smelled smoke.

The owner of the hotel, Maurice Testart, estimated damage to the building at $10,000.

Deposed Rector Plans Be Liberal Candidate

TORONTO, July 18 (CP)—The Rev. Harry W. Garbutt, deposed rector of St. Barnabas Anglican Church, said today that he will run as Liberal candidate for Toronto Riverdale riding in the next provincial election.

The former missionary to Africa was dismissed last week from his East Toronto parish for defying church laws.

Offer of the candidacy was made by Raymond J. Wilson, president of the Broadview-Riverdale Liberal Association and Mr. Garbutt's lawyer in the church controversy.

Turkey And Greece Allowed Join Pact

LONDON, July 18. (Reuters)— son told the House of Commons today Britain was ready to admit Turkey and Greece to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Morrison said the decision came after long study.

The United States has been pressing for some time for including the two Mediterranean countries in the western European defence set-up as full-fledged members.

Britain at first said she did not oppose the move, but wanted to see if there might be a better way to do it.

Boat Takes Fire 3 Make Shore Safely

PICTON, July 18 (CP)—Laurel Williams, 45, his son Richard, 9, and daughter Donna, 4, managed to reach shore safely Tuesday despite severe burns suffered when the motor in their boat exploded while they cruised on the Bay of Quinte.

Williams swam 200 yards with his daughter in his arms. His son calmly followed, despite the fact he had not swum in such deep water before.

Truce Teams Score Some Agreement Split On Big Point

SEOUL, Korea, July 18 (AP) — Allied and Communist envoys agreed today on two points of the cease-fire agenda but a dispute over "at least one major point" is blocking the start of actual Korean war armistice negotiations.

The United Nations announced this tonight after negotiators returned from their longest session this week. It was the first report of agreement on any part of the agenda.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, head of the UN cease-fire team, accepted Communist wording for two agenda items at the close of Tuesday's conference, the announcement said.

When he did so, "the entire Communist delegation seemed to show gratification, perhaps mixed with a certain element of relief" said Brig.-Gen. William Nuckols of the US Air Force. Nuckols attended the session in Kaesong.

Appreciate Viewpoint

And when Joy presented the Allied view on the major unresolved question, Nuckols said, the two "Chinese members of the Communist delegation nodded and appeared to appreciate the United Nations viewpoint."

Neither Nuckols nor the formal headquarters announcement disclosed the points agreed upon in the sixth day of conferences. Nor did they say what was the major stumbling block to reaching a "mutually acceptable agenda."

Essential Point

But Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Supreme Allied Commander, described it as "essential" to the success of the cease-fire conference.

The UN communique said:

"At least one major issue remained unsolved when the conference recessed for the day.

"Agreement on the key point is essential to the successful completion of the first phase of the negotiation."

Observers speculated that the key question was whether to discuss withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea. The Communists want this on the agenda. The United Nations negotiators do not.

They still are trying to agree on the scope of actual cease-fire talks.

Accept Two Points

"In order to hasten the conferences to their ultimate goal," the UN announcement said, "the United Nations senior delegate (Admiral Joy) accepted two points presented by the Communists on the phraseology of agenda items, after placing on the record the United Nations understanding of their basic intent."

"Some additional progress" was made at Wednesday's sessions which lasted two hours and 50 minutes, the Army said.

The seventh day's meeting was scheduled for 11 am Thursday (9 pm EDT Wednesday).

Although no one has said so officially, it is presumed the Communist desire to discuss the withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea is holding up completion of the agenda.

Expect Major Proposal In Moscow Peace Drive

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, July 18. (AP)—American diplomats look for Russia to put forth a major diplomatic proposal in the next few weeks to promote its current "peace offensive" and raise new hopes for easing east-west tensions. One possibility foreseen in speculation here is a proposal for a Big Power meeting, including Red China, to settle Far Eastern questions. This would logically follow any firm agreement to end the fighting in Korea. In a statement on a new English-language magazine which has just been published in Moscow, the State Department asserted Tuesday night that current Soviet "peace propaganda" efforts are designed to "lull free nations to sleep."

WASHINGTON (AP).—State Secretary Dean Acheson said today it would be dangerous to listen to Russian "peace propaganda" designed to cause the western powers to slacken their build-up against Communist expansion.

US government experts in Soviet manoeuvring say the Kremlin now apparently intends to try to gain by demonstrations of friendliness a slow-down or disruption of efforts by the free nations to strengthen their power.

Specific Objective

One obvious specific objective for such Kremlin tactics would be to delay or discredit the signing of a Japanese peace treaty which is proposed by the US for San Francisco in September.

Another objective would be to weaken the anti-communist alliance in the European area. The Russians may hope to accomplish this by (1) exploiting differences in American and British Far Eastern policies and (2) minimizing fear of Communist conquest in Europe and exploiting French distaste for German rearmament.

The issuance of the new Russian statement which diplomats here take into account in estimating what the Russians are up to. Another is that Russia took the lead in suggesting Korean armistice negotiations.

Actually the Russians have always followed, since the end of the Second World War, parallel policy and propaganda lines. They have alternately emphasized (a) Their belief in "peaceful coexistence" of communnist and non-communist countries (b) Have pressed what US officials consider to be their real long-range aim of spreading communism over the world

The new magazine is dedicated, in its own words, to promotion of "closer understanding between the peoples of the Soviet Union and the Anglo-American world."

State department press officer Michael McDermott said it is devoid of the usual communist line and language, and he suggested it may be designed among other things to provide guidance for the communits party in western countries.

Guard Harriman Against Attack

TEHRAN, Juy 18 (AP) — Iranian security officials today asked the United States embassy to ban advance anonuncements of movements of special envoy W. Averell Harriman in this uneasy city, because of the possibility of a new bloody Communist demonstration.

Newspapers said the death toll had risen to 20 persons with 300 injured in Sunday's anti-Harriman demonstration, staged on the arrival of President Truman's special ambassador. He was sent to try to work out a solution of the bitter British-Iranian dispute.

Harriman planned to meet later today.

Security officials broadcast a warning that mass meetings have been prohibited under martial law. Police announced 88 persons have been arrested in a roundup of leftist elements since the Sunday riots.

Aircraft Warning System In Action

25,000 Radar Men Scan Skies For Enemy

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP). —Nearly 25,000 Air Force radar men now are on steady watch at stations and control centres in the United States and Canada to detect the approach of any strange and possibly hostile planes.

The aircraft warning system has reached the point wehre it is 97 per cent manned, the Associated Press was told today.

The United States Air Force's air raid warning organization is made up of 12 groups of regular troops and three of federalized air National Guard outfits. Each group has personnel to man a number of stations.

The exact number of warning stations and control centres and their locations are secrets.

The stations in the US and Alaska work with those of Canada under the mutual Canadian-US defence plan.

Several Possibilities

In setting up the enemy plane warning system and the air defence system of fighter interceptor aircraft, planners have had to reckon with several possible methods of long-range bombing missions by Russia.

The possibilities upon which the system are based include these:

1—One-way flights by Red bombers of the TU-4 type (copies of the American B-29). These flights, maybe carrying atomic bombs, might not necessarily be "suicide" missions. The crews could bail out with chutes, take a chance on hiding away.

2—Regular formations of bombers taking off from Red bases to make strikes in formation or to break up into small missions at some point along the route.

3—Bomber missions with aerial tankers to refuel them to and from American targets.

From a defence viewpoint, the ideal point of detection would be far to the north, before the enemy mission had broken formation to aim at such separate target cities as New York, Boston, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Washington.

Bar NY State Controlling Power Plan

No Final Decision Reached On Seaway Project

WASHINGTON, July 18. — (AP)—A House of Representatives committee voted today to prohibit New York State from administering the power phase of the St. Lawrence Seaway Project.

No final decision was made by the committee, however, on legislation to authorize the joint Canadian-United States seaway and power project.

The House Public Works Committee narrowed down its consideration to one Bill to authorize the project—possibly two.

The commmittee, by a vote of 16 to 11, agreed to table a Bill by Representative George Dondero (Rep.-Mich.).

Amendment Carries

Still before it is one by Representative John Blatnik (Dem.-Minn.). It was amended on a motion by Representative Henry Larcade (Dem.-La.) which carried, 17 to 10 to prohibit New York State from administering the power phase of the project.

Construction of the power project, under the Larcade amendment, would be financed by the Federal Government.

Representative Tom Pickett (Dem.-Tex.), an opponent of the seaway and power project, told reporters that when the committee meets Thursday in its fifth closed-door session in nine days its first order of business will be whether to consider a new Bill introduced by Larcade.

The Bill, it was explained, would authorize the project in line with the Larcade amendment adopted today.

There was no positive assurance that the group, almost evenly split on the bitterly-disputed proposal, would soon vote on whether to accept or reject the legislation.

Fire Destroys Abbey Theatre

DUBLIN, Juy 18 (AP)—A fire that broke out suddenly in Dublin's famed Abbey Theatre early this morning destroyed the main part of the buiding before it was brought under control.

The blaze was discovered at 1:30 a.m. and 30 minutes later the greater part of the auditorium and stage had been burned.

Actors and actresses of the Abbey company helped save some valuable paintings and other souvenirs of the theatre's role in the history of Irish and world drama. The Abbey became famous early in this century when it presented the works of a new school of Irish playwrights. Its actors included many who later became stars abroad.

"The Drums Are Out," a play by John Coulter of Toronto, was presented there three years ago.

In a 22-page review of evidence presented at an investigation last month, the judge said he felt that

Allies Plan Chain Of New Bases

Project Will Cost Nearly Billion, All Countries Share

LONDON, July 18. (AP) — The Atlantic Allies expect to have a chain of about 80 fighter and bomber fields in west Europe by the end of this year, official sources said today.

Some of the fields already are in operation. They include RAF bases in the British Isles, British bases used by American bombers and their jet-fighter escorts, and German bases already in use by American and British air forces.

Plans also have been made to expand the airfield program of western defence to about 200 fields by the end of 1953, the time when the big build-up of western defences is due to reach an effective and efficient size.

The idea is to scatter these additional fields strategically along Europe's western perimeter, from the Arctic to the Aegean.

All Co-operating

The countries in between which belong to the Atlantic Pact—Norway, Denmark, Iceland, The Netherlands, Belgium, France, Italy and Portugal—are all co-operating. Canada may also help foot the new bill.

(The New York Times says in a London dispatch today that the airfield project will cost nearly $1,000,000,000. It said final decision on cost sharing may be made by the North Atlantic treaty council in Ottawa late in September.)

France will have built 17 up-to-date fields on her own territory and five in the French sector of Western Germany by the first of next year, the story says. Other North Atlantic treaty countries had smaller programs.

The newspaper says the defence development is the result of a NATO strategy meeting which decided Western Europe needs a chain of air bases stretching from Norway to Italy.

Toronto Woman To Attempt Channel Swim

TORONTO, July 18 (CP) — A 25-year-old suburban Toronto housewife this August may become the first Canadian woman to swim the English Channel.

She still needs $100 to take her to England. She is planning on using one of the $250 prizes for finishing the Channel swim to get home again.

Mrs. Winnie Leusler of Willowdale was told Tuesday her application has been accepted in The London Daily Mail's annual 21-mile Channel crossing swim.

The Toronto swimmer, better known by her maiden name, Winnifred Roach, plans to fly to England July 26 in time for the first meeting July 28 of the 20 contestants. The race will be swum as soon after Aug. 13 as weather permits. First prize is $1,000.

Training In Lake

Winnie has been training in the cold, choppy waters of Lake Ontario since April. Under the watchful eye of her father and coach, Edward Roach, she has been making daily swims in the Canadian National Exhibition course with average times of 29 minutes for the mile. Experts consider a 32-minute average the maximum allowable if a swimmer is to complete the Channel swim.

She says she is confident of her ability because she is a natural swimmer.

"Swimmers who spend their time training for races tire easily," she said. "But if you swim naturally, neither rough water nor its coldness will bother you. You just naturally keep on until you reach shore."

For several years, Winnie has been among the top placers in the CNE five-mile swim, although she has never won it.

"But then, I never even trained for a swim until this one," she said.

As for her three children, aged eight months, two and four years, "They'll be well looked after while I'm away."

Gives Up Attempt To Form Cabinet

PARIS, July 18 (AP)—Finance Minister Maurice Petsche today gave up his week-long attempt to form a French cabinet.

Petsche told President Vincent Auriol he was unable to get France's political leaders to agree on a number of domestic issues. Auriol now must try to find someone else to try to do the job.

Auriol asked Petsche last Thursday to take the premiership and try to form a cabinet.

The right-wing independent began immediately to talk with leaders of all parties except the Communists and the followers of Gen. Charles De Gaulle. Since the extreme left Communists and the extreme right De Gaullists control about 230 of the national assemblies' 626 votes, any cabinet will have to have the combined support of nearly all the other parties in between.

One main obstacle to reaching full agreement is the old issue of whether the government should give financial help to Roman Catholic schools. Among the parties from which Petsche sought a majority, two are for granting the aid and two are against.

Plan Operation Totem Pole To Test Alaska Highway

OTTAWA, July 18. (CP)—A United States Army regimental combat team—about the size of a Canadian brigade group of 5,000 men—will conduct a training exercise along the Alaska Highway next month, the Defence Department said today.. The Canadian Government is co-operating with the US in that portion of the manoeuvre which will take US forces through Canadian territory, an Army statement said.

The Canadian area takes in most of the Haines cut-off, a highway which links Haines, Alaska with anchorage, Alaska but for the most part goes through the Yukon.

This 750-mile trek will be one of the longest overland manoeuvers of US troops since the Second World War.

The unit is to be the 196th US army regimental combat team from Camp Carson, Colorado.

To be known as "Totem Pole," the exercise is to test the ability of units this size to move overland under Arctic summer conditions. It is also to complete the training of the 196th.

Totem Pole will begin in the Seattle area, troops travelling by ship to Haines, the northern terminus of the inland passage to Alaska.

The whole operation is to take one month.

80 Forest Fires Burning In BC

VICTORIA, BC, July 18 (CP)—A tentative forecast for rain Thursday or Friday was issued Tuesday night as 80 forest fires burned in parched British Columbia.

Rain has steered clear of Vancouver island and the coastal mainland—at least in measurable amounts—for 41 days.

Large crews were fighting the still-dangerous fire on Sooke Lake Logging Company property on Vancouver island.

The weather office said "there is a 50-50 chance" of rain Thursday or Friday if an air mass over the Pacific continues on its present route.

Most of the fire fighting was on a patrol basis. But near Telegraph Creek, on the northern mainland, a fire 15 miles long was eating through poplar and willow stands.

Dutch Queen To Visit Canada

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, July 18 (Reuters)—Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands will make an official visit to the United States and Canada next year, it was announced here today.

The invitation to the United States, the communique said, came from President and Mrs. Truman, while that to Canada came from Governor-General Viscount Alexander and Lady Alexander.

Both invitations have been "accepted in principle."

Dates of the visits will be decided later.

This will be Queen Juliana's first visit to the United States since she ascended the throne. She spent several years in Canada during the Second World War and visited the United States when she was Princess Juliana.

His father is a hardware store clerk.

Hail Damages Crops In Sask.

SASKATOON, July 18 (CP) — Hail battered grain crops and caused 50 to 100 per cent damage Monday in scattered strips of territory between the Alberta boundary and Saskatoon.

Reports of damage came in Tuesday. Apparently it was the same eastward-moving storm that ripped Southern Alberta crops earlier.

At Cando, midway between Biggar and North Battleford, hail stones were reported lying six inches deep on the ground, with 100-per-cent damage along a narrow strip.

The temperature dropped from 82 to 56 degrees within a few minutes. Winds of hurricane strength accompanied the hail.

In Southern Alberta, hailstorms during the last three days have destroyed thousands of acres of crops. In Calgary Tuesday night, a 15-minute hailstorm broke thousands of windows.

Hit The Dirt

No Safe Place in Storm But Some Spots Safer

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 18.—(AP)—There's no safe place in a thunderstorm—only some places are safer than others.

If you think an open field is safe, or that you'd better turn off the electric switches and the radio or that lightning rods are no use, listen to Julius H. Hagenguth, General Electric director of the laboratory here which has been making lightning for years.

He says: avoid open fields. It a surprise thunder shower catches you on the golf course, take shelter in a building. If none is available, you will be safer, though damper and dirtier, lying on the ground.

Why is an isolated tree a bad spot? Because the lightning can jump in the air from the tree to you. Also because the stroke may spread underground where you stand through the roots of the tree.

If you are travelling in an all-metal car, stay inside. If you have to get out, never stand with one foot touching the ground while the other touches the car. In that position you will make a good conductor for lightning from the car to the ground.

It won't do much good to rush around dousing electric lights and other switches before an electrical storm. Lightning which has jumped 2,000 feet from clouds to ground will not be stopped by the fraction of an inch break in turning off a switch.

During the storm keep away from electrical fixtures, lights, telephones, radios, television sets and other conductors of electricity.

And keep out of the water, especially the bath tub and swimming.

The lightning rod, by directing the stroke, is still man's best protection.

The total number of Americans injured and killed annually by lightning is about 3,000.

Say Many Gloucesters In Prison Camps

KAESONG, Korea, July 18 — (Reuters)—Hundreds of British prisoners, survivors of the Gloucester battalion's heroic stand on the Imin River in April, are in prison camps in North Korea, Chinese Communist newspapermen said here today.

The Red correspondents said the British troops are being well treated.

(Between 500 and 600 Gloucesters were reported killed, wounded or missing after their three-day stand which broke the Communist second spring offensive.)

To Visit Washington

LONDON, July 18 (AP)—Well-informed sources reported today Prime Minister Attlee may take another trip to Washington late next month for talks with President Truman and other American leaders. Mr. Attlee is expected to go over the whole range of British-American relations and world issues with American leaders.

See High Price Asked For Spain's Bases

MADRID, July 18 AP)—Admiral Forrest P. Sherman has asked Generalissimo Franco what he would want in return for United States use of Spanish air and naval bases, reliable informants reported Tuesday.

The sources said the American chief of naval operations asked Franco at their two-hour meeting Monday for the right to use four naval bases and three to five air bases.

Franco's price is likely to come high. He wants the means of improving Spain's poor highways and railroads, dollars to get materials and machinery for industry, modern planes for his air force and heavy equipment for his arn

US Outlines Plans

Usually well-informed sources said Sherman told Franco the US wants naval bases at Cadiz, north west of Gibraltar; Cartagena, on the Mediterranean coast; Ferrol, on the Bay of Biscay north of Portugal, and Santa Cruz de Tenerite in the Canary Islands, and airfields at Barcelona, Madrid, Seville and possibly Valencia and Lugo, southwest of Ferrol.

Mediterranean strategy also was discussed, it was reported. Sherman will go to Paris Thursday and presumably will inform Gen. Eisenhower, Atlantic pact chief, of the viewpoints uncovered in the talks here.

Diplomatic circles in Madrid said they believed the US is too tightly linked to Britain and France to override their political objections to bringing Spain into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization directly, or to the signing of a US-Spanish defense pact.

Moderate Buying Boosts Industrials

TORONTO, July 18 (CP). — Moderate buying pushed industrials higher as the session progressed on the stock market today. The rest of the board remained in a fairly mixed and narrow price path.

Industrial advances ranged from fractions to the odd increase of a point or more. Steels and utilities led the section in gains. Papers, constructions, foods, textiles, refining oils, liquors and manufacturing companies followed.

Base metals were fairly mixed. Caltinan Fin Flon came to life at noon and chalked up a volume of about 193,000 shares. It advanced 13½ cents to 35 cents, then slipped to 30. United Asbestos, a recent feature, was again extremely active but down 20 cents. United Keno Hill, Quemont, Quebec Manitou, Consolidated Smelters and Falconbridge eased while Sherritt Gordon, Labrador, Normetal and East Sullivan posted small gains.

Western oils were mixed.

Golds were mixed with price changes mostly limited to small amounts.

Unknown Driver Pulls Two From Burning Car

AURORA, July 18. (CP)—A young couple was pulled from a burning automobile Tuesday after a head-on collision. An unidentified motorist rescued Jackson Smethurst, 26, of Margueretta St., and Peggy Higgins, 25, of Lappin Ave., Toronto, after Smethurst's car collided with a car driven by Gerald Marshak, 46, of Birmingham, Ala. Five persons were injured in the accident.

PC Ollie Olsen of the provincial police said the Smethurst car crashed head-on into the American car in the southbound lane. There are three lanes on No. 11 Highway just north of Aurora. The officer said it could not be determined why the northbound Smethurst car was in the south lane.

Injuries

Smethurst received a broken thigh. Miss Higgins suffered a fractured pelvis and loss of eight teeth. Mr. Marshak was cut about the face and his wife, Bunny, 31, had a broken thigh. A son, Larry, 2, also received a broken thigh when hurled against the windshield by the impact.

The injured were treated on the scene by Dr. G. W. Williams of Aurora and removed to York County Hospital at Newmarket. Miss Higgins' purse, containing her holiday money, was lost in the burning car.

Smethurst's car burst into flames immediately after the collision. The Marshak family had just completed a vacation at Jackson's Point on Lake Simcoe and were on their way to Toronto to visit friends before returning home.

The United Nations delegation, headed by Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, is opposed to including the question of troop withdrawal in armistice talks.

Political Question

A member of the delegation has indicated UN conferees consider this a political question which can be properly discussed only at a higher level after the cease-fire has been signed.

Observers say that should the point come to an impasse, a possible compromise might be for both sides to agree to a "limited withdrawal," involving the removal from Korea of part of the UN forces and a proportionate number of Chinese.

Best Eighth Army estimates place about 250,000 Chinese soldiers in the front lines or in immediate reserve. Another 250,000 are estimated to be farther back along the Korea-Manchuria border.

United Nations forces are about the same size.

Allied troops kept a close watch on a Red build-up northeast of the Kaesong conference site.

Reds in the Kaesong area have kept clear of the five-mile neutral zone, observers report. There has been no suggestion that the build-up in the region has reached threatening proportions.

Night-flying Allied planes, in their second successive night of heavy strikes, reported considerable Red traffic on the highways.

Car Runs Amuck Driver Charged

BELLEVILLE, July 18.—John I. Folster, Princess St., was charged with careless driving here today after an accident in which he and two other people were injured.

Folster was driver of a car which missed a curve on Highway 2 at the west end of Belleville at 5:30 a.m. The car travelled 325 feet before striking a tree.

Before striking the tree, the car knocked out a piece of guard rail, a chunk of curbing, tore up some shrubbery on several lawns, hit a parked car, glanced off the verandah of a house and smacked into the tree.

Both Falster's auto and the parked car were badly damaged. The curve Folster missed is known as the Devil's Elbow.

Another Peterborough man, Max Elliott, was a passenger. He was uninjured.

Hurt were Joan Beckwith, 27, and Dorothy McCabe, both of Belleville. Miss Beckwith suffered two broken ankles, and Miss McCabe, chest injuries.

Report Miners Leaving Timmins Area

TIMMINS, July 18 — (CP).—It is reported a number of the miners on strike at Hollinger Gold Mines are leaving for other parts of Ontario in search of work.

George Charron, in charge of the National Employment Service office, said a number of transfer books have been issued but declined to say how many. He added that men leaving Timmins did not necessarily have to get books here.

A moving company said it was booked up for 10 days with advance orders for families moving away. There were reports 15 to 20 men were arriving at Sudbury looking for work with International Nickel Company.

Hope Reports False

Company officials and spokesmen for the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) said they had no evidence to support reports many miners were leaving and "hoped they were not true."

The strike started July 9 in demand of a 17-cent-an-hour increase and company check-off of union dues.

Mayor Philip Fay now is in Ottawa seeking Federal intervention. The Town Council and the Porcupine Chamber of Commerce have stated that if the price freeze on gold—now pegged at $35 an ounce—is taken off the gold mines would be able to pay higher wages and free the industry of many of its problems.

It was announced at the Town Hall that Premier Frost has advised Council that Labor Department mediation facilities are available to both sides if desired.

The committee's membership was reduced from 27 to 25 by the resignations of Representatives Robert Secrest (Dem.-O.) and Henderson Lanham (Dem.-Ga.). Secrest said they agreed not to attend today's meeting.

Their departures, however, were seen as having little effect on immediate voting because each cancelled out the other. Lanham has been for the seaway, Secrest against.

Representative T. M. Machrowicz (Dem.-Mich.), a seaway opponent, is successor to Secrest, effective upon convening of the House today. This makes it impossible for him to vote.

$25,000,000 Aid Promised Flooded Areas

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 18—(AP).—The federal government today moved to rush generous aid to the flood-stricken areas of Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma.

President Truman, who made an 800-mile aerial tour of the waterlogged states, pledged quick action.

Charles E. Wilson, defence mobilization director, said key federal agencies would work swiftly to alleviate "the awful conditions the flood has caused."

Congress has voted a $25,000,000 fund. Truman said this was only preliminary money to meet the immediate situation.

During his trip the President saw at least 1,000,000 acres that were inundated or has been under water. His plane flew over flooded industrial districts, wrecked bridges, smashed residential areas and ruined farms.

Additional Losses

Damage in Missouri and Kansas alone has been estimated in excess of $750,000,000—and receding waters are uncovering additional losses daily. The death toll is 23.

High waters continued to drop in the Kansas City area, and in flooded eastern and central Kansas and northeastern Oklahoma.

But the swollen Missouri and Mississippi rivers still pounded central and eastern Missouri.

Waterfront property at St. Louis was taking a heavy beating from the Mississippi. Damage already has reached an estimated $750,000.

The Missouri empties into the Mississippi north of St. Louis. Although the Missouri is cascading tons of water into the swollen Mississippi, its crest is only about halfway across the state.

Children Derail Engine Tender

Mischievous children playing on a CPR spur line leading into the Outboard Marine Co. plant derailed the tender of a locomotive early Tuesday night.

The locomotive had left the main track at High Street and picked up a couple of freight cars on the Outboard siding. In the meantime some children threw the switch and when the engine backed out the tender was derailed. Nobody was injured.

The mishap occurred shortly after 8 p.m., and the tender was not back on the track until early today. A wrecking outfit was brought in from Havelock to complete the job and a gang of workmen labored to repair the damage.

Britain Fears Spanish Pact Weakens Stand

LONDON, July 18 (CP) — A foreign office spokesman said today the British government feels any bilateral defence agreement between the United States and Spain would weaken the western stand against totalitarianism.

The British government objects not only to the admission of Spain to the Atlantic Pact but also to "any closer association" between Spain and any of the pact's members.

The spokesman refused to reply directly when asked whether Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador in Washington, had conveyed Britain's views on the question to the United States government specifically in connection with the visit to Madrid of Admiral Forrest Sherman, United States chief of naval operations.

Open Talks

In Washington, State Secretary Dean Acheson announced that the United States has opened talks with Spain's Franco government on its possible role in the defence of Europe.

He conceded that the United States is split with Britain and France on the question.

Acheson said in a statement read to his press conference that "military authorities are in general agreement that Spain is of strategic importance to the general defence of Western Europe."

Cobourg Utilities Union Meets Management

COBOURG, Juply 18 (ENS) — A deputation of utilities workers and two representatives of the National Organization of Civic, Utility and Electrical Workers (CCL), met with the Cobourg Public Utilities Commission Tuesday night to present a tentative contract.

Union representatives were G. K. Harris and Jim Clarke of Toronto. The Commission listened to the union men, gave a superficial perusal of the contract and assured the union that the contract would be gone into carefully and any counter proposals which the commission desired, would be conveyed to the union at a later meeting.

Mr. Clarke told the commission the union had been requested by the employees of the electrical and water departments to come into the picture. The contract, he said, was essentially the same in principle as that in effect in larger centres but he admitted that no other municipality as small as Cobourg was as yet organized.

Chairman Maurice Booth asked if the men had any grievances and Mr. Harris declared that it was not a case of having grievances but rather the desire to be organized as in other places.

As the contract called for a closed shop, Mr. Booth asked how many other centres operated a union on the closed shop basis and he was informed by Mr. Harris, in reply, that practically all the organized centres in that union had closed shops.

Mr. Booth pointed out that Cobourg was the only municipality its size with a pension plan for the utilities workers and it functioned on the generous basis of the utilities paying 7½ per cent and the employees 2 per cent.

The contract applies to all employees except those employed in capacities in which they have the authority to hire and fire.

Mr. Booth pointed out that the chief operator at the water works could not hire or fire but he had a very responsible position of authority and he wondered how he could come within the classification of the union contract. In addition he rented his quarters at the water works on a basis which was tied in with his remuneration, a complicating detail to be covered by the contract.

The wage scale suggested was admittedly only tentative but it would bring water works employees up to the wage level quite comparable with those doing hazardous line work in the electrical dept., it was noted.

The contract also calls for a 40-hour week as compared with the present 46-hour week.

Suez Blockade Causes Problem

LONDON, July 18 (Reuters)—Britain is seeking United States co sponsorship of a resolution asking for security council action in connection with the Egyptian "blockade" of the Suez canal, a usually well-informed source said here today.

A British draft resolution has been circulated to a number of delegations at Lake Success in the last few days including those of the United States, France and the Netherlands, this source added.

So far no definite United States opinion on the British resolution has been forthcoming.

Diplomatic quarters thought Britain might go ahead and table the resolution even without American support.

CNR Conductor Buried In Cobourg Cemetery

COBOURG, July 18 — (ENS)—Conductor on the CNR, John A. Flesch was buried yesterday in St. Michael's Roman Catholic cemetery, following services at the church. He was 61 and had been on sick leave from the railway for more than a year. Death occurred Sunday after a hospital stay of two weeks. He had been conductor for the past 34 years. Mr. Flesch was a native of Cobourg.

He is survived by his widow, who was Mrs. Annie McManus of Cobourg; a daughter, Ruth of Cobourg; a sister, Mrs. M. McEentee, Cobourg; three brothers, Leo and Jerry of Cobourg and Amby of Sudbury.

Wets Line Up In Readiness For Fall Vote On Liquor

CAMPBELLFORD, July 18 — (ENS). — A meeting of the Citizens' Committee to consider what action is to be taken with regard to having a vote here this fall to consider the question of establishing a brewers' warehouse was held Monday evening with a large number of citizens and business men present.

Three years ago the "drys" won the election by the narrowest of margins, and it was not until after a judge had recounted the ballots that the final decision was announced. The "wets" lost the question by two-fifths of one per cent, with a 59 3-5 majority, but not quite enough to carry, as a 60 per cent majority is needed.

A petition has been circulated among the people of the town during the past few weeks, and if the number of signatures on it is any indication as to how the vote will go next fall, Campbellford will no doubt cease to be the "dry" town it has been for years and will boast a warehouse. The petition at present has almost twice the number of signatures as did the petition of three years ago.

Tourist Trade Loss

The business men of the town are very much concerned over the loss of tourist trade caused through the town not having an outlet. Tourists, especially Americans, by-pass the town because of their inability to purchase spirits in it. The increase in business in the various towns throughout the province that have voted "wet" is one of the biggest arguments for the wet side of the campaign.

The business men are not in favor of a beverage room, but see no reason why those who want to purchase spirits must drive to neighboring towns and cities to do so. The resultant loss of trade has been vividly portrayed during the past few years, and many business places in the town have closed, especially business firms with a branch store in the town. At least three of these have left the town during the past couple of months, and it is significant to note that these firms have located where there is a liquor outlet.

The argument was presented at the meeting on Monday evening, that people who are going to purchase spirits will do so, no matter where they have to go, and it is to the advantage of the town to have the business remain in the town, as people purchase groceries, meats and other commodities out of town when they make their "wet" purchases.

A committee was formed to look after the question, and Glen Taylor of Campbellford was named chairman. Howard Hogle was voted vice-chairman, Frank Root secretary, Clarence Massey treasurer, and George W. Graham campaign manager.

Jet Stream Study Solve Weather?

TORONTO, July 18 — (CP) — A study of two jet streams that swirl around the earth at about 35,000 feet may hold the key to successful long-range weather forecasting.

That's what Dr. D. P. McIntyre, Toronto meteorologist, says in an article in the current issue of Physics In Canada. He writes that jet streams have long waves and short waves.

"The basis for longer range forecasting lies in the forecasting of the position of the long waves. While we do not know where the short waves which roll along the polar front will be at any time within the next day or two, we know the general path they must follow and, therefore, the general pattern of the weather."

Outdoor Service Held At Healey Falls

CAMPBELLFORD, July 18 — An outdoor church service was held at the Woodland Estate, Healey Falls, on Sunday evening under the Fellowship of the Young Adult Fellowship of Campbellford Baptist Church.

The first portion of the service consisted of sacred recordings over a public address system which enabled those in boats and cars as well as those on the spacious lawn to enjoy the service.

President Roy Ford welcomed the large crowd which gathered, and paid tribute to his co-workers for the success of the out-door services.

Music for the occassion was furnished by Miss Beryl Nichols with her piano accordion, and Mrs. H. S. Staples led in the singing of several hymns.

Mrs. Clarence Young read a passage of scripture and the Rev. H. S. Staples gave a short message entitled "It depends on you." Mr. Staples reminded his listeners that the church is the greatest influence for good and that the church is only as strong as its members.

What If Management Had Said It?

Because a number of labour leaders do not like the decision given by Mr. Justice Gale relating to the Ontario Labour Relations Board, they have made declarations that labour will ignore the law. "Either the act satisfies us or we won't accept it," said Mr. William Jenoves, president of the Toronto Labour Council. That sort of talk is silly, and we shall not attempt to refute it; we do not think that organized labour—as opposed to some of the more rhetorical labour leaders—supports any such nonsense.

* * *

We ask, instead, what organized labour would have to say if business and management talked in that strain? What an outcry there would be about irresponsible self-seeking! It is time that Canadian labour came of age, and one sign of maturity is that you stop asking people to feel your muscles. Organized labour in Canada is a large and powerful element in the national economy, and it must stop rocking the boat and indulging itself in fits of hysterics whenever it is displeased.

* * *

Everything that labour has today it has by grace of the law. If labour chooses to weaken the law, it destroys the foundations of its own liberties and privileges. Rebellion against the law is rebellion against the state, and an attempt to establish special privileges for labour which are not enjoyed by other citizens is undemocratic.

* * *

On June 17 Mr. Pat Conroy made an excellent speech in this city in which he stressed the need for education in the labour movement. We agreed with Mr. Conroy then, and we agree with him still; the outbursts of those labour leaders who counsel rebellion against the law in the hope of gaining advantages for labour points to a need, in the case of those leaders, for some elementary instruction in history; no group has ever put itself outside the law, without bringing destruction upon its head, and labour is not an exception to the rules of history.

Canada's Policy On The Cease-Fire

Last spring our Minister of External Affairs said some things about Canadian policy regarding U.N. and China which have a bearing on the present negotiations for an armistice in Korea. He asks "What should we do if the main aggressor should exploit the provisions of the Charter for the maintenance of the peace everywhere, in order to weaken us so that one day the peace cannot be maintained anywhere? What can we do to prevent the principle of collective security being used to weaken collective security in practice?"

In trying to maintain general security in a two-power world, Mr. Pearson believes that the following principles should be followed: (1) recognize unprovoked aggression, whether committed by great or small powers, for what it is, and take appropriate action. "This action may have to vary, however, according to circumstances." Thus the aggression of North Koreans against South was recognized by U.N. (2) Never formally condemn an aggressor until the fact of his aggression is clearly proven by impartial evidence, and until mediatory and conciliatory functions of the United Nations have been exhausted. Mr. Pearson believes that Canada was right in voting last February for the U.S. resolution condemning Communist Chinese aggression."

"I still think, however, it was unwise to force a vote on that Resolution until we had made a further and final effort at negotiating along lines which would have picked up Peking's ambiguous reply to the Cease-Fire group's proposals."

(3) Condemnation of aggression should not mean that in every case economic and military sanctions must follow:

"The enforcement action to be taken against an aggressor must be related to the practicability of such action; to the general strategic and political situation, and to the possibility of such enforcement action weakening the peaceful and law abiding powers in other areas, and thereby tempting another and a far more serious threat to the peace."

Mr. Pearson believes that Canada and other western nations were right in refusing to allow the resolution of condemnation to be followed by immediate enforcement action against the Peking Government. "This would not, in my view, have been effective in ending the war in Korea; it would have been effective in extending the conflict to the mainland of China. I am not one of those who think that the Peking regime would soon collapse from such a conflict. I am one of those who think that Moscow would be its main and only possible beneficiary. We should not, therefore, in my view, take any avoidable action against China or in Korea which would weaken what is still the main front of the Free World—Western Europe!" (4) Even when an aggressor has been condemned and condemnatory action has been taken, we should recognize that this has limits. Mr. Pearson instanced the League of Nations' condemnation of Fascist Italy in its action against Abyssinia "which so fatally weakened that organization". The condemnation was easy; what was wrong was the impression that the League of Nations' resolutions regarding sanctions would be acted on, and then doing nothing about them.

Thus Mr. Pearson lays a basis for Canada's policy toward China and Korea, which is this: recognize aggression, but do not be stampeded into any impracticable condemnation or wholesale action which would waste the western strength while Russia sat by and benefited. He has stated that the war in Korea should be localized and ended as soon as possible. "We should do this, if we can, by negotiating terms of peace . . . If negotiation is not possible, we have no alternative but to do our best to stabilize the military position . . . This means refusing to be stampeded into action, such as a massive attack towards the Manchurian border, if such action were possible militarily but felt to be unwise politically."

Mr. Pearson's summary is the keynote to Canada's attitude towards the present armistice talks in Korea: end the war honourably; if not, keep the war as quiet and localized as possible. Russia, not China, is the chief antagonist. The West must not waste itself while Russia fattens.

Let The Princess Come To Peterborough And Skip Bytown

Peterborough has officially invited H.R.H. Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to visit the city on their Canadian tour. A good many other Canadian places have issued similar invitations. Obviously the Royal couple cannot visit them all. The Ottawa Journal remarked loftily last week that:

> Clearly a great many communities will be disappointed, because in a short visit and a coast-to-coast tour (even by air) there just will not be time to accept all invitations or any large proportion of them. But if Bingville doesn't see the Princess it may take some small consolation from the fact that neither has the Princess seen Bingville.

The Ottawa Journal can afford to be smug and lordly, resting secure in their presumption that Ottawa is not Bingville, and that the Royal couple must stop off at Ottawa, even if they do not want to. Ottawa is the capital. However, it was formerly called Bytown (and in some civic respects still resembles that clearing in the woods); only by the accident of circumstance did Princess Elizabeth's great-great-grandmother designate the gawky settlement as Canada's capital. The Princess and the Duke must visit the Capital. But what would the Journal say if they by-passed Bytown and visited only Capital Hill, slinking into the East Block by a back door, and avoiding Ottawa's civic eyes and eye-sores altogether? If Bytown didn't see the Princess, it could take some small consolation from the fact that neither had the Princess seen Bytown.

Actually, of course, since the Princess must visit Ottawa and also visit Toronto, and Peterborough is on the direct rail line between the two points—one might say it is the very hub—what could be simpler, fairer and easier than a Royal stop-over in Peterborough? We humbly believe that the Royal couple would enjoy Peterborough's hospitality and her lovely Kawartha setting among seven hills along the Trent waterway, as much as they would the sallow Rideau canal, the village baroque of Bank Street and the stuffed shirting draping the Civil Service.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A lot of family skeletons are now to be seen in bathing-suits.

A physician advises eating less as a technique of health. But hunger seems a terrible price to pay for it.

A physicist has shown that he can extinguish a candle flame by playing high notes on a violin. Maybe Nero was only trying to put Rome out.

An Illinois doctor says that high heels are turning women's feet into hooves. May we look forward to a dainty revival of the old blacksmith shop?

A statistician informs us that the English language is spoken by 180,000,000 people. Well—if you're not too fussy about what you call English—yes.

After some deep thinking we have decided that the psychologist who said that men and women were on an equal intellectual footing was being rather hard on both sexes.

There are many cases in which the laws of supply and demand don't operate. Take the cost of living, for example. The demand for living is no stronger now than it was ten years ago, yet the cost of living is twice what it was then.

Sugar Ray Loses Boxer's Crown

By MAURICE RICHARDSON

LIFE, said Hegel, is an incessant struggle of partisan views. So far as we know, the great Prussian idealist—though by no means unsophisticated, or uninterested in minutiae: did he not write for his wife a series of fashion-notes on Paris hats — never attended a glove-fight. His dictum, however, might have been composed from a ringside seat.

Anyone who sat, a week ago Tuesday night, in the smoke-blue stadium, or dream-dome, at Earls Court, and watched the stocky, twenty-three-year-old banana-skinned Randolph Adolphus Turpin, of Leamington Spa, win his most deserved points victory and collect the world's middleweight championship from the lithe, thirty-year-old negro from Detroit, Sugar Ray Robinson, will most certainly subscribe to it.

IT is not so easy to be partisan about this pair. The Irishman who could never see two flies circling round a blob of jam without siding violently with one of them would be hard put to it to choose. Patriotism and natural sympathy with the lesser-known incline one to Turpin of course. But there is something really charming and generous about the graceful and fabulous Sugar. That present to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund of his percentage of the gate in his New York championship fight with Charley Fusari last year was not untypical.

About the fight itself there can be plenty of controversy.

✦ ✦ ✦

THIS is indeed the night. Eighteen thousand seats and among those sitting in them, as a programme seller puts it, "nearly all the nobs and every bookmaker in London." A knowing crime-reporter friend, whose luck it is, tells me he counted five fences in his compartment on the Underground.

Mr. Solomons thoroughly deserves his excellent reputation as a showman and the atmosphere at the woefully understaffed bars in the vast echoing concrete spaces round behind the stadium is delightfully tense—and pretty thick. The gong ringing from the preliminary bouts—a seemingly infinite series of amateur semi-finals — keeps our nerves tight.

✦ ✦ ✦

WE settle into our seats for the best of the supporting fights in which Dave Sands, Empire middleweight champion and holder of the Australian middle, cruiser and heavyweight titles, outpoints Turpin's sparring partner, the American negro, Mel Brown, but doesn't impress us as much as we had hoped he would. Brown, incidentally, is also by the way of being an astrologer and an artist.

As always at fights, I am amazed at the passion with which paunchy gents, whom no insurance company would ever pass, dispute about the noble art, demonstrating with their cigars.

✦ ✦ ✦

IT'S getting electric now. My eye is caught by some curious restangles of blue light high up in the roof. Perhaps they serve a hidden purpose in the general mechanism of illusion.

The fanfares blow, and Turpin, in homely, almost mousey, dressing-gown, climbs into the ring to a tremendous roar.

More trumpets. The Stars and Stripes unfurls as Sugar arrives, his retinue in the season's smartest blue and white. Sugar himself wears a blue and white striped hood that might have easily been designed by Schiaparelli.

Sugar undresses and starts dancing to warm up. Turpin sits very calm and solid. When referee calls them over for the pep talk you note the square strength of his back and shoulders.

Next thing you know it's begun.

✦ ✦ ✦

WE spend the first three rounds realizing that Turpin is absolutely calm, boxing beautifully coolly, and quite prepared to carry the fight to Robinson. At the same time, we tell ourselves that Sugar is just warming up. Soon will come a turn of that tremendous speed and a drum-burst of punches from both fists and all angles....But time and again Turpin ducks and aways and makes him miss and counters with a jabbing left.

Turpin's body-work in this fight is superb. He makes Robinson miss scores of times. In clinches he is quite as clever as Sugar and obviously stronger.

✦ ✦ ✦

ROBINSON puts on a bit more speed in the sixth round. His sense of distance, which has seemed woefully astray, is better now, and he lands some of the long slinging punches which are such a feature of his style. Then, in the seventh, there is a mix-up and a collision, and as they part there are roars: "His eye! Look at Sugar's eye! Turpin's opened his eye, I tell you."

He has, indeed, but he has done it, quite inadvertently, with his head.

Seconds ply the medicine chest, and Sugar's speed and enchanting, snake-like agility help him to keep out of trouble. But Turpin is now piling up a slight yet definite points lead and carrying the fight to his man harder and further each round, despite several really big efforts by Sugar to get on top.

By the end of the fourteenth round it's quite definitely Turpin's fight, even though Sugar has managed to land one punch with his full weight behind it.

The roar and the scenes and the singing when Turpin wins are all terrific. But why should fifty-six bookmakers, none of whom are noted for either their taste, elegance, reticence, or diffidence, in clothes, cars or deportment, sneer at Sugar for his perfectly legitimate, professional publicity-seeking?

✦ ✦ ✦

BATTLING into the dressing-rooms with my Press card held open in my teeth, I take some severe punishment from policemen's elbows, but keep on my feet, which is more than can be said for a distinguished, though not very tall, novelist colleague whom I rescue from being irretrievably crushed.

Turpin is sitting on the rubbing table cross-legged like a tailor, thumbing the edge of his horny right toe-nail. He is sweating and happy and friendly. I ask him how many times he thinks he made Sugar miss, and he grins and says: "I can't count that far."

His nice homely retinue—manager George Middleton (a grocer), trainer Billy Hyam, second Mick Gavin, a labourer, and his brother and teacher, ex-champion Dick—are in various states of emotional ecstasy. One family friend is completely overcome and says to me, with tears pouring down his cheeks and on to my shoulder: "It ought to have been Dick in there, I tell you. It ought to have been Dick."

SUGAR is sitting naked except for a towel over his shoulders, on his table, sucking a piece of ice. The cut on his eye is a beast and has to have ten stitches. Otherwise he looks, though tousled, very little marked. He looks as a good loser ought to look, not pleased—this one is the reverse of a masochist—but quite calm and casual and entirely undesperate.

His pretty wife, Edna May, kisses him and behaves equally correctly. She does later tell me that Sugar wasn't himself, was a bit tired, and ought to have fought Turpin at the beginning of a strenuous and exhausting tour instead of at the end. This is the kind of wifely loyalty with which we all sympathize, though in fact I incline to agree with her.

His even prettier sister Evelyn, wearing a hat with a veil of which Hegel would certainly have approved, suddenly says: "Come on everybody, don't look so sad."

The expressed verdict on the fight from Sugar and his entire retinue is: "No alibis. Turpin was good, better than we thought, and a lot stronger."

Manager Gainford says: "This'll do us no harm at all. And the return fight'll be a wow."

✦ ✦ ✦

AND that was that. Not a great fight by any means from a boxing point of view, but a good fast and exciting display. On Tuesday's form, I think Marcel Thil, or even Len Harvey, could have beaten either of them. On the way home I find myself deep in discussion with a new acquaintance about the great ones of the past of, how Jack Johnson could tire anyone in three rounds by leading for his biceps, and of the one and only Dixie Kid, who fought at four weights, and had to be paid to throw a fight when he was sixty-five.

Letter To The Editor

WHERE PARKING METER MONEY GOES

Sir: I see by the Examiner a week or more ago that the parking meters collection has reached $110,019 in four years. I know the meters have to be paid for, but what is being done with all this money, plus fines at the police station, also court fines for parking fines and other traffic mistakes (some are uncalled for?). I think an account should be rendered to the public of what becomes of all this money. Why not have an auditor for the whole of the city's spending and not put "miscellaneous" to cover thousands of dollars? I don't see the police expenses any less on our taxes and the taxes are tremendous for the size of Peterborough and the roads and sidewalks are a disgrace. So why not give the public a report of all this money collected for parking meters, fines, court fines, property taxes etc. and lots of other ways in which the city gets money from the public? Lodges, institutes etc. have to employ an auditor for their books so why not the city? Let's get things straight with the public monies.

A CITIZEN.

(Ed. Note: (a) Parking meter revenue goes into the city treasury and becomes part of the general annual revenue. Most of the $110,019 has already been spent on parks, sanitation, snow clearing etc. Thus the amount of money which must be collected by taxes has been reduced by the profit got from parking meters. (b) Every department of the city must account for all its revenue and expenses every year. All city accounts are audited each year by a thoroughly competent and independent auditor, who is a Chartered Accountant. The city's financial statements and the Auditor's Report are printed annually, and a copy of the booklet may be seen at the City Buildings. This gives details such as the amount of money collected from police court fines, dog licences, illuminated signs and the like, as well as the amount yielded by taxes. It also shows what the money is spent for. These accounts are public and may be inspected on request by any citizen.)

These Are Blunt Facts

(Guelph Mercury)

It should not be forgotten that the average man in Canadian penitentiaries is there because he tried to kill someone, to rob him, to burn down his house, to defraud him, to swindle him or to perform some other outrage. These are blunt facts but they are facts nevertheless.

When an individual or a newspaper proceeds to pity the prisoner and belabor the penitentiary official before knowing the first thing about the merits of the case, the performance is manifestly lacking in fairness.

There may be grievances at times; there may be errors in judgement on the part of prison officials. When they are made known they should be promptly corrected. But it is safe to say that 90 per cent. of these penitentiary disorders are not due to bad officials but to bad inmates.

The most common grievance, it is safe to say, arises from the prisoner's lack of freedom to make himself the menace to law-abiding people he was before the penitentiary doors closed on him.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thus saith the Lord, What iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me, and have walked after vanity, and are become vain?....For my people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water. (Jer. 2, 5, 13.)

What profiteth the graven image that the maker thereof hath graven it; the molten image, and a teacher of lies, that the maker of his work trusteth therein, to make dumb idols? Woe unto him that saith to the wood, Awake: to the dumb stone, Arise, it shall teach! Behold, it is laid over with gold and silver, and there is no breath at all in the midst of it.

But the Lord is in his holy temple: let all the earth keep silence before him. (Hab. 2: 18-20.)

✦ ✦ ✦

God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things....

For in him we live, and move, and have our being. (Acts 17: 24, 25, 28.)

Unconsidered Trifles

A young woman, newly engaged, took her fiance to be "inspected" by a fearsome aunt who had that uncomfortable habit of saying exactly what she thought.

As the couple were leaving the aunt said to her niece, "My dear, I'd rather have him for lunch than for life!"

✦ ✦ ✦

It was the first vaudeville performance the old woman had ever seen and she was particularly excited over the feats of the magician. But when he covered a newspaper with a heavy flannel cloth and read the print through it she grew a little nervous. He then doubled the cloth and again read the letters accurately. This was more than she could stand and, rising in her seat, she said: "I'm goin' home. This ain't no place for a lady in a thin calico dress!"

This Should Do It

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

Car driving in Kingston is likely to show a sharp improvement for the better.

Magistrate James B. Garvin says that from now on careless drivers will be given jail terms. Perhaps some people there will think that it cannot happen to them but, after one jail sentence is imposed, the chances are that they, too, will wake up.

The magistrate's decision was occasioned by the fact that in the past month in Kingston 40 people have been hospitalized as a result of motor car accidents.

It appears as if Magistrate Garvin's reasoning is good and his cure excellent.

Price War Tinge Enters Sale Of English Cars

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Something of a "price war" has entered into competition among Toronto motor-car dealers for the sale of low-priced English car, price slashes reaching close to $500 a car.

Virtually all the offers have centred around the British Ford Prefect model, with a Toronto price of $1,565, including taxes.

One dealer advertised Prefects, together with licence and 5,000 miles of free gas, and with new car warranty, for $1,195.

A second firm, heading its advertisement "Price War", offered them at $1,088, with licence, and added: "We will not be undersold."

Still another dealer offered for $1 a television set valued at $675 for each Prefect bought; and varying quotations have come from other firms.

Though the rash of special offers centred around the Prefects, the slowdown in sales is felt by virtually all car makes, following increased taxes and credit restrictions calling for higher down-payments and higher installments.

One dealer, explaining the Prefect cuts, said there had been heavy sales of this model last year, and orders had been placed in expectation of a similar business this year.

Hit Hard

Then, he added, along came the credit restrictions, and the Prefect was especially hit because most of its sales are to people in the moderate-income group. Now, the dealers need to turn the stocks into cash to take care of their financing commitments, and to get their money into faster-moving lines.

It is not thought that an actual loss is being taken at the lower prices. One dealer, at least, said he is making a profit, though operating on a narrow margin.

For one thing, some of the cars were bought before the tax raises of the last budget. And, for another ,each slash in basic car price brings a slash in tax, and thus a part of the lower price is at no cost to the dealer.

Several dealers said they are getting good response at the lower prices.

NZ Defence Head Will Visit Canada

OTTAWA, July 18 — (CP) — Defence Minister T. L. Macdonald of New Zealand is coming to Canada Saturday for a four-day look at the Canadian defence effort as a guest of Defence Minister Claxton.

He is coming from the United Kingdom and will go to New York and Washington from here. Authorities say there is no particular significance attached to the visit and discounted reports that New Zealand might be trying to revive the wartime system of training air crews here.

Mr. Macdonald, a veteran of both wars, will visit both Canadair and A. V. Roe aircraft factories, as well as defence bases in Eastern Canada. He is due at Montreal Saturday.

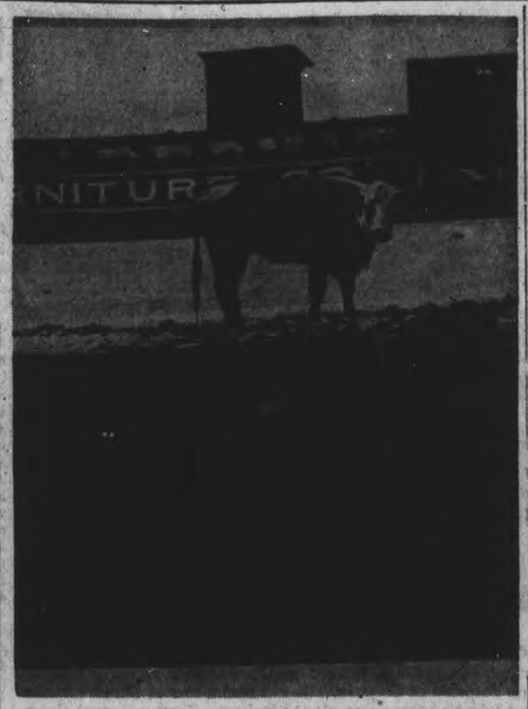
Ask For Bonus

OTTAWA, July 18 (CP) — A delegation urged the government Tuesday to establish a cost-of-living bonus for Canada's 125,000 civil servants. Representing the Civil Service Federation and the Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada, the delegation asked Finance Minister Abbott to consider payment of a bonus at a rate of $181.99 a year for the period from Dec. 1, 1950, to May 1, 1951.

May Get Island

VICTORIA, BC, July 18 (CP)— There's a suggestion going around in government circles here that British Columbia give Princess Elizabeth an island when she makes her Canadian tour this fall with her husband, Prince Philip. Nobody has made a guess about what she might do with it. There are scads of islands in Georgia Strait between Vancouver and Victoria. The government, which owns several, might offer one of them.

Butter Stocks Down



OTTAWA, July 18 — (CP). — Stocks of creamery butter in nine Canadian cities July 13 amounted to 19,926,000 pounds compared with 37,768,000 on the corresponding date last year, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday. Holdings were lower at all centres except Saskatoon and Vancouver.

Binder Appeals

MONTREAL, July 18 (CP). — Harry Binder, disqualified as a member of the Montreal City Council by a Superior Court judgment last Friday, entered an appeal Tuesday. Mr. Justice Elphege Marier ruled that Binder was not qualified because on two occasions he had served jail terms on criminal charges. His Lordship held that a section of the Montreal City Charter is applicable.

Hanged In Cell

BARRIE, July 18 — (CP). — A 22-year-old man, identified as Peter Huebner of Virgil, Ont., near St. Catharines, was found dead in his jail cell here Tuesday. Police said the man, held on a vagrancy charge, hanged himself by his trouser belt tied to his cell door.

Find No Proof Meteor Made Algonquin Crater

OTTAWA, July 18 (CP)—Two federal scientists who examined a massive circular depression in the earth in Ontario's Algonquin Park reported Tuesday there is no direct evidence that it was caused by a meteor.

Dr. H. M. A. Rice of the Geological Survey of Canada and Dr. Peter Millman of the Dominion Observatory, who journeyed to the site of the recently discovered crater, said it may have had an origin other than by a meteor striking the earth at this place. They did not speculate on what that origin might have been.

They said they had found none of the nickel-iron type of magnetic material normally found around meteoric craters.

They added that their examination was only preliminary and that a further investigation, including both geological and geophysical studies, is planned.

The crater, a few miles south of the town of Brent in the centre of the park, came to light recently in aerial mapping photos of the park. It is nearly two miles in diameter.

The scientists reported that the crater, though it is a depression on the surface, contains glacial deposits which establish its origin as pre-glacial and which tend to obscure the original features.

The rim is not as pronounced as the huge meteoric crater discovered last year in Northern Ungava, although the circular outline is clearly apparent in the aerial photographs.

"As a result of both airborne and ground observations, no magnetic material has been found in the vicinity of the depression, hence there is no direct evidence of meteoric material of the nickel-iron type commonly found around other known meteoric craters," the scientists said.

RENT PROBLEMS—Some 15,000 jittery Montrealers went through the mills of the four Provincial Rent Board Branches recently to file complaints of rising rents. Most landlords are jacking up rents 40 to 50%, with some asking $60 for a house that rented for $18 per month while the Federal Government controlled prices. In the photo above worried tenants jam the steps of one of the Rent Board branches in the metropolis.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Senior lacrosse attraction here tonight, barring rain, is the fixture at 8.45 in Millen Bowl betwixt Fergus Thistles and the Petes. While the locals lead the loop and Fergus are in the cellar, don't forget that the Thistles beat the Crowe crowd not so long ago. They've been improving in recent weeks and may well make a playoff berth ere the schedule ends. In fact, there are a few soft touches as the list grinds along through the hot weeks. The Petes also have Brampton here on Friday and then hit the road for several tough tussles over the weekend.

Ball fans can view a neat one on the morrow at Riverside under the arcs. It's an eight p.m. Viaduct League game between Oshawa Merchants and the loop-leading Peterborough pack. The Merchants, in second slot and coming fast, have kept bolstering right up to the July 15 deadline and are at top strength now. But can they beat the Petes? That's the question and so far they've done it but our gang have had the edge on 'em up to date this semester. They may throw their new Michigan speedballer, and Ed Whitehill is more likely to toss Doug Plunkett or Bill Edger this time. Just a guess, though. It rates a walloping crowd as the old rivals clash. Staffs come here on Saturday night.

That Extra Half A Step

It occurs to us that our top-place senior "A" ballsters and lacrossers can give some credit to their speed merchants. Both have some of the fastest men in their respective leagues. In ball, Bill Dadson and Joe Lowrey have no peers in getting around bases. Andy Milne, Freddy Garvey and Dick Golden are others who move rapidly. Good legs drive stocky Bill Huntley and George Brabin down the paths in quick order. In lacrosse, Jerry Fitzgerald, Harry Wipper and Arn Dugan are about tops when they turn it on. Some of the other local gutted-stick aces, as well. For a big fellow, Ross Powless can dangle. That extra half step is often all-important in either game, and we like to see speed as well as brain and brawn in our athletes.

Switching to golf for a moment, the next big tournament in this borough is the Civic Holiday weekend one at Kawartha Golf Club. It's a three-day "do", Aug. 4-5-6, known as the Kawartha Lakes tourney. Sixth annual one and the record entry of 263 last year is expected to be broken this season. A 54-hole competition drawing classy golfers from all over the province, and the prizes total $1,500, which makes it a pretty juicy affair for an amateur event. Competitions will be divided into three classes with equal prizes for each. Moe Norman of Kitchener won out last year with Phil Farley of Toronto runner-up. They have a clubhouse dance Aug. 4.

UEW Finishes In Front

Men's softball schedule wound up last p.m. with Revoy's edging Orphans 5-4 and UEW trimming Lakefield 18-6. Latter was a slugfest before a goodly gallery. Hall, Hinton and Allen each took a slab turn for the Dalton crew, with McCracken and Garbutt hurling for the losers. In the other game, Doris pitched most of the way for Ken Guilfoyle's victors, Eakins getting in near the end, while Terry Woods went the route for the Dormer bunch. Their miscues hurt. Some lusty hits in this one, also. That means Revoy's and Orphans will meet in the best-of-five loop semi-finals, commencing on Aug. 7, the winner then going against the top-place UEW squad in best-of-seven finals for the city championship. Later, OASA playdowns get going.

Petes racked up their 17th Viaduct Loop victory in Toronto last e'en, thumping Staffords 18-8. Bunny Maeson pitched the win, though relieved late by Lefty Dadson. They used Ford and Rossen, neither getting any kind of fielding support. Two hits each were counted for Peterborough by Freddy Garvey, Dick Golden, George Brabin, Al Menzies and Bunny Maeson, as Bill Huntley was halted this time after having a great belting streak at the plate in recent weeks. Bill Weir, Staffs' young first-sacker, has been signed to Brooklyn Dodgers' farm system. We didn't get a box score from Toronto but will dig it up again. Petes now have won 17 and lost two, Oshawa having 15 and six, Kingsway nine and 12, Staffs five and 14, and Croftons three and 13, latter two also having at tie game.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

The annual competition for the Selkirk Trophy got away to a good start last evening. All rinks played two 10-end games and when the score cards were handed in there were four rinks which had won both games—G. Coleman Sr., F. Martin, C. Renaud, and R. Dyer. Thet third and final game is called for Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Speaking of Friday night, there will be greens available for bowlers who are not playing in the Selkirk Trophy games and would like to play in the Friday night doubles.

The committee is asking that a skip play with a lead and a vice with a second.

It seems that three of our lady bowlers motored to Oshawa on Tuesday, hoping to play in the trebles tournament. When they arrived at the greens all they saw was a big sign which read: Tournament postponed.

Americans Win

Americans defeated Cherney's 8-7 in a neat PMLA tussle last evening. D. Hobart scored four goals for them, Bloom getting two and two assists, Batley a goal and two assists and Brennan one marker and one assist. For the losers, Hunt notched three and aided on one, Curtis counted two and helped on another, as Cullen and Brioux each tallied one. Teams:

Petes Trounce Staffords For 17th Win

TORONTO, July 18—Peterborough Petes came up with their 17th win in 19 starts in the Viaduct Major Baseball League here last night at Millen Stadium, walloping Staffords 18 to 8 in a weird contest which was marred by nine Stafford errors. Fred Ford, making his initial start on the mound for Staffords, went along well for three innings, keeping the hard-hitting league leaders off the score sheet. Wildness and errors eventually led to his downfall. Safeties by Fred Garvey, Al Menzies and Andy Milne coupled with a couple of bases on balls in the fourth started the Petes to triumph as three tallies crossed the plate. Garvey's second bingo and Brabin's base knock went for nil as Ford struggled through the fifth frame.

Jack Rossen entered for Staffords in the sixth as five hits, two errors and the same number of strolls garnered the visitors four more runs. The seventh saw the lid fall right off when a total of eight Petes' counters was hung on the scoreboard. Three safeties along with six errors accounted for the rally. Bunny Maeson was credited with the winning mound effort. He had trouble in the fifth when the homesters put together three hits, a walk and a hit batsman for four runs. Two more safe one added a Stafford singleton in the seventh. Staffords completed their scoring in the eighth as three tallies crossed the plate on two hits and two walks.

Bill Dadson hurled the final frame without any further threatening gestures by Staffords. Fred Garvey, Dick Golden, George Brabin, Al Menzies and Bunny Maeson all recorded two safeties for the winners. Bill Huntley, the league-leading hitter, was finally halted, failing in five trips to the plate.

10th Team Possible

The American Hockey League concluded a two-day meeting on Tuesday with the announcement that there is "a very good possibility" that a 10th team will operate in Syracuse, NY, next season.

President Maurice Podoloff refused to elaborate beyond indicating that a provision had been made for the 10th team in drawing up a tentative schedule for 1951-52. Another meeting will be held here Aug. 4, at which time the Syracuse franchise may be granted.

Kawartha Club Gets Two In Tennis Play

Kawartha Tennis Club recently took two inter-club victories, defeating Port Hope on home courts 5-2 and winning at Quaker 4-3. A feature of the first matches was the first mixed doubles between Lynn Paul and Peter Lewis of Port Hope—who had defeated Cobourg's top couple of Marg. Adams and Don Gummer—and Kawartha's best pair, Rose and John Fletcher. The local players won 6-2, 6-4. Esther Martin of Port Hope defeated Angus Bubik in ladies' singles, as Mary Douglas and Don Madoc of that town defeated Clarke and V. McHugh in second mixed doubles.

Other victories were for Kawartha, W. Elmsley over Gord. Colbourne, Don Lamont and Ron Lye over Bob Tosh and G. Sneyd, F. Rankine and Ron Lye over Owen Lent and Art Alexander, and M. Charlton and Joan Lye over Doris Sneyd and Esther Martin.

Has 36 Points

With their 4-3 win over Quaker, Kawartha now has 36 points out of 49 for seven matches. They are away to Bowmanville to night, last Sunday's play with Cobourg here being rained out. By agreement, Quaker chose two Kawartha men to contest first men's doubles against Bun Kingdon and Roy Johnston, and this explains Don Lamont and Willard Elmsley being in 2 events, Kawartha having two men off their team in the close play. Quakers won the second men's doubles, Al Conlin and C. E. Johnston beating T. Clarke annd Rod Stuart, the second mixed (when Joan Smedmor and Geo. Scott took Agnes Bubik and Don Lamont), and the ladies' doubles, Joy Elmsley and J. Malcolm defeating Ruth McKee and V. McHugh.

Kawartha winners were Rose Fletcher over Helen Rutter, John Fletcher from Adrian Langhorne, Bun Kingdon and Roy Johnston falling to Don Lamont and W. Elmsley and Maurice Charlton and Willard Elmsley beating Mary Conlin and Doug. Tanney.

Top Spot Goes To UEW In Men's Loop

Howie Dalton's snappy UE softball nine won their final game of the regular season last night at the Bowl defeating Lakefield Merchants 18-6, in another hard-hitting game. The victory enabled UE to finish alone in first place one game ahead of Revoy's.

Five pitchers in all were used in this game with three moundsmen in there for the winners. Ken Hall twirled five good frames; John Hinton one, while Lefty Ray Allen served apples in the final three. Dick McCracken toiled seven for the visitors but was unable to muffle the Dalton hitters as effectively as usual in the early stages while his mates were none too steady afield. Garbutt twirled two and was nicked for three in the eighth. The men of Dalton opened with a six-run splurge in the first, sparked by Jack White's three-run homer and were never headed. Bill Thompson also homered with one on for the Dalton crew, while Casey, Robson and Dalton each collected a double as these boys led the offensive with White. Hits were few for Merchants with but two solitary bingles one a double by Loyst.

CANADA'S TOURING DAVIS CUPPERS, Lorne Main (left) of Vancouver, Brendan Macken(centre) and Henri Rochon (right) of Montreal, arrived in Quebec City recently aboard the Empress of Canada. The trio had a terrific time overseas but admitted there's no place like home. They will meet Cuba in the Davis Cup match to be played in Montreal August 3, 4 and 5 at the Mount Royal Tennis Club.

Add More Canadians To Cup Team

MONTREAL, July 18 (CP). — Brendan Macken and Henri Rochon of Montreal and Lorne Main of Vancouver were named Tuesday to Canada's Davis Cup team in the tie against Cuba.

The announcement was made by Dr. Georges Leclerc, chairman of the Davis Cup selection committee of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

The trio, all veterans of Canadian Davis Cup play, will face Cuba's entry on the courts of the Mount Royal Tennis Club in Montreal Aug. 3, 4, 5.

The selection committee also nominated H. Gordon MacNeil of Montreal as non-playing captain of the team.

Batting: Eddie Robinson, White Sox—Singled in the 10th to score Eddie Stewart with the run that gave the White Sox a 4-3 victory over the Yankees.

Pitching: Bob Feller, Indians—Became the first major league pitcher to win 13 games, beating Boston Red Sox 8-6.

Revoy's Second With Win Against Orphans

Revoy's edged Orphans 5-4 in the opener of men's softball at the Bowl last night, in the final meeting of the two clubs prior to playoffs. It was a spirited duel all the way, a sort of preview of what may be expected when the two meet in an best-of-five semi-final set, starting August 7.

Victory proved insufficient to enable Revoy's to overtake UEW who also won out to finish one up and lead the pack. Lefty Doris took the hill for eight frames in a fine effort for the Motor boys allowing but five safeties, one a homer by Bill Lewis in the fifth with Russ Scriver aboard for the only tallis off the slim slab artist. Haddy Eakins hurled the final frame. Terry Woods went the route for Harold Dormer's men and twirled a fine game, despite six errors behind him. He was nicked for 11 safeties, one a long homer by Mackness to score Legrow in the sixth, as well as doubles by Shortt, Thomson and Taylor, but he was steady throughout. A long homer by Red Sullivan in the last of the ninth with Turner on the pond made it a close finish after Revoy's had taken the early lead and held up well.

CANADIAN SPORTS PARADE

EVER since the Canadian wonder-boy Jack Kent Cooke acquired controlling interest in the Maple Leaf Baseball Club, the rumors have flown thick and fast. Never a retiring type, the radio executive and publisher has threatened to lift the lowly Leafs bodily into the playoffs this year. But, in spite of the dead weight involved in such an undertaking (if Mr. Cooke will pardon us), we think the real Leaf problem is far above merely winning or losing a ball game or even a pennant.

Home-Runner

Before launching into our pet cure-all for the Leaf club, let's take a brief glance at the career of the new president of the base-ball organization.

Jack Kent Cooke, 38, believes that anything can be accomplished if if you pepper well with enthusiasm, baste with optimism and cook it to a frazzle. Like his American counterpart, Bill Veeck, Cooke's prime commodity is sales-showmanship. Unlike Veeck, however, Jack has never before ventured into sport promotion and the Maple Leaf Club should test his inventive genius to the limit.

Already a success in radio and publishing (CKEY, NEW LIBERTY), Cooke nevertheless brings little more than his boundless enthusiasm to his present undertaking. However, that, alone, may again prove a successful formula.

Admittedly, all was not flowers, moonlight and cheers when the announcement was made that Cooke had taken over the ball club but we believe that Joe Ziegler, Becker, Gord Walker and the rest of the management staff will really enjoy working for this 20th-Century whizzbang. There are flat feet all over Canada attesting to Jack Cooke's drive and energy.

Stadium Plans

Messrs. Cooke and Ziegler plan, ultimately, to make Maple Leaf Stadium a mecca for the whole family. Music will be piped throughout the park during intermissions in play. Registered nurses will check your children at the entrance gate and house and entertain the tots (under ultra-violet lamps) until the game finishes. There's even a rumor that Jack C. will install barber chairs in the boxes with the suggestion that the implied nonchalance of the Toronto fans will rile the visiting team into a lather.

But, in our opinion, all these great ideas may fail in the long haul unless President Jack Cooke faces up to the fact that baseball in Canada, is still an American product. As a Canadian himself, Mr. Cooke must realize that our International League entries will always lack the sure-fire emotional appeal of Canadians playing for Canada's teams. Perhaps the new President will do something about it.

Canadian Talent

Nationally, we Canadians are in a sporting mess. Hockey is the only game we really control. Our football game has come to depend on American quarterbacks and other imported, high-priced help, so the promoter who realizes that Canadian sport fans will pay more to watch Canadian talent will hit the jackpot.

We hope that Baseball's Jack Cooke will give this tested theory his most dynamic punch.

Agreed, it can't be accomplished overnight but, if the indications to shows and Canadian baseball players are encouraged, then, one by one, our youngsters can ease into Maple Leaf uniforms where they belong. It follows, that win, lose or draw, there will be no dearth of interest in baseball in Canada. Man for man, Canadians are the best sport fans in the world.

Make it your number one crusade, Mr. Cooke!

Syracuse Edges Rochester In 4-3 Triumph.

By The Associated Press.

A few more pitching performances to match the one Jack Griffore turned in Tuesday night and Syracuse Chiefs might make a fight of the International League pennant race.

Griffore went 17 innings to whip the Rochester Red Wings 4-3 while five opposing hurlers all took to cover in the marathon contest, the longest of the current campaign in the loop. Griffore fanned 10 and permitted 11 hits.

Jack Collum started for the losers. He was relieved in the ninth by Bob Tiefenauer who went until the 16th. John Wittig came on in the 17th, and John Yuhas also in the 17th in an effort to stop the winning marker.

The Chiefs loaded the bases with one out in the 17th. Ed Shokes forced Hank Foiles at second but Lou Ortiz threw wild attempting a double play and Augie Bergamo crossed with the winning run.

In Second Place

The triumph slipped Syracuse to second place, a half game ahead of Buffalo Bisons, who dropped a 2-0 decision to the league-leading Montreal Royals in the second game of a doubleheader after winning the opener 4-3.

Tom Simpson went all the way in the opener for the Bisons. In the nightcap, the Bisons could do little against the slants of Bob Alexander, who whitewashed them with four hits.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Ottawa Giants split a twin bill, both on shutouts. Hal Hudson hurled the Leafs to a 2-0 triumph in the opener and Whitey Konikowski flipped a 2-0 triumph for the Giants in the second game. Stan Jok batted in both runs in the afterpiece.

Springfield and Baltimore were rained out.

Walla Walla Team Loses Outfieder

WALA WALLA, Wash., July 18 — (CP). — The front office of a Walla Walla baseball team said Tuesday outfielder Romeo A. Martin, 27, had left the team and every effort was being made to get him back.

Martin failed to come in from centrefield at a game in Kennewick, Wash. He was a member of the Washington State Penitentiary team.

MORNING COUGHS and Asthma

Do you cough and cough, especially mornings and at night? Do you choke, gasp for breath, wheeze and often can't sleep? The causes of these devitalizing symptoms may be recurring attacks of Asthma or Bronchitis. In such cases, the very first dose of MENDACO usually starts right now, working through the blood and thus reaching lungs and bronchial tubes, to help relax that clogged up stuffy feeling in the chest, then helps Nature loosen and clean out thick, strangling phlegm. This helps you get good fresh air into your lungs and promotes restful sleep. Ask your druggist for MENDACO. Satisfaction or money back.

The 22,000-ton No. 5 is believed to be the largest coal-burning dry dock in the world—682 feet long, 153 feet wide—although it has been in service since 1916. In charge of the 25-day operation is Lt.-Cmdr. Norman Hunter, whose last big job was towing the Canadian freighter Beachy Head from Chatham NB, to Falmouth.

Armed Forces Total 81,000

OTTAWA, July 18 — (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton said Tuesday night Canada's armed forces have boosted their manpower to 81,000, or 70 per cent more than the 47,000 men they had when war broke out in Korea.

He coupled that report on the Korea-provoked expansion program with a reiteration of his statement that "the end of aggression in Korea, if and when it takes place, must not lead us through a false sense of security to relax our efforts."

"Success in Korea, far from diminishing the need for strength, has shown that we must never again disarm in the face of a potential aggressor who remains fully armed," he said in a free-time CBC political broadcast. "That is why we must continue this combined effort to deter aggression by building up and keeping up our strength."

Mr. Claxton, reporting on Canada's effort in Korea, said Canada's units of all three services had acquitted themselves gallantly. Her expenditure of effort and money had been "tremendous."

"The sacrifice of lives in Korea and the great concerted effort begun a year ago may well be the means of preventing a third world war . . . A further result of the Korean war has been to drive home to the Western world its relative lack of preparedness."

ST. THOMAS, July 18 (CP) — Mrs. John McLean, 55, one of four persons injured Tuesday in a highway accident at New Glasgow, 50 miles west of here, died a few hours later in hospital. Her husband, Mrs. C. W. Bere of London, Ont., and Mrs. Edward Wiloski of Chicago suffered minor injuries.

Youth Gives Up To Police After Search

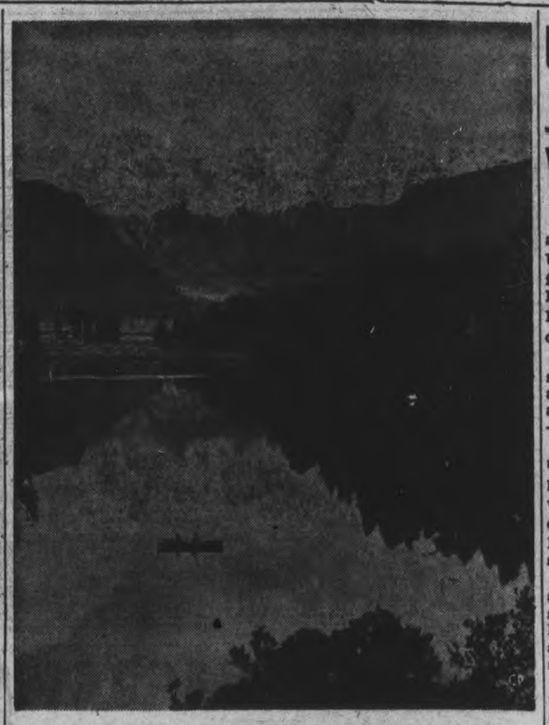
MONTREAL, July 18—(CP)—Norman (Red) Roy, 18-year-old baby-faced youth who formerly lived in Toronto, surrendered to homicide police Monday night in the presence of his mother and his lawyer.

He had been sought as a material witness in connection with the rooming-house death of Robert Fowler, 33-year-old cafeteria counterman.

Fowler's body, the neck broken, was found July 8 a few hours after he had registered at the rooming house with a male companion who did not register.

Police allege that Roy was the last person seen with Fowler. They say Fowler unwittingly may have been the prospective victim of theft. They said Roy "probably will be charged with murder today" followng an inquest.

Began Search



The mother, who remarried following the death of her first husband and now is named McVeigh, went to Toronto to look for the boy when the search got under way, Mr. Chevalier said. She thought he might have gone there.

From Toronto she telephoned the lawer. Acting on other undisclosed information they went to Cornwall, where they found Roy and brought him to Montreal, telephoning in advance to police.

Police said Roy has lived in the Griffington section of Montreal for four or five years, after formerly living in Toronto and has been employed by a local firm. They said he has no police record and "is of a good family."

US Will Use Jet Airliners Within 8 Years

NEW YORK, July 18 (CP)—Jet airlines will be in use in the United States for long-distance flights in eight to 10 years, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Air Lines, predicted Tuesday.

They would have come into use sooner but for the Korean war and the subsequent step-up in the arms program, he said.

Britain is far ahead in plans to use jet airliners for civilian transportation. British Overseas Arways Corporation already has ordered several British Comet DeHavilland jets for long-distance service.

The Comet, the world's first jet airliner, now is in the advanced stage of long-distance flight tests. But it probably will be at least a year before they can be put into civilian operation.

Canada, which has shelved development of a jet airliner of her own to make way for the defence program, will use the British Comets. Canadian Pacific Airlines plans to replace two North Star aircraft on its Pacific run with Comets early next year.

Work on the government-subsidized Avro Canada jet airliner at Malton, near Toronto, was stopped recently. Avro now is concentrating on production of all-weather jet fighters.

PERFECT ACCIDENT SCORE

With only two cars in sight at the corner of George and McDonnel streets before 10 a.m. Sunday, one banged into the other, for a perfect accident average, batting 1,000 to quote the baseball tables. I'll Be Switched

An irate fisherman will appear in Lindsay police court charged with assaulting two Omemee boys.

The fisherman had been trolling on the Pigeon river when the boys in a rowboat crossed over his line. The fisherman was not pleased, and later, when he was leaving the village, saw two lads who looked like the two in the boat.

He accosted them and switched them where he thought they should be switched, with his fishing rod.

The switching was painful enough to cause the boys to lay a charge of assault. The boys claim it was a case of mistaken identity; they said they had never seen the fisherman before.

Child Hit By Car Crossing Road To Collect Mail

CAMPBELLFORD, July 18 — (ENS) — Seven-year-old Richard Dunham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dunham, RR 1, Campbellford, was critically injured Tuesday morning, when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home on No. 30 Highway, one mile west of Campbellford.

The little fellow had crossed the highway to get the family mail from the mail box, which is located on the opposite side of the road from the house. He waited until a car driven by Lorne Mutton, RR 6, Brighton, had passed and started across the roadway. He was struck by a car travelling in the opposite direction, driven by U. L. Dixon, of Bond St., Fenelon Falls.

The impact tossed the lad to the side of the roadway, where he lay critically injured until the arrival of medical attention. Doctors were hesitant about moving the lad in his shocked condition and possible serious injuries, and ministered to him on the roadway.

He was later removed to his home, still unconscious. He was placed in an oxygen tent erected over his bed, and given blood transfusions. The full extent of his injuries has not yet been determined, but at a late hour on Tuesday evening, the boy was said to be slightly improved, and had an excellent chance of recovery.

The youngster helps his father and mother with work on the farm. Provincial Constable Donald W. Erskine investigated.

Boy Saves Youth From River

Pulled Friend From Trent Acclaimed Hero

CAMPBELLFORD, July 18 — (ENS)—Twelve-year-old Robert McCulloch of Seymour Township is being acclaimed as a hero today, after the story of his successful rescue of a chum while swimming was brought to light.

Bob saved the life of a Toronto boy, Donald Campbell, 17, of 140 Cadorna Avenue, East York, Toronto, Tuesday, when he plunged into the waters of the Trent river east of the Healey Falls Bridge, and after some difficulty succeeded in bringing the drowning youth to shore.

Donald Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Campbell of Seymour, was visiting his parents at their home and had gone to Healey Falls, only a short distance away for a swim.

Weak Swimmer

Donald, who is a weak swimmer stepped into a hole and disappeared. He thrashed around in the water for several seconds, then bobbed to the surface only to go under again. He went under and came back up several times before McCulloch saw him and plunged into the water and brought the youth to shore.

Thomas Campbell, father of the victim, waded out into the water and helped the two boys up onto the bank. They then put the youth into their car and drove to nearby Healey Falls power house, where Hydro employees, under direction of supervisor Roland Belanger, applied artificial respiration for nearly a half hour. An inhalator and respiration apparatus was rushed to the scene from the Campbellford Hospital to finish the job, but the lad had recovered almost fully through the efforts of the employees of the power house.

Wins Praise

But for the quick action of Bobby McCulloch, his chum Donald may have drowned.

Residents of the district are praising Bob for his fast thinking and cool courage in rescuing his chum with whom he had gone swimming.

The older boy had lived at the McCulloch farm at one time, but had left High School in Campbellford to seek employment in Toronto.

Workers Cards Filed By UE With Labor Bd.

The United Electrical Workers on Wednesday filed 30 union cards with the Ontario Labor Relations Board from employees of Tilco Plastics Ltd. The board's decision will be announced later. The hearing was in Toronto.

Application by the UE to represent the Tilco production workers was made at the end of May. No objection was made by the company.

Spokesmen for the company at the hearing were D. G. Pile, Central Ontario Industrial Institute, and Robert G. Curtin, general manager of Tilco. Representing Local 527, UE, were Ross Russell, UE director of organization, and C. R. Sullivan, area representative.

Hearing on the UE application to represent 320 DeLaval production workers will be held in Toronto July 26.

Local 527 has also applied for certification at the Moldaver Bros. Lumber Co., but no date has been set for the hearing.

Consumers Balk Farmers Get Less For Eggs

Consumer reaction to the price of eggs is lowering the price paid by wholesalers to farmers. This was the opinion of a wholesaler's representative today.

There is no increase in the supply of eggs, in fact, this spokesman said, eggs are in shorter supply than they were a week ago when authorities gloomily predicted dollar-a-dozen eggs.

Today's retail prices run around 82 and 83 cents a dozen for grade A large. Wholesale price is 75 cents and the price to the farmers is about 65 cents, down two cents from Tuesday.

When the retail price drops, said this spokesman, people will likely shift their purchasing power from meat to eggs again. Prices would climb, but not as far as the present level for some time.

"When the newspapers and radios remark that eggs and meat are pretty expensive," he said, "people slow their buying. They seem to realize then just how expensive these things are."

City Offered $250 Rent For Store; Wants $300

As to renting the store owned by the city and about to be vacated by Buehler Brothers, Ald. E. C. Braund said Monday afternoon: "We should get $350 a month." Ald. H. F. Waddell opened bids for lease at a session of the property committee, with the rest of the council. One of them was an offer of $150 a month from an Ashburnham resident who proposed to carry on a meat business in the expectation of making a reasonable profit at the rent he offered; something for the city and also something for himself.

Top bids were $250 by Elsie Bennett, jeweller; Charles Levine and Meyer Levine.

"Should be $350," said Ald. Braund. "I think we ought to ignore those bids, and advertise for $300, and the first one gets it."

Not Accepted

That was the course the committee adopted, instructing City Clerk Outram to inform those three merchants that the bids were not being accepted.

The two Levine bids were for women's wear retailing. Mr. L. E. Morrison, it was said, would be associated as optometrist, with Elsie Bennett in seeking the present Buehler store. Rent now is $211 a month plus taxes.

Reference was made in the general discussion to the increasing tautness of the rental rack for tenants and their incomes. Apparently the signs recently of shift from one spot to another, show indications of jacking up the landlord levy, will continue for some time.

One of the comments which seemed to be backed with authentic information was to the effect that Tamblyn's are moving their drug store into the Warne jewellery premises next month, and that the drug store rent is to be $850 a month.

A group of the stores south of Richard Hall Co. was bought last winter by a Toronto investment company from Toronto Savings and Loan.

Wet-Dry Vote In Bobcaygeon

BOBCAYGEON, July 18—The question of a government liquor store will be settled today in Bobcaygeon.

Today, the residents of this Victoria county village will mark ballots with "yes" or "no" to the following questions:

"Are you in favor of the establishment of government stores for the sale of liquor?"

And "are you in favor of the establishment of government stores for the sale of beer only for residence consumption?"

Campaigning for the government stores, the Bobcaygeon Committee for Government Stores has stated they do not want the village to stay as it is. In a front page advertisement in the village's weekly paper, the committee said that 85 per cent of the youth of the village are forced to leave before they are 20 to seek employment.

"We do not want Bobcaygeon as it is; we want a greatly improved and expanded Bobcaygeon so we can keep our boys and girls here."

The Bobcaygeon Citizens' league takes exception to the statement that all tourists want liquor while on their vacation. League spokesmen say that tourists are ordinary people seeking rest and quiet.

Worst Scarcity Of Farm Labor Ever Experienced

"The farm labor situation is the worst we ever experienced," as reported from Halton in the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. On that important subject which appears to be outside the concern of urban consumers, Wentworth says there is a heavy demand for single men, "with practically no help available."

Northumberland quickly placed fourteen men from the west, and South Simcoe received some Newfoundlanders.

The Dundas experience and observation is common across the province. "Farmers are trying hard to salvage a bumper hay crop that has been damaged by excessive rain."

Hessian fly in the fall wheat crop is more numerous than a year ago. Many of the counties report infestation and crop injury. Western Ontario reports fall barley in the stook and work general in the wheat fields.

Rain has been almost disastrous for several weeks in Wellington, particularly in the hay fields. "Corn is almost drowned out, and it has been impossible to cultivate hay fields."

Perth quotes hogs at a new high of $38.75, and Middlesex says: "Hog prices range up to $39 per cwt., dressed weight, with marketings at fairly low figures. Several loads of finished beef cattle are being shipped each week ranging from $34 to $37 per cwt."

Pastures are exceptionally good for midsummer, but both Perth and Frontenac counties find that the volume of milk is "slightly off."

Leeds: "Little good quality hay has been harvested. Pastures are excellent, though milk flow is taking its usual decline."

NO MORE CANNING

With the dispersal of the canning department of the local plant of Canada Packers Ltd., there is no pea crop grown locally by contract with district farmers. Nor will there be any pack of tomatoes and pumpkins. Equipment even to the country vining machines has been distributed elsewhere.

CGE C-O-L BONUS

This Friday when CGE workers go on holiday they will have, in addition to their two weeks' extra pay, a three-cents-an-hour cost of living bonus retroactive to July 9. The addition brings the men's minimum earning rate to $1.25 an hour, and the guaranteed rate for women to $1.05.

Neighbor Smells Fire In Kitchen

A fire that could have been serious was extinguished Tuesday afternoon when a neighbor smelled smoke and the housewife doused the flames with a few basins of water.

Shortly before 4 p.m. fire jumped from an overheated coal oil stove to a newly-painted kitchen wall at the home of Vernon R. Heigh, 476 Patterson St. The kitchen soon filled with smoke and it was noticed by Joseph Creally who lives in the other half of the semi-detached house.

Mr. Creally called Mrs. Heigh who was upstairs tending her baby. When she entered the room the wall was on fire so she threw water on it.

Explodes

The splash of water exploded the coal oil bottle causing an upsurge of flames, but Mrs. Heigh put them out by pouring on more water.

Firemen were called and cut open a section of the wall to ensure that no fire lurked inside. The flames did not get through the partition.

The stove was being used to heat water for washing some baby clothing and it is believed a gust of wind caused the flames to catch on the newly-painted wall some 10 inches behind the stove.

Damage is estimated at $25.

The names of this year's winners so far are: Wilbur Miller, Canton, Ohio; Joseph Loreta, Garfield Heights, Ohio; George Fenton, Columbus, Ohio; George Syman, Shinnston, West Virginia; Harry Logan, Buffalo, New York.

Crowded By Traffic Bus Hits Stopped Car

Crowded by southbound traffic, a northbound city bus hit a car double-parked Tuesday afternoon on the east side of George St.

E. O'Shaughnessy, RR 3, Peterborough, had parked his car between Brock and Murray Sts. and was just getting out when the collision occurred.

Driver of the bus, Walter Graham, 212 Geraldine Ave., said southbound traffic at the time (6 p.m.) was heavy and he couldn't swing the bus far enough to avoid the collision.

Damage to the bus was estimated at $25 and to the car $20.

During their 33-day ordeal they were reduced to eating an occasional rabbit, toads, frogs' legs, lizards shrubs and berries. They are shown in hotel room, Sept, Iles, where they were taken after the rescue.

Sewage Plant In Lindsay To Open Sept. 1

LINDSAY, July 18—Lindsay's new sewage plant is expected to open September 1, Reeve Richard Butler, chairman of the board of works, said Tuesday.

WHITBY, July 18 (CP) — An automobile hit by a bakery truck near here last month rolled over three or four times and came to rest with its wheels in the air. Its four occupants were injured, one severely.

Aris also was fined $100 or an additional two months for dangerous driving.

Local 200 announced Tuesday the policy committee which met Monday night had decided to give full support to the workers' resistance movement.

TANKS, RUINED AUTOS and rubble left by the costliest flood in United States history are reflected in a placid pool of muddy water where for three days the Kansas river raged unchecked in the central industrial district of Missouri's Kansas City. Scenes like this were everywhere throughout the flood-stricken area where rampaging water caused damage estimated at $750,000,000, brought death to 17 persons, tied up highways and rail transportation, forced more than 70,000 from their homes and severely damaged the industrial capacity of cities and towns stretched across the eastern and central parts of Kansas. Water still covered many sections today but it was fast slipping back into river channels as the nation mobilized for a he-channels as the nation mobilized for a herculean cleanup task.

See Japan Leaning Toward Neutrality

By WHLLIAM JORDEN.

TOKYO— (AP) —Where will Japan stand once she regains her independence.

Many United States observers have made the easy assumption that the Japanese, having benefitteed by the "soft" occupation and millions of American aid dollars, are permanently on the side of the west. Others are convinced Japan has no future unless she plays on the Western Powers' team.

Statements by occupation leaders, from Gen. Douglas MacArthur down, have given the impression that Japan is a democratic nation and a permanent and trustworthy ally of the West.

But not all Japanese agree that this nation must fall into line as an enemy of the Communist world. Their reasons are varied, but they add up to a potent body of opinion against taking part in any struggle between East and West.

In the early days of the occupation, when it was United States policy to demilitarize Japan and eliminate any chance of her fighting again, the Japanese were told their only hope for security was to remain neutral.

Policy Changed.

Then American policy changed. It became important that Japan would not be neutral. It was argued that,in an all-out battle with world Communism, the Democracies would need Japan's industrial strength and fighting manpower.

Many Japanese, sold by the earlier arguments for neutrality, have not adopted the new policy as readily as some Americans had hoped. The Japanese people, with the memory of bitter defeat and war's devastation still fresh in their minds, have developed a strong attachment for neutrality.

Among those most concerned with the problem of Japan's future are the men who once led her mighty armies. Purged from official life, these military leaders nevertheless have maintained close ties with their old friends and subordinates. In recent months, with the relaxation of occupation policy, they have begun to speak more freely.

Want Winning Side.

Some of the ex-militarists accept the view that Japan must tie herself closely to the West to prevent Japan falling to the Communists. They are convinced the U. S. and her Allies will win any foreseeable war with the Soviet Union. They want to be on the winning side.

Others however, are sure Japan will lose any war in the near future, no matter which side wins. And they are not convinced the democracies can beat the Russians.

One of the leading spokesmen for the latter school of thought is former Col. Masanobu Tsuji, one of Japan's most brilliant staff officers during the Pacific War. In speeches and pamphlets, Tsuji outlines his argument this war:

1. War is inevitable between the U. S. and U. S. S. R., probably before 1955.

2. The Far East will be of secondary importance.

3. There is no fundamental conflict between Japan and China, but only between the U. S. and Russia. Therefore Japan should not involve herself.

4. There is little chance that the U. S. can win a Third World War.

5. The Japanese should take a "generous" attitude toward the Communists, adopting the good parts of their program without actually becoming a Communist nation.

Has Made Study.

Tsuji says his estimate of the East-West conflict is based on extensive material on Russia's economic and military strength gathered by Japan's army before the end of the Second World War.

One of his conclusions is that, because of the Soviet's planned decentralization of industry, "perhaps 50 atom bombs in Russian hands would be more destructive than 500 in American possession."

Tsuji also believes any heavy industrial system built in Japan now would only be destroyed by American forces on their withdrawal to prevent those industries from falling into enemy hands.

He reaches this conclusion:

"We should never be involved in (war between the U. S. and Russia) at any cost. Fortunately, MacArthur told us to become the Switzerland of the Far East. We should stick to this advice. However hard it may be, it will be much better than being involved in the catastrophe."

Approve PO Boost

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)— The Senate Post Office Committee Tuesday approved a postal-rate rise bill which it estimates will yield slightly under $300,000,000 in additional revenue. The measure would increase the rate on postal cards from one to two cents; first-class mail from three to four cents on the first ounce; air-mail letters from six to eight cents an ounce and air postal cards from four to five cents.

Propose Institute

OTTAWA, July 18 (CP) — A special committee of the Canadian Good Roads Association decided Tuesday to recommend to the association's fall convention the establishment of a National Roads Research Institute dedicated to country-wide highway improvement and development. The institute, which also would serve as a clearing house for information on highway improvement, would be headed by a permanent director with a secretariate. Its offices likely would be in Ottawa.

Railways Raise Price Of Meals

MONTREAL, July 18—(CP)—The Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways said they were forced by higher costs to increase menu prices in dining cars approximately 15 per cent.

The price changes took effect June 8.

The joint statement said: "These increases, however, will only partially offset the impact of the recent wage award of seven cents per hour, the reduction in working hours of a basic month and mounting food and other costs.

"Last year the two major railroads lost in excess of $1,000,000 each in dining car services, and the indications are that the increased labor costs alone will amount to an additional $400,000 per annum for these particular services on each railroad."

Taxable Assessment Reaches New High

TORONTO, July 18 — (CP) — George Dunbar, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs, spoke of figures Tuesday.

The population of organized municipalities climbed by 119,710 to reach a record of 4,202,539 persons, an increase of 22 per cent since 1939.

Expect 80,000 To Hear Salzburg Music

By RICHARD O'REGAN.

SALZBURG, July 18 (AP). — The historic Salzburg music festival hopes this summer to regain some of its prewar greatness.

The month-long feast of plays, opera and concerts starts July 27. It already is almost sold out and 80,000 music-lovers from all parts of the world are expected to attend.

Since the war, the supremacy of the Salzburg series has been challenged by the Edinburgh and Lucerne Festivals. Another counter-attraction this year is the Wagner Festival in Bayreuth, Germany.

But the 1,000-year-old city of Salzburg has planned for August a program it hopes will restore the festival's long reputation as the top summer music event in Europe.

Eight orchestral concerts by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra are scheduled. The conductors include Leopold Stokowski, Wilhelm Furtwaengler of the Berlin Orchestra, and Edwin Fischer, best known as a Swiss pianist.

Rafael Kubelik will conduct a concert that includes Dvorak's Fifth Symphony, and Munich's conductor, Eugen Jochum, has been chosen to direct an all-Mozart concert in this birthplace of the composer.

Mozart Opening

The festival opens with Mozart's opera Idemeneo—a seldom-staged early work of the composer. It will be under the baton of Georg Solti of the Munich State Opera.

Mozart's Magic Flute will be performed four times under Furtwaengler's baton.

Salzburg's music-lovers are looking forward to another rarely given opera, Wozzeck, an atonal work by the Austrian composer Alban Berg.

The Metropolitan's first producer, Herbert Graf, will direct Salzburg's fourth opera, Othello, which is being offered to mark the 50th anniversary of the death of Verdi.

Salzburg's hardy perennial, the Max Reinhardt presentation of the play Everyman by Hugo von Hoffmannsthal, will be among the festival's three plays. Shakespeare's As You Like It and The Broken Jug by von Kleist are the others.

DOUBLE TROUBLE—Several firemen (left) struggle to pull themselves out of oil-covered flood water in Kansas City, Mo., after falling off makeshift rafts while battling a huge oil blaze. Raging fires, some three days old, in the flood-stricken city were spread by explosion of diesel oil.

Back Egypt Refusing Oil For Haifa

CAIRO, July 18 (Reuters). — The seven-country Arab League Wednesday assailed Britain for its insistence in trying to get cargoes of Arabian oil to the refinery at Haifa, Israel.

Assam Pasha, secretary-general of the league, said it supported Egypt's refusal to let such cargoes go through the Suez Canal.

"Any hostile attitude Britain or any other country might adopt toward Egypt in this matter would be considered as directed against the Arab League and its member states," he said.

He told a press conference that Israel's determination to get Arab oil was the main reason for ill-feeling betwen Egypt and Britain.

"We are all greatly surprised that a question primarily concerning Jewish interests in Palestine should have become such a menace to Anglo-Egyptian relations and may bring about a clash that may have far-reaching consequences in the Arab and Moslem world," he said.

Greater Understanding

Azzam appealed for greater understanding by the British public. He said suggestions made by some British members of parliament for running tankers through the canal with armed naval escort amounted to intimidation which was "out of date."

The Haifa refinery, which used to process oil piped from Iraq, closed in April, 1948, when the Iraquis cut off supplies. Iraq, like other members of the Arab League, argues it is still at war with Israel.

The refinery reopened in August, 1950. It is operated by Consolidated Refineries Ltd., a subsidiary of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, whose existence in Iran is threatened by a nationalization measure.

Despite protests from Britain and nine other countries, Egypt has refused to allow Haifa-bound tankers pass through the canal. It claims its technical state of war with Israel overrides the Suez Canal convention of 1888, which requires unmolested passage of shipping.

Pink Specs On Chickens Foil Cannibal Instincts

ST. LOUIS, July 18—(AP)—Take Louis J. Harwood's word for it, there's nothing that keeps a chicken healthier or more productive than a pair of pince nez spectacles. He says they are the biggest boon to the poultry business since creation of the egg.

He makes them himself—plastic gadgets called "spectroms." They come in a variety of shades but the red, or rose-colored, are considered by some as the best.

Relieves the chicken of its frustrations, perhaps, and keeps the bird mindful of the business at hand.

Harwood, who owns a chicken ranch at Freyingdale, NJ, is attending the 35th annual American Poultry Hatchery convention. On display he has two Leghorn hens wearing his "eyeglasses."

Harwood says the real purpose of the spectacles is to eliminate "cannibalism," one of poultry men's biggest headaches. When not laying eggs, chickens like to peck at each other.

When blood is drawn, the whole flock descends on the victim and pecks is to death. The plastic glasses clamp on the chicken's nose. Once on, they are worn for life. They permit the bird to see sideways and downward but not straight ahead.

Canadian Medical Teams Show Efficiency

By WILLIAM BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, July 18 —(CP)— The operation was just about over.

The cause of it all, a dime-sized shrapnel splinter, was wrapped in a gauze packet and taped onto the unconscious American soldier's shoulder by a theatre assistant, Pte. Patrcik O'Connor of Montreal.

The wounded GI had asked that it be kept for him. He wanted to see what had caused the neat hole just to the left of his left knee-cap and had sent the upper limb into a swell like a baby blimp. In just slight pain and under a sedative, the manner of his asking was the small boy getting the dentist to promise to hand back the tooth he was about to extract.

He was one of 16 U. S. soldiers wounded when a 1st Cavalry Division night patrol was ambushed by Chinese troops the day before the Kaesong armistice talks were to begin. Some had been badly hurt.

Ambulances that crept back with them through the night got them to a forward Mobile Army Surgical Hospital, ever ready for battle-casualty emergencies. By noon the last—delayed for resuscitation with whole blood and glucose — was off the operating table and in the post-operative ward.

Part Of Staff

Part of the night staff at No. 8055 MASH is the No. 25 special Canadian field surgical team and No. 25 Canadian field transfusion team. Commanding officer is Major Charles F. Egan of Kingston, Ont., specialist in resuscitation and anaesthesia, while the surgeon is Major G. G. (Dick) Lippert of Kitchener. Transfusion specialist is Capt. William Crawford of London, Ont.

Crawford works in the pre-operative ward, where the 16 wounded GI's were first taken from the ambulance. In "pre-op" they decide which casualties call for immediate operation, which can be sent further back for treatment, and administer blood and glucose where needed to remedy shock and prepare the men for surgery.

The Canadians pitch in with the [illegible] treated, besides wounded from the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade group, British, United States, Puerto Rican, Greek and Turkish troops.

The operating tent accommodates three tables and as Lippert removed the shrapnel from the unconscious GI, another, whose chest and abdomen had been gouged by a plummeting piece of mortar fragment, was waging nearby a prolonged groaning struggle against the anaesthetics.

Deft Work

Lippert's work was deft. Incisions on either side of the hole. Clips to stop bleeding. Probing inside with a gloved finger to check for damage caused by the splinter. Incision on the other side. Clips, probing for the fragment. A scratching noise betrayed the metal as the instrument struck it. More probing, then out it came with forceps.

He gave it to Cpl. Paul Furlotte, of Campbelltown, N.B., his chief assistant. It was still at body heat, jagged blackish steel.

Lippert neatly stitched up the tissues on that side, then reduced the swellings of the cap area by thrusting a long needle into it and draining of fluid. Back at the original hole he flushed out the wound with copious syringes of distilled water.

The surgeon placed gauze padding over the open wound and turned the operation over to Furlotte, working with O'Connor, L-Cpl. Gordon Ramage of Red Deer, Alta., and Pte. M. A. Kirk of Kerrobert, Sask., other members of the team, then applied the plaster bandages that in seconds solidified into the familiar shape of a cast.

O'Connor taped the shrapnel onto the GI's shoulder and half an hour after he had been carried into the theatre, the wounded GI was carried out onto the road to recovery. The operation required but 20 minutes.

The Chinese had been banished from the colony for misdemeanors.

Rigid Diet, Work May Explain New Slenderness

LONDON, July 18 — Princess Elizabeth's new streamlined look, which has been arousing comment recently has been variously explained as the result of overwork and of a rigid diet.

The Princess began putting on weight after the birth of her second child, Princess Anne, last August. By January her appearance was not far short of what, in a commoner, might have been called pleasingly plump. There are rumors that a joking remark about that time by her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, decided her to do something about it.

Since then she has frequently been heard turning down the richer foods at official dinners with, "No, thanks, I'm on a diet."

Though there is no official confirmation it is understood that the royal dieter put herself into the hands of a famous beauty salon, which specializes in transforming stouter women, so that they lose weight by diet, while expert masseurs keep the body contours frim and aid in distributing the pounds.

The Princess' diet is said to begin with a glass of water with lemon juice, brought to her before rising in the morning and followed by stretching exercises in bed.

The diet is lavish in fruits and fresh vegetables, such as grated carrot, with proteins furnished by lean meat and cottage cheese, while cutting down sharply on all bread and other starchy foods.

There is no doubt that the arduous round of duties which has fallen on Princess Elizabeth's shoulders during the enforced rest of King George VI may have had a share in cutting down her weight and her friends express themselves as more than pleased that she is to have a holiday at Balmoral next month.

They say that she has become so much more slender that she has been mistaken for her slimmer and smaller-boned sister Margaret.

FIFTY YEARS MARRIED on Tuesday were Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson of RR 4, Omemee. They celebrated their golden anniversary quietly at home with their immediate family. For the past 50 years, they have lived at the same farmhouse and plan to live out their lives there. Both were born within two miles of Omemee. Mr. Henderson has lived in their farm home since he was two.

Celebrate 50th Anniversary

OMEMEE, July 18 (ENS) — Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Henderson of RR 4, Omemee, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday, quietly with their immediate family which is their son Norman, his wife and children, Lynn and Ian.

Their son, who is manager of the Winnipeg branch of the Bank of Toronto, is spending his holidays with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson have discovered no place where they would enjoy living better than on their farm three miles north of Omemee, where Mr. Henderson has spent all but the first two years of his life, and where together they have shared the past 50 years, so it was there they chose to retire.

Both were born within a two-mile radius of Omemee. Mrs. Henderson, the former Ellie Widdis, is a daughter of the late John Widdis and Prudence Fee Widdis and is the last living member of a family of six. Mr. Henderson is a son of the late John Henderson and Eliza Ann English Henderson. The only other living member of his family is William of Omemee.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson were married July 17, 1901, at the home of the bride's parents, the late Rev. H. B. Rowe of Omemee Methodist Church performing the ceremony.

Yesterday, the bride was the recipient of several gifts and the couple received many congratulatory messages.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Lamb Patties, Tomato Sauce Good Beginning For Dinner

By MARY MOORE

Lamb Patties with Tomato Sauce (see notes)
Creamed Cauliflower
Harvard Beets (see notes)
Garden Lettuce and Cabbage Salad with Tomato French Dressing
Fresh Raspberry Pie
Hot Coffee

Directions

Sticking my neck out, I whisper that I believe that the price of mature lamb is a little lower. I hope no butcher catches sight of this or he may think he is slipping.

I bought a pound of ground shoulder lamb for 90 cents per pound. This was not spring lamb but it served my purpose just as well or better.

Lamb Patties with Tomato Sauce

One can tomatoes No. 2½ size (28 oz.), 1 chopped onion, 2 well-packed cups breadcrumbs or mashed potatoes, 1 pound ground raw lamb, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons fat. Drain the tomatoes and add the thick part to the meat with the potatoes or crumbs, salt, onion. Mix well. Form into flat cakes and dip in flour then panfry slowly in the fat until done. Place cakes on hot platter and pour over them.

Tomato Sauce: Add 3 tablespoons flour to the fat in the pan left from frying the lamb patties. Mix well then add 1½ cups tomato juice or what is left from draining the canned tomatoes. Stir until thick and smooth. If desired add chopped parsley or chives.

Creamed Cauliflower (from a "Westerner"): I was sunk deep in a back seat of a big bus and could not help overhearing, with half of the other bus passengers, a cultured but penetrating voice tell her gentleman companion how she prepared cream cauliflower. "Now I'm a real meat-and-potatoes-and-cauliflower-with-cream-sauce-and-lots-of-butter-and-pepper-all-the-wool Westerner you know and we love our cauliflower." You boil the cauliflower in salted water until nearly tender. Drain it and just cover with rich milk and slowly heat it again. Add salt and lots of black pepper and butter and stir in a little water paste until it is just thick enough. How do you like that for being unspecific? Well I tried it and it was wonderful. The pepper and "lots of butter" certainly gave it flavour.

Harvard Beets: After 8 or 10 beets are cooked and diced or sliced make this sauce: Mix together 2 or 4 tablespoons sugar, ½ tablespoon cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt and shake of pepper; stir in ¼ cup vinegar and ⅓ cup boiling water, until thick. Add the beets and let stand over steaming but not boiling water, for 30 minutes. Add 2 tablespoons butter just before serving.

For the Fresh Raspberry Pie you need at least 4 cups berries, ½ to ¾ cup sugar, 2 or 3 tablespoons minute tapioca for the filling. If pie is to be made 5 or 6 hours before using 2 tablespoons tapioca or cornstarch are sufficient.

Kitchen Shower Held At Cavan For Bride-To-Be

CAVAN, July 18 (ENS).—Miss June Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Miller, Peterborough, a popular bride-to-be whose marriage to Roy Henry Mounce, Peterborough, takes place Saturday, was honored by her friends and neighbors of the seventh line, Cavan, and Millbrook at the home of Mrs. Harry Dawson, when they presented her with a kitchen shower.

Mrs. Dawson was assisted in entertaining her guests by her daughters, Mrs. Arnold Brown, of Centreville and Mrs. William Moncrief of Bensfort. Miss Jessie Dawson, Millbrook, assisted Miss Miller to open the gifts, for which she thanked every one and expressed her pleasure at having this opportunity of meeting her old friends and schoolmates.

The hostess and her daughters served lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Sutton and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Carr motored to Grimsby on Sunday and visited Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Sutton.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Telford and little son Arthur, Norwood, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rae Stewart on Sunday.

Swim Club Show Good Entertainment

Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club is going "all out" to make the forthcoming annual water show the most outstanding success.

With the opportunity to see these swimmers perform in the Lions Club pool Thursday evening will come the chance to see and hear Mr. Loyal Kelly, managing director of the Canadian National Sportsman's Show, who will be here with Mrs. Kelly to formally open the presentation. He has continued interest in the Club since the performance given at the Sportsmen's Show in Toronto.

Miss Lois Payne, former junior champion of Ontario, is to take part in the fantasy entitled "Aladdin and his Wonderful Lamp." She will be the Sultan's favorite of his harem.

Four-year-old Janice Crary is another guest artist, taking the part of a baby fairy.

One of the highlights will be the task of Aladdin, through the power of the Geni, to bring part of America to the palace courtyard—and who comes along but "Daisy Mae" and "Moonbeam McSwine" with that big strong American boy "L'il Aber" followed by "Lonesome Polecat"—promising some hilarious comedy.

Aladdin and his wonderful lamp brought up to date should make wonderful entertainment for young and old alike.

Herb Cardwell and his boys will do canoe stunts and acrobatics before the show starts at eight o'clock.

The Citizen's Band will be in attendance.

Bernadette Hogan Bride Of Gerald F. Blodgett

The marriage took place in St. Peter's Cathedral Saturday of Bernadette Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Hogan to Gerald Frederick Blodgett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Blodgett. Rt. Rev. Monsignor P. P. Butler officiated.

The church was decorated with delphinium, roses and lilies and the music was played by Miss R. G. Aman. During signing of the register Mrs. D. Campanaro sang "Ave Maria."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white slipper satin with fitted bodice of chantilly lace fashioned with a Peter Pan collar and the graceful skirt of satin and lace extended in a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil was caught by a small halo and she carried a cascade of red roses. Wedding attendants were Miss Aileen Hogan, sister of the bride, and Miss Marguerite Gardiner. They were frocked in matching dresses of pale green and orchid taffeta, in princess style with low scalloped neckline and they wore matching gloves. Their headdresses were half crowns of lily of the valley. They carried nosegays of yellow talisman roses and white 'mums.

Groomsman was Mr. Edward Ayotte, cousin of the bride. Ushers were Donald Blodgett, brother of the groom, and Douglas Lomax.

A reception was held at the bride's home where her mother received, wearing a dress of navy sheer and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother also received wearing navy sheer and white accessories with a corsage of white carnations.

Later the bride and groom left on a trip to the States. For travelling the bride chose a dress of turquoise sheer and white accessories and she carried an orchid. They will live in Peterborough on their return.

Recruiting Wrens To Start July 23 For Radio Work

OTTAWA, July 18 — (CP) — The Navy will start recruiting July 23 for about 150 women needed as full-time members of the Women's Royal Canadian Navy (Reserve) in naval radio stations, it was announced today.

This initial intake will precede a general recruiting drive for approximately 500 "Wrens" for service in the reserve. Successful applicants will attend the local drills of the local naval divisions, and for basic and trades training.

Immediate plans call for the Wrens to fill posts in RCN radio stations. HMC Naval Radio Station Coverdale, near Moncton, NB, will absorb the first recruits.

The women who enter as "Communicators" will be enlisted for five years three of which they will serve on continuous naval duty as radio operators. Their pay will be the same as for men of equivalent rank.

The Navy announcement said comfortable living quarters will be assigned the Wrens, and full winter and summer uniforms "of a smart new design and color" will be issued.

The Navy expects to recruit its first 150 Wrens in three weeks.

Women entering as Communicators must be between 19 and 25 years of age, in good physical condition, with grade 10 or equivalent education. For women with experience as radio technicians and operators, the age limit will be extended to 29. Applications will be considered from former Wrens of other categories up to 26 years of age.

Physical Handicap Need Be No Barrier To Happiness

DEAR MISS DIX: I realize that throughout life we are all bound to have moments of deep discouragement, but with an abundance of faith in the Lord our cheerfulness is soon restored. My fiance has been handicapped since childhood, due to polio. We truly love one another and plan to marry despite the fact that some of my closest friends advise against it.

Ray is a grand person in every respect. He has many friends, a wonderful sense of humor and a good job. He never shows signs of self-pity and in fact shies away from sympathy from anyone. He refuses to accept defeat in life because he isn't as physically fit as the rest of us. Our true love and understanding coupled with the faith we have in each other mean more to us than the appearance we will make. Is there any way I can explain to my friends that being handicapped is no barrier where there is true love?

RUTH

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: One has only to read the papers and observe the number of disabled war veterans who are doing such a magnificent job of rehabilitation to realize how much courage and faith will do for such people as your fiance. Many, many of those veterans, and other disabled people, have made successful marriages. In fact such marriages are apt to have a sounder foundation in the intangible factors of wedlock, such as trust, confidence, faith and hope.

Physical Factors Secondary

Physical aspects are obviously not the first consideration of either partner and an outward defect on the part of one mate brings a closer bond than exists between many of their perfectly formed friends.

A perfect marriage must have qualities of spiritual and mental, as well as physical value. With the existence of a physical imperfection, emphasis is bound to be placed on the mind and soul—where, of course, it should be in any case.

You will be called upon to make many sacrifices as the wife of a handicapped man. Many pleasures and sports will be denied you, but these things I am sure have received your due consideration. Instead of finding flaws in your marriage, your friends should applaud your courage and do whatever they can to make the way easier for you. I don't see how any friend worthy of the name could do otherwise.

With the faith you have in God, and in each other, you will meet all obstacles and overcome them. Your path will be stony in spots, but you and Ray will, I know, find a true and lasting happiness together.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Could it be a handicap to a happy marriage for a woman to feel that her husband is mentally inferior to her? Otherwise, he has all the qualities needed for a good husband.

M. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It would not only be a handicap but absolutely ruinous. However, who is to judge the mental inferiority of another creature? Is your contention based on formal education, or what? Even if the wife possesses a better education than her husband, it definitely does not indicate that he is mentally inferior. Her supposition of superiority is probably nothing but vanity, but if she is convinced that her intelligence is better than her husband's and goes to any length to keep him reminded of the fact, hubby is on the way to a nervous breakdown at least.

Try making your comparisons on a spiritual level. Who has more character, is more generous, loyal, religious, and tolerant—the man or woman? These are the characteristics that count—not a specious comparison of IQ's.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: One of the greatest causes of domestic unhappiness is the interference of their families in young people's affairs. Most young married couples would get along all right if their in-laws would just let them fight it out by themselves. I think our daily prayer should be: "Lord, help me to keep my darn nose out of other people's business, in-laws or otherwise."

W. P. P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Amen.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 25 years of age, and my wife is 32. We have a baby three weeks old. My wife is an epileptic and last week, while having an attack, she fell with the baby. Luckily, neither was injured but there is always the chance that one or both could be hurt this way in the future.

I am not financially able to provide someone to stay with them at all times, so I took my wife to her sister's. However, this arrangement is complicated by the fact that her sister has three children. My father and step-mother are willing to take the baby, but to this my wife will not agree. She says the baby is hers and she will not be separated from him. I am definitely confused as to what to do. Please give me your advice.

GENE

ANSWER: Have you talked this problem over with your doctor? Perhaps he could get some help for you from a visiting nursing service. I certainly agree that your wife and baby should not be left alone, and in her present state of health it probably wouldn't be wise to press the matter of separating her and the baby.

If you could get help from a visiting nurse, your father, step-mother and perhaps a neighbor or two might be able to offer supplementary assistance. Otherwise there seems to be no alternative but for your wife to go back to her sister. During such times as it is absolutely necessary for your wife to be alone with the child, the baby could be kept in his crib and your wife wouldn't have to carry him at all. That, at least, would avert the possibility of injury to the baby in the event of your wife having an attack.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a married woman with two children. For five years I was in love with another man who was younger than myself, and much better educated than my husband. I have just realized that I wasted five precious years. Now I am determined to make it up to my family and I think I can, because there has been no separation and my children are very young. Can I live down the past and be the kind of wife and mother I should be?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are fortunate to have come through this affair with nothing worse than a bad conscience. Having realized your mistake, you can now appreciate your family and the good things of life you have and the past will soon be forgotten.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

What's Right?

Someone pays you an unexpected compliment and you are embarrassed by it.

WRONG: Try to cover your embarrassment by denying the truth of the compliment.

RIGHT: Say a gracious "Thank you" and you'll show pleasure rather than embarrassment.

Order Reporters Not To Wander

MUNSAN, Korea, July 18 (AP) —The army today ordered all Allied correspondents visiting Kaesong to remain within the one-half mile neutral zone surrounding the site of Korean war cease-fire talks.

They were "urged" to travel in groups by jeep, rather than wander by themselves, in this limited area.

A few hours earlier, Associated Press correspondent Nate Polowetzky reported a growing hostility on the part of Communist soldiers policemen and Korean civilians in the armistice city.

Polowetzky said it appeared the Communist bosses of Kaesong were trying to discourage any show of friendliness by the Korean people.

Dies On Trip

TORONTO, July 18 (CP)—Hon. William Erskine Knowles, former justice of Saskatchewan court of the King's Bench and a veteran parliamentarian, died Tuesday. He was 79. A native of Alliston, Ont., Mr. Knowles began his political career in the federal House of Commons in 1906 by-election as Liberal member for Assiniboia, Sask., then the largest electoral district in Canada.

Suffers Broken Neck Continues To Work

KITCHENER, July 18 (CP) — A man suffered a broken neck while working on a farm near here Tuesday, but didn't know it for a while. The man, William Becker, was helping a neighbor, James Taylor, when he (Becker) fell off a wagon loaded with hay.

He finished the unloading then went to his car to go home. However, he started feeling severe pains in his neck and a doctor found Becker had fractured his neck. He now is in hospital.

Dollar Crisis Seen Looming Again In Britain

By ALAN HARVEY.

LONDON, July 18 — (CP) — That old black crow of post-war economics— the dollar crisis —has come back to plant a baleful foot on the British body politic.

For the first time in more than a year, the sterling area's gold and dollar reserves are going down instead of up. The phrase "dollar gap," mercifully buried since last summer, is heard again.

A third crisis, perhaps as acute as the convertibility crisis of 1947 or the devaluation crisis of 1949, may be in the making.

Rising import prices are the new villain. A leading government authority told newspapermen he regards the increase as unprecedented in peacetime. Britain now pays 42 per cent more than in 1950 for imports as a whole and 72 per cent more for imported raw materials, while export prices have risen by ony 18 per cent.

Trade Deterioration

This is what politicians mean when they talk about "deterioration in the terms of trade." Some financial commentators in leading newspapers profess to foresee a slight future easing in these terms, now that the prospects of peace in Korea seem brighter. But it will probably be necessary for Britain to make another cut in dollar imports.

Thus Canadian business may have to defer one of its fondest hopes—that the British treasury may soon take some of the wraps off sterling.

The reawakening of concern over British finances dates from last week when it was announced the country's adverse visible trade balance in June totalled £151,000,000, the biggest gap recorded in one month.

Now that the dollar gap is back again, one of the first results may be an attempt by Britain to interest friendly countries in a system of world controls over prices.

Hugh Gaitskell, the present chancellor, broached the topic at a recent meeting in Paris. More may be heard about it in the Commons, where Gaitskell is expected soon to make an important statement on the economic position.

John Meincinger Killed In Crash

NORWOOD, Juy 18—(ENS)—Solemn requiem mass was celebrated Tuesday morning at 10 a.m. by the Rev. C. J. Carroll at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Norwood, for John Meincniger, of RR 3, Indian River.

He died at Civic Hospital early Sunday morning after a car accident near Norwood early Saturday evening.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Meincinger, also two sisters, Mrs. James Sherwood (Ann) and Mrs. Joseph Giroux (Catherine), both of Toronto.

The funeral was largely attended. Friends were present from the United States as well as Toronto and surrounding districts.

Pallbearers were Norman Kidd, Neil Cameron, Joseph Walsh, Thomas and Michael Quinlan, Charles Coughlin.

Burial was in St. Paul's cemetery, Norwood.

Eden Sails For Canada On Empress Next Week

LONDON, July 18 — (CP) — Anthony Eden, Deputy Conservative leader, will sail for Canada next Tuesday on the Empress of France, it was learned today.

Eden will be in Canada only about three of four days en route address a world affairs institute Aug. 6. He expects to visit Montreal, Port Hope, and Winnipeg.

He will be accompanied by Robert Carr, Conservative member of Parliament for Mitcham, Surrey.

Break Up Trial

TAIPEH, Formosa, July 18 — (AP)—The Chinese Nationalist Defence Ministry said today its guerrillas broke up a Red Chinese purge trial with a time bomb. The ministry said 10 Communist officials were killed. The bombing was June 11 at Tungkun, 30 miles southeast of Canton.

Skipper Fined

HONG KONG, July 18 (AP)— Marine court fined a Norwegian skipper 2,400 Hong Kong dollars (about $400) Tuesday for overloading his ship. The skipper, Carl Magne Fiskaeen, brought his steamer Gonjer into port Monday for fresh water and minor repairs. He was en route from southeast Malaya to Japan with iron ore.

Summer Theatre Dusts Off "Hay Fever"

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

This week the Summer Theatre gives a spirited performance of Noel Coward's "Hay Fever"; It is a comedy about a family which is so rude and self-centred that it drives away its four weekend guests in the space of a few hours. The mother is an actress in retirement, who acts in private life; the father is a novelist who has no serious concern with anything but his work; the son and daughter are charming but undisciplined.

In the leading role of Judith Bliss, the actress, Miss Betty Leighton played with suitable extravagance and a very pleasant sense of comedy. As her husband Bill Needles gave the accomplished performance which we have learned to expect from him. As their children Kate Reid and Frank Perry were suitably charming and wild.

The offended guests were all well played, and Peter Mews was especially effective as a diplomat whose sense of propriety is disturbed by the eccentricity of his hosts. As a woman of the world and a girl of almost pathological innocence, Ann Murray and Norma Renault were well cast, and played with pleasant restraint in roles which might have got out of hand. Gerry Sarracini was subtly funny as a muscle-bound English athlete; his walk, combining boyish shyness with great strength, was a delightful piece of comic invention. Pat Atkinson, as the overdriven general servant of the household, made the best of a somewhat ungrateful part, and created a real character with firm, sure strokes.

The cast gave a good performance of a play which has been popular for twenty-five years. It is interesting to speculate on the reasons for its popularity.

Noel Coward was one of the first, and perhaps the best, of the authors who shattered the somewhat conventional type of play which occupied the stage after the First Great War. Some playwrights of the first rank were at work then—Barrie, Maugham and Galsworthy must be mentioned, as well as the great G.B.S.—but most plays were sentimental in tone. Coward gave new life to the stage by disguising sentimentality with a new sort of sophistication, and by writing dialogue of thistle-down lightness; "Hay Fever" is one of his masterpieces in this line. (Incidentally, we may say that we have never discovered the reason for the play's title, and would be glad to have it explained).

But twenty-five years is a long time, and "Hay Fever" is now almost a period piece. In 1926, presumably, audiences wished that they could talk like the characters in that play, and yearned to imitate their airy indifference to the serious things of life. We still laugh at the play, but its fashionable quality has gone forever; these people are as strange to us as characters in a play of Congreve, whom Mr. Coward was once said to resemble by his more fervent admirers. Probably we are no more serious than the people of 1926, but we like to imagine that we are, and the plays of our time reflect a return toward the sentimentality on the stage which Coward, temporarily, made unfashionable.

Although "Hay Fever" has lost its modern flavour, it is still a very funny play, and the Summer Theatre performs it well. This is first-rate summer entertainment, and for those who were young in 1926 it should provide food for pleasant reflection.

Gilmour Church School Picnic

Saturday afternoon, the Sunday School and Mission Band of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church held a picnic under ideal weather conditions on Mr. Allan Mann's shore on Chemong Lake. In the afternoon races and swimming were enjoyed.

The results of the races were as follows: 4 years and under, Harry Leaton, Ralph Mann; 5 and 6 years, Donnie McGregor, Garry Scott; girls, 7 and 8 years, Joyce Raddon, Lois Touchburn; boys, 7 and 8, Billy Excell, Don Reynolds and Tommy Blewett (tied); girls, 9 to 12, Shirley Raddon, Betty Raddon; boys, 9 to 12, Raymond Anderson, Douglas Irwin; 13 and over, Don Irwin, Iola Freeson; "Pillow Case" relay, Diana Rowland, Barbara Bulmer, Anne Freeman, Dorothy Leaton, Shirley Raddon; married ladies' race, Mrs. Morris Telford, Mrs. Chas. Touchburn; hat race, Raymond Anderson, Don Raddon.

Mrs. Reg McMullen had charge of the booth.

At 6.30, all sat down to a picnic supper.

The results of the after-supper races were: married men under 40, Burritt Mann, Don Moore, Braden Mann; married men over 40, Reg McMullen, Mr. M. Clark; married ladies, Mrs. Ralph Scott, Mrs. Raddon.

The married men "downed" the single men in a softball game. The Rev. Wm. Leaton closed the picnic with prayer. There were 130 present.

MAIDSTONE, England (CP).— Speaking on the problem of habitual criminals Gerald Thesiger, chairman of a Magistrate's Court here, said "in many ways it might be more efficient and just as merciful to kill off persistent criminals."

Colleen Smith Beauty Queen At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, July 18 — (ENS)—Three Campbellford girls won fame for themselves at the final hour of the Rotary Club Carnival on Saturday night, when they were picked winners of the beauty contest.

First for the second year in a row was Colleen Smith of Campbellford. Second place was won by Ruth McCann and Donna Jones placed thrid. There were six contestants.

The judges were all out of town people, among them Hon. Wm. A. Goodfellow, minister of welfare. He placed the "Miss Campbellford 1951" banner on Collen Smith, and presented her and the other two successful contestants with cosmetic kits, a silver cup, a purse and a corsage, and merchandise vouchers. A box of chocolates also went to each winner.

A large crowd watched the judging, as the girls paraded on an elevated platform on Front St.

In the lucky draw for a refrigerator or a television set, Bobby Bright of Campbellford was the winner.

The Rotary carnival, the biggest event of its kind held in Campbellford for a number of years, attracted many out-of-towners. Funds gained through the event will go to help the work of the club in the community.

Mare Captures 3rd Race In Row

TORONTO, July 18 (CP). — Edna Volo, a four-year-old mare which never started in her life until 10 days ago, had harness-racing followers muttering to themselves Tuesday after she won her third race in three starts.

Edna Volo, owned and driven by J. E. Seguin, of Kingston, accounted for both divisions of the trotting stake and set eyes a-popping when she trotted a mile in 2.11 3-5.

She paid $21.40 in her first outing of the afternoon and came back to pay $4.60 in the day's final event.

Another unbeaten mare, Hazel Grattan, from the barn of Grant Galbraith, of Tara, Ont., gave herself a new record when she nosed out Leon Baker from A. D. Harrison's stable of Brandon, Man., in the first dash. Hazel Grattan paced in 2.17, nearly five seconds faster than her previous mark. She combined with Theora, owned by Neil S. Pringle, of Sarnia, for a daily double of $61.60.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Representing Ontario this year in the interprovincial team match in connection with the Canadian ladies' golf championship will be Marlene Stewart of Lookout Point Club, Anne Sharp, her clubmate, Mrs. J. H. McCarter of Lambton and Mrs. N. J. Carlson of Toronto Rosedale.

Miss Stewart was automatically a member after winning the Ontario ladies title. Miss Sharp was runner-up for the provincial crown. Mrs. McCarter will act as captain. Mary Gay from Galt will be the spare.

The championships will be played at the Montreal Laval Club Aug. 2 to 11.

Moe Young, Regina hockey star who plays for Tulsa Oilers in the United States Hockey League, led the field Tuesday when the provincial trials ended for the Willingdon Cup golf team at Regina.

He was followed by Gordon Beattie, Harry Burns and Claude Dhackell, to make it an all-Regina representation on Saskatchewan's team in the Willingdon inter-provincial tournament at Ottawa Aug. 25.

Golf's big names followed the "common men" into Milwaukee Tuesday to battle for the third richest pot on this summer's Professional Golfers Association tournament trail.

The pros seek a share of the $20,000 posted for the Blue-ribbon Open at North Hills Country Club. The field includes about 100 of the United States' top "play-for-pay" golfers — Sammy Snead, Jim Ferrier, Marty Furgol and the rest.

Chicago White Sox attendance, boosted by Tuesday night's estimated 50,000 at the Sox-New York Yankee game, has surpassed the club's entire 1950 home record of 781,330.

Prior to Tuesday night's opener of a three-game set with the Yankees the Sox had 773,994 in 37 home games. The Sox all-time home attendance was 968,590 in 1946.

Kid Gavilan, world welterweight boxing champion, will meet Rocky Graziano, former middleweight titleholder, in a 10-round non-title bout in Chicago Stadium Sept. 5, Fernando Balido, Gavilan's manager, announced on Tuesday.

On Monday Gavilan, the Cuban kid, defeated Fitzie Pruden of St. Catharines in the Milwaukee Arena in a non-title affair.

Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Hockey League will be sent to Kingston penitentiary Friday.

The Leafs, forming the major part of the NHL All-stars baseball team organized by Toronto goaltender Turk Broda, will play an exhibition match against the prison softball squad. The game was arranged following a suggestion by Broda.

Beaches Not Worried If Game Cancelled

TORONTO, July 18 (CP). — Manager Paul McGarry of the Balmy Beach Ontario Rugby Football Union entry isn't the least bit worried about cancellation of an exhibition game with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four League.

Commenting on a report that the Hamilton team might cancel the game, McGarry said: "That's great."

"We've got a contract with a guarantee. Voyles (Hamilton's manager and coach) can just send us the cheque and forget about the ball game."

Elgin Triumphs

HASTINGS, July 18 (ENS). — In one of the best games seen in Hastings park this year, Elgin defeated Westwood 8-7 in an exhibition tilt. R. Warr started for Westwood and held Elgin scoreless for three innings, but in the fourth they jumped on him for four runs to take the lead. Ward took over the fifth to finish the game. Westwood pushed over two runs in the top of the ninth to tie the game up, but Elgin managed to score the winner in their half.

Ottawa Decides Entertain Mayor

OTTAWA, July 18 — (CP) — Maybe it was controller Charlotte Whitton's announcement that she would contribute "up to $1,000 myself" that influenced the board of control of Canada's capital.

Anyway the budget-conscious board Tuesday night gave grudging approval for an "official entertainment" for Sir Denys Lowson, Lord Mayor of London, England.

"I'm against it," said controller L. L. Coulter, "run to a lot of money. Think of the bill with a mob like that."

"Nonsense," said Miss Whitton, "if the city can't spare the money, I'll contribute up to $1,000 myself. This is no ordinary junket. This is an historic event and we must see to it that he is given a proper welcome."

Mayor Grenville Goodwin settled things by saying he will see that the Lord Mayor is suitably entertained by Ottawa.

The Lord Mayor will arive here Sept. 8 accompanied by his lady, two Sheriffs, a sword-bearer and two footmen.

End Week's Visit

PORTSMOUTH, England July 18 — (CP) — A Royal Canadian Navy training squadron, comprising three frigates under command of Cmrd. T. Pullen today ended a week's stay at this big British Naval base. The frigates — the Hulloise, Crescent and Swansea — Firth of Clyde, where they will stay for several days before going on to Belfast. Then they will return to their base at Halifax.

Doesn't Like Italy

COMO, Italy, July 18— (CP) — Honeymooning King Farouk and his 19-car convoy of court followers have left Italy for the Swiss resort city of Lugano. Farouk crossed the border last night after cancelling plans to stay in Como because the manager of a luxury hotel here refused to rent the entire hotel to the party.

16-Year-Old Bride

MARION, Ill., July 18. (AP)— A 16-year-old bride was keeping house today for her new husband who is more than four times her age. George Hardin, 68, a farmer, married May Sue Hayden last Saturday. It was the third marriage for Hardin. His first wife, the mother of his 40-year-old son, died. His second marriage ended in divorce.

Rain Threatens Charles Bout

By MURRAY ROSE.

PITTSBURGH, July 18 (AP).— A threat of late evening showers hung over the outdoor Exzard Charles - Jersey Joe Walcott heavyweight championship fight as the gladiators sweated out the hours for their third title clash at 10 p.m. EDT tonight.

This is Pittsburgh's first heavyweight title scrap and the Forbes Field card has caught on in the smoky city. The only answer to the unusual stir over this road show is Charles. The 30-year-old Cincinnati Negro considers this his second home town and his appearance here in defence of his crown is a fulfillment of an old promise.

Otherwise the furore would be difficult to understand. Lean Ezzard, in the sharpest condition of his life, is a 4 to 1 favorite in a light betting market to whip the 3E-year-old perennial challenger as decisively as he did in their other collisions in Chicago and Detroit.

Over $154,000 is aready in the till and a crowd of 20,000 is expected to contribute over $175,000 for the 15-rounder. The bout is being telecast over a 49-station hookup by the Dumont Network and will be broadcast by CBS.

In the event of a postponement, the bout will be staged Thursday.

Paige Ready For New Job

ST. LOUIS, July 18 (AP) — "They come tougher in the American League than where I've been this year, but I think I'm ready for them."

That was Leroy (Satchel) Paige talking as he prepared for his first starting assignment with St. Louis Browns.

"I've been here before and I think I can handle them," the negro righthander added.

The veteran hurler—most estimates of his age place him in his 50's—signed his contract yesterday with Brownie owner Bill Veeck looking on. It was Veeck who brought Paige into the majors with Cleveland Indians in 1948.

Paige said he expects to stay in the game as long as he can. Most predictions are that he will stay about four innings, then be lifted for a relief hurler.

That's what he has been doing with Chicago Giants, a negro professional team. Using that system, Paige pitched every two or three days.

FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD Billy McCulloch is shown (above) at the controls of the soap-box racer he designed himself. With it he won the senior class of the Rotary-sponsored soap-box derby at Campbellford on the week-end. Billy placed first in the 12 years and over class. His brother, Bob, 12, on Tuesday rescued a man from the Trent River at Healey Falls.

Soap-Box Derby At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, July 18 — (ENS) — Fourteen-year-old Bill McCulloch was the winner of the Soap-Box Derby sponsored by the Rotary Club here recently. Bill won the race, and the silver cup that went with it, in a racer he designed and built himself. This was the first time he had entered a derby.

There were a good list of entries in the race down the public school hill, and tension among the youthful contestants ran high both before and during the event. One spill added to the thrills of the occasion, but the youthful racer righted his chariot and went on to place second in the junior event.

First in the eight years and under race was Mike Holmes. Paul Linton was second. In the 12 to 14-year-old event, Bill McCulloch placed first; Jim McComb, second; Ted Newman, third, and Roy McMillan, fourth.

The race attracted a number of spectators, many of them dads who had helped build the soap-box racers that were careening down the long hill.

Bill McCulloch, winner of the senior event, is a brother of Bobby McCulloch who figured in the recent rescue of a drowning youth at Healey Falls.

The grant is intended to encourage dancers, composers and designers interested in ballet.

London Still Way Ahead Of New York in Population

LONDON, July 18— (CP) — London's poulation is getting smaller, but the city is still the biggest in the world, official figures show.

Greater London — comprising the City of London and the surrounding metropolitan police districts—now has a total of 8,346,137 persons, compared with 7,835,099 for Greater New York.

The figures are taken from a preliminary report on Britain's latest census, taken last April. This shows that London's population has shrunk by nearly 400,000 since 1939.

Total population for the United Kingdom stood at 50,210,472. The total for Great Britain alone was 48,840,893.

A striking feature of the report is the revelation that in the last few decades rural population has increased and urban population decreased.

The new drift to the land, which raised population in country areas from 17.6 per cent to 19.3 per cent since 1931, has taken place mostly since 1939. In the 20-year period, population in cities and towns has dropped from 82.4 per cent to 80.7 per cent.

Two reasons are given for the trend. One is the wartime emphasis on food growing and the other is the development of green belts.

Densely Packed

But if the population is dispersing it is still densely packed. In England and Wales, the average density of population—750 persons to the square mile—is said to be among the highest in the world.

London's loss of some 400,000 persons is blamed on evacuation of central and eastern boroughs, which were subjected to the enemy's most concentrated attack. Stepney, Shoreditch and Poplar lost approximately half their populations during the war and many who were evacuated did not come back. The only boroughs which retain the same number of people as before the war are Hampstead, a popular residential area in North London, Woolwich and Lewisham.

Birmingham has become Britain's second city, the survey shows. In 1931 it had 80,000 fewer persons than Glasgow, but now exceeds it by 22,785 with a total of 1,112,340. An oddity is that the population of Coventry, a great engineering city, but one of the hardest hit in the blitz, has increased by 17.4 per cent since 1939.

There are still more women than men in Britain. The proportion, which used to be 1,096 to 1,000, is down now to 1,081 to 1,000. And, as the report puts it, the greatest preponderance of females continues to be found in London and the southeastern region.

Take 6 Million Dollars Worth Of Salmon

LONDON, July 18 (Reuters)— Britain has agreed to buy 6,000,000 tons of Canadian canned salmon from this year's catch, the food ministry announced today.

This was larger than the quantity bought last year.

Canning operations have just started and the salmon will not be available for distribution in Britain until next year, the mnistry added.

No Sign White Sox Folding Whip Yanks in 10th Inning

By JOE REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

The White Sox fold? Don't tell that to Casey Stengel and his New York Yankees.

They know better after what happened to them Tuesday night. They had Chicago whipped only to see Paul Richards' amazing Sox snatch victory right out of their mitts with a three-run blast in the eighth inning and the "decider" in the tenth.

Chicago won 4-3, after trailing 2-0 in the eighth. The triumph gave the Sox sole possession of second place in the American League, only two percentage points behind the pace-setting Boston Red Sox.

Cleveland climbed in a virtual third place tie with New York, defeating the Red Sox, 8-6, as Bob Feller became the first pitcher to rack up 13 triumphs. Only a game and a half separate the four clubs.

The outlook was gloomy for Chicago as the Sox faced Allie (no-hit) Reynolds in the eighth trailing because of Hank Bauer's two-run homer in the seventh.

But a walk, successive singles by Nellie Fox, Eddie Stewart and Minnie Minoso—and the score was tied at 2-2. Eddie Robinson grounded out and Stewart crossed the plate with the third Chicago run.

Tie Count

The Yankees knotted the count at 3-3 in the ninth on a pair of walks, a double by pinch-hitter Bobby Brown and Johnny Hopp's infield out.

In the 10th, however, with Stubby Overmire on the Yankee hill, Stewart doubled. After Minoso was given an intentional pass, Robinson came through with a single to centre, bringing Stewart home with the winging run.

Feller yielded eight hits including home runs to Lou Boudreau and pinch-hitter Charley Maxwell as the Indians moved to within three percentage points of the third-place Yankees.

The smallest night-game crowd ever to see a game in Detroit — 5,746 fans—watched the Tigers whip the Philadelphia Athletics, 8-5. Johnny Groth paced the Tiger attack with two doubles and a single.

Tommy Byrne of the St. Louis Browns shut out Washington 2-0, on four hits after Sandy Consuegra had pitched the Senators to a 7-2 victory over the Browns in the first game of a twin bill.

Nip Brooklyn

Pittsburgh's Pirates nipped Brooklyn 4-3, but the Dodgers retained their eight-game lead in the National League as both New York and St. Louis were beaten. Chicago Cubs defeated the second place Giants, 7-4, and Boston Braves shut out the third-place Cardinals, 4-0. Cincinnati beat Philadelphia 9-8, but the Phils came back to win the second game 10-0.

Bill Howerton singled home George Metkovich in the eighth with the run that beat the Dodgers. A triple by pinch-hitter Pete Reiser and a long fly had brought in the tying run earlier in the inning.

Cal McLish recorded his first victory and his first complete game since May 5 as he pitched the Cubs to victory over the Giants. Roy Smalley homered for the winners.

Max Surkont blanked the Cards with nine scattered hits for his eighth Boston victory. Earl Torgeson drove in three of the Braves' four runs.

Outfielder Joe Adcock of the Reds pounded out four hits in four times at bat, scored four runs in the first game and threw out the potential tying run at the plate in the ninth inning to cut short a five-run Philly rally. Lefty Jocko Thompson blanked the Reds with six hits in the nightcap as the Phils collected 11 hits off loser Ken Raffensberger and his relliefers.

Fight Fans Like Boxing Scoreboard

PORTLAND, Ore., July 18 (AP) —Fight fans said they liked the new boxing scoreboard tried out here Tuesday night when Harry (Kid) Matthews, leading heavyweight contender, knocked out Baby Dutch Culbertson of Los Angeles.

The board measures about six feet square and lights up to let the crowd know how the judges and referee score each round.

One fan said he liked the board because it gave him a chance to boo the judges after every round instead of having to wait until the end of the bout.

Another pointed out that it gave the fighters a chance to see how they were doing and, as a result, stepped up the action.

That appeared to be the case Tuesday night when Matthews went in for the kill after he saw that the judges and referee had awarded the second round to Culbertson.

The machine works something like a huge pinball game, lighting up scores of each round in colored lights.

Shooting Close At Bisley Meet

BISLEY, England, July 18 (CP) —Shooting in the St. George's competition at the Bisley meet was so close Tuesday that 53 competitors scored 71 points with only 52 places to fill in the final 100.

Among the 53 going forward for a tie-shoot today are Pte. C. O. James of Hamilton, and WO2. A. C. Green of Vancouver.

The Royal Hamilton Light Infantry group won third prize in the Belgian Challenge Trophy team shoot.

The Canadians scored 562 points in the competition at 200, 500 and 600 yards. City Rifle Club of London won with 572 out of a possible maximum of 600.

LEGION VICTORY

HASTINGS, July 18 (ENS).— Legion held second place in the local ball league by beating Juniors 16-9. Richardson gave way to Crowley in the fifth, while Morrow's control was shaky on the other mound. Wilson relieved him in the fifth.

Model Prison Stresses Reform In New Training

KINGSTON — (CP)—A new philosophy of prison life—you can't reform a man if you kick him when he's down—is being taught both guards and inmates alike at Collins Bay Penitentary, a model federal prison six miles west of here.

There are no grey stone walls, barred windows or rows of steel doors at Collins Bay. Instead, prisoners are housed in neat cell-blocks painted in restful pastel tones and with dark linoleum on the floors replacing hard concrete.

There are no steel bars on the cells. Each is equipped with a sturdy wooden door which adds to the general appearance and provides privacy and silence.

Living conditions at Collins Bay are only part of a theory that a man who commits a crime may be a victim of society as well at its enemy. Less attention is paid to the prisoner's bad habits and more to the development of his good ones.

Training Keynote

Training is the keynote at Collins Bay, or as Warden Harold Cleeton says—"Training with a view to reform and rehabilitation."

In that respect, no one is ever sentenced to Collins Bay. Each prisoner is individually chosen on the basis of his age—he must be under 21 years old—be a first offender and possess reformable tendencies.

New ideas in penology has altered the "climate" at the penitentiary. Prisoners jokingly refer to their incarceration as "summering at the Bay" but that doesn't mean that they're there for a rest cure. ⇒

Prisoners, clad in plain shirts and overall trousers which replaced stripes at the Bay, are all gainfully employed at some trade which will aid in their rehabilitation. The men are no longer employed on labor for its own sake. The accent is on training for the future and reform.

Steady Workers

Prisoners carry lumber, pour concrete and pat cement blocks in place on a new building program at the Bay. They work steadily as if they were earning $1 an hour instead of five cents a day.

Modern shops, fully-equipped with the latest tools, have been set up to help inmates learn a vocation. All must take courses in mathematics, blueprint reading and draughting in connection with their assigned trades.

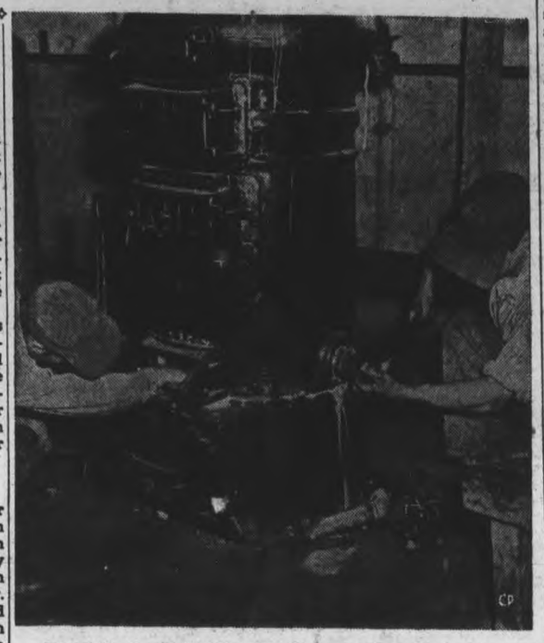
Prisoners learn how to operate a lathe, lay bricks, build a house or install plumbing and air-conditioning equipment. But first they go to school—from nine months to a year depending on the course—and must pass written examinations.

Concentration on education at Collins Bay stems from the publication of the Archambault Report implemented by Maj-Gen R. B. Gibson when he was appointed commissioner of penitentaries in 1946.

Needs Education

"The prisoner should be regarded as an adult in need of education as well as acriminal in need of reform," he told the Canadian Penal Congress here two years ago.

Education is further encouraged through correspondence courses handled by the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Ontario Department of Education. No fewer than 10 inmates are registered in extra-mural courses on a university level and 17 out of a class of 20 passed their entrance examinations this year.



Work and study can occupy only a certain amount of a prisoner's time. He must have reasonable periods of rest and relaxation. Officials at the Bay have introduced a stepped-up recreational program including diversified sports and hobbies.

An orchestra is in the process of formation and many of the Bay's 380 inmates contribute to a weekly newspaper known as "CB Diamond."

"The prisoner is no longer just a number," says C. A. M. Edwards, classification officer at Collins Bay. "He is a human being and an individual and he is treated like one."

NO BARS, NO GREY WALLS—Collins Bay Penitentiary, near Kingston, is run on the basis of "training with a view to reform and rehabilitation." Prisoners are individually chosen on the basis of age — they must be less than 21—and possess reformable tendencies. Apart from the technical training, living conditions also are improved; cell-blocks are painted in pastel colors; each cell has linoleum-covered floor and a wooden door.

TRICKS OF THE TRADE—Furnace installation is one of many trades taught to prisoners at the Collins Bay Penitentiary. The penitentiary is run largely on the training of first offenders for useful trades in public life.

Trip to Britain Fine, Take Your Own Soap

If you are planning a trip to Britain, take your own soap. That's a suggestion from Dick Raine, just back from the Old Country and the continent.

Soap is one of the scarce commodities, and you are not likely to find a guest bar in your room. Of course, there is soap in England, but it is far from the abundance to which Canadians are accustomed. And, in good hotels, too, you may find paper napkins, serviettes, missing from the dining table. As for newsprint, you probably know that most of it has to be imported, and newspapers have to husband their allotted supplies.

Lumber Scarce

Lumber is also in the scarce list, but there is still in the Old Land a great deal of courtesy. "You notice it particularly in the lanes and roads of motor traffic."

"In the lack of lumber, for instance," said Mr. Raine, "you notice that light standards are constructed of concrete. You don't see the long lines of wooden poles that we raise for our light and telephone lines. I thought the concrete standards were more attractive than anything in wood is likely to be."

A lot of the lumber used in construction is what might be called second-hand material salvaged from demolished buildings. Mr. Raine naturally noticed with an interested eye that much of the new construction is of precast concrete.

He suggested that more Canadians should consider a vacation in Britain, their ancestral home, rather than in Florida or California. Canadian are warmly welcomed, travel is not expensive, and the Canadian tourist dollar can help a great deal in these times over there.

"I motored with my brother-in-law, Dr. Robert A. Campbell, from his home in Morton Wirral in Cheshire, 20 minutes from Liverpool via the Mersey tunnel, down the west coast to Land's End in Cornwall, along the south coast to Dover. Then we crossed to France and went on to Italy. Returning to England, we went up along the east coast and back to Morton."

A trip to the Old Country will convince the Canadian visitor of the sacrifices Britain has made in two wars to preserve the freedom of her own people, and of the world.

"We have heard much about restrictions. For instance, you can't go into business without a government permit, but that is only one phase of experience. There is hospitality and courtesy, and the ancient beauty of Britain, and tourist expenditure helps people who are our own kin."

Moose Doesn't Care About Mine Strike

TIMMINS, July 18—(CP)—The strike of 1,600 miners at Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines doesn't interest Donald, the mooching moose.

Tomato sandwiches with lots of salt, however, do.

He stood at the south gate of the mine property Monday night for more than an hour while workers fed him. But despite the fact he's mascot of management and workers alike, Donald is lonely.

His mother, who bore him on mine property one spring night a year ago, trotted off during the mating season last fall in answer to the trumpet of a bull moose far back in the bush.

Since then, Donald has roamed the large, heavily-wooded tract alone, getting what he could from the men.

The strikers have been idle for eight days now, enforcing demands for wage increases and a union dues check-off.

WINDSOR, July 18 (CP)—The Rev. R. O. D. Salmon left the Essex deanery Monday to assume new duties in Chatham in connection with the Anglican Church extension program.

Mr. Salmon came to Windsor in October, 1949, and has spearheaded parish activities to build four new churches.

Born in Guelph, Mr. Salmon is a graduate of University of Toronto Wycliffe College.

In Owen Sound district he served as rector of five different churches and directed the construction of new churches in two of these parishes.

Biggest Steel Plant Opened In Wales

PORT TALBOT, Wales July 18 —(Reuters) — Europe's biggest steel plant, a 4½ mile-long giant built with the help of Marshall Aid, was opened Tuesday by Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Gaitskell set in motion machinery which will produce 1,250,000 tons of steel sheet and tin plate a year and revolutionize Welsh methods of production.

Nearly 20,000 tons of United States machinery, costing $20,000,000 are incorporated in the plant—called the Abbey Works—which covers 600 acres along the Bristol Channel. It cost £60,000,000 and took four years to build.

Earlier, Senator Herbert O'Connor (Dem., Md.) introduced a resolution to bar all foreign Communist newspapermen—including Russia's—from the US.

Cease-Fire Talks Nearing Crisis Deadlock Remains

MUNSAN, Korea, July 19. (AP)—Korean cease-fire negotiations neared a crisis in a two-hour session today. "No progress" was made, the United Nations said. Friday's meeting will tell the story, an official spokesman predicted. "We'll come to an agreement or there will be an air of finality about the disagreement," said Lt.-Col. W. J. Preston. Neither the Communist nor the United Nations delegation would budge from its previous position on the one basic issue under debate, said Preston. He attended the sessions at Kaesong.

The issue is believed to be the Communist demand that foreign troops withdraw from Korea, although no one has said so officially.

"Each side was very emphatic in its stand," said Preston. "Never have I heard the same thing stated in so many different ways than today.

"Each statement was just as emphatic—or even more so—than the previous one."

Preston said his remarks had the approval of the United Nations Command. Presumably this included Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway. The Supreme Allied Commander flew back to Korea from his Tokyo headquarters in response to a message from his armistice negotiators.

No Progress

The acuteness of the crisis was indicated by the official UN communique. For the first time since talks started July 10 it reported "no progress."

"There is one basic issue that the North Korean-Chinese delegation is holding out for," Preston said. "It was the subject of debate all day."

Brig-Gen. William Nuckols, deputy information chief of the UN Command, said:

"I believe Friday will be an important day."

Despite the sharp cleavage in views, Preston said he would not call it a deadlock

The announcement said Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, head of the UN delegation, "reiterated the United Nations stand that only matters of a military nature would be discussed."

Political Angle

Allied spokesmen have labelled the question of troop withdrawal as political.

Joy's statement Thursday was given in answer to a request from North Korean Gen. Nam Il, head of the Red delegation, for the UN opinion on the agenda proposed by the Communists.

After hearing Joy, the communique said, Nam talked 18 minutes "and made it clear that their position was unchanged on the question under debate."

After a 30-minute recess, negotiators went back into session and remained in conference through the noon hour, normally devoted to recess.

Joy was smiling when the delegates adjourned for the day, in contrast with his brusque attitude

Dies Second Time After Doctors Restored Life

PORT COLBORNE, July 19 — (CP). — A five-year-old boy, who was brought back to life on Wednesday after his heart had stopped beating for four minutes, died in hospital early today.

Ronald Lepine of Port Colborne failed to regain consciousness although he lived for many hours after an emergency operation started his heart beating again.

Remembering a lecture on cardiac arrest they had attended two months ago, two general practitioners made an incision in the boy's chest and massaged his heart for 15 seconds Wednesday.

Extra 17 Hours

Their action gave the boy an additional 17 hours of life, but he failed to remain consciousness. His temperature began to rise about eight hours after the operation and could not be arrested.

Death was, believed to have been caused by damage to the brain during the time the boy's heart was still. An autopsy was performed to determine the exact cause of death.

The lad collapsed under an anaesthetic which was administered in preparation for a tonsillectomy.

"He was dead," said Dr. Ewen MacKenzie, Jr. "There wasn't a heart beat for four minutes."

Recognized Condition

Dr. MacKenzie, who gave the anaesthetic, and Dr. J. C. Wilson, who was to perform the operation, immediately recognized the condition.

A three-inch incision was made in the wall of the boy's chest and Dr. MacKenzie put his hand in, pulled back a rib and reached the heart. He massaged it until it began beating.

Meanwhile, Dr. Wilson called the Port Colborne fire hall, just around the corner from his office. An inhalator was brought in to administer oxygen.

The child was later taken to Port Colborne General Hospital where doctors said he was showing signs of improvement although he still was not out of danger.

Heard Lecture

The two general practitioners —both are 33—were in St. Catharines two months ago to hear a

Bowlers Cancel Trip To Canada

TORONTO, July 19 (CP) — A proposed visit of 30 United Kingdom lawn bowlers to Canada this month, has been cancelled due to "economic problems," Walter Cowan, KC, secretary of the Canadian Lawn Bowling Council said today.

The UK team, members of the National Bowling Association, was to have bowled against Canadian teams from Montreal to Vancouver.

Mr. Cowan said an invitation has been extended to the bowlers from Scotland, Ireland, England and Wales to visit this country in 1953.

A Canadian team of 30 bowlers will travel to England in June of 1952 to bowl against teams in the British Isles.

In the past, teams from South Africa, New Zealand, and Australia, as well as Great Britain, have toured this country.

Canadian Freighter Rams, Sinks Scow

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP). — A Canadian freighter, the 7,000-ton SS Dingwall, early today rammed and sank a cargo-laden scow moored to a stake boat. Two men were believed drowned.

The coast guard reported the collision occurred at 5:45 a.m. EDT near where the East River and Long Island Sound join.

The body of one man, tentatively identified as A. Morell, was recovered. Police were searching for a second man believed trapped in the sunken scow.

The freighter is listed as being owned by the Dingwall Shipping Co. Ltd., of Halifax, an affiliate of the National Gypsum Co., of New York.

The scow, owned by F. Jacobus Transportation Co., Inc., of New York, was carrying a cargo of broken stone.

Map Plans For Handling Pact Parley

Suggest Montreal May Be Chosen As Conference Site

OTTAWA, July 19. (CP) — Government officials are making a preliminary study of Canada's abilities to handle the biggest official international conference to be held in this country in years — a September meeting of the Atlantic Pact Council.

Roughly 300 delegates from 11 foreign countries would be coming — including the foreign, defence and finance ministers of each—and the external affairs department is making a tentative canvass of accommodation facilities in Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and possibly other places.

It is not yet definite that the meeting will be held in Canada. However it now appears highly probable and the question should finally be settled within 48 hours.

Discuss Site

The date and site of the meeting have been under discussion among council deputies in London.

The tentative target date for the conference is Sept. 17.

The meeting would bring to Canada such famous figures as State Secretary Acheson and Defence Secretary Marshall of the US, Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison of Britain and others.

Canada's top delegates would be External Affairs Minister Pearson, Defence Minister Claxton and Finance Minister Abbott.

The meeting would last about a week.

Officials say Ottawa would be the logical site for the meeting but it is not clear whether there will be enough accommodation available here at the time.

Another report in a Toronto paper hints Montreal may be chosen. The story says the defence department has asked "the men in that city who look after important conventions, "if they can handle a meeting in late September of "several hundred people."

The paper says one factor in holding the NATO meeting there would be the simultaneous interpretation system used by the international civil aviation organization. It is a similar system to that used at United Nations headquarters.

Name Lt.-Col. Kenyon Attache In Belgrade

OTTAWA, July 19 (CP).—Lt.-Col. Lloyd Everett Kenyon, 36, formerly of Beamsville, Ont., has been appointed to succeed Col. R. E. Hogarth, 36, of Timmins, as military attache at the Canadian Legation at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, is was announced today.

Now en route to Europe, he will assume the rank of acting colonel on his arrival at Belgrade.

Col. Hogarth will return to Canada to become directing staff officer at the Canadian Army Staff College at Kingston.

For the last four years Col. Kenyon has served on the general staff at army headquarters here. In 1943 he commanded the 12th field battery RCA, but spent his service abroad was as a staff officer.

Mystery Deaths Spark Inquiry

FORT FRANCES, Ont., July 19 (CP)—The mysterious death of a tourist operator and his dog is being investigated by provincial police.

They said today they had found the body of Percy McClenaghan, 52, missing for six days, on the edge of Lac Lacroix in the Rainy River district.

The man had been shot in the back of the head but no bullet was found.

The body of the man's dog was discovered concealed with rocks in a crevice. Police said the animal had been shot.

An autopsy was performed on McClenaghan's body by a doctor in Fort Francis but a more detailed examination has been ordered.

Police found $200 in McClenaghan's pocket.

Offers To Mediate

NEW DELHI, July 19 (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru today received Australia's offer to mediate in the increasingly bitter dispute between India and Pakistan over Kashmir. The offering of Australia's good offices was similar to one sent to Pakistan's Prime day. Details of the message to Nehru were not disclosed.

Egypt Scolds Navy Captain For Searching UK Freighter

CAIRO, Egypt, July 19 (Reuters).—Egypt today censored the Egyptian warship captain who held up and searched a British freighter in the Red Sea July 1 and touched off an international rumpus.

Cairo's reply to British protests also condemned the attitude of the master of freighter, the Empire Roach, and reiterated Egypt's sovereignty in territorial waters and her right to blockade Israel.

The reply was said to describe the boarding as a "regrettable incident."

High sources said these were the main points of a note due to be delivered to the British Ambassador here in the next 24 hours in answer to Britain's protest.

The Egyptian warship halted the Empire Roach in the Red Sea, sent an armed party aboard and searched the ship for Israeli contraband.

The English captain reported the Egyptians held his ship for 24 hours, looted a storeroom and smashed a radio.

No contraband was found—the ship was actually carrying stores to the Arab Legion garrison at Akaba, Jordan.

(Britain is seeking American cooperation in a United Nations resolution asking the security council to take action against the Egyptian blockade of the Suez route. A British draft protest is being circulated at Lake Success.)

It was learned today that Foreign Minister Saleh El Din Pasha assured American Ambassador Jefferson Caffery Monday that the dispute can be settled through normal diplomatic channels and no United Nations action will be needed.

Hail Storm Damage Said Several Millions

Say Seaway To Be Entirely Canadian-Built

Ottawa Report Indicates Plans Now Drawn Up For Commons

TORONTO, July 19—(CP)— An Ottawa dispatch to a Toronto newspaper today says that an entirely Canadian-built St. Lawrence Seaway is now a certaity, regardless of the outcome of the battle now going on in the United States House of Representatives Public Works Committee.

The dispatch says plans have been drawn up to put the seaway entirely on the Canadian side and studies have been made of the availability of labor, materials and equipment. Legislation authorizing construction has been drafted to be placed before the Commons, it adds.

The dispatch continues:

"It is now likely the legislation will be introduced at the fall session of parliament and it has been reported it will set up a Crown agency to direct and control the work.

"Government leaders who have been following the daily voting reached by the committee on various proposals to support or kill US participation in the navigation and power are satisfied that congressional approval is now out of the question."

Nearer Decision

Meanwhile in Washington, the House of Representatives Public Works Committee today moved nearer a decision on legislation to authorize the St. Lawrence seaway and power project. It then adjourned to meet next Thursday.

The 26-member committee by a vote of 20 to 5, tabled a Bill by Representative Henry Larcade (Dem.-La.). This left for consideration another St. Lawrence Bill by Rep. John Blatnik (Dem.-Minn.).

Main difference between the two Bills: Larcade's proposes financing the $800,000,000 project through issuance of Treasury bonds.

Blatnik's proposes financing through appropriation from Treasury funds—the usual way of financing government power projects.

Representative Tom Pickett (Dem.-Tex.), an opponent of the St. Lawrence project, told reporters after today's closed-door session that opponents control sufficient votes to defeat the legislation — a view which some proponents privately concede.

Earlier Representative Geo. Fallon (Dem.-Md.) had expressed the opinion that a final vote might be taken today. He is opposed to the project.

Kennedy Declares Crops Flattened Badly Across Wide Section

70% Grain Destroyed North of Owen Sound With Loss of $100,000; Hundreds of Windows Shattered By Hail

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Severe electrical storms accompanied in some cases by hailstones and high winds, struck across Ontario Wednesday night and caused damage that Agriculture Minister Kennedy estimated at "several millions of dollars." Weather officials said the storms, accompanied by slashing rains, thunder and lightning were reported as far west as Sault Ste. Marie, as far north as Sudbury and eastward past Trenton. Parts of Southern Ontario — particularly near London and Dundalk—suffered lightning fires, power blackouts and crop damage.

Hailstones "as big as hens' eggs" smashed windows, killed chickens and flattened ripening wheat and oat crops.

In the Annan district, six miles north of Owen Sound, a 20-minute storm cut a three-mile swath destroyed 70 per cent of the grain crop on 15 farms, and damaged fruit trees.

Flattens Crops

South of Owen Sound, the storm flattened grain crops and ruined gardens. Hailstones broke 70 panes of glass in one home.

Damage to crops and property has been estimated at more than $100,000 in widely scattered parts of Grey County.

Farmers in the Durham area, 28 miles south of here, estimated their damage alone at about $100,000.

Near Walford in the Sudbury district, lightning started a fire in a farmhouse owned by Glen Withers. The seven-roomed house burned to the ground.

At Sault Ste. Marie cellars flooded over and power lines were broken by falling trees as the driving rain and lightning swept across the city. Two electrical storms hit the Dundalk district and a barn owned by George Armstrong was burned by a fire started by lightning.

In the Toronto area, two storms broke about midnight and brought the second-heaviest downpour this year—.3 inches. The heaviest was on June 22 when .9 inches of rain fell. No damage to trees or property was reported from either the city or suburbs.

US, Spain Reach Agreement On Use Of Bases

MADRID, Spain, July 19 — (AP)— The United States was reported driving ahead today toward American use of Spanish air and naval bases—despite French and British opposition.

Authoritative sources Wednesday night said the US and the Franco government had reached a basic agreement to use Spanish bases for western defence. A special US mission, they added, soon will come here to work out details.

The informants said the agreement, which does not involve an outright Spanish-American alliance, was reached Tuesday during a conference between Generalissimo Francisco Franco and Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, American chief of naval operations.

Strong Opposition

Britain and France not only oppose the US plan to acquire Spanish bases, but have objected to Spain's association with any member of the Atlantic Pact.

(Dispatches from London and Paris said both the French and British felt any association by an Atlantic Pact power with the Franco government would provide Russia with a prime propaganda weapon.

Italians Welcome As Immigrants

OTTAWA, July 19 (CP) — An immigration department official said today that any "suitable and desirable" Italians are welcome to Canada as immigrants.

He was commenting on a news dispatch from United Nations, NY, which Wednesday night quoted Giorgio Fadda, an expert from the Italian Labor Ministry, as saying that Canada is able to take millions more people, "but the Canadians don't seem to be willing to open their doors."

The official said the comment was typical of a person looking at Canada from abroad, seeing a large country with only a few million people. The remarks usually came from people who did not know Canadian geography or climatic conditions.

There is no quota on the number of Italians [illegible] ada. Since the end of the Second World War about 26,350 Italians have been admitted as immigrants.

Dutch Girl Makes Pilgrimage To Canada

TORONTO, July 19 —(CP)—A Dutch girl this week will complete a pilgrimage to the homes of five RCAF airmen killed during the war.

Four years ago Abriana (Paddy) Renou of Amsterdam found the graves of the five at Nikmegan in The Netherlands. She sent photographs of the burial places to the airmen's parents and made regular visits to tend the graves.

Today she visited the suburban Willowdale home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Broom, whose son was one of the five. Friday she plans to stop off at Brockville to visit the parents of Sgt. J. L. O'Grady. She has already visited the parents of PO. S. L. Todd of Cobalt, WO. Edward Powell of Sarnia and Sgt. G. L. McElroy of St. Thomas.

The five were killed when their bomber crashed in 1942.

Oil Executive Latest Target Of Iran's Anger

TEHRAN, Iran, July 19 (AP)—Iran took new measures today against an Anglo-Iranian Oil Company executive as W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's special envoy, paid his third visit to Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

N. R. Seddon, chief Anglo-Iranian representative in Tehran, disclosed that the Iranian government revoked his residence permit today. Seddon told reporters, however, he would not leave the country until the British Embassy had made a formal protest against the move to oust him.

A source close to Mossadegh said Seddon would be ordered to leave the country within five days. The informant gave no reason for the expulsion order, but indicated it was in connection with papers seized in a raid on Seddon's house two weeks ago.

Claim Influence Used

Newspapers here have claimed that some of the papers showed Anglo-Iranian had been influencing the Iranian press and public officials.

The action against Seddon was taken on the fifth day of Harriman's discussions with Iranian officials to see if some compromise could be reached in the nationalization dispute which has halted oil shipments from southern oil fields.

Mossadegh remained in bed on the porch of his home as he talked for an hour with Harriman this morning. A spokesman said they discussed reports submitted by two members of the Parliamentary Oil Nationalization Board who have been conferring for the last two days on technical details with Walter Levy, Harriman's personal oil adviser.

Try New Move To Free Oatis

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP). —The United States has started new diplomatic moves to get William Oatis, Associated Press correspondent out of a Czechoslovak

Acheson disclosed Wednesday.

Acheson told a press conference that he expects the Czech government to reply sometime this week.

This development followed the growing demands in Congress for drastic retaliatory action against Czechoslovakia for jailing Oatis, AP Bureau chief in Prague, who was sentenced July 4 to 10 years in jail after a Prague court convicted him of alleged espionage.

Led Cavalry Charge General Found Shot

MELROSE, Scotland, July 19 (Reuters).—Lt.-Gen. Sir Charles Alexander Campbell Godwin, the man who led the last cavalry charge in British military history was found shot dead near his home Wednesday.

A gun lay near him when he was found with shot wounds in the head.

The charge took place in 1917 during the First World War at El Mughar in Palestine, when Godwin was in command of the 6th Yeomanry Brigade.

25,133 Canadians Emigrated From Country in 1950

OTTAWA, July 19. (CP)—An estimated 25,133 persons emigrated from Canada in 1950, compared with 25,083 in 1949, the Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday. The report was the first ever issued by the Bureau of Emigration. Heretofore, emigration totals have had to be obtained from the immigration records of other countries.

The Bureau explained that its figures were based on applications to the Exchange Control Board for permission to transfer assets out of the country. Before leaving Canada, emigrants must obtain permission to take their funds with them.

Poor System

This basis of estimating emigration has limitations, said the Bureau. Some persons leave the country without applying for a transfer of funds. Others apply and then do not leave the country.

Most of the emigrants went to the United States—19,470 in 1950 and 18,762 in 1949. Approximately 3,530 went to the United Kingdom last year, compared with 4,000 the year earlier. Smaller numbers went to other British Commonwealth countries, to Europe and to Asia.

Red Troops Stab At UN Lines

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, July 19 — (AP) Communist troops stabbed through drizzling rain in four light, early-morning probing attacks today.

All were broken off before dawn.

Both the Communists and the Allies sent patrols roaming across the damp no-man's-land in another quiet day along the Korean war front.

The air war went on without interruption, with Red planes reappearing in Korean skies.

A B26 bomber reported it attacked and probably shot down a Communist fighter plane over the east coast port of Hamhung.

Fifth Air Force planes flew 108 night missions. It was the third successive night of more than 100 sorties. Land-based planes flew 300 sorties Thursday.

Bombers fired the Kyomipo supply centre, south of Pyongyang, with 500-pound bombs. Flames were visible 20 miles away.

Three UN planes were lost to ground fire Wednesday. Reds claimed they hit seven.

Anti-US Sentiment Flares In Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa, July 19 (AP) —Anti-American sentiment flared in the Chinese Nationalist parliament today because the Nationalists were not invited to sign the proposed Japanese peace treaty .

And a cabinet spokesman said Premier Chen Cheng had offered to resign because Nationalist China was not invited. But President Chiang Kai-shek refused to let him quit. Chen has been Chiang's right-hand man for 25 years.

Members of the legislature blamed Britain for China's exclusion from the signing.

Several members suggested that was published, should be proclaimed a national day of humiliation.

Canadian Teachers At Royal Party

LONDON, July 19 — (CP). — Twenty-two High School teachers from New Brunswick, here on a tour of Britain, today attended a garden party at Buckingham Palace.

About 100 other Canadians also went to the Palace for the second and last garden party of the season. Guests also came from other members of the Commonwealth, Britain and the United States.

The Queen was hostess in the absence of the King who is recuperating at Sandringham from a bout of lung infection. Princess Margaret, Paalce-bound following measles, also was unable to attend.

Bright summer weather made the occasion a memorable one for the New Brunswick teachers, 11 men and 11 women. They described the garden party as the highlight of their trip to date.

500 Irate Women Invade Commons

LONDON, July 19 — (AP). — About 500 irate women—all government employees — invaded a startled House of Commons on Wednesday night, demanding pay equal to what their male colleagues get.

Alarmed police slammed the heavy oak entrance doors to stem the female tide, and sent out a call for reinforcements.

The women outside hammered on the portals, screaming, "We want Gaitskell." Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer, recently turned down a demand for equal pay for women, contending it would cost too much.

The women were told they could see their parliamentarians —but only in small groups. They left after about 90 minutes, announcing they would be back next Wednesday.

100 Men Join Search For Baby In Bush

ST. JEROME, Que., July 17 — (CP)— One hundred men gathered today in the bush a few miles from this Lake St. John district village to search for a baby girl who disappeared while her parents were picking blueberries.

Paula Fortin, 2, vanished Wednesday night and some 50 searched the area without success.

St. Jerone is in the eastern section of Lake St. John county, roughly 175 miles north of Quebec City.

Most Senators Approve Including 3 More in Pact

WASHINGTON, July 19 —(AP) — Influential senators today generally approved moves to bring Spain, Turkey and Greece into closer association with the North Atlantic Defence Alliance.

Reports that Spain has agreed in principle to establishment of US naval and air bases there won applause from Democrats and Republicans.

However, the disclosure by Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison that Britain favors taking Turkey and Greece into the defence pact found a few lawmakers cautious about moving too quickly in that direction.

Senator Robert Taft (Rep. Ohio) said he thinks it desirable for the US to have the agreements Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, is reported to have made with Generalissimo Franco of Spain.

But Taft told a reporter he wants to learn more about what will be involved if Turkey and Greece are added to the North Atlantic treaty organization countries.

Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, said Britain's gesture toward Turkey and Greece also should include Spain. Britain and France have opposed Spain's entry into NATO largely because of Franco's non-democractic government.

"If he had Spain in the set-up, it would be the kind of European defence military leaders have been recommending," Wherry said.

Chairman Richard Russell (Dem. Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services committees said Britain's proposal on Turkey and Greece ought to be followed up by other pact members without delay.

"Turkey occupies one of the most strategic positions around the iron curtain of Russia and her satellites," Russell said. "We know the Turks will fight. Our best arms aid investment has been made there."

Russell said he favors the "very closest collaboration" with Spain but added he does not believe the US should "point a gun" at Britain and France to force Spanish admission to the pact.

St. Louis Braced For Onslaught Of Flood Waters

ST. LOUIS, July 19 (AP). — The highest flood waters in more than a century rushed down the Missouri river valley toward St. Louis today.

The waters are sweeping down from the flood-stricken areas of Kansas and eastern Missouri where overflows caused an estimated $750,000,000 loss.

The swollen Mississippi already damaged river front industry here.

But the biggest mass of water still was harassing central Missouri.

At Jefferson City, the State capital, about 30 blocks were submerged.

The Mississippi here has been high for two weeks. Three boys drowned in the backwaters of that river south of East St. Louis, Ill., Wednesday, bringing to 26 the number of dead from floods in the mid-west.

Worst To Come

The worst is yet to come here. The weather bureau expects a flood stage of 40.5 feet Sunday—highest since the unofficial reading of 41.39 June 27, 1844. The expected crest would top the 40.3 reading set here in 1947 when flooding caused $9,000,000 damage.

At Kansas City and in Kansas rescue workers and others continued their task of cleaning up the damage left by the floods last week. Water still covered many areas.

A last-ditch fight to save a major railroad bridge at Kansas City appeared successful.

But the danger from the fire still was great as gasoline and oil floated on the remaining water officials said a tiny spark could set off a major disaster.

An estimated $1,000 already has been spent in the St. Louis area largely for sandbagging, moving equipment and supplies and other preparations for high water.

11 Experimental Planes Explore Supersonic Speeds

By DOUGLAS LARSEN.

WASHINGTON (NEA).—America now has 11 experimental airplanes designed to explore still-unsolved mysteries involved in flying faster than the speed of sound.

The latest to be announced, the X-5, built by Bell Aircraft Corp., of Buffalo, NY, is probably the most unusual of them all. Its most startling feature is a wing which can fold back in flight to change the sweep-back angle.

According to flight plans for the tiny place, it will test the feasibility of taking off and climbing with the wing straight, and then sweeping it back for penetration of the sonic barrier into speeds faster than sound (760-miles per hour at sea level.)

Turbo Jets

Much of what has been learned during three intensive years of experiments with supersonic speeds has gone into the design of the X-5. Powered with a turbo-jet engine, it is 33 feet four inches long, has a wing span of 31 feet nine inches, is 12 feet high and weights approximately 10,000 pounds.

Although the X-5 has not yet been flown, it is planned to test it by taking it off under its own power. The X-1, first supersonic experimental plane, and first aircraft to cross the sonic barrier and survive, was lifted into the air in the belly of a B-29 and then dropped for a free flight at a very high altitude. Its rocket motor could only supply power for about three minutes. The X-5 will have power for considerably longer than that.

Just how fast the X-5 is expected to fly is a secret. Air Force spokesmen say that testing the variable-sweep wing is more important to them than setting speed records, although it will have to fly faster than 760 miles per hour to prove its worth. The X-1 flew "many hundreds of miles faster than the speed of sound," according to the only official announcement made by the Air Force.

Similar Types

The X-1 itself is no longer probing the sonic barrier. But succeeding "X" types have been designed so similar in outward appearances to the X-1 that it's difficult to tell them apart.

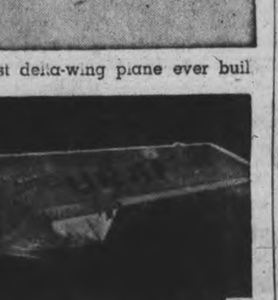
A Bell X-1 No. 3 is in the hands of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics for testing, and a Bell X-1A is to be flown by the Air Force. They have improved motors compared to the original X-1. So do an X-1B and and an X-1D, which will be flown to check specific problems of sonic flight, such as heat and stability.

The Convair XF-92A, first delta-wing plane ever built, will also soon join the supersonic fleet. A delta-wing is shaped like a triangle.

Mystery surrounds the Bell X-2 plane. It has a stainless steel, highly polished fuselage resembling the X-1, but there doesn't seem to be a rocket motor yet developed to fly it.

Said to be the fastest of all the test planes is the Douglas X-3, with a planned speed in the neighborhood of 2,000 miles per hour. It hasn't flown yet.

Douglas has two other supersonic test planes, the D-558-1 and the D-558-2 (Skyrocket), which are being flown by the Navy. After a test run last month in which—like the X-1—the D-558-2 was dropped from a B-29, the Navy announced the Skyrocket "attained the highest speed and altitude ever recorded by a piloted plane."



Smallest Plane

The X-4, designed by Northrop, has been probing the sonic barrier for quite some time. One of the smallest planes ever built for the Air Force, its wing spread is only 25 fee..

In addition to these experimental planes, called flying laboratories, the services have several operational planes which can be classified as capable of supersonic flight. They include the Navy's Cutlass, some later versions of the F-86 Sabre, and Northrop's all-weather interceptor, the F-89.

BELL X-5: The folding wings are more important than speed.

SKYROCKET: The highest speed and altitude ever recorded.

Need Study Of Rainmaking

SCHENECTADY, NY, July 19—(AP)—A pioneer rainmaker Wednesday night urged a "careful but unbiased" study to determine whether cloud-seeding intensified the devastating midwest flood.

Dr. Vincent J. Schaefer, weather scientist at the General Electric research laboratory, created the first man-made snowfall in November, 1946, and pioneered in artificial rain-making experiments.

"The fact that seeding operations in the west are more widespread this year than ever before," Schaefer said, "makes it imperative that a critical but unbiased study be made to determine whether or not these seeding activities have intensified or influenced the unusual storms responsible for the floods."

Cease-Fire Talks

at the end of Wednesday's meetings.

Another session—the eighth—was scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday (8 p.m. EDT Thursday.)

Ridgway in Korea

Less than two hours after the UN delegation had returned to its peace camp, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, UN commander, was back in Korea.

There was no announcement whether his return from Tokyo headquarters was connected with the continuing deadlock in negotiations.

The UN communique—the first to report "no progress"—was in contrast with a feeling of accomplishment sensed by correspondents at Kaesong.

Both UN and Communist correspondents agreed that the problem holding up the agenda was the Red demand for withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

United Nations delegates have indicated they consider this a political question which they are not empowered to discuss. It must be taken up at a higher level after a cease-fire has actually been accomplished.

Reds Insist

Moscow radio said North Korean Gen. Nam Il, head of the Red negotiators, told UN delegates he would "insist on the 38th parallel as the demarcation line and on the withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea as a guarantee against the resumption of hostilities."

Washington reports indicated negotiators already have agreed to an agenda item on a truce buffer zone without mentioning the 38th parallel.

This fould not prevent Communists from insisting during actual armistice talks that the demarcation line be drawn at 38. The allies want the truce line drawn approximately along the present quiet battle line which runs in places 20 to 30 miles north of the parallel.

Urges Commission

Moscow radio's report, based on a Tass dispatch from the North Korean capital of Pyongyang, said General Ham also proposed the agenda include:

"The working out of concrete measures for the termination of hostilities, establishment of a control commission for fulfillment of the agreement on the termination of hostilities, and settlement of the questions concerning war prisoners."

All these points are understood to be favored by the UN delegation.

Moscow's mention of the control commission to supervise the truce was the first such mention from a Red source reported here. The Allies want such a commission with supervisory personnel on each side of the demarcation line. There had been some concern that the North Koreans would object.

The fact that both sides favor some of the same points on the agenda does not mean that they are in agreement. The agenda is merely a list of subjects to be discussed and decided in the actual armistice negotiations.

Both sides want to exchange prisoners. But is is understood the Allies proposed they be exchanged on a man-for-man basis. Moscow's broadcast indicated the Reds favor a blanket exchange.

(The French also are reported to fear that aid to Spain will reduce the amount of material they will receive from the United States.)

In Washington Wednesday night, State Secretary Dean Acheson offered Britain and France reassurance that they will lose neither arms aid nor their standing as areas to be defended if the US makes a military arrangement with Spain.

Acheson said the talks were going forward because "military authorities are in general agreement that Spain is of strategic importance to the general defence of western Europe."

Informants here said Sherman asked Franco for the use of naval bases at Cadiz, Cartagena, and Ferrol, as well as at Santa Cruz in the Canaries, and air bases at Barcelona, Madrid, Seville and possibly Valencia and Lugo, southeast of Ferrol.

It was not definitely learned what Franco had asked in return but it is believed that he wants help in improving Spain's antiquated highways and railroads, industries, air force and army

Abbey Players Keep ShowGoing

DUBLIN, Ireland, July 19 (AP). —The world-famous Abbey players, whose theatre was wiped out by fire early Wednesday, kept the show going on Wednesday night.

They moved to the tiny Peacock Theatre nearby and, with improvised costumes, gave an austerity presentation of Sean O'Casey's "The Plough and the Stars." The Peacock seats only 200.

Ernest Plythe, managing director of the theatre that gave such stars as Barry Fitzgerald, Maureen O'Hara and Sara Allgood their first chance, said:

"We cannot close. There would be no Abbey if we did."

There is no official idea how the fire started.

Mass Production In Car Business Little Different

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press BBusiness Editor.

The phrase "mass production" has a different meaning in the making of automobiles than the meaning ordinarily given to it, says Theodore J. Emmert, executive vice-president of Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd.

He explained it as follows in a recent address:

"The manufacture of radios, sewing machines, or saws, for example, turns out thousands of items using one set of specifications. Any buyer may buy any one of those items, or the goods can be stored for sale later.

"But each of our cars and trucks is built to individual specification. Each vehicle is assembled after an order has been received, indicating the dealer's particular requirements.

"In our business, volume output results from specific orders. When orders are cancelled because of changed economic conditions, our production and employment are automatically affected.

"We cannot work out a year's average for production to be used as a basis for each month's operations. Nor can we produce cars in volume for a few months of each year and then store them for future use. Cars produced must be sold quickly. The bulk of an automobile makes it impossible to store large stocks, and the cost of an automobile makes it imposscible to store large stocks, and the cost of an automobile makes a large inventory impractical."

Insurance, Bristles

Life insurance in force in Canada at June 30 reached a record $16,500,000,000, the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association reports. That is double the amount in force 10 years ago. New insurance in the first six months of the year reached nearly $1,00,000,000, up about $175,000,000 from the same period in 1950.

J. A. Wright, manager of the Paint Division, Hobbs Glass, Ltd., Toronto, says a synthetic paint brush bristle has been developed "with the same rate of wear as scarce hogs' bristle, and which is highly efficient in carrying and applying paint."

Seaway Group Does Business

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP).—The House of Representatives Public Works Committee, after days of wrangling over the explosive St. Lawrence seaway and power project, got down to business Wednesday.

At its fourth closed-door session in eight days, the committee:

1. Voted 16 to 11 to narrow its consideration to one Bill to authorize the $818,000,000 project.

2. The single Bill—by Representative John Blatnik (Dem.-Minn.)—was amended to bar New York State from eventually assuming control of the proposed 2,200,000 horse-power hydro-electric project.

3. Agreed to decide, as the first order of business at today's meeting whether to consider— along with Blatnik's Bill another, by Representative Henry D. Larcade (Dem.-La.). The Larcade measure would direct that financing of the project be through bonds issued by the Treasury Department.

Opponents of the St. Lawrence proposal, notably Representative Tom Pickett (Dem.-Tex.), expressed confidence the Larcade Bill will be rejected — leaving only the Blatnik measure for the committee's consideration.

The resignations of two members of the committee—Representatives Robert T. Secrest (Dem.-O.) and Henderson Lanham (Dem.-Ga.)— bcame effective at the close of Wednesday's meeting.

No successor has yet been named for Lanham, who supported the Bill. Secrest, an opponent, will be succeeded by Representative T. M. Machrowicz (Dem.-Mich.), who is for the legislation.

Dollie, who in private life is rs. Celesta Geyer of Cincinnati, O., suffered a heart attack a year ago, and then began the diet which peeled off 401 pounds.

How did she do it?

"It's simple," she told a reporter. "All any one has to do is diet properly and have willpower to stick strictly to the diet."

A Good Haul

AURORA, July 19—(CP)—Two men, who police thought were "just drunks sitting in a parked car," were arrested Wednesday night and charged with breaking into the Canadian National Railways station at nearby Markham last Tuesday. Guy Copeman, of Detroit, and Gilbert Pilon, of Windsor, were held in connection with the break-in during which a quantity of silverware and shoes was eaken.

Dairy Dissatisfaction No Surprise

SEAFORTH, July 19 (CP). — Agriculture Minister Kennedy Wednesday commented on an argument by a London dairy distributor that an announced proposal to market milk with two per cent. butterfat content in this province was a "pipedream."

Mr. Kennedy, at the Progressive Conservative picnic here, said in an interview, "I would expect the distributors to be against such a plan. It will mean a little work for them."

He announced Monday that he favored proposal sto market two per cent. milk since it would be cheaper than the average 3.4 per cent. which whole milk must test for sale in Ontario.

Why The Budgetary Surpluses?

During the last four-and-half years the Federal Government has had surpluses totalling one and a quarter billion dollars. Another big annual surplus may be forming again this year: during the months of April and May revenue exceeded expenditure by $275,400,000. An occasional unaccounted surplus is not a bad thing. The United States Treasury has lately reported the biggest annual surplus in American history; it totalled $3,509,782,624 for the fiscal year ending last June 30th. The Americans were delighted; there were none of the howls of dismay which greeted the latest Ottawa surplus. But Canadians have a right to be dismayed. They do not find fault with surpluses, but with unbudgeted surpluses—surpluses which apparently were unexpected by the Government. This is happening year after year in Canada. This year, for instance the Budget calls for a surplus of $30 million. If it turns out to be $130 million, Canadian voters and taxpayers can properly ask who is bungling and why?

* * *

We can understand that heavy taxation can be used as a deflationary device. But Canadians want to know if that is deliberate Government policy, knowingly entered into by Parliament. If the surplus at the end of the present fiscal year is the $30 million budgeted for, the Government has not overshot, or collected more taxes than it bargained for. But if the surplus is grandiose then it has used taxation as a deflationary lever without declaring that it is doing so. It is hoodwinking the people or making drastic errors in financial judgement. On either count the Department of Finance would stand to be condemned.

* * *

The Government is trying to cope with inflation. It has taken strong financial measures to reduce inflationary pressures—curbed credit, postponed depreciation allowance on new building and equipment (thus discouraging further capital expenditure which uses scarce materials), increased interest rates (to encourage saving and discourage capital spending on borrowed money), and increased taxes. This last item has been sugar-coated as necessary to pay for re-armament.

* * *

On the face of the budget the increased taxation is justified. About ten per cent. of national productivity must go into armament and national defence (according to plans). This costs money; new taxes are raising it. The Budget is supposed to produce only a $30 million surplus. Thus it seems that high taxes are necessary to get money and have not been imposed as an inflationary device primarily. But if this country again has a whopping big surplus of a hundred million dollars or more, the people and taxpayers are being fooled. They are being taxed on one pretext but for another purpose.

* * *

Our chief quarrel with surpluses is that they are not budgeted for and either the Government does not know what it is doing or the experts in the Department of Finance are scheming behind the Government's or the people's backs, and a policy is being followed about which the country is kept uninformed or misinformed.

* * *

Another evil of the unbudgeted surpluses is that too much money is left lying around loose for Government departments to spend. We have discussed this at length several times before, but it cannot be too often stated that unscheduled surpluses on the vast scale of the last four years invite Government profligacy at the taxpayers' expense.

An Encouraging Record

It is good to learn from the latest statistics on motor accidents issued by the Department of Highways that this district has an enviably low score; only three remote northern districts have fewer accidents than the district comprising Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton. To come to actual figures, we had 337 accidents during the first three months of this year, as against 319 during the same period last year; the Ontario total was 11,813 this year and 9265 last year, so it will be seen that we have not added much to the total increase.

We have no idea why this should be so. We do not suppose that people in this district are more careful drivers than people elsewhere, nor can we believe that strangers driving in the vicinity of the Kawarthas breathe in caution and consideration with the lakeland air. We have a great deal of motor traffic but we do not appear to have an unusual number of accidents; this is good fortune, and we rejoice in it without attempting to explain it.

Further study of the statistics tells us little about why accidents happen. Of all those in Ontario, a majority happen in urban centres, including towns and villages as well as cities, and a majority happen on good roads; most accidents happen by daylight, but snowy roads are to blame in more cases than any other special weather condition; more accidents happen on dry roads than on wet roads; drivers in middle life have more accidents than young ones. There is little here to enlighten us about accidents, but the melancholy record is open to inspection, and the number of accidents increases every year—presumably because there are more cars on the road every year.

Peterborough county itself had 132 accidents in the first three months of 1950; in the same period for 1951 the number was 145.

Has Russia's Atomic Plant Failed?

We recall reading, on at least two occasions, of several tests which have been established and which would operate in the event of an atomic explosion anywhere in the world, and specifically within Russia. If these tests are scientifically accurate—and we suppose they are, since they were produced by leading scientists—no atomic explosions have taken place in Russia since the one announced by President Truman of the United States in the autumn of 1949. At any rate, reports from Great Britain say that scientists there are virtually certain that no atomic explosion has been touched off in Russia since then, and at least two usually reliable private information services have also expressed certainty on this score.

This certainty of opinion has naturally led to speculation among British nuclear physicists as to what has happened or is happening in Russian atomic production, with one group of opinion holding that the Russian plan has failed. It seems that this can very easily happen to a plutonium works unless certain precautions are taken; the first United States plutonium plant at Hanford "poisoned" itself and became virtually inoperable in 1947, until it was redesigned and rebuilt. British scientists conclude that the Russians may have built a duplicate of the Hanford original.

Some support for this conclusion may be found in one of the several disappearances of the past year—that of Professor Pontecorvo. Readers may remember that this Italian expert had been working at Britain's Harwell laboratory at the time of his disappearance, and it was accepted as a foregone conclusion that Russia was his destination. That may have been the case, for Professor Pontecorvo had visited Hanford and knew of its self-poisoning proclivities.

Any setback in Russian production for war should be regarded as good news, we suppose, although we doubt if there would be any great reason for cheering if the foregoing opinion could be verified. A Hanford duplicate might have produced the material for as many as fifty bombs before it failed, and that number could make an awful mess of Western Europe, to say the least. But there is a crumb of comfort in the possibility that Russia may be encountering difficulties long since encountered and solved by the West.

Nine Trees To Go

Trees are among Peterborough's chief ornaments. As viewed from Armour Hill or an aeroplane, they cover the city like a tapestry. Even down town it is impossible to look in any direction without seeing a delightful screen of green. For instance, one looks north from the corner of Simcoe and Water towards an arch of elms and maples which line both sides of the street beyond Brock. Nine of these trees, all maples, have been condemned to the axe by a committee of the City Council. They are behind the new City Hall and the authorities sensibly want to widen Water Street there. To do this requires the removal of the trees.

Like a mother with twenty children who cannot spare one, Peterborough folk cannot spare a single tree out of their plenty. But we are assured that we shall not suffer permanent loss; the old trees will be replaced by young ones, set farther back from the street. Let us hope that the removal and replacement are simultaneous. Actually, the rear of the City Hall will not be denuded; there are two or three trees already standing well back from the street. These will be saved and presumably the new ones put in line with them.

A 19-year-old youth called James Suplee and a reportedly-pretty, 21-year-old blonde named Mrs. Marjorie Secor were crowned king and queen of the Eastern Sunbathing Association at the annual convention last Monday held at Mays Landing, New Jersey. They wore only crowns for the ceremony. Ah! So nudists too like to be clothed with authority, if nothing else.

Nietzche: Mad Philosopher

(A Review by A. J. P. Taylor in The New Statesman and Nation)

EVERY artist wants to live for ever. Though he creates primarily because he must, still he expects his creation to win immortality for him. There are many paths to this heaven, all of them difficult; the most certain of them is when men can say—"this is the phrase that launched a thousand ships." It does not matter if the phrase is misinterpreted, torn from its context, made to do work for which it was never intended. The great thing is to crystallize the beliefs and delusions of a generation in a single sentence. Rousseau would have been appalled by the terror which was conducted in the name of the Social Contract; Darwin was bewildered by the political doctrines which were built round the survival of the fittest; Marx would have railed against the dictatorship of the proletariat as it is practised in Russia. For that matter, Jesus Christ would have been dismayed by the doctrines and, still more, the practice of the Christian churches. Every great movement crucifies its founder; and in so doing gives him immortality.

✧ ✧ ✧

NIETZSCHE has had the same fate, or achieved the same destiny. He was captured by the dictators of our time. Hitler kept a bust of him on show and consoled Mussolini for the disasters of 1943 with a set of his complete works. Nietzsche's great phrases seemed made for Fascism; it was inconceivable without them. The Will to Power, the Master Race, the Superman—Fascism did not need to look farther for its philosophy. Plenty of others lived by picking up the sweepings of Nietzsche's study. Freud declared that he had avoided reading Nietzsche in order to preserve his open mind—a sure confession that he looted from him. Bernard Shaw, always tawdry when it came to systematic thinking, could never have got along without the ideas he took over from Nietzsche and from his English contemporary, Samuel Butler. Nietzsche would certainly have repudiated his disciples. For one thing, he detested the Germans; he tried to make out that he was of Polish descent and wished that he could write his books in French. He called himself "a good European" and perhaps he was right to lecture in Switzerland. Dr. Oscar Levy, his English translator, used to write protestingly to the newspapers whenever Nietzsche was blamed for the behaviour of the Germans or of the Nazis; and now an American, Professor Kaufmann, has carried out a mission of rescue on a large scale in his book*. This is the most sensible exposition of Nietzsche's philosophy ever made; if it fails to reveal the full secret it is because it forgets that Nietzsche, as well as being a philosopher, was something more important—a writer of the highest genius. In fact Nietzsche's genius was his curse: if he had written less well, he would never have won the admiration of those solitary souls, the dictators.

IT was Nietzsche who made the great discovery: "God is dead." This was not a declaration of atheism. In that case Nietzsche, always accurate, would have said: "God does not exist." He was announcing the end of faith in the spirit-body dualism on which all Western morality had been based. How were things to be kept going when the sanctions of tradition and the supernatural were removed? Nietzsche was the first to answer: "Become who you are." Develop according to your own rules and not according to rules made up outside by others.

Nietzsche also thought that he had discovered this rule of development; in formulating it, he made the great mistake which opened the door to every misunderstanding. The motive of human action, he supposed, was the Will to Power. The phrase, as Nietzsche designed it, was a provocation, almost a joke; it was a jeering reference to the contemporary German craze for the power of the state. Though a reference, it was also a repudation. Far from wanting power over others, Nietzsche's man should want power over himself; or, to put it another way, should want to develop his powers.

Nietzsche's superman is not a biological type at all: he is the individual who has lifted himself out of the animal-ruck by heaving at his own shoestrings. How do you tell the superman? Nietzsche's answer at last gives him away and shows that he was a great writer, more than a great philosopher. For the answer is a joke on a cosmic scale. It is the doctrine of "eternal recurrence"; everything has happened before and will go on happening over and over again. Only a superman could stand such a doctrine; therefore you present it to him like a piece of litmus paper. If he is not a superman, he will go off his head. And this is exactly what Nietzsche did: as a last and colossal joke, the litmus-test produced a result of a most surprising kind. Or was Nietzsche's madness the effect of the disease with which he is alleged to have deliberately infected himself in his only sexual encounter? This too would be a joke of a Nietzschean character: "boshaft," meaning malicious and sarcastic at once, was his favourite word for such pranks.

NIETZSCHE'S doctrines had a logical form and can be presented in a logical way. Since he was the first modern thinker to face most of the ideas that have come after. He anticipated psychoanalysis; he anticipated existentialism; even eternal recurrence is now a commonplace in the scientific world. He prided himself most on his methods, not on his results; and his method was that of ceaseless inquiry. He imagined himself as a latter-day Socrates; and what he hated in Christianity was its dogmatism, its elevation of faith over reason. "Convictions are prisons." His ideal was Goethe: "the man of totality: he fought the mutual extraneousness of reason, sensuality, feeling, and will....the man of tolerance, not from weakness, but from strength." Indeed he chose the title of his last work, Ecce Homo, as an echo of Napoleon's remark when he met Goethe: voila l'homme.

Yet when every effort has been made to turn Nietzsche into a man of balance and reason or the great Stoic of our times, doubt raises its head; the Socratic questioning starts again, this time at Nietzsche's expense. Certainly, Nietzsche disliked the Germans, hated anti-Semitism, despised those who lived for public success. All the same, he gave them plenty of openings. As he exposes himself to perversions, he has the air of the elderly woman anxiously demanding of the enemy officer: "When does the raping begin?" Carlyle preached silence in forty volumes; Nietzsche preached sanity and tolerance in works that were raving mad and savagely intolerant from the beginning.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT will not do to blame all the misunderstanding on his sister, as Professor Kaufmann and others have done. Certainly Frau Forster-Nietzsche set out to capture Nietzsche for German nationalism at its most nonsensical; and she spent forty years editing his works in such a way that his subversive thoughts were obscured. But he had given her the excuse and the opportunity. From Luther to Hitler the Germans have always wanted an iron framework of discipline to keep them in reasonable order; when they lose this, they go mad, as Nietzsche did, and it was only to be expected that the Germans would follow his example rather than his teaching.

✧ ✧ ✧

EVERYONE who has escaped from religious dogma must have been captivated by Nietzsche at some time or other; but most escape the thraldom and discover that it is individualism run mad. It is the philosophy of the rentier who imagines that he owes nothing to society, though society owes much to him. Perhaps this is only another way of saying that the job of court-jester is attractive only so long as there is a court to laugh at the jests. Anyone who sets out to be a heretic had better postulate first a society tolerant yet respectable; in fact he had better be an Englishman. Then he will not need to end in a lunatic asylum; he will be in one already.

*—"Nietzsche: Philosopher, Psychologist, Antichrist."

WHILE THE WORLD KIBITZES

The U.S. And Canada

(THE BOSTON HERALD)

IN the recent pushing and pulling in Washington over the Canadian newsprint price increase of $10 a ton, effective this week, there were ugly rumours to the effect that the American government might use its great economic power in one way or another to retaliate against Canada should the newsprint price rise go into effect. On the other hand, an April 10 address at Toronto by Canadian External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson was widely misinterpreted in this country as the announcement of a breach in Canadian-American relations.

So far as we know nothing came of those ugly rumours in Washington. There has been no retaliation against the perfectly legal right of Canadian newsprint manufacturers to determine their prices by the usual economic criteria. And subsequent elaboration in Parliament of his April 10 speech made it clearer than it had been to those who read the April 10 text that Mr. Pearson was by no means asserting a declaration of independence from American friendship.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS is all to the good. For anything to mar the historic tranquility which has for so long prevailed along the Canadian-American border, or to raise questions which introduce friction into the natural personal fondness of Americans and Canadians for each other as people, would be a calamity of the first order.

What Mr. Pearson meant on April 10 by saying that Americans must realize Canada is not willing to be a "yes-man" for all American policies was that the role of Canada, as Pearson and his associates see it, is to play a neutral role between the United States and Great Britain and thus use such influence as it has one both of these larger nations to correct policies regarded as dangerous for all concerned.

At some times — as in the months before General MacArthur's dismissal—the Canadian and European influence is joined with that of Britain to prevent the United States getting too far out of line. At other times it may be joined with American influence to keep Britain up to the mark.

AS a matter of actual practice in the period since at least 1944, Canada and her exceedingly able foreign affairs officers have had far more influence upon the major course of world affairs than most people, even Canadians, have realized. Mr. Pearson was himself a major factor throughout the United Nations Conference at San Francisco in 1945, and the Canadian delegation could take just pride in having largely written as well as "sold" the section of the Charter creating and defining the duties of the U.N.'s Economic and Social Council. Again, Mr. Pearson was of great usefulness on both sides of the Atlantic in shaping up and "selling" the North Atlantic Treaty.

Americans, especially at this season of the year, should have great respect for their northerly neighbour if, having gradually freed herself economically and politically from Great Britain, she insists upon not being a political vassal of the United States. As we grow closer and more interdependent economically, it seems reasonable for Canada to continue her useful role of political balance wheel between the United States and Great Britain, throwing her considerable weight in which ever direction it does the most good at a given time.

Such independence of spirit should only be admired by Americans.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Solomon stood before the altar of the Lord in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands toward heaven: and he said, Lord God of Israel, there is no God like thee, in heaven above, or on earth beneath, who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants that walk before thee with all their heart . . . But will God indeed dwell on the earth? behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain thee: how much less this house that I have builded?

Yet have thou respect unto the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O Lord my God, to hearken unto the cry and to the prayer, which thy servant prayeth before thee today . . . If there be in the land famine, if there be pestilence, blasting, mildew, locust, or if there be caterpillar: if their enemy besiege them in the land of their cities; whatsoever plague, whatsoever sickness there be;

What prayer and supplication soever be made by any man, or by all thy people Israel, which shall know every man the plague of his own heart, and spread forth his hands toward this house: then hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place, and forgive, and do, and give to every man according to his ways, whose heart thou knowest; (for thou, even thou only, knowest the hearts of all the children of men. (I Kings 8: 22, 28, 27, 28, 37-39.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up: and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him. Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. (James 5: 15, 16.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people. (Matt. 9: 35.)

Letter To The Editor

MODEST AND MEEK SWITZERLAND

Sir: Switzerland has no coal, oil, or ore. But you should witness a Palm Sunday or thanksgiving day in Switzerland, and the modesty penitence and meekness that is so nationally expressed is simply overwhelming. The Swiss constitution and faith, is built on rock; like their houses. Their physical training and understanding far surpasses any other nationality. They possess the Irish humour, the Scottish thriftiness, and the French politeness.

No wonder then that they escaped so easy from the last two world wars. It was not so much their instant preparedness for war that saved them; but their modesty and godliness.

Could other nations learn from Switzerland? Only if they want to; but if they want to, yes.

Respectfully yours,
M. WEISS.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

If it comes up a nice evening, hundreds of folks will be sashaying o'er the Otonabee River bridge ere eight tonight to see a ball game in Riverside under the arcs. On account of it's between those old senior diamond rivals, the top-place Petes and the second-spot Oshawa Merchants. A Viaduct Major League fixture and probably one of the better games of the season. Remember that beauty these teams staged last meeting here, a ninth-inning win for Ed Whitehill's local crew. The star-studded Merchants will try mighty hard to halt the classy Petes' long winning streak this time and it's liable to be just a tossup tilt.

* * * * * *

Word came through yesterday that the grid Orfuns of this borough had hired Leo Deadey of Toronto to coach the club this fall. He succeeds capable Harv Bamforth who finds the pressure of business too much to permit him full time, though he'll act in an advisory capacity. Leo Deadey is a former senior football star and later an ORFU referee. Knows the game thoroughly, is a hustler and popular with the players. Played for St. Mike's and Malvern and Argo juniors, was with Argo seniors in 1934-37 and back there again in '46 after a 1940-45 period with Balmy Beach, and finished as a regular with Hamilton Tigers in 194.

* * * * * *

Leo Starred Here, Too

Of course he will be remembered here for his senior play in 1938 and '39, being chosen on the Canadian Press all-star senior ORFU team in 1939 just before Orfuns folded on account of the war. He came here to play ball and remained for the gridiron game. Leo was a fine end, and the receiver of the Krug-Deadey forward passing plays where he starred game after game. We've seen quite a bit of him up this way the past several years as a referee for the Ontario Union. Yes, the rebuilding Orfuns have obtained a competent coach who knows all the football answers. He will commute from Toronto for all practises and games, and drills will commence next month.

Top three teams in the senior OLA race at the moment are Peterborough, St. Catharines and Hamilton, all being bunched closely. Close behind these leaders are Mimico and Brampton, while Toronto and Fergus are further down the ladder. Brampton Excelsiors—a rugged and unpredictable outfit—play the Petes here tomorrow eve at 8.45 in Miller Bowl. They might well upset the local apple-cart as the pace is getting pretty hot these days. A lot of postponed games to be worked in, and that puts the pressure on clubs in a close race during the hot weather. The Petes can't afford to lose any at all if they want to stay in front of St. Kitts and Tigers. The Friday fray should be a dandy.

* * * * * *

Class Finally Paid Off

Some fans were rather worried for three parts of last night's OLA match here as Fergus were making it much too close. The Petes got rolling late in the third and tucked it way in the fourth with a 13-7 count. Didn't look too impressive for two quarters, but then the Thistles were playing sound lacrosse and Ralph Speck was hot in the cage. Moon Wootton also had some toughies to hold out. Local scoring was well spread around, leading point-getters being Don Ashbee, Harry Wipper, Ross Powless, Ike Hildebrand, Don Crowe, Arn Dugan and Curly Mason. Jay Hill caught the eye in the Fergus lineup with a battling display in every heat. Dootch Vitarelli is out yet with a bad knee and Bob Thorpe is trying to clear up some summer flu. Team goes to St. Kitts Saturday and Toronto on Sunday, the melee in Hamilton being laid over till next Wednesday.

* * * * * *

Femmes had two fine frays at the softball Bowl last gloaming to wind up their local schedule. Ashby's turned back Westclox 11-6 with a heads-up performance in one of the neatest displays seen so far this summer. J. Dunk's fielding was something to behold as she was all over the field snaring 'em. Marines defeated the Cobourg Pavs 9-5 in another nice number. Plenty exciting in the ninth as Marines shoved five runs over the platter and Cobourg counted four, mostly on walks. A tilt in Cobourg on the morrow and then the holiday session halts play until August 8. Playoff arrangments will be announced later.

Bowmanville Roses Whip Cobourg 7-1

COBOURG, July 19 — Cecil Hall's four-hit pitching was too good for Cobourg Legionnaires here Wednesday night, and enabled Bowmanville Roses to win, 7-1, in a Lakeshore Baseball League Intermediate game.

Hall struck out six and passed one man. He was in trouble in only two innings. A double play pulled him out of one bad spot and an interference ruling out of the other. No Cobourg player accounted for more than one hit.

Gallagher and Williams with two hits each led Bowmanville's eight-hit attack.

Plate umpire Allin, of Oshawa, was in hot water throughout with Cobourg and pulled the watch on them in the sixth after he had sent a Bowmanville runner home on an interference award.

Petes Drive in Second Half To Gain 13-7 Lacrosse Win

The Petes came to life in the last half of their OLA senior "A" game here last night to break a deadlock and hand Fergus Thistles the slimmer side of a 13-7 score before some 1,200 fans. The win kept the locals atop the heap and sank Fergus a bit deeper in the cellar. It was a fast, clean contest with few penalties handed out by Referees Piper Bain and Chuck Davidson.

Fergus turned in a neat effort till they were out in the fourth. Goalie Ralph Speck held them together with some swell work, and the Thistles earned a 2-0 lead in the first quarter. The count was 3-all at the half, the Petes managed to hold a 4-2 scoring margin in the third and then they got untracked to deserve a 6-2 edege on play in the fourth. They were minus Vitarelli and Thorpe, but the Thistles were without Kazarian, McWhirter and Gillespie. Both goalies were consistently good.

In On Form

Leading point-getters for the victors were Don Ashbee and Harry Wipper, each with two goals and two assists. Ross Powless, Ike Hildebrand, Don Crowe and Arn Dugan were in on three each, as singles went to Russ Slater, Jerry Fitzgeald and Joe Whitnell. Curly Mason scored a pair. The tallying was well spread around, but the team didn't click up to form in the first half. They found the visitors full of hustle and checking close, as well as keeping possession of the ball, and they had fine net-minding.

Jack Chambers led the losers with two goals, singletons being counted by Joe Lendoni, Bob Gear, Jay Hill, veteran Hec McKenzie and Jack Gear. A pair of assists each went to Jay Hill and Elmer Harris, while Lendoni and Speck each aided once. The nicest goal of the night was scored by Don Ashbee on a backhander in the third quarter with Dugan's pass in close. Teams:

Fergus — Goal, Soeck; defence, Killingbeck and Harris; centre, Geary; wings, Halls and Hill; rover, Abbott; alternates, McKenzie, J. Gear, R. Geor, Foote, Lendoni, and Chambers.

Petes — Goal, Wootton; defence, Fitzgerald and O'Hearn; centre, Creighton; wings, Dugan and Ashbee; rover, Whitnell; alternates, Wipper, Crowe, Mason, Slater, Powless, Hildebrand, and Magee.

Referees—P. Bain and C. Davidson.

PMBA Playoff List

The PMBA playoff list has been drawn up. In the peewee section, east plays north on July 21, same squads tangling on July 28, third game if necessary Aug. 4. East gets the first home game, third tilt to be tossed for.

In bantam, south plays north on July 24 in a sudden-death game. The winner meets East City in two of three on July 28, Aug. 2 and if necessary Aug. 9. Winners of playoffs advance into OBA playdowns. Any teams forfeiting one game forfeits the series, as teams must be ready for provincial playdowns by the middle of August. It is expected that all games will be staged at Riverside Park.

Marines Take 9-5 Win Over Cobourg

Marines downed Cobourg 9-5 in a Girls' Softball League windup tilt at the Bowl last evening, playoffs starting Aug. 8. It was a neat number throughout with plenty of excitement toward the end as Marines scored five runs in the ninth and Cobourg got four in their half. The winners outhit their rivals and the latter booted a few. They used a number of pinch-hitters toward the finish. H. White pitched good ball till she hit a wild streak in the ninth, J. Hart finally finishing up. B. Slater tossed steady ball for Cobourg. J. Reedy and G. Hebert for Cobourg, and M. Behan and A. LaPointe for Marines, fielded well. H. White had three hits for Outboards, with none of the other squad getting more than one safety. Teams:

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Rogers Hornsby ushered in the home-run era in the National League by clouting his 25th four-bagger of the season 29 years ago today. The St. Louis Cardinal second baseman eclipsed the 1915 mark of 24 set by Garry Cravath of Philadelphia Phillies. Hack Wilson of Chicago Cubs set the present record of 56 in 1930.

Red Sox Trip Indians 4-3 As Chicago Bows to Yanks

By JOE REICHLER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Clouting Clyde Vollmer, booed off his home-town Cincinnati team, is the new Boston glamor boy, outdazzling such Red Sox stalwarts as Ted Williams, Vern Stephens, Bobby Doerr and Dom DiMaggio.

A much-shuttled part-time flychaser and pinch-hitter through seven discouraging big league seasons, the 29-year-old Ohioan has finally established himself as one of the best clutch hitters in baseball.

Climaxing a brilliant two-week batting splurge, the strapping outfielder Wednesday night paced the Red Sox to a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Vollmer accounted for Boston's first run with his fifth homer in the last 11 games and his 11th of the season. It snapped a scoreless duel between Boston's Leo Kiely and Cleveland's Bob Lemon. He scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth when he walked and raced all the way home as Larry Doby threw wild to third on Buddy Rosar's single.

The victory gave the Red Sox a full game lead over Chicago's second-place White Sox and increased their margin to a game and a half over the New York Yankees. Cleveland remains in fourth place 2½ games off the pace.

Whip White Sox

The Yankees moved to within a fraction of a percentage point of Chicago whipping the White Sox 5-1 behind the pitching of Vic Raschi and Bob Kuzava.

Washington spoiled Satchel Paige's 1951 debut with the Browns by cuffing him for 11 hits in eight innings to trounce St. Louis 7-1. Philadelphia's Athletics amassed 20 hits to overcome Detroit, 16-9.

The St. Louis Cardinals climbed past the New York Giants into second place in the National League, by trampling the Boston Braves, 9-6. The win together with Pittsburgh's 13-12 triumph over Brooklyn reduced the front-running Dodgers' lead over the Redbirds to eight games. Ralph Kiner blasted three home runs for the Pirates, one with the bases loaded.

Cubs Lash Giants

Two-run homers by veteran Hank Sauer and rookie Chuck Connors gave the Chicago Cubs a 6-3 victory over the Giants. Cincinnati and Philadelphia exchanged shutouts. After Willie Ramsdell pitched the Reds to a 2-0 win over the Phils, southpaw Ken Johnson hurled a 1-0 victory over the Reds.

Big Vic Raschi singled in what proved to be the winning Yankee run in the seventh of the New York-Chicago game. Hampered by a sore throat, he had to retire in the seventh, and Kuzava preserved the victory for him, his 13th. Johnny Mize clinched the win with an eighth inning homer. A crowd of 36,713, largest weekday throng in Comiskey Park history, attended.

Chicago shortstop Chico Carrasquel booted his first fielding chance to end his record run of errorless chances. He had handled 297 consecutive chances in 53 games without a misplay.

Bob Porterfield outpitched the aged Paige, yielding six St. Louis hits for his third Washington victory. Catcher Clyde Kluttz batted in three Senator runs.

Gus Zernial and Lou Klein batted in four runs each for the winning A's over the Tigers. Zernial clouted his 23rd homer as Dick Fowler staggered to his fourth win.

Drives In Seven Runs

Kiner drove in seven Pittsburgh runs with his trio of four-baggers. His third came in the eighth inning to knot the count at 12-12. Erv Dusak followed with a double and scored the winning run on a single by pinch hitter Pete Reiser. Kiner missed a fourth homer by several feet.

Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter drove in two runs apiece to lead the Cards to victory over the Braves. Frank Hiller hurled a four-hitter over the Giants for his sixth win. Joe Hatten and Grady Hatton drove in both Cincinnati runs in the Reds' 2-0 victory. Ed Waitkus singled in Ed Pellagrini with the Phils' run in the second game 1-0 win over the Reds.

Visking Reaches Last Playoff Spot

LINDSAY, July 19 — Visking moved into the last playoff spot in the Lindsay softball league by blasting lefthander John Hunter for nine runs in the eighth to take Carruthers Drogs, 14-2, here Wednesday night.

Joe Becke fanned 11 and spaced tow hits and smashed out two of the 12 hits off Hunter. Ken Mintz and Harry Heattie collected extra base blows in the big fifth when the winners went in front to stay with five markers. Carruthers bunched half their hits in the sixth for their only runs.

Mimico Whips Tigers 10-6

By The Canadian Press.

Third place Hamilton Tigers lost ground on the leaders, taking a 10-6 beating from Mimico Mountaineers in the Senior Lacrosse League at the Drummond Bowl in Mimico. Ken Dixon scored four goals to lead the Mounties. Jack Dorney had a pair for Hamilton.

In a third league game, at Brampton, the Excelsiors came through with a four-goal rally in the last period to eke out an 11-10 win over Toronto West Yorks. The win extended Brampton's fifth-place margin over Toronto to four points.

The Yorkers led until three minutes from the final bell when Al Garbutt got the tieing goal for Brampton. Then with 16 seconds to go Bob Blakely scored the winning goal. Garbutt had three goals for the winners.

Leafs Subdue Ottawa 8-7 In See-Saw Tilt

By The Associated Press.

How's this for winning a ball game the hard way: build up a 7-0 lead in 5⅓ innings, blow it in one inning, then win out 8-7 in the ninth.

That's what happened to Toronto Wednesday night—and it was a big victory for the Maple Leafs, hottest club in the International League.

Joe Becker's crew finally reached the .500 mark, at 47-47, with its victory over Ottawa, but, more important, it left the Leafs only three games out of fourth place—final qualifying spot for the play-offs.

Les Fleming's double in the ninth inning knocked in the winning run, giving reliever Irv Medlinger his eighth victory. Scoring in every inning but the fourth and fifth, Toronto constructed a 7-0 bulge going into the bottom of the sixth.

Things Are Square

Then Ottawa erupted for seven runs and things were all square. Medlinger came on in the seventh and chilled the Giants' hot bats, holding them hitless for the last two innings. Wally Cox, last of three Ottawa hurlers, suffered his second loss.

In the only other games, Baltimore swept a doubleheader from Springfield 6-0 and 2-0, behind the shutout pitching of Karl Drews and Jack Schmitt.

Drews, a sidearm sinker specialist, scattered nine hits on the nightcap after Schmitt hurled a nifty four-hitter in the opener. It was victory No. 11 for Drews and No. 8 for Schmitt.

Rochester at Syracuse and Buffalo at Montreal were rained out

FRESHMEN—The Cardinals may not be coming up with as many bright young men as the St. Louis Nationals once did, but this year's peagreens are a remarkable pair of right-hand pitchers, Joe Presko, left, and Tom Poholsky. Presko, 22, and on the small side, just rejoined the Red Birds following a tonsillotomy, performed to cure a sore arm. Poholsky, 21, is six feet three, weighs 205 pounds.

Merchants Blank Belleville Redmen

BELLEVILLE, July 19—Behind the two-hit pitching of playing manager Mike Millis, Oshawa Merchants of the Toronto Viaduct Major Baseball League blanked Belleville Redmen of the Central Ontario League, 5-0, in an exhibition game here.

Millis was in complete command as he claimed 11 of the Redmen on strikes and walked none.

Youthful Bill Strachan went the route on the hill for the Redmen. He yielded nine safeties, three of them in the last frame, struck out two and issued three free passes.

Rog Wood led the Oshawa hitters with three singles. Ted Barnes tripled, while Joese Morales and Dick Berning rapped out doubles. Johnny Dean doubled and Huck Reeves singled for the Redmen.

Millers Escape Serious Slump

COBOURG, July 19—Don Ball pitched Baltimore Millers out of their slump here Tuesday night when he handcuffed Wilson Motors with a five-hit nine-strikeout, 13-0 whitewash.

The win put the Millers back in the hunt for a playoof spot in the Sobourg and District Softball League.

Baltimore pounded Brandy Hie, veteran Cobourg hurler, for 13 blows, three of them by pitcher Ball.

The winners played errorless ball in their best performance this month.

Wilson's, clinging desperately to second place, never got a man past second.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Ottawa's hopes for a major triumph at the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta at St. Catharines on July 25-28 rose Wednesday night with the announcement that Bruce Cummings, star football and rowing athlete, will go along with the Ottawa contingent.

George Sprague, president of the Ottawa Rowing Club, said Cummings will be in his regular seat as stroke of the Ottawa junior heavy eight at the Henley Regatta with approval by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football League, for whom he kicks.

Sprague said his squad is in excellent condition.

The added significance of the regatta this year is that the 1952 Olympic trials are scheduled for next June. To qualify for the trials Canadian clubs must have a representative crew at Henley.

Babe Ruth, highest-paid baseball star of his era—and a big spender, too—left a net estate of $360,000. He died three years ago of cancer at the age of 53.

Baseball's immortal home-run king made an estimated $1,425,000 during 24 years in baseball.

He left his widow, Mrs. Clara Mae Ruth, $5,000 plus a life interest in a $179,611 trust fund and in the estate after all bequests were taken out.

Robert B. Ridder, president of the Minnesota Amateur Hockey Association, has been named manager of the hockey team which will represent the United States in the 1952 Olympic winter games at Oslo, Norway, it was announced Wednesday. The US team will be selected and organized next December.

Walter (Turk) Broda, goaltender for the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, Wednesday underwent a successful operation for the removal of gallstones.

Broda is expected to be released from hospital in a week.

Six of America's top women golf professionals and six leading British tournament players tee off today for 108 holes of mixed foursomes play and $2,800 in prizes. The competition will wind up Saturday.

Babe Didrickson Zaharias and Patty Berg head the American players. The British side includes four men from the 1949 Ryder Club team which lost to the American men professionals over this same 6,630-yard course.

President Truman was quoted by Rep. Emanuel Celler (Dem.-NY) Wednesday as saying he whole-heartedly approves a Congressional investigation to determine whether organized baseball violates anti-trust laws.

Celler, chairman of the House Monopoly Subcommittee, said he expects public hearings on the question to begin the first week in August.

In the first announced action from baseball headquarters since A. B. Chandler's resignation as commissioner last Sunday, Brooklyn Dodgers Wednesday were ruled guilty of violation of the high school rule.

George A. Denman, acting secretary-treasurer of baseball, said a contract signed by Joseph Deagelis with Fort Worth, through Dodgers, had been voided, and that Dodgers and their affiliates are barred permanently from signing the boy, who now becomes a free agent.

Joe Ziegler, general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, and Fred (Rip) Collins of the Leafs were in the Brantford stands on Wednesday night to watch the Intercounty senior game between the Red Sox and the St. Thomas Legionnaires, won by Brantford 8-5.

Ziegler was anxious to see Brantford's outstanding pitcher-outfielder Wilmer Fields in action but Fields was not in uniform. Don Butler, St. Thomas third baseman and the Intercounty's leading hitter, also attracted the attention of the Leafs' general-manager. Butler collected three hits.

Canada Direct Records Win At Thorncliffe

TORONTO, July 19 (CP), — Celia's Counsel, the smart trotting mare owned by W. Earle Rowe and driven by Bill Rowe, trotted one of the fastest miles of her career Wednesday to defeat a speedy field of pacers and trotters at Thorncliffe Raceway.

She travelled the distance in 2.08 3-5, less than a second behind her all-time record, and easily defeated Peter Aubrey, Dale H. and four other rivals.

The consistent Canada Direct won the day's featured pacing stake.

Longest price of the afternoon was paid by Miss Chipso, owned by J. L. Waples of Phelpston, Ont. which scored at $21.20 for $2 in the fourth dash.

J. G. McAlpine Dies

HAMILTON, July 19 (CP). — James G. (Mac) McAlpine, secretary-manager of the Hamilton Golf and Country Club at Ancaster for 26 years, died Tuesday. He had been in poor health for some time. During his stay at the club he helped run such tournaments as the Canadian Open, Ontario Amateur, Willingdon Cup and Buckingham Trophy.

TROUBLESOME HEEL—Babe Didrickson Zaharias, left, points out the heel of her putter blade to British golfer Mrs. Ashley Critchley in Sunningdale, Berkshire, Eng. The Babe, one of six American women golf professionals in Britain for a series of matches, won't be able to use the putter since center-shafted clubs are banned in the British Isles.

THE OLD MAN'S TRAINING must have done something for him. Jersey Joe Walcott, at least 37 years old, Wednesday night upset heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles and the experts by knocking out the champion in the seventh round with a left hook to win the title.

Aging Jersey Joe Walcott Holds Crown, KO's Charles in Seventh

By MURRAY ROSE

PITTSBURGH, July 19. (AP) — Jersey Joe Walcott, an amazing old man who wouldn't be licked, today held the world's heavyweight championship in an astounding climax to an almost-unbelievable saga of the ring. Today plans were in motion for a September return meeting between the brown Cinderella-man of the ring and the beaten champion, Ezzard Charles. Pittsburgh, with a city record turnout of 28,272 for its first heavyweight title show, looked the likely site.

At 37, Jersey Joe became the oldest man ever to win boxing's most prized bauble when he flattened the superbly-conditioned Charles in 95 seconds of the seventh round of their 15-rounder with a smashing left hook to the jaw.

It was the ancient Camden battler's fifth crack at the heavyweight championship—two more than any previous challenger ever got—and the devout father of six said, "I thank God for the chance and for helping me to win.

"I'm thankful to everyone," said Walcott who had twice seen the crown slip out of his eager fingers. "I'm going to be a fighting champion—and Charles will get his chance."

"I got him with a left hook to the jaw," said Joe with a big grin on his face. Only moments before tears coursed down his brown cheeks as he realized his glorious moment of triumph.

Just Got Hit

"I just got hit," said the crestfallen Charles in the stillness of a loser's dressing room.

"Did I hear the count? I heard five—I guess," said Charles, who had a lump under his right eye and a cut on his lower lip that required two stitches.

"I could have gone on and on," said Walcott.

Charles was defending his crown for the ninth time. He was a nominal 5 to 1 favorite but there was hardly any betting—the Cincinnati Negro was considered a cinch.

He had whipped Walcott decisively in Chicago to win NBA recognition as retired Joe Louis' successor on June 22, 1949. The lean, supple Charles repeated the triumph with even more of an edge in Detroit last March 7.

"I can beat Walcott any time—I've got his number," is the way Charles put it before plans had been made for this Pittsburgh fight.

Forgot to Watch Left

The old man crossed them up Wednesday night. His main power was supposed to be in his right hand—the hand that had dropped Joe Louis three times in two fights. Charles watched that right but he forgot to watch the left and that's the story of the fight.

A perfect left hook dropped Charles on his face. The stricken champ tried to pull himself up at the count of nine. He partially raised himself up and then toppled on his back—out.

Walcott was ahead at the time of the knockdown. The referee had Jersey Joe in front, 5-1; judge Charley Daggert had Walcott ahead 4-1-1, while judge Stewart (Red) Robinson had it even, 3-3. The AP scorecard had Walcott in the lead 4-2.

Up until the end, it had been a tame fight, with both of the boxers eyeing each other cagily, each waiting for the other to lead. Early, most of the punching was to the body and there were scattered boos from the crowd.

Unlimbers Artillery

Walcott opened up in the third and brought blood from Charles' mouth and started a lump under Ezzard's right eye. In the sixth Walcott unlimbered his big artillery. He clipped Charles twice with left hooks to the jaw. And then the finishing left came, a beauty of a punch.

Old Jersey could hardly believe the fight was over. He started to slump forward and when they hauled him over to the radio microphone, tears welled from his eyes.

Old Joe will collect a cheque of about $50,000 for the fight. Charles will receive about $100,000. For the return match Walcott will split even with Charles, 30 per cent each. That was in the contract which called for a return bout within 90 days.

Foresters Tied

Foresters lost to Grant & Loucks 8-7 on Tuesday and tied with Police 8-8 last night in Civic Softball League frays. A five-run splash in the fifth did the trick for Grant and Loucks as they got a run each in the second, sixth and seventh. Foresters notched one each in the first and seventh, two in the fifth and three more next time up. Conroy fanned four while Daniels struck out two and Ferguson one.

In the other tilt, Police got one in the first, shoved three across in the third and four more in the fifth. Foresters tallied one each in the second, third and fourth frames, two in the first and three in the fifth. McKendrie struck out four but walked five, while Fife fanned one. Revoir whiffed half a dozen but walked five. Teams:

Foresters: Roberts, 2b; Walling, rf; Doughty, c; Parnell, cf; Hobson, 1b; Henry, 3b; Naish, lf; Daniels, p; Ferguson, p; Tyndall, ss.

Using Plane To Bring Gospel To North

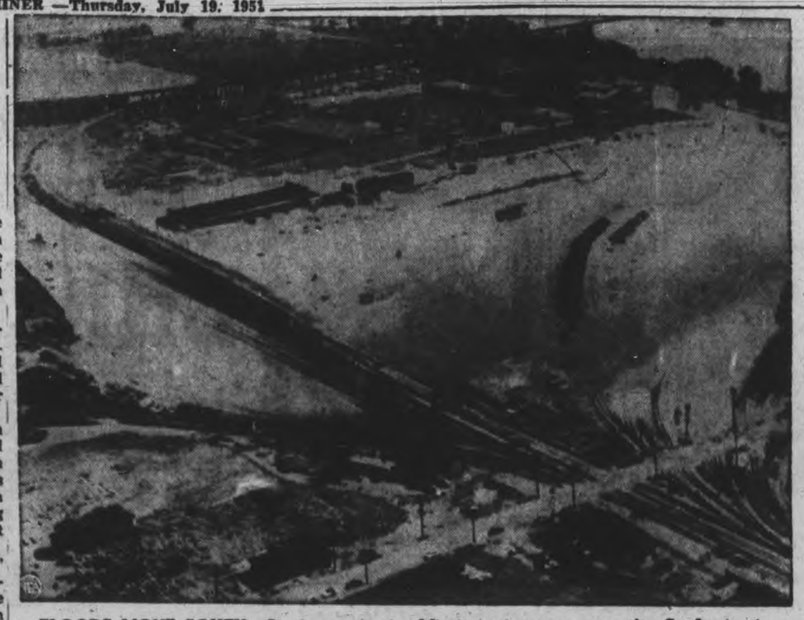
HEARST, Ont.—(CP)—Some 300 members of a Toronto church supplied the wings which are carrying religious teaching and aid to Indians and Eskimos in Northern Ontario.

In August of last year the members and pastor, the Rev. H. J. McAlister, of The Pentecostal Stone Church in Toronto raised $7,000 to purchase an airplane for the Rev. John Spillenaar.

Mr. Spillenaar, of this town, a clergyman of The Pentecostal Church in Canada, has been known for many years for his missionary work in the northern part of the province, travelling by car, train and often by foot to outlying districts.

When "The Flying Minister" learned to fly in 1949 he was advised by Mr. McAlister that The Stone Church would supply him with a plane equipped with pontoons and wheels.

Other Pentecostal Churches in Canada contributed the cost of his flying lessons, purchase of equipment and the construction of a hangar here. Total cost of project was $10,000.



Covers Wide Area

So far Mr. Spillenaar's single-engine monoplane, "Wings of the Gospel" has carried him far up the shore of Hudson Bay and across to the coast of Labrador to isolated trading posts and Eskimo and Indian villages. He has made several mercy flights, flying sick Indians to centres where medical help was available.

Mr. Spillenaaar tells of a service conducted at a lonely Hudson Bay Company post at Eastmain on the east shore of James Bay: -

"That night we gathered at the post and held a church service. There were 18 Eskimos in all. They knew some of the same hymns I did, so they sang in Eskimo, I in English. I read portions of the Scriptures in English and Sam Crowe—the Eskimo Hudson Bay Company post manager—read in Eskimo and interpreted the message.

"The next day I was off and crossed the mountain range to the coast."

FLOODS MOVE SOUTH—As the peak of the midwestern floods moved south, St. Louis, Mo., felt the fury of the high water. Here the Mississippi creeps over the St. Louis riverfront. The Terminal Stockyards (upper left) have been flooded out and the Mississippi Valley yards beyond them are threatened.

The baby appeared to suffer no ill-effects from his dousing.

The young hero is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lahti, natives of Finland, who now reside here.

They will leave Friday aboard the Empress of Canada and reach Liverpool July 27. There the Exeter will get its first feel of sea water. The group will sail to Manchester, Birmingham and finally done the Grand Canal to the Thames estuary and London. From there they will sail to Dover and then make their channel attempt.

The corps is the pride of Lac La Biche and the membership of 28 includes almost every eligible boy in the town of some 850 population.

For this trip the townspeople donated $1,100. Another $1,000 was donated by the Northern Alberta division of the Navy League of Canada, while the Montreal division also helped.

12 Companies Fight For Right Oil Transmission

By JOHN LEBLANC

OTTAWA—(CP)—One of the greatest gold rushes in Canada's history—the race to tap Alberta's fabulous oil-gas wealth to the full—is on in full swing.

Hundreds of millions of dollars on potential profits to pipe Alberta's fuel resources to the lucrative markets of central Canada, the west coast and the United States.

With these glitttering riches in prospect, the companies are ready to lay out investments ranging individually up to $250,000,000 to set up facilities stretching from the oil-gas fields to the fuel-hungry markets outside the foothills province.

Main prizes are the right to transit:

1. Gas and oil to the Northwestern United States.
2. Gas and oil to Canada's Pacific Coast.
3. Gas to Central Canada—as far east as Montreal under present plans.

Only One Pipeline

Up to now, only one major pipeline is in operation beyond the Alberta boundary, carrying oil across the Canadian prairies and down to Superior, Wis. From there, it is taken by tanker to a refinery at Sarnia.

Elsewhere the field is wide open and 10 companies—many of them backed by large US financial interests are after franchises to operate in one direction or another. An 11th group is trying to get incorporated.

None so far has got beyond the preliminary stage of applications before the federal board of transport commissioners, which has the final say in granting permission to operate pipelines and laying down the routes.

Ban On Gas Export

A delaying factor is a current ban by the Alberta Government on the shipment of natural gas outside the province until known reserves are larger. This decision is due to be reviewed in September, and so the transport board has set down Sept. 25 for the start of hearings of four gas-line applications now before it.

It also has designated Sept. 24 for new hearings on four oil applications.

All four of the oil-pipeline companies want to carry the black gold westward, some directly to Vancouver and some hitting the Northwestern United States market on the way to the Canadian West Coast.

Three of the gas applications before the board also are pointed towards the west coast. The fourth company aims eastward as far as Winnipeg.

But the most ambitious venture is not yet before the board. Incorporated only at the recently-concluded session of parliament, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., aims to set up a $250,000,000 gas-pipe network stretching from Alberta to Montreal and possibly later to Quebec.

2,200-Mile Line

The company would have 900 miles of line gatherings gas within Alberta and a 2,200-mile trunk line to Montreal, touching at such cities as Sudbury and Toronto. It is backed by the Big Delhi oil interests of the US.

The other eastbound gas service is proposed by Western Pipe Lines, Ltd., which wants to run from the Gleichen, Alta., area to Winnipeg hitting Swift Current, Sask., Moose Jaw, Sask., Regina, Portage La Prairie, Man., and some other points.

On the westbound front, two of the competitors want to carry both oil and gas to the west coast. They are Westcoast Transmission Company and Alberta Natural Gas Company.

Via North Route

Westcoast Transmission would follow northerly routes through the Rockies, landing gas and oil an a number of British Columbia communities on the way to Vancouver and exporting surplus to the US.

Alberta Natural Gas Company offers alternative all-Canadian and partly-US routes on the way to Vancouver for gas. For oil, it would ship by way of the Northwestern US presumably serving American cities on the way to Vancouver.

The other westbound oil lines are sought by Trans-Mountain Oil Pipe Line Company, whose line would start at Edmonton and end at Vancouver, and Independent Pipe Line Company, going from Edmonton to Port Moody near Vancouver.

Besides the two companies handling both oil and gas to the west coast, two firms want to deal in gas only. They are Prairie Transmission Lines, Ltd., whose application is before the transport board, and Champion Pipe Line Corporation, incorporated at the last parliamentary session.

Champion proposes an All-Canadian line through the southern Crow's Nest Pass in the Rockies to Vancouver, and from there to the US. It also has indicated that it may seek an eastern route taking in Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal.

Prairie Transmission Lines wants to serve a number of south-eastern BC centres and pipe under the Strait of Juna de Fuca to serve Victoria and Sidney on BC's Vancouver Island.

Still On Fringe

Another organization in the running, but still on the fringe, is Border Pipeline Corporation, which wants to carry oil from Alberta down to Spokane, Wash., and Seattle, Wash., before reaching Vancouver. Its incorporation was blocked at the last session of parliament through a filibuster by western members of parliament determined that an All-Canadian route should be followed.

Still another company got quick incorporation at the session and permission from the board to operate. That is the Canadian-Montana Pipe Line Company, which is to carry gas from Southeastern Alberta to a defence plant in Butte, Montana.

The Alberta Government has suspended its gas-export ban to permit this operation, at the request of US defence authorities.

Seeking Cushion Against Layoffs

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP). — The International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO) Wednesday asked General Electric Co. for a financial cushion against layoffs plus a share of the profits. It claims 70,000 members in 41 GE plants.

The union asked a cost-of-living wage increase geared to the rise in costs. Present wages average $1.75 an hour.

The IUE, anticipating future layoffs, asked the company to pay an unemployed worker in his regular salary — less unemployment compensation—for the first two weeks. For the next 12 weeks of unemployment, it asked half pay, minus unemployment insurance.

The profit-sharing plan, as outlined by the union, call sfor five cents an hour per worker, paid by the company.

Pilgrim Pageant Festival Item At Canterbury

CANTERBURY, England, July 19 (Reuters)—Robed clergymen from many churches Wednesday opened a great religious festival which will trace in pageant the 2,000-year history of this ancient seat of Christianity.

Wednesday the faithful of most churches except the Roman Catholic trod in the footsteps of Chaucer's Canterbury pilgrims. The procession led to the cathedral where their medieval counterparts came to mourn at the tomb of the 12th-century martyr, Archbishop Thomas A. Becket.

The series of pageants during the next two weeks wil present to the world The Message of Canterbury during Britain's festival year.

At the cathedral Wednesday the procession was received by Dr. Hewlett Johnson, dean of Canterbury.

Officials Attend

The Lord Mayor and City Council of Canterbury and 22 mayors of the County of Kent, in full regalia, sat in the cathedral choir. Barons of the Cinque Ports, the five old English Channel fortress towns, attended. Dr. Johnson read The Message of Canterbury.

"In all parts of the world people come to our English Christianity, the mother of our traditions and the guardian of our liberties . . ."

"From here there still sounds the good news across all the sundering factions of a troubled world that, in the power of God's Holy Spirit, all are made one in Christ Jesus."

Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, gave the main address.

"At this time," he said, "when so much in the world cries aloud of frustration and disorder and tyranny and evil and the vanity of human wishes, we are called to set against the evil of our living the belief that is the goodness and truth revealed in our history."

THREE DIE IN TRAIN WRECK—Spectators look on as rescue operations continue in New Haven, Ind., where a Wabash passenger train was hit by a Nickel Plate freight train at a track intersection. See No Solution In Ford Disagreement

WINDSOR, July 19 — (CP) — The "trim line" dispute between the Ford Motor Company of Canada and United Automobile Workers (CIO) continued in a dead heat Wednesday.

The differences arose following lay-offs of several thousand employees in the last few days. The company said the exact number was "not available."

The union accused the company of speeding up production. The company in turn accused the workers of slowing up. The union then formally approved the employees' move.

After Wednesday's company-union meeting, George Burt, regional director of the union, said the dispute narrowed to the trim department of the company. He added that nothing was accomplished to solve the problem.

Tuesday, some 200 hourly-rated employees in the Chrysler Corporation's truck plant here also were laid off, but Chrysler officials said they would return to work Friday.

Would Like Resignation

SASKATOON, July 19—(CP)—Hazen Argue, CCF member of parliament for Assiniboia, said Wednesday that the resignation of Prime Minister St. Laurent would be "the best thing that could happen to the farmers in Western Canada." Mr. Argue, addressing the annual provincial CCF convention, also called for the early resignation of the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Professor Heads Ontario CrimeLaboratory

TORONTO, July 19.—Appointment of Dr. H. Ward Smith as director of a provincial crime detection laboratory, which will offer scientific assistance to all police forces in Ontario, was announced Wednesday by Attorney-General Porter.

The province for a number of years has had a medico-legal laboratory, but its work mainly had been directed by consultants.

"We are now extending what we had before," Mr. Porter said. "Dr. Smith will devote his full time as director of the laboratory and it will be his task to develop the work of the laboratory and be ready to assist all police forces in the province in the war against crime."

Dr. Smith, who did undergraduate work at the University of Western Ontario and took his doctorate at Toronto, now is a professor in the Department of Pharmacology at the University of Toronto.

Alcohol Research

For some six years, Dr. Smith has been carrying on alcohol research—determination of alcohol in biological fluids, studies in alcoholism, and a survey concerning alcohol and its relationship to traffic accidents, results of which were presented at an international conference on the subject in Stockholm last year.

Problems of alcohol and traffic will continue to come within Dr. Smith's field at the laboratory. Analysis of blood samples submitted, perhaps as result of an accident in which drinking might be suspected, will be one of its jobs.

The laboratory will have facilities for the analysis of such things as glass and paint — as, for instance, from hit-and-run accidents —and for other materials which may be sent to it by police as having a possible connection with a crime.

The laboratory will be located in the old Sick Children's Hospital building on College St., where it will have about 1,700 feet of floor space. Dr. Smith, Attorney-General Porter said, will have whatever he needs in the way of equipment.

Agreement Needed

WINNIPEG, July 19—(CP)—Premier Campbell, of Manitoba, said Wednesday that no large irrigation scheme should be put into operation on Canada's prairies without agreement by all three provincial governments. Commenting on remarks by federal Agriculture Minister Gardiner, the Manitoba premier said such agreement is needed wherever interprovincial rivers are concerned.

One-Hand Driving Not Good Enough

LONDON, July 19 (Reuters).—The Earl of Bective's right hand was on the steering wheel but his left barely knew it.

Along with his arm it was around the girl friend, and as a result, the 19-year-old officer of His Majesty's Life Guards was fined $5 for driving a car in such a position that he could not control it.

The magistrate "His second hand was engaged in other operations."

The lawyer said his client was accustomed to driving with one hand.

"If the police had approached him in a fatherly way and told him not to drive in this manner it might have been better," said counsel.

"Ah," answered the magistrate, "it might be that it was the fatherly manner of this young officer that caused the offence."

Name Winners Of CAHA Scholarships

OTTAWA, July 19 — (CP) —A young Winnipeg painter and a drama student and a composer both from the Province of Quebec, are the winners of the 1951 scholarships of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The CAHA scholarship promotetde by the Canada Foundation, have been awarded annually since 1949 to provide young Canadians with advanced training abroad in painting, drama and musical composition.

The Foundation announced today that the CAHA's top award of $2,000 for advanced study in Paris went to Patrick A. Landsdey, 24, of Winnipeg.

A tie for a second scholarship resulted in awards of $1,000 each to drama student Paul Hebert, 27, of Thetford Mines, Que., and composer Clermont Pepin, 25, of St. Georges, Beauce County, Que.

The Canada Foundation, a non-profit, cultural association which administers the scholarships for the hockey organization, said the competition attracted nearly 100 applicants.

It is open to all Canadians between 20 and 30 qualified for advanced cultural training outside Canada.

Landsley is a veteran of the Canadian navy. For the last four years he has been studying at the Montreal museum of fine arts. Scholarships, DVA credits and summer jobs have helped him finance his art training in Canada. The CAHA scholarship will enable him to study in Paris under the modernist painter, Fernand Leger.

Promising Student.

Hebert, a graduate of Laval University, is "one of French Canada's most promising students of the theatre" the Foundation said.

He has acted with Les Compagnons de St. Laurent of Montreal and was a director and actor for three years with Les Comediens de la Nef of Quebec City.

Now studying at the Old Vic theatre school in London, he will use the CAHA scholarship to study with theatre companies in Toulouse and Ste. Etienne, France.

Clermont Pepin has studied at the Montreal Conservatory and the Royal Conservatory of Music at Toronto. He has succeeded in financing his entire musical education by winning scholarships. At present in France studying with world-renowned composer Arthur Honegger, the CAHA award will enable him to spend an additional year there.

Doubt Real War to Start Between India and Pakistan

NEW DELHI, July 19—(AP)—The current war of words between India and Pakistan has aroused fears of real war among many Indians. But responsible experts today discounted the uproar.

Neither neighbor is in a position to sustain a shooting war on a modern scale for more than two weeks or so.

This dispute intensified Sunday when Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan charged nine-tenths of India's army is concentrated on the borders of Pakistan in a threat to peace.

Prime Minister Jawaharral Nehru made India's formal reply Wednesday. He said relations between the neighbors could be best improved if Liquat would "stop propaganda for Jehad (holy war) and war against India in Pakistan." He wrote Liaquat that fears of any Indian threat to the security of Pakistan and to international peace "are completely unjustified."

"India's policy continues to be to preserve and ensure peace and avoid war," Nehru said.

Newspapers in both India and Pakistan have been filled recently with war talk. Moslem minority groups in Delhi and elsewhere fear possible racial riots. India is predominantly Hindu, Pakistan mainly Moslem.

Diplomats and other officials take a calm view of the situation. Neither country manufactures arms beyond a few small weapons and minor munitions.

The main issue between the countries is Kashmir, a state Nehru claims for India although Moslems predominate there. Frank P. Graham is in this area in a United Nations effort to promote an agreement.

Communications Minister Rafi Ahmad Kidwai announced his resignation from the ruling All-India Congress Party. He said the party "is in a state of rapid disintegration."

Plainville Orders Hold Joint Meeting

PLAINVILLE, July 19 (ENS).—An afternoon was spent by the ladies of the WMS and WCTU of Plainville United Church at Mrs. McConnell's cottage at Pine Tree Point, Rice Lake. Mrs. McConnell, an annual summer resident from Toronto, had invited the societies for their July meeting. More than 30 members and friends were present. The president, Mrs. C. Manley, opened the meeting with a poem, "Dusk at Lake's Edge," and a short worship service with "Summer" the theme. Mrs. Glen Cole offered prayer for our missionary. After the business, the group leader in charge, Mrs. John Linton, conducted an interesting program, the subject being "Glimpses of Trinidad," with Mrs. Alex Buttars, Miss Clare King, and Mrs. E. King, Mrs. Clarke McKinlay, and Mrs. Edgar Buttars taking part.

Mrs. Frank Westington, president of the WCTU, had a short program. She read a poem, "The White Ribbon," and gave some interesting points from an address given by a temperance worker at the recent Sunday School convention. Mrs. King closed this portion of the meeting with prayer.

The WMS president thanked the hostess for her hospitality, and Mrs. McConnell expressed the hope that the ladies would make this an annual event.

While Mrs. Louis Buttars said a few words to Mrs. A. E. Larke, Mrs. King presented her with a china cup and saucer, a farewell remembrance from the ladies of the WMS. Mrs. Larke graciously replied. The Rev. A. E. Larke, Mrs. Larke and family are leaving the Gore's Landing pastorate to take up duties at Springville. The hostess and Mrs. Alex Buttars' group served lunch.

Havelock Council Plans Paving

HAVELOCK, July 19—(ENS)—A special meeting of the town council was held Monday night to discuss sidewalks and paving of George St. between Oak and Quebec streets. In connection with the paving it was decided to meet with a representative of the McFarland Construction Company. The matter of sidewalks was left to see if cement and other materials could be procured.

The business of an item covering $3,300 that the rink committee procured from the bank and requests the council to pay, was brought up by Councillor Fred Pollock, who said that this matter had been a football for two previous meetings. Councillock put the motion to council that no action be taken in this matter and received no seconder for his motion. Reeve Seeney then declared the motion lost and Councillor Pollock requested that the press make public his motion.

Steel Shortage Delays Barrie Highway

TORONTO, July 19.—The Toronto-Barrie fourlane highway, started in the spring of 1946, is still about a year away from completion.

Ontario Highways Minister Doucett, Wednesday said steel is the present problem. Nine overpass structures are in the course of construction—they range between 16 and 94 per cent completed—and each takes roughly 80 tons of steel.

Contracts have been let for the paving of 9.3 of the highway's total 46 miles. The paving is being done north from Wilson Ave.

A first 10 miles on the Windsor-Toronto highway has been started just outside Windsor. The exact route this four-lane highway is to take along its full length has not been determined yet, however. It will pass somewhere between St. Thomas and London; there is also some doubt what line it will follow through the Kitchener, Waterloo, Preston area.

Cost Eight Million

This highway, expected to become the main trans-provincial highway, will cost about $8,000,000, or something over $300,000 a mile. Cloverleafs will take traffic into and out of all major cities aong the route.

Negotiations have to be undertaken with the City of Windsor to decide how it will enter there. Until it is hooked up at both ends the 10-mile stretch now started will not be used.

Grading and structures for the first, centre-sectian of the Toronto by-pass highway, are expected to be almost completed this year. This highway will swing through traffic north of the city from the major four-lane highways running east and west.

Another bypass highway under construction skirts Barrie to the west. It will be a continuation of the Toronto-Barrie road, and will run into Highway 11 north of Barrie.

Oshawa will still be the eastern termina of the four-lane pavement of Highway 2A this year. Grading, east of Oshawa, and west from Bowmanville, will be completed by the end of summer, but then must come the paving. Grading soon is to start east from Bowmanville.

ANCIENT MONSTER—Bones of the largest prehistoric reptile found in Manitoba have been unearthed near Morden, 65 miles southwest of Winnipeg. Museum technician Dick Sutton is shown cleaning the jaw bone. The animal has been identified as a Mosasaurus, a 75-foot sea-serpent which inhabited the seas which covered Eastern and Central Canada during the Cretaceous Period.

Oil Agreement Possible-Britain

CALGARY, July 19 (CP)—The Albertan says today in a newspage story that an Anglo-Canadian trade agreement involving Alberta oil may develop should the Britsh government make huge investments in provicial oil fields as a result of the Iranian oil crisis.

The paper says this opinion was voiced by Clifford B. Powell, member of the Dollar-Sterling Trade Board, in a telephone interview from Montreal.

The story said Mr. Powell, who announced the contemplated investments in Alberta oil on his arrival in Canada, said such an agreement would be more advantageous to Britain than paying the full bill in hard-to-get dollars for US oil.

Some Australians Find Olympics Losing Glamor

Written for The Canadian Press By MARGARET E. FRANCIS

MELBOURNE, Australia (CP)—Some sections of the Australian population are giving the back of their hands to the 1956 Olympic Games, scheduled for Melbourne.

The Victoria State Government which successfully fought for the opportunity to play host to the world's athletes was voted out of office at the last elections. And while the departed Liberals were Olympic Games boosters, the new Country Party feels there should be homes before stadiums.

Families living under crowded conditions in this state capital are protesting the use of scarce lumber in the extensive plans for reconstruction of the Royal Agriculture Exhibition Grounds at nearby Ascot Vale to accommodate the Olympic athletes.

Supporters of the Olympics, led by Sir Harold Luxtan, chairman of the organizing committee, argue that the housing problem should be solved by 1956 and that Australia needs the international prestige brought by the games. But there other problems.

Australia's larger cities, notably Melbourne, are woefully short of hotel accommodations. And the national government has banned construction of hotels until the housing shortage is met.

Temperance groups in Victoria are concerned over the effect the games may have on the state's liquor regulations, which now limit public-house operations to the afternoon hours between 2 and 6 p.m. Prohibition groups attacked the Olympics bitterly when it was hinted that these hours might be lengthened during the games.

But plans have gone ahead for the $8,100,000 project to provide a suitable olympic site. The Australian Olympic Federation formed an organizing company at its spring meeting to supervise necessary construction and administer the games.

Permanent Stands

Permanent concrete stands to accommodate 60,000 spectators will be built around an area now used for trotting races. Circular cinder running tracks will replace the present trotting tracks.

On the north side of the showgrounds a $562,500 swimming pool will be built. Three large buildings will be constructed for weight lifting, gymnastics, boxing and fencing.

Special tunnels will be sunk to bring tram lines into the showgrounds. Streets in the area will be renovated to provide for a circular motion of road traffic. A nearby racecourse will be converted into a parking space for 10,000 cars.

Cycling events will take place at Olympic Park, within the Melbourne City area.

Set Wage Pattern

HAMILTON, July 19 — (CP) — Firestone Tire and Rubber Company employees in Hamilton set the probable wage pattern for the rubber industry Wednesday when they accepted a company wage offer of an additional 1 2cents an hour retroactive to July 6. The figure, approved by Local 113, United Rubber Workers (CIO), will affect the negotiations with other rubber locals now negatiating with firms in Toronto, Bowmanville, Kitchener and Oakville.

Girl Nearly Drowns Trying Save Children

ELK LAKE, Ont., July 19 (CP) A 10-year-old girl was almost drowned Wednesday in a vain effort to save her younger brother and sister from the waters of the Montreal River, 150 miles north of North Bay.

Louise Perrault, 8, and Ronald Perrault, 6, both children of Damanas Perrault, an Elk Lake bushworker, were drowned.

Sally Perrault was almost pulled under by the drowning pair when she entered the river in a rescue attempt.

The bodies were recovered by police aided by forestry station students.

Barn Fired By Lightning At Midnight

Roseneath Farmer Roused By Thunder Sees Barn Destroyed

ROSENEATH, July 19 (ENS)—Lightning at 1.45 a.m. today struck the barn of Isaac Skuce, Roseneath farmer, starting a fire that destroyed the building and contents. The loss is estimated at $2,000, and it is partly covered by insurance.

A calf and a dog were rescued by Mr. Skuce but the flames spread so rapidly that nothing else was saved. Witnesses said that within a couple of minutes the whole barn was ablaze.

The Roseneath pumper wasn't used because it was realized it would be unable to check the progress of the flames.

General Alarm Ring

Miss Lavine Parker, operator of the Roseneath telephone exchange, gave a general ring over the circuit and several hundred people turned out despite the pouring rain. However, they were unable to be of much assistance.

A pile of new lumber lying close to the barn was shifted but the volunteers were unable to save anything else.

Destroyed in the fire were six tons of hay, a quantity of straw and chaff, turnip pulper, straw cutter, two chicken brooders, attachments for a garden cultivator and a few hens and chickens.

The cattle were out to pasture.

The barn was a two-storey structure on the 15-acre Skuce farm, located northeast of the Roseneath fair grounds.

Crash Of Thunder

Mr. Skuce heard a crash of thunder and then saw his barn was afire. He dashed to the barn and got out a calf and a dog that were in a lower stable. By that time the flames were roaring through the structure and he was forced to leave the rest of the contents.

Flames shooting skyward illuminated the Roseneath fair ground and alerted many of the villagers who had not already been tipped off by phone.

For some time there seemed to be a danger to the barn of Hilliard O'Connell, 200 yards east of the Skuce barn. Despite the heavy rain, showers of sparks were swept over to the O'Connell property by the wind.

Mr. O'Connell kept watch on the wet roof of his barn until all danger of the fire spreading was past.

No Drinking

Children playing at King Edward Park are now without a drinking fountain. And this situation may continue for the rest of the summer. The trouble is that each time the Parks Department fixes the fountain somebody breaks it. Armar Butcher, superintendent of city parks, said today that over the weekend the "bubbler" on the fountain was broken off. It is the fourth "bubbler" that has been installed there this summer and the total cost of replacement is approximately $100.

Jeep Rolls Over Driver, Pelvis Broken

Sam Labarge, 36, of Mountain lake, near Minden, is in Lindsay Hospital with a double fracture of the pelvis and a spinal injury received early Wednesday night when his jeep rolled over him.

The accident occurred on the old Bobcaygeon-Cashe road in Minden township, north of the village.

Labarge was driving north in his open jeep at about 7.30 p.m. when he failed to make a curve in the road and the vehicle tumbled over a 100-foot incline. Labarge was spilled out of the jeep which then rolled over him.

Found Unconscio

He was found unconscious, 30 feet down the slope, by Ken Barton, Minden. Barton was passing in his car when he saw the wreck.

The injured man was taken to Minden where he was treated by Dr. Agnes Jameson. X-rays revealed a double fracture of the pelvis, back injury, as well as visible cuts and bruises.

He was taken to Lindsay hospital where his condition today is "fair."

OPP Constable Al Edwards, Minden, investigated.

Shed Burns In South End

A wooden shed valued at $450 burned to the ground at Crawford's Grove, shortly after midnight. But the glaring reflection in the sky, seen as far away as Ennismore, made a good many people think the south end was ablaze.

The city fire department, answering a call that put the fire somewhere on Monaghan Road South, sent a ladder truck, pumper and the chief's car. Then it was discovered that the shed was burning just across the city boundary in North Monaghan.

Firemen watched it for a while to make sure the blaze didn't spread and then returned to the firehall.

Traffic was jammed on Monaghan Rd. for some distance as carloads of curious city residents headed for the source of the glow. And there was a steady stream of pedestrians as well.

The shed was owned by Gordon Warren, Western Ave. He had recently moved it there from city property without the permission of North Monaghan authorities. And he had been told to take it away.

Mr. Warren had intended to add to it and make it a residence. When the fire broke out it was up for sale. Previously it had been used as a harness shop.

Cause of the outbreak is unknown. It started before the thunderstorm struck the city.

A humorous sidelight was that many of the spectators who flocked to the scene were disappointed. Seeing the bright glow in the sky they had expected to see a major fire, not a vacant shed going up in flames.

DECIDE ON CONTRACT

Tonight the production workers of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. are meeting to accept or reject a company offer on a new contract. They are members of Local 822, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO-CCL). The textile workers have not been able to get a new contract since their old one expired March 1, 1950. but the old one has remained in force by mutual agreement. Some 150 production workers are affected. The meeting will be in Loyal True Blue Orange Hall, George St.

ASPIRING LADY SWIMMERS gathered at the Lions Club Pool at Riverside Park on Wednesday evening determined to learn the sport. Classes are being held on Monday and Wednesday evenings. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

55 Women Take Swim Lessons; Getting Big Kick

There's no age limit in the adult swimming classes being held at the Lion's Club Swimming Pool weekday evenings.

"We have them 23-65," Instructor Bill Lech told the Examiner when it visited Wednesday evening's class. A total of 55 women were assembled for the class with one wish in common—to learn to swim.

"And they will," Instructor Lech commented. "The majority should be able to swim 50 feet in three weeks time."

First Of Their Scale

These adult swimming classes started on Monday and are believed to be the first adult swimming instruction on a large scale to be held in the city.

The women's classes are held on Monday and Wednesday nights and the men's Tuesday and Thursday nights. Up-to-date there has been a total registration of 75—55 women and 20 men. But more are coming all the time.

A number of the adults are parents of children who are attending or have attended the free swim classes for youngsters at the pool.

Judging from Wednesday's class, the adults are having as much fun and are just as enthusiastic as the youngsters.

These adult classes are just another example of, "You're never too old to learn."

Lindsay Scout Off To Austria

LINDSAY, July 29.—A Lindsay boy, King Scout, Roy Strickland, left Wednesday morning with 32 other scouts from Canada to take part in the World Scout Jamboree in Austria August 3.

The Lindsay youth and his companions boarded the SS Ascania for England in Montreal Wednesday at 10 am. Some 15,000 scouts from all parts of the world will be meeting for the annual affair.

Last week, in Lindsay, neighbors and friends gathered to present the scout with a purse and wish him well.

The scouts have a busy time mapped out for them when they get to England and will spend just as busy a week in England again after returning from Austria.

Highlight of the visit to England will be a review of the scouts by Princess Elizabeth. Then will follow a whirl of tours of London and the surrounding country.

Bobcaygeon Remains Dry As Wets Fail By 25 Votes

Permanent residents of Bobcaygeon Wednesday voted down the establishment of a Government liquor store and a beer warehouse. The wet votes were four per cent short of the necessary 60 per cent to establish the store. In actual votes, they were 25 votes short.

The total number of votes cast was 625. Two more people voted for a liquor store than for a beer warehouse.

The residents voted on the following two questions: "Are you in favor of the establishment of government stores for the sale of liquor?", and "are you in favor of the establishment of government stores for the sale of beer only for residence consumption?"

Two Polls

The vote was conducted in two polls. One poll received the necessary 60 per cent, but the other poll brought the percentage down. At the second poll, there were two more votes than half in favor of the establishment of a liquor store and two less than half for a beer store.

The voting was reported to be fairly heavy with two committees actively campaigning. The Bobcaygeon Committee for Government Stores had stated before the vote was taken that they did not want the village to stay as it was. They claimed that 85 per cent of the youth of the village are forced to leave before they are 20 to seek employment.

Ordinary People

The Bobcaygeon Citizen's League took exception to the statement that all tourists want liquor while on their vacation. League spokesman said that tourists are ordinary people seeking a rest and quiet.

This question was last voted on four years ago. The wets received 25 more votes this year than in the previous vote.

Wax Boils Over

While putting out a fire in her kitchen Mrs. Manuel Miles, 479 Brioux Ave., Wednesday afternoon received a slight burn on her right hand. Firemen gave her first aid and she required no further medical attention.

The blaze started when some preserving wax in a pot boiled over. Mrs. Miles placed the wax on her electric stove to heat. She went next door to her neighbor's, Mrs. G. L. Martin, for a few minutes.

When Mrs. Miles returned to her kitchen she found the pot blazing. She seized it and dropped it in the sink and put out the fire with water. She received the minor burn when she grabbed the pot.

Paper on some of the kitchen shelves was burned and her curtains were singed, but otherwise there was no damage. The fire was out when firemen arrived.

UE To Sponsor Labor Day Rally

The stewards and executive of Local 524, UE, Wednesday night decided to sponsor a labor rally on Labor Day for the workers of Peterborough and their families.

Detailed plans are lacking at present. Membership committees from the UE shops will be set up after the CGE vacation. An invitation to other plants and working groups to co-operate in the rally is being extended.

Didn't Take Part

Last year the UE did not take part in the labor rally. It was sponsored by the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CIO-CCL), the successor to the Allied Labor Council that included CCL, AFL and independent unions.

"The UE has long played a leading role advancing the interests of the working people and their families," said President George Wallace. "True to that tradition we are sponsoring the 1951 labor rally, and we are inviting all labor in Peterborough to participate both in the arrangements and in the activities."

Boy On Bicycle Hits Stopped Car, Hurt

An eight-year-old boy was slightly injured Wednesday night in the first of two city accidents. Three cars were damaged in the second.

Gerard Beauvais, 8, of 775 Donegal St., suffered bruised ribs and a cut upper lip when his bicycle crashed into a car stopped on Park Hill Road at Stormont St. Driver of the car was Frank Barker, 785 Fairbairn Avenue.

Barker told police he had been driving west on Park Hill Road, and as he neared Stormont St., saw three boys on bicycles coming south down the hill. He stopped. The first two bikes missed him, and the third, ridden by the Beauvais boy, struck the car.

In the second accident, cars driven by Russell Gardiner, RR 2, Omemee, Doris Steinburg, 1053 Western Avenue; and the Rev. Walton H. Tonge, Lakefield, were involved.

Gardiner was driving east on Park Hill Road, went through the Water Street intersection and just east of there his car was in collision with the Steinburg auto. When he backed his car away from Gardiner's car scraped the left side of the minister's auto.

No Burned Fields

It is probably true that there isn't a parched field anywhere in Ontario, not even on the lean soil of the Pre Cambrian stretch of country easterly from Stony Lake to Perth. Farmers remember many a midsummer when they were anxiously scanning the skies and the weather promises for rain. These days they are hoping for a stretch of sunshine to take in the grain.

Found Guilty Of Obstructing Man Fined $25

Two Verona men appeared in police court today charged with obstructing justice. Allan Hill, 23, and Donald Ruttan, 25, were charged after an accident Monday night in which both were injured.

Ruttan was acquitted and Hill was fined $25 and costs by Magistrate E. A. Gee, Lindsay.

Skidded 160 Feet

The accident occurred on Highway 28 just south of Burleigh Falls. The truck Hill was driving north skidded about 160 feet after going onto the shoulder of the road. It turned over, and both suffered facial cuts and bruises.

Provincial Constable Thomas Fitzpatrick testified both men showed signs of drinking, and Ruttan had to be helped to the police cruiser. Pieces of broken beer bottles were found near the truck and these were put in the glove compartment of the cruiser.

The two accused were left in the back seat of the cruiser, and when Constable Fitzpatrick returned, he found Hill sitting in the front street, and the pieces of glass gone. Hill said he knew nothing about them.

Hill was fined an additional $25 when found guilty of careless driving. Both men pleaded not guilty.

Market Site Becomes Parking Lot

Old Square Laid Out To Hold 93 Cars 50 Cents For Day

The market parking area is ready for motor car tenancy beginning Friday morning, with the meters tuned up for collective action.

The rates are: five cents for 72 minutes; 25c for six hours and 50 cents for the entire day period from 9 a.m. until midnight.

City Engineer Chalmers has completed a thorough job laying out the old market square in its new design and devices for the accommodation of car owners with parking space in the centre of the down town district.

Mr. Chalmers said there would be metered space for 93 cars when the last six special lots are marked off.

Angle Parking

The ground has been graded and levelled, rolled and finished asphalt, and the parking marking on the angle plan provides convenience for motorists in entrance and exit. Grading of the area should carry off rainfall without any accumulation of water. Police will supervise this new service for the present.

Parking cars in the centre of the city has been a problem the council of recent years has sought to solve. Use of the market was finally undertaken with decision, and another central lot should soon be available on the Charlotte St. site of the postal-customs building.

Final arrangements with the federal government for moving in on that space have not yet been completed, but it is expected at the city hall that approval will soon be received.

BUSES THROUGH PARK

George St. south buses are rolling through Morrow Park. Their diversion is caused by the paving job on Lock St., south from Lansdowne St. Residents south of the park should be convinced that their appeals of two years ago, led by the Rev. E. C. Moore, have accomplished their purpose, and evidently the park with its new paved strip has not been impaired in its community value and use.

John, Don't Forget

Summer Bachelor Muddles Through

By JIM ENGLISH

Summertime, says the song, when the living is easy.

Not for the temporary, baffled bachelors deserted for a week or weekend by their wives. Snowed under by a drift of "don't forget this" notes, they muddle bravely along for the most part.

Not Easy

But it isn't the easy, relaxed, quiet life they first thought it would be, about five or 25 years ago when their wives first departed for a brief holiday.

There wasn't much lying around the house and living high off the hog. There were too many of these little notes, like:

"John, I want you to fix the cellar screen, and there are three milk bottles in the cellar that don't go back to the dairy, they go back to Fidget and Didget on Briggs Street. Love, Mary. P.S. Don't forget to call the man."

And in cubbyholes about the house are other notes; cryptic notes that were written during the five-minute wait for the taxi.

Orders

Those little notes are the bane of temporary bachelordom. Take for instance the fellow who found one by the kitchen sink. He thought it said: "John, put the washer in bedroom, Love, Mary."

He read it two or three times, and that was the only meaning he could put to it. The writing was a scribble and the paper was crumpled.

Funny thing, he thought, wanting the washer in the bedroon. But, if she wants to turn the bedroom into a laundry, okay. It wasn't much of a problem. They lived in a one-storey house, and the laundry was off the kitchen.

So he hauled in the washing machine, the ironing board, a cabinet from the laundry and the two clothes baskets. Out of the bedroom into the laundry went the bedroom equipment.

He moved everything but the plumbing. That, he figured, could wait until the wife came home.

Welcome Home

She got home all right. And her husband waited for her at the door, a proud little smile and an "aw shucks, honey, 'tweren't much" look on his face.

She took one look at the bedroom that was and had to sit down on a clothes basket. What, she wanted to know, was her husband thinking of when he did that! He showed her the note.

With a twisted smile she explained that she hadn't meant "put", or "bedroom". Not that at all.

"Honey," she said, "when I wrote that I meant fix the washer in the bathroom. We have a leaky tap, you know."

Donkey Meat Riles M.P. Demands House Intervene

LONDON, July 19—(AP)—On the menu in some British restaurants it says "Escalope of Veal."

But it's donkey meat, Maj. Guy Lloyd, Conservative member for Renfrew, told a startled House of Commons, Wednesday.

"In view of the fact that the amount of donkey meat being sold at the present time is exceptional," Lloyd said. "And in view of the fact that most people who order Escalope of Veal are getting donkey meat, will the secretary gave an assurance, that the government are taking the matter very seriously?"

F. T. Willy, parliamentary secretary for the Food Ministry, indicated that the government is not clear on all aspects of the subject raised. He said the ministry doesn't deal with donkeys—they are the responsibility of the Ministry of Agrieulture and Fisheries. Besides, he said:

"The provision of the Food and Drug Act of 1938 relating to the sale of horse flesh apply."

J. D. Profumo, Conservative, supported Lloyd, demanding to know:

"Will Mr. Willey consider asking whichever department deals with donkeys, in the interests of both consumers and donkeys, if they will consider prohibiting this degrading and uncivilized traffic?"

It is up to local authorities to enforce whatever the regulations may be, Willey said.

TOP CARTOONIST

Rollin Kirby of the old New York World was a three-time winner of the Pulitzer Prize for cartooning.

FORE!—See that jagged white streak coming down from the top of the picture? That's man-made lightning, striking the golf club held aloft by the young woman. But she's a dummy. And the "golf course" behind her is a painted scene. But they all could be real. It's a demonstration at the General Electric high voltage engineering laboratory at Pittsfield, Mass., to picture the dangers of lightning on a golf course during a thunderstorm. Only reason the dummy wasn't destroyed is that it is carefully grounded. If you get caught in an electrical storm, never seek shelter under a tree or continue to carry a club over your shoulder. It acts like a lightning rod.

Togliatti Calls For Election

ROME, July 19 — (CP) — Palmiro Togliatti, Italy's Communist boss, Wednesday called for a general election to cure the cabinet crisis.

Togliatti talked for 30 minutes with President Luigi Einaudi, but his remedy is not believed to have found favor with the President.

Einaudi was due to meet 15 party leaders today in a bid to form a new government after Monday's wholesale resignation of Alcide de Gasperi's sixth post-war administration.

De Gasperi's Christian Democrat Cabinet quit after increasing criticism of its policy from within the party.

It is considered certain Einaudi will pick the outgoing Premier to form the new cabinet, a coalition consisting mostly of Christian Democrats with a few Republicans to fill the list of portfolios.

Need More Men To Handle Strike

TIMMINS, July 19—(CP)—F. L. Longmore, general manager of the strikebound Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, said Wednesday that the number of maintenance men permitted through the picket lines is "inadequate to handle the volume of necessary work."

"If necessary and urgent maintenance work is not undertaken, there will be unnecessary delays when operations are resumed," he said.

Union officials must accept responsibility for the resulting situation unless arrangements are made soon for more men, he added.

A Hollinger statement issued Wednesday said that since the 1,600 miners walked off their jobs July 9, a total of 75 men have been allowed to cross the picket lines.

Of these 10 are working in the mine, four in the mill, six are electricians and 20 are pumpmen and hoistmen. The others are administrative and clerical personnel preparing payrolls and vacation vouchers.

A carload of bulk cyanide, meanwhile, remains on a siding here where it has been for more than a week.

"We don't normally leave cyanide lying around," said one mine official. "It is a very dangerous poison."

WINNIPEG, July 19 (CP).—It's "a lot of rubbish . . . ridiculous," said Maj. H. R. Richardson of the Dominion-Provincial Farm Help Service at Winnipeg, commenting on a letter published in a German newspaper of menial conditions of immigrants on Manitoba farms.

A German immigrant, writing from Winnipeg, told Die Welt, leading West German newspaper, that work he did here was "of the lowest and dirtiest kind . . . with bad food and miserable living quarters."

Such conditions don't exist here, said Maj. Richardson. "There always are some disgruntled immigrants who just don't fit."

Peterborough Blasts Win Over Brampton—In 1899

In a 12th of July field lacrosse game here in 1899, Peterborough defeated the Excelsiors of Brampton by 11-1 as reported by the Examiner, a faded copy of which was recently turned up by Jack McCabe.

Brampton "threw in the sponge" with 20 minutes to play, acknowledging they hadn't a chance to win, although on their own grounds they had won by 9-1. The local players from goal out were: Fred Dobbin, Jim McCabe, Jack Mein, Myles McDonough, H. Lewis, a negro; E. G. (Bud) Bogart, centre; Lionel King, Rollie Glover, Jack McCabe, George Lipsett and Vic McWilliams. Joe Begley was field captain; Carise LeBrun, umpire, and A. J. McClellan, timekeeper.

Story of Game

The following is the account of the scoring of the first goal. "After considerable play around centre field, Brampton worked the ball up along the north fence. Lewis came out to relieve the pressure. He got away neatly from two men who were checking him, and started a combination, the equal of which has never been seen on the local grounds. From a point just a few feet from the Peterborough flags, the ball was passed down the west side, and crossed over about centre to the opposite side, when by a zig-zag course it went in to Glover. The ball passed from Lewis to McDonough, to Bogart to King to Bogart, to Jack McCabe, and then to Glover. It never touched the ground in the swift passing, nor did it touch one of the Brampton sticks.

The play was so smartly executed that the crowd went wild with enthusiasm, and then settled down to see a grand match."

No Protection

Apparently there was no goal crease protection for the net-minders at that time. For instance: "It took sharp eyes to follow the ball in the tenth goal. No one saw much of it till Glover scored while McWilliams was mixing up the goal keeper."

Vic McWilliams was afterward a doctor, and practised for a time at Keene. He was a brother of the Hon. R. F. McWilliams, present Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba.

Lionel King also became a doctor and practised in Prince Albert, Sask.

Gene Hurtubise is quoted as saying that Lionel King was one of the best all around athletes Peterborough ever produced. He starred in hockey and lacrosse, was good at baseball, and was really into everything. Mr. McCabe said he even played a pretty good game of cricket.

Lionel King's father was a physician in those days, living at the northwest corner of Charlotte and Stewart Streets.

Pride Of Paris Josephine Baker Wows Actors

By BILL BECKER

HOLLYWOOD, July 19 (AP)— "Two Loves Have I", chants Josephine Baker on her triumphant tour. "My coun-tree- and Pa-ree."

And the United States' most famous between-wars expatriate sings it like she means it. La Belle Josephine has been so heartened by the reception on her return that she says she intends to divide her time henceforth between the United States and France.

"I am so happy—I open my own night club, The Chez Josephine Baker, in New York in October," she said with Gallic inflections. "And then, perhaps, there may be Hollywood."

After her smash two-week stand here, movie moguls are bidding high for her services. The film colony flocked to her local performances.

She broke all records for the Hillcrest Theatre, netting $45,000 in two weeks for her troupe. Her take was at least $30,000.

Her business manager, Ned Schuyler, who has been mulling over the movie offers, says:

"It isn't a question of whether the movies want Josephine, but whether they want her enough to make the kind of movie consistent with her way of thinking on the matter of segregation."

In other words, no All-Negro musical.

The pride of Paris wowed Hollywood audiences with a subtle mixture of sex, sophistication, high fashion and smooth showmanship.

No one recalled a performer who could sing and shimmy in five languages—English, French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese.

Her highly stylized performances are set off by a wardrobe of 43 gowns insured for $250,000.

Bonarlaw News

The Sunday school picnic of St. Marks Church, Bonarlaw was held on Saturday at Chard's Bridge. More than 50 attended and a splendid dinner was served. Swimming and races were enjoyed by all. One centre of attraction was the beautiful birthday cake for little Laura Fraser decorated in pink and white.

Springville News

Miss Eleanor Bowles, who is taking a summer course at University of Toronto, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bowles.

Mr. Orland Kidd, a theological student, was the guest minister at Mount Pleasant and Springville on Sunday. Mr. Kidd was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Norman J. Lillico.

A LITTLE WEARIER than when they left their home in Kelowna, B.C., more than two weeks ago on a holiday jaunt, Mrs. Gladys Travis, 51-year-old grandmother, and her 12-year-old son, Jimmy, are on their way to Halifax which they hope to reach before the week-end. When they reach their destination they will have hitch-hiked 4,000 miles. Mrs. Travis is making the journey to rejoin her sons, all of whom live and work in Halifax. Mrs. Travis made the trip last year in a 23-year-old car but believed she would see more by foot than by car. One thing is sure, however, she and Jimmy don't plan to make the return trip on foot.

Mean Horses Have Place In Rodeo World

EDMONTON,— (CP)—There's one thing about horses that can't be said for humans, says Herman Linder. The really bad ones have a use.

They end up with careers as bucking stock in rodeos.

And rodeo producer Linder of Cardston, Alta., is a man who knows all about mean horses.

He's been in the rodeo business since 1924 when, at the age of 17, he won top money at the Cardston Stampede.

Linder says cowboy life is pretty much a gamble. Most are lucky if they make $2,000 or $3,000 a year—not counting expenses—although about 15 cowboys in the world make more than $20,000 a year and a few more win $10,000 to $20,000.

One Of Luckier Ones

One of the luckier ones, Mr. Linder hung up his chaps and spurs in 1939 and has been ranching in southern Alberta and judging and producing stampedes since then.

He says he got out of the broncho riding life with "nothing more" than a smashed knee and a chipped spine.

"A man is seldom killed by a horse," says Mr. Linder. "The Brahma Bulls are responsible for most rodeo deaths."

Brahma Bulls are imported from California. The bucking animals are ridden one day, then rest for two days to get back in shape.

"Like horses," Mr. Linder says, "It's only the mean ones that are used.

"But they are really mean."

Complete Talks

LONDON, July 19—(AP)—The Foreign Office said Wednesday that American, Canadian and British experts had completed talks on ways to protect secret information about atomic research. The meetings, a continuation of conferences held by the three countries in Washington last year, ended Friday.

Drought-Ridden Spain Poses Problem For Franco

By HENRY BUCKLEY

MADRID, (Reuters)—Special seasonal unemployment is one of the biggest headaches in the olive - growing area Southern Spain.

General Franco himself, during a recent 1,000-mile tour of sunny Andalusia—pleasant in winter but known as the "Frying Pan of Spain" in summer—described the problem as "terrifying."

The seasonal unemployment is a result of the concentration on one particular crop—the olive.

The situation in the Province of Jaen, which comprises the olive oil bank of Spain and contains a substantial part of Spain's 5,000,000 acres of olive groves, has been critical for months past.

Drought ruined both olive and cereal crops last year. But even in normal years, Jaen has an unemployment figure of 30 per cent of the working population during half the year.

There has been a steady drift of the population northward.

Drainage System

In the La Carolina-Linares area of Jaen an elaborate drainage system is being installed by the state to take water away from land where many lead mines exist. It is hoped that in three years lead production will have increased by 125,000 tons. At present, lack of modern machinery and the worked-out condition of the mines makes lead-mining unremunerative in this part of Spain, despite high world prices.

Experts commenting of the far reaching problems of Andalusia and Estremadura, the agrarian region lying near Portugal, consider that the basic problem is how to bring some 2,000,000 casual agricultural workers into a state of permanent employment with a living standard equal to that of the agrarian and industrial worker in the centre and north of Spain.

The experts say electricity production must be stepped up in the south and light industries established to provide other work for the peasant in the slack seasons—as Swiss famers often do watchmaking jobs in winter.

Irrigation schemes need speeding up. Absentee-landlordism is a brake on progress though the high prices of oils and cereals has improved this situation, because landlords are taking more interest in their farms. Even so, there are many estates owned by aristocratic families living in Madrid or other towns who rarely, if ever, visit the lands they own and which are often left for decades without improvements or care.

But the major problem is that of capital.

The government has elaborate plans to modernize and industrialize agrarian Spain. But private enterprise is not co-operative Too often, landowners want only to get money out of the land and will put nothing back.

COOL CUSTOMER—It was a baking hot day in New York and seven-year-old Theresa Rizzzo said "Yummy" as she enjoyed the cooling taste of her watermelon. She figured Dobbin might like some, too, and she was right. Dobbin didn't say "Yummy," but his actions spoke more eloquently than words.

Realising the importance of fresh accessories in keeping her wardrobe bright and new-looking, this young woman has raided her own and her husband's handkerchief boxes for materials. For evening (upper left) she converts a man's white linen handkerchief into a violet-dotted fichu; and, to top a sheath dress, gathers leaf-patterned handkerchiefs (lower left) onto a velvet ribbon to form a capelet. A silk hanky and a ribbon combine to form a perky neck bow (center left); and a man's white handkerchief, folded and teamed with a red velvet rose, adds importance to a suit. A lacy evening handkerchief is the basis for glamorous apron (upper right); and four bandanas are used to make casual apron (lower right).

Handkerchiefs New Accessories For Dress

American fathers, husbands and big brothers have so frequently had their wardrobes invaded by the women of the family that they're almost accustomed to having their worn-out trousers and discarded ties re-appear as feminine apparel.

This time, however, they're in for a greater shock: their handkerchiefs are being snitched.

There are innumerable costume-brighteners that can be worked out, starting with a simple handkerchief or two. Of these, two of the easiest to work out require only a brief stop at a man's handkerchief counter and another at a fake flower department before beginning minor needlework.

For the first, a king-sized fichu to add a fresh look to an old evening gown, choose a large white linen handkerchief. Fold it in half diagonally, and then baste on dainty artificial violets in a casual scatter pattern. The result is a demure accessary for your shoulders that harks back to ante-bellum days.

With a second large white man's handkerchief, you can create a smart neck-piece for wear with your favorite suit. This time, the handkerchief is folded several times over until it's the width you desire.

Cross the ends, and after securing them, flare them out a bit to form a striking background for a large red rose, or another flower more suited to your taste.

The sportsman's or workingman's favorite, a bright gaily-patterned bandana, is the inspiration for an apron that's just right for backyard barbeques or picnic suppers. You'll need four of them, two red and two blue, stitched together in checkerboard fashion.

Unless you're quite tall, you'll need to turn the top of the apron down in a wide hem to make it the correct length. Through this hem run a dog leash. Cross the leash in back, then bring the two ends around the front to secure to apron.

Another apron, this one strictly for glamor, can be fashioned from a lacy evening handkerchief. Gather one edge of the handkerchief onto a wide velvet ribbon and tie it around your waist with a large, perky bow in back.

From new autumn-colored leaf-shaped handkerchiefs which you may have added to your own collection, you can easily devise a double-duty accessory for daytime or evening wear. For a jabot for your suit, begin by picking up a handkerchief exactly in its centre.

Allow the ends to fall as they will. Attach this to a narrow velvet ribbon, which ties around your neck. A second leaf handkerchief, sewed on in similar fashion, will complete this neck accessory. Anchor folds, when you're ready to wear it, with a bar pin or brooch.

For an attention-getting evening capelet, make use of the same type leaf pattern handkerchiefs, gathering a number of them this time onto a velvet ribbon, spacing them evenly to fall in graceful folds about your shoulders. A large glitter pin will highlight the effect like a drop of dew on an autumn leaf.

A final trick involves a length of piquoted taffeta ribbon and your favorite silk hanky. Tie the end of the ribbon to one corner of the handkerchief, then bring the ends around to the front and knot them into a loose bow. Color and textural contrasts make this an eye-catching accessory.

BLACK AND WHITE

The lure of well-handled black and white is enjoyed by no other color combination. It is well-expressed in a handsome suit dress, the slim skirt of crisp black linen, the full, flaring tunic of white silk organdie. Tiny collar, black patent eather buttons to the hem, and a broad black patent leather belt complete the black and white symphony.

Aprons In Dress For Fall

By GAIL DUGAS

NEW YORK (NEA)— The sheath dress, dominant for daytime this past season, is still with us for fall But it's a sheath with a difference. Aprons bell out from the stemlike slimness of the new sheath; puffs and rounded hips appear; there are many curved-away overskirts and swooping side panels.

The color gray and the fabric jersey are both mounting in daytime dress importance for autumn. Jersey is no longer quite so casual. It appears in afternoon dresses and even in some short dinner gowns.

Generally, skirts for daytime dresses are wider this fall and often are lined from waist to hem with taffeta, buckram or organdie. Or, crinoline is used either in the hip area or at the hem only. These linings give skirts the fashionable, thick look and make the wearing of a skirt on a cold day, with a short wool or fur jacket, entirely practicable.

The apron dress (left) as done by Mollie Parnis in beige wool has the sheath look. Actually, the basic dress is reed-like. The apron, falling in soft pleats from the waistline, gives an impression of front fullness. It's lined in silk to allow it sufficient weight to hang properly. The dress is belted in black calf. A double-breasted front is closed by small, tailored buttons in black.

The same designer does heather gray jersey (right) with front-flung fullness. Fullness is gathered into the waistline, cinched by a black calf belt. The bodice is smocked and front closing is accomplished with hooks-and-eyes. Collar is narrow and neat; the sleeves are slim. ➡

Fashion Flashes

New ideas in lingerie abound, the majority of them both pretty and practical. Beautiful for wear under sheers is a strapless slip of pleated nylon tricot, the bottom permanently tucked, the top shirred and tucked. Good as a bra-hider, a bra or a blouse.

✧ ✧ ✧

The crisp touch of white linen add so much to simple clothes. Beautiful for a dark dress or suit is a set of two white handkerchief linene "leaves," one placed on either side to form a collar.

✧ ✧ ✧

A multitude of pretty, popular-priced skirts are available this season, mostly in crisp cottons. Sea shell and seaweed motifs in lovely colors on a black waffle pique ground, make up into attractive skirts, nice and full, and with adjustable tab waistband.

✧ ✧ ✧

Two-faced fabrics again appear on many garments, being readied for next season. Charcoal grey on one side and grey-blue plaid on the other is the plot of a new two-faced woollen coat. The soft, rippled collar, the oversized, notched cuffs and huge notched pockets all show the pastel plaid.

✧ ✧ ✧

Twosomes in linen are most intriguing, when well done. With a simple black linen sheath, there is a black polka-dotted white linen coat with big bell sleeves.

GOING DOWN TO SWIM involves a certain necessity for being properly turned out. The suit should be adequate, flattering and quick-drying. It should also have its own cover-up against possible sudden changes in the weather.

A sleek swim suit (left) in virgin wool measures up in every respect. Designer Claire McCardell has made this suit two-piece and brief. One piece is snug-fitting bodice and skirt, fastened with gold clasps from top to bottom at centre back. This piece goes on over swim pants. In wet-sand brown, the suit is banded in yellow-and-red at waist and bodice top. It also has a single shoulder strap in these colors.

A full-length hooded sweater (right) by Frances Sider provides a cover-up on any beach. In bright tangerine virgin wool, it zips all the way; can be worn with other sweaters and slacks. In this instance, it hides a matching, strapless maillot.

Platypus, Wombat Make Popular Australian Toys

Written for The Canadian Press By Margaret Ecker Francis

MELBOURNE, Australia (CP) —A duck-billed platypus, a wombat—or a kookaburra, maybe—would make a cute companion for Johnny or Mary. And if Australia toy manufacturers have their way the strange, likable animals and birds from "Down Under" will become well known in Canadian homes.

When shortages ease and labor is more plentiful these toy friends —the furry kangaroo with her "joey" baby in her pounch and the mouse-like wombat—will be exported so that Canadian youngsters can learn natural history the friendly way.

Maurice Court, managing director of an Australian toy firm, talks of his creations as though they were dear friends. His firm turns out annually 5,000 cute koala bears, made from the skin of the queens—land wallaby (small kangaroos).

The 300,000 other items he manufactures include other Australian animals, including rabbits of all sizes, colors and materials, and fluffy white lambs. The rabbits and lambs are very popular with Australian children who are familiar with them in the natural state.

Introduces Family

Designer Marjorie Davenport, who strives for accuracy in all her animals, introduced some of the family.

The wombat turned out to be a cuddly brown animal, like a very large mouse, with slanted, inquisite eyes. The kookaburra, a familiar Australian bird, brown and white, was accurately depicted even to the flashes of blue on wings and head.

The platypus was a flat, floppy creature in soft brown fur fabric with long black leather bill and flippers. The characteristic ridge of fur was even included across its nose.

There were penguins, too, another zoo favorite in Australia.

Prying Inspectors Anger Housewives

LONDON (CP)—The Scottish Housewives League, long active in the campaign against rising living costs, has lodged a protest with the government about inspectors "prowling" throughout the country and snooping into private cupboards."

A delegation at a private meeting here with members of parliament, urged steps be taken immediately to put an end to the practice.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pattullo, spokesman for the delegation, charged that a plan was afoot to keep Britain short of food, a situation recognized in Scotland as Sovietization by stealth.

"To add insult to injury, our members have been subjected for months to the indignity of snoopers barging into our homes," she said. "They go into our cupboards, weigh the food they find and then ask for the details of the family menus.

"It's high time this nonsense ended," she added.

Swim Club Opens Port Hope Pool

Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club took time out on the eve of their annual presentation to assist in the ceremony Wednesday evening at Port Hope when a new Lions Club swimming pool was opened there. Ten members of the Club and their coach Mrs. Pansy Forbes made the trip and gave four different numbers which with diving exhibitions by Miss Lois Payne of Toronto constituted the program, announced by Alex Sinclair of Peterborough. The local contingent was greeted by a Lions Club official and welcomed by the president and town officials. After the ceremony they were entertained at the [illegible] the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gifford.

Popular Bride Is Much Feted

Many friends in the city have taken part in the entertainments feting Miss Betty Brown whose wedding to Mr. Robert Grant takes place this Friday at George St. United Church.

Members of Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association and the pupils presented her with a table lamp. Miss Jean Leach, Prince St., entertained when associate teachers presented her with a featherweight iron. Miss Beryl Hart, Swanston Ave., with Miss Marion Pogue as co-hostess entertained members of the Girls' Council, CGIT, who presented a pressure cooker.

Mrs. Madge Lindsay, Bolivar St. entertained at a miscellaneous and pantry shower. Mrs. Fred Brown, Smith township, was hostess for a cup and saucer shower. Mrs. John Brown and Mrs. Lincoln Brown sisters-in-law, entertained jointly at the former's home on Water St. N., with a miscellaneous and linen shower.

Luxurious Furs Offered As Gifts

On her arrival in Canada in September, Princess Elizabeth will be presented with an ermine evening coat, the gift of the Fur Industry of Canada, providing the industry's offer to make her the gift is accepted.

At the same time the offer of this handsome gift was made to the Princess, officials of the Fur Industry invited Lady Alexander, wife of the Governor-General, to accept the gift of a three-quarter length coat of Canadian mink and Madame St. Laurent, wife of the Canadian Prime Minister, to be the recipient of a jacket of Canadian sapphire fox.

Presentation of furs both to Lady Alexander and Madame St. Laurent will be made just before the Royal visit in September.

Fashion Flashes

At home with anything from a plain little daytime gingham to a beautiful ballgown is a sleeveless duster, full-length and full, of permanently stiffened white organdie.

✧ ✧ ✧

Not strictly a fashion hint, this is merely a word of advice. Early fall showings all emphasize the small waist. If you want an easy fitting when it comes to buying clothes next season, be sure that your waist is smartly slim. P.S.—The clothes are going to be handsome.

We know that the fur-wearing season is a long, long way off, but the fur-buying season isn't. During late July the papers will be studded with ads for the autumn fur sales. You'll find beige-colored furs growing in importance. A recent showing starred a greatcoat of blonde otter. A high-rising petal collar, huge turn-back cuffs and enormous patch pockets made style news.

✧ ✧ ✧

Nice finish for a well-cut but simple white dress or suit are pumps and a handbag of black velvet.

Trapper 20 Years Woman Loves Northland

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., (CP) —A red-headed 100-pound bundle of energy, "Curley" Hanson has been doing a man's work for years.

She travelled with a circus, trapped for 20 years, helps run a lake resort, works as a guide—and has loved it all.

Now 44, the five-foot three-inch redhead lives at Candle Lake, 60 miles north of Prince Albert, where she and her husband Conn run a trap line and lake resort.

She has been in the bush country since 1929 when she built a cabin and started trapping. For two years she was the only woman at Candle Lake.

Then she heard a rumor that the police intended to bring her out because they felt the situation was too dangerous for a lone woman.

"I'll die if I have to leave here," she told Conn Hanson, a fellow trapper. "Why don't we get married so I can stay?"

Mr. Hanson likes the idea, too, and they were married in 1929.

Conn now is 70 years old and an old-timer in the district.

"But he's plenty tough yet," his wife says.

Born In Nova Scotia

Curley trapped for 20 years until conservation rules allowed only one member of a family to trap. However, she still travels with her husband, looks after camp and chops wood while Conn tends the trapline.

Born in Lunenburg, NS. she was in a missionary girls' school from 13 to 20 years where, she says, she learned "everything but how to live."

Starting with a 10-month jaunt with a circus, she's been trying to remedy that ever since.

Though she hates dresses and wears slacks or shorts, Curley gets plenty of women's work to do. She cleans 10 cabins at the resort, and last year canned more than 500 quarts of fruit and vegetables from her garden.

And she loves Candle Lake. "It's the only place I ever want to live," she says.

"I couldn't live away from the trees and water. I'd just die if I was transplanted."

TEETH FOR TWO—Felicitas von Sendenhorst, 20-year-old Hunter College zoology student, gets an eye-tooth view of Mlle. Elle at Equeduct. The pretty veterinarian-to-be spends several mornings a week examining ailing thoroughbreds. The horses don't seem to mind a bit. Who would?

Shirley Langdon, Don Grant Marry In Lindsay Church

The wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Lindsay, of Shirley Margaret Langdon and Mr. Donald Lewis Grant, both of Peterborough. Rector, the Rev. H. Hesketh, officiated.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Langdon of Lindsay and the groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawis A. Grant of Peterborough.

Lovely floral setting for the ceremony was of lilies, gladioli, carnations and snapdragon. The wedding march was played by organist Mr. Morley Coombs and during the signing of the register he played "Because."

White slipper satin and Chantilly lace fashioned the bride's gown which had a fitted bodice of the lace and the graceful satin skirt with peplum was trimmed with matching lace. Her fingertip veil was caught to a small halo. The bridal bouquet was of beautiful rubrum lilies. Mr. Langdon gave his daughter in marriage.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Alice Trotter of Lindsay and the little flower girl was Marilyn Langdon. Mrs. Trotter wore powder blue sheer and a blue flowered headdress with veil and carried a bouquet of deep pink gladioli. The flower girl's dress was of yellow organdie and she carried a nosegay of mauve gladioli and yellow 'mums.

The groom was attended by his brother-in-law Mr. Floyd Dafoe at Peterborough. Ushers were Jack and William Langdon.

The wedding reception was held at 73 William St., Lindsay. The bride's mother received in a gown of pink net over matching taffeta and she wore a beige straw hat and corsage of gardenias. The groom's mother, also receiving, was gowned in pink nylon corduroy and wore navy accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant left later for Toronto from where they will fly to New York city for their honeymoon. The bride was wearing a pale yellow suit and a small rust hat and had green accessories.

On return they will live at 767 Water St.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

New Roaster Makes Cooking Easy

The arrival of Red Rose's letter asking for information regarding her electric roaster, and the arrival of my new electric roaster just about coincided.

I have put the roaster to heavy use making cakes (yes—cakes!) oven dinners, pies and oven-canning cherries.

I think that it is not exaggerating to say that the portable electric roaster will satisfactorily bake anything your stove oven will.

It seemed particularly adapted to oven canning, for the big "inset" pan conveniently held the water needed for steam and the rack supported the jars. The lid is well-domed and the roaster accommodates quart jars.

Since summer cottagers are giving this beautiful piece of electrical equipment a rush right now its possibilities for whole meal oven dinners should be emphasized.

Electric Roaster Dinner No. 1

Because I had on hand a 2½ lb piece of cohoe salmon and some old potatoes that had to be used up, I wrapped the salmon in a double thickness of wet parchment paper and placed it on a small pyrex pie plate. I made a big dish of scalloped potatoes. I set the heat control dial at 400 deg. Fahr. to get the milk on the potatoes bubbling, then I put the fish in beside it, and in 10 minutes reduced the heat to 350 deg. Fahr. After this they were both cooked in 1 hour.

Electric Roaster Dinner No. 2

Meat loaf and a casserole of mixed carrot dice, canned limas and kernel corn, and a dish of shredded beets, which were added later, made one of the most interesting and colourful meals I have served from the roaster to date. I used equal parts of the carrots, limas and corn and added milk until I could just see it below the surface of the vegetable. I sprinkled it with salt and pepper and dotted it with butter and covered it snugly and let it soak up that milk juice for about 45 minutes. The meat loaf took a little longer. The beets I shredded raw and put in a small casserole with ¼ cup boiling water and 2 tablespoons butter and generous shake of salt and pepper. These were covered well too—but only needed 20 minutes for the temperature was 375 deg. Fahr. throughout. This is the dinner that I mentioned in last Tuesday's column that we carried, boiling hot, in the car to our favourite picnic spot.

Royal Anne Cherry Pie

Pit 4 cups sweet cherries and to them add 1 cup sugar and 3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca. Let this stand while you make your best pastry. Make a double crust pie, sealing edges well. Sprinkle top with sugar. Bake in electric roaster standing pie on lowest rack, at 500 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. to finish baking, when juice will bubble a little through the gashes you made in the crust, and cherries will be tender—about 1 hour and 10 minutes in all.

Use any favourite recipe for cake to bake in electric roaster but stand the cake on the lowest level of the oven rack to insure maximum rise and even browning.

Write to me if you would like more ideas for using your electric roaster oven. I'l have more to tell you later on as I experiment with it further.

Full Skirts Make News For Smartness

by GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Appearing shoulder-to-shoulder with the slim-lined suits this Fall are those with very full skirts that blossom from a nipped-in-waist. Though the emphasis remains on the arched hipline and the narrow skirt, the full skirt definitely has arrived.

The jacket of the full-skirted suit generally is short. And the skirt itself may hang in circular gores and may be lined in taffeta, both to give it weight and to make it whisper and rustle in motion.

Even with this full skirt, the jacket with the arched hipline is used. But this hipline isn't padded in any suit. It's slightly stiffened and gently rounded to stand away from the figure.

Suits appear in brilliant black broadcloth, in jewel-colored tweeds, in bright velvet, in silky gabardine. The length of the suit skirt is sticking at 13 or 14 inches, in conformance with the personal likes of the wearer.

Copper-colored wool, fashioned by Adele Simpson into a slim suit, has the hipline with the easy arching. The waistline is tiny, collar is notched, cuffs flare away from straight sleeves. There is one pleat at centre back of the skirt, to allow ease in walking.

This arched hipline shows again in a suit called the "Jubilee" in honor of the 2000th birthday of the city of Paris. Here, a rust velvet jacket is buttoned from a small shawl collar to a small waist. Cuffs are flaring. The skirt is straight, in a jewel-tone muted plaid wool.

This designer also does a wool town suit in birdseye yellow with tailored, notched collar and oblique side front closing. This closing has self-buttons. Cuffs are flared; there is a single, triangular patch pocket.

DOROTHY DIX

Woman Regrets Pleasures Missed Through Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young married woman, mother of a family. Being young and attractive, I still crave the excitement missed by marrying young. I find myself thinking about what I could do if I were not tied down. I have desires for trips that are impossible, for clothes I cannot have and entertainment I long for.

The daily humdrum routine is getting nerve-racking and my husband and children are suffering over my discontent. I find myself attracted to a neighbor who is very good looking and owns a nice car. I flirt a little, and so does he. I know I am wrong, but the temptation is great. How can I settle down? I am losing all feeling for my husband and as far as I am concerned he just represents a paycheck to look forward to each week. PEGGY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I am printing your letter not so much in hope that I can help you (though I will try), as for the possibility that it may prove enlightening to teen-agers contemplating marriage.

Your Letter Typical

This letter is representative of dozens that come to my desk each week from young women 19, 20 or 21 years old with two or three children, bewailing their state. Many are already divorced, others contemplate separation, and all year for the fun, pretty clothes and carefree pleasure they gave up for matrimony. That there are successful teen-age marriages cannot be denied, but the overwhelming majority of youngsters who marry in their teens soon find the restriction and responsibility too much for their adolescent shoulders.

Now the gilt has worn off the wedding ring and Peggy longs to recapture the freedom of youth. It can't be done, my dear. Wilfully, and probably against the wishes of your parents, you embarked on the career of wife and mother, from which there is no turning back. You are standing squarely in the present, facing the future. Looking back may not turn you to salt, as it did to Lot's wife, but it will make you a cheap, tawdry individual unworthy of your husband's love, your children's devotion and your own self-respect.

Look at the present and the future with hope and not despair. You have plenty of things to make you happy, and there's no reason why your existence should be humdrum simply because it lacks dances every night. You have a devoted husband, loving children and a home to care for. Nothing humdrum about any of this! Raising a happy, healthy, contented family is a real job, one that should offer a challenge.

Seek the companionship of other young wives—not to weep on their shoulders but to seek ways of making your community a better place for you and your family. Children grow up very quickly, and yours will be on their own while you are still young. Then you will make up for all the lost pleasures with others equally exciting. You and your husband will have the trips that now seem impossible, nice clothes will be available and there will be more pleasures than you can possibly enjoy.

Revise your own outlook on life, and above all, stop this infantile yearning over a good-looking neighbor. You're full of self-pity now because you married too young! Don't court disaster by making additional mistakes that will be incurable.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Can or will a woman change? I am 53 years old and have a fair income. I have been going with a woman, 46 years of age, who has been three years she has been accepting money regularly from a man considerably older than she. She married and divorced three times. I have recently learned that for has a son, 27 years old, who has been married and divorced twice. He now lives with his mother, and works part time. Could such a woman develop into a reliable and trustworthy wife? E. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Far be it from me to condemn any woman to the extent of declaring she is beyond redemption on this earth, but you have sure picked yourself as feckless a piece of femininity as I have ever encountered. Any woman who has survived three divorces goes down in my book as a bad matrimonial risk for any steady male.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A girl who has always been my best friend seems to have suddenly gone crazy over my husband. She calls him pet names, puts her arms around him, jumps on his knee whenever he sits down and pretends that he is in love with her. He seems embarrassed. He has always been a good and faithful husband and I don't believe that he likes all of this carrying-on. What shall I do? MRS. B. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Show the woman the door and tell her it is hands off of your husband. She bodes you no good.

What's Right?

You keep referring to your husband in a conversation.

WRONG: Keep referring to him as "He."

RIGHT: Refer to him as "Jim" or "my hubsand."

KILLED IN KOREA—Maj. J. L. Y. Dube, 33, of Quebec City, was killed in Korea when a revolver discharged accidentally. Maj. Dube only recently was appointed second-in-command of the 2nd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, to succeed Maj. J. P. L. Gosselin, killed in action earlier this month.

Holstein Club Enjoy Record, Honor Fieldman

Warning rain drops hastened the ending of the meeting Wednesday night at Norman McConkey's Lifloc Farm in tribute to the world achievement of the Holstein cow, Lifloc Macabar Re-Echo, which he sold some months ago to Roman Brothers of King, Ont.

In their herd she joined her equally famous world title bearing dam, Re-Echo Mae Burke, which John L. Houck of Brampton, also sold to the Romans. Nearly three hundred people attended the twilight event of the Peterborough Holstein Club. Most of them were dairy cattle producers, but there were also representatives of the beef breeds, with some of the local townspeople.

Ormiston Retires

The occasion also marked the retirement of Roy Ormiston who has been Central Ontario fieldman for the last seven years, and the introduction of his successor, Gerald Nelson of Seymour township.

Holstein men of six counties presented Mr. Ormiston with a Westminster chimes clock, and George W. Henry of Todmorden, making the presentation, remarked that it would be special useful to Mr. Ormiston in the home he is about to create by marriage.

"Roy did a grand job," Mr. Henry said, "and we know that he will continue to be as greatly interested as ever in Holstein cattle now that he is going to give all his time to a herd of his own. We wish him every success.

Peterborough Holstein Club paid their compliments to Mr. and Mrs. McConkey with gifts of a leather brief case to the owner of Lifloc, and a floor lamp to Mrs. McConkey. These presentations, together with a box of cigars for Grandpa McConkey, were made by Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative.

Rain Docks Speech

Mr. Paterson said he had prepared a speech which he had considered suitable for the occasion, but the advance corps of rain drops advised him to forget his fine sentences.

Vern Campbell was chairman, the main speaker was George Clemons of Brantford, secretary of the Canadian Holstein Friesian Association. Ald. P. J. Anglesey conveyed the congratulations of Mayor Swanston to his Ashburnham neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. McConkey.

Among others present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Greenwood of Maple; James T. Brown of Newcastle, director of the Holstein Association; Ray Taylor, selective registration inspector for the federal Department of Agriculture; A. L. Stagg of Oakville Exporters; Wm. J. Murphy of Lindsay; John L. Houck of Brampton and his son Don Houck.

Lifloc premises looked neat for the meeting which brought out many women, with junior farmers prominent. The herd was displayed in the stables and was fit for show ring appearance.

Judging Competitions

Mr. Nelson and Mrs. Ormiston conducted competitions in judging two classes of cows.

In the words of Ald. Anglesey everything the Holstein breeders undertake turns out well. He recalled the dinner earlier in the year at which the Holstein Club put on the most outstanding dinner at Club Aragon, Peterborough had ever seen.

Incidental entertainment was provided by Herb Mullins and Ford Jarvis, violin and guitar.

George Clemons said the Holstein Club membership was not so large in Peterborough as in many other counties of Ontario, but they had a notable record of accomplishments, and everything about the Lifloc twilight meeting bore that same stamp of quality and effort.

In a brief business talk, Mr. Clemons said sales and transfers within the breed were about at the level of a year ago, and were holding up well. He made a strong appeal to Holstein people to adopt registration of production. Actual cost of this service to the individual farmer was estimated at $115 a year, and all he had to pay was five dollars.

Opportunity To Cull

Herd owners had a great opportunity of culling their cattle, keeping the milk producers and selling the others at the attractive beef prices. He also mentioned with approval the policy of those breeders were keeping bulls for building up their own types for [illegible] going into artificial breeding. Mr. Clemons recommended the artificial plan to most farmers, but there was still the place for the specialist and for the proving of bulls for the greater use that has expanded for them and their owners under the artificial system.

The meeting closed with refreshments served indoors by the women of the Holstein Club.

A. E. Ellis Funeral

The funeral for Albert Edward Ellis, 104 Princess St., who died Monday, was held Friday from the Comstock funeral home. The Rev. M. P. Poole of All Saints' Anglican Church conducted the service. The pallbearers, who were all members of Otonabee Lodge 313, were: Richard Ford, Andrew Brotherstone, Joseph Emery, Robert Murduff, Cecil Cowie, R. J. Craig. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Call Chief Officials In Pakistan Row

KARACHI, Pakistan, July 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan today summoned the chief ministers of Pakistan's five provinces to discuss the "situation arising out of the concentration of Indian troops on the Pakistan border."

Liaquat Ali charged Sunday that 90 per cent of the Indian army was concentrated on his country's borders and constituted a threat to peace.

India's Prime Minister Nehru answered Wednesday that Indian troops deployed near Pakistan were for defence only and were not a threat to Pakistan or international peace.

Liaquat Ali has already conferred with the provincial governors and army area commanders on the situation and has demanded that Nehru withdraw Indian troops from the border areas.

Their views were contained in a statement made public by representative John Williams (Dem.-Miss.)

Williams said an estimated 100 house members who are war veterans agreed that the following provisions should be included in any armistice in Korea.

"2. Immediate return of all prisoners of the United States and other Allied nations, with strict accounting for all who have perished since being taken prisoners by the Reds.

"Unification of Korea, looking toward elections to establish a free and democratic regime.

"4. Unrestricted inspection by United Nations forces throughout all Korea, to insure thede will be no build-up of Red power to threaten peace and security of the area again."

Dept. Begins Survey Of 2 PC Milk Sale

TORONTO, Juy 19 (CP)—The agriculture department today began a survey that may lead to the sale of two-per-cent milk in Ontario.

Acting on instructions of Agriculture Minister Kennedy, dairy commissioner Everett Biggs is making an investigation into the plan. Milk now sold in Ontario has a 3.4-per-cent butterfat content.

"If the doctors are right in saying that two-per-cent milk is better than 3.4 as far as children are concerned, why should we not take the extra butterfat and turn it into butter which is in short supply," Mr. Kennedy said. "We are going to look into the matter."

Mr. Biggs will discuss the proposal with producers, distributors and processors.

Deny Strife Ties Up Ships

MONTREAL, July 19 (CP)—An official of the Hall Corporation of Canada today said none of the company's 13 ships are tied up by the strike of the Seafarers' International Union (AFL).

The official said one of the corporation's ships is in dock at Kingston, but it is waiting orders and has no connection with the tie-up of SIU-manned ships in some United States ports. Another vessel the Walter B. Reynolds, has left Prescott, and now is near Kingston.

The Walter B. Reynolds originally was strike-bound in Ogdensburg, NY, but arrived in Prescott Wednesday night manned by a skeleton crew. It was taken over by 10 new seamen rushed there from Montreal.

"We have always had the most pleasant labor relations. Our ships are manned by members of the National Maritime Federation with whom we have labor contracts. There is no doubt that the Searfarers' International Union is making an effort to organize among our men but that is not uncommon."

The official could give no details of the tie-up of the Walter B. Reynolds in Ogdensburg Wednesday.

Chung Il Kwun.

Most of the money went to people who were not members of the corps, now disbanded.

Experts Extract WaxFrom Lignite

SASKATOON — (AP) — Researchers at the University of Saskatchewan are extracting wax from the province's lignite.

Professors R. L. Eager and S. D. Cavers, with graduate-student N. R. Dunne, have been able to extract the wax using a mixture of organic liquids as solvents.

They have been able to get 3½ to four per cent of wax per weight of coal. It is not expected that extraction of the wax will lessen the qualities of the coal for fuel.

Their "test tube" research is now being advanced one stage further.

They must determine whether it is economically feasible to extract the wax from the coal in commercial quantities.

The project was started a year ago under the auspices of the Saskatchewan Research Council with the object of finding new uses for lignite found in the southern part of the province.

Until the Second World War, Germany supplied much of the world with wax from lignite. The wax was used in shoe and floor polishes, rubber extender, insulator, in inks and for leather dressings.

The wax is dark brown or black, hard and brittle, and splinters and breaks into uneven pieces.

Decide To Veto Sex Offenders' Law

SACRAMENTO, Calif., July 19 (AP)—The California legislature's unique proposal to let sex offenders against children choose between life in prison or surgery—and freedom—will be vetoed.

Governor Earl Warren listened to objections to the castration provisions from a panel of experts, then announced Tuesday:

"In view of the testimony, I would feel I would be leaving the public unprotected if I signed this bill."

The bill had two main proposals —to permit sex criminals to be locked up for life and to give those who molest children under 14 the option of life imprisonment or submitting to castration and three years of study by doctors.

The Cooey Machine and Arms have laid off 39 employees for an indefinite period due to a general slump in business. The company said that the tax on guns which they manufacture has not helped the situation any, another depressing factor is the shortage of steel.

Ask 50 Nations Sign Treaty

WASHINGTON, July 20. (AP)—The United States today invited 50 nations to meet in San Francisco, Sept. 4, to complete and sign a peace treaty with Japan. The invitations were accompanied by copies of a treaty draft jointly sponsored by the United States and Britain. The invitations specified the conference would be held "on the terms of" that draft. Russia was among the countries invited but officials here regarded it as virtually certain that Moscow would reject the bid. The Soviet Union has sharply criticized not only some parts of the proposed treaty but also the way it was drawn up.

Russia had wanted a drafting system which would give it a veto over treaty provisions.

The treaty, as drafted, does not recognize Russia's possession of the Kurile Islands or the south half of Sakhalin taken from Japan after the Second World War.

The official announcement reminded each country that the peace treaty text had been circulated to all prior to issuance of the conference bids and added:

"It is believed that the enclosed draft treaty and declarations combine and reconcile, as far as is practicable, the point of view of all the allied powers which were at war with Japan and will establish, with Japan, a just and durable peace."

Sending 300 Radar Sets To Atlantic Pact Lands

OTTAWA, July 20. (CP)—Canada today announced her latest contribution to Europe to help build a wall against Communism—300 radar sets that will be sent to six countries to detect any enemy planes or guided missles that may come their way. They will be delivered free in 1952 to the United Kingdom, Belgium, The Netherlands, Norway, Denmark and Italy as Atlantic Pact allies of Canada. Manufacture of them has already started. Officials said that with this order Canada has largely committed the $365,000,000 Parliament has voted for mutual aid to Europe under the Atlantic Pact setup. A further large vote is expected to be sought by the Government within the next year.

The defence department announcement of the radar set contribution said nothing about their cost or character and officials declined to elaborate. The only hint was that the sets "are of a Second World War pattern used as an early warning against planes and air missiles."

Special Funds

Chances are they are the mobile, caravan-like units that moved around England during the war, their rotating detecting apparatus forever searching the air for enemy planes or missiles.

Only mention of cost was that the sets will be financed out of funds parliament has appropriated for mutual aid to Europe.

The bulk of this money has been committed to cover costs of Atlantic Pact air training here, of replacing arms sent to Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg and soon to Italy with US-type arms, costs of building the radar sets and other equipment.

One of Canada's latest offers is to ship 180 medium-artillery 155 mm. howitzers to Europe. Other steps are being negotiated as well.

The first radar sets should be available next January. The last of the 300 should go to Europe by the end of 1952.

Police Capture Insane Killers

PENETANGUISHENE, July 20. (CP)—Two criminally insane killers from the Ontario Mental Hospital were captured late Thursday night by a posse of 10 guards with dogs.

The two, Max von Matt, 44, of Port Arthur and Louis Lee, 61, of Matheson, Ont., were flushed from their hiding place in the bush a half-mile from the hospital from which they escaped seven hours and 10 minutes earlier.

Both had been sent to the hospital after being charged with murder and declared insane.

Von Matt was reported to have struck and killed his daughter's boy friend.

They escaped shortly after three o'clock Thursday afternoon when they broke away from a group working in a hospital hayfield.

Provincial police officials in Toronto said neither now was considered dangerous.

Lee has been in custody 16 years, Von Matt five years.

5 Carloads Of Police Capture Holdup Pair

TORONTO, July 20 —(CP)—Two Windsor men, who police said slugged and robbed the assistant manager of the National Casket Company of $6,000 as he returned from a bank, today were captured in a downtown Toronto park minutes after the holdup.

Albert Cahill, 20, and Roy Johnson, 20, were charged with armed robbery.

Several laborers working nearby helped police nab one of the suspects, who opened his shirt-front and let rolls of bills fall out when police arrested him.

Police said $3,991.13 was recovered.

The thugs held up Roy E. Stewart as he returned from a bank with the payroll. They stuck a gun in his back, kicked him in

Trailer Cut In Half When Struck By Train

WINCHESTER, Ont., July 20—Two men escaped uninjured today when a fast Toronto-Montreal passenger train literally cut in two the big tractor-trailer in which they were driving.

Driver of the truck was Gerry Drouin, 30, of Ottawa, who had picked up a hitch hiker, Charles Gervin of Goderich. Drouin said he saw the train coming but apparently misjudged its speed. The tractor part of the vehicle had just crossed the tracks when the train crashed into the front of the trailer.

The front of the locomotive was badly damaged and the train was held up until another engine was sent from Ottawa.

US Starts Rebuilding Air Fields in Greenland

WASHINGTON, July 20. (AP)—American military and civilian workers have started rebuilding some vitally-important Second World War air fields in Greenland, along the top-of-the-world bomber routes from Russia.

Equipment, supplies and construction workers started moving to Greenland several weeks ago, it was learned today.

Actual construction work at the Greenland bases apparently is being carried on by private firms under contracts with the army engineers and air force.

The 6,500-foot runway at Narsarssuak and the smaller strips at three other bases used by the US during the Second World War would be too short for modern jet fighter or bomber aircraft or for B-36 bombers taking off with full load of fuel and bombs. The same situation would prevail in Iceland, where the US recently began re-use of some wartime bases.

New construction work at Greenland bases obviously will include lengthening of runways to enable present-day and future planes and big transports to fly into and out of the Arctic fields.

American return to the Greenland and Iceland bases was made possible by the conclusion, earlier this year, of long negotiations with the governments of Denmark, which owns Greenland, and of Iceland.

Access to the Greenland and Iceland bases would be needed critically by the United States for both defensive and offensive warfare.

Greenland is at approximately the half-way point on the 4,000 mile air route between Murmansk area of Russia and New York City. Similarly, almost any of the great port or industrial cities of the United States would be at the southern terminus of such a bomber route.

Bad Weather Postpones Truce Talks

Flash Flood Blocks Kaesong Highway, Will Meet Saturday

MUNSAN, Korea, July 20. (AP)—The Korean armistice talks, focus of world hopes for peace, took a back seat today to the weather. A flash flood turned a creek 10 miles south of the Kaesong conference site into a raging torrent and barred jeeps carrying United Nations delegates to the truce city.

Bad weather also grounded the helicopters in which UN delegates usually travel the 14 miles to Kaesong. The eighth session between UN and Communist teams—generally regarded as crucial in this first phase of the peace talks—was postponed until 10 a.m. Saturday (8 p.m. EDT, Friday).

A single major issue bars agreement on an agenda which would permit the armistice talks to move into the second phase.

While there has been official silence at the UN advance camp here, both Communist and high United States sources have made clear that the knot was tied by Red demands for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea.

Stress Theme

Communist radios in Pyongyang, the Red Korean capital, Peiping and Moscow have dinned this theme.

And in Washington US State Secretary Dean Acheson said a UN force "must remain in Korea until a genuine peace has been firmly established."

Acheson in a statement confirmed that "the Communist delegation at Kaesong has raised the question of the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Korea in connection with an armistice." He added:

"The United Nations command delegation has stated that it cannot go into this question, which is political. . . and can only be settled by the United Nations and the governments concerned."

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander, returned to Korea Thursday from Tokyo after the Kaesong meeting broke up so abruptly. He flew to Tokyo Thursday night.

No Progress

UN spokesman told correspondents after the close of Thursday's brief seventh "no progress" session:

"I think we will come to an agreement (at the next meeting) or there will be an air of finality about the disagreement."

The fact that only one issue bars an acceptable agenda indicated that the two delegations had found agreement on such questions as the significance of parallel 38 separating North and South Korea; exchange of prisoners; creation of a buffer zone, effective time of a cease-fire order, and possibly the supervision of enemy territory by neutral groups during the cease-fire.

The first shock was registered at 4:52:14 p.m. EDT and the second at 5:01:06 p.m. The Rev. Joseph Lynch, seismologist, estimated the distance at 4,500 miles from New York. The direction was undetermined.

In Cleveland, however, Father Henry F. Birkenhauer of John Carroll University said he believed the tremor was in the general area of the Aleutian Islands.

He estimated the distance as 4,200 miles northwest of Cleveland. The John Carroll seismograph recorded the shocks at 4:51:45 and 5:00:10 p.m. EDT.

New Floods In India

CALCUTTA, India, July 20—(Reuters)—Assam's new flood tide today covered 700 square miles of rich rice and jute land leaving many villages marooned.

More than 300 farming villages in the region were under water.

The Brahmaputra River and its tributaries went on the rampage early this morning after a season of heavy flooding.

Elephant Troubles

LONDON, July 20. (Reuters)—London Zoo, stricken with elephant troubles, averted its third major crisis in 10 days today by issuing the order "No Buns For Dicksi." Dicksi, 10-foot-tall African elephant, is ill with stomach trouble. The public were allowed to see but not fed her. Ten days ago, Rajah, an elephant from Ceylon, was shot after injuring a keeper. Last Tuesday Rajah's mate, Ranee, was found dead from a stomach ailment.

Levees Crumple As Flood Nears St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, July 20 (AP). — The untameable Missouri river headed toward a crest near its juncture with the swollen Mississippi today, crumbling protective levees in its drive toward St Louis.

Army engineers predicted that all dikes at the confluence of the two great rivers would be swept away within the next 48 hours.

St. Louis and nearby communities expected the highest flood marks since 1844.

Waters of the Missouri and Kansas rivers left wreckage and ruin estimated at $1,000,000,000 across western Missouri and eastern Kansas last week. The Giant clean-up task in those areas was just beginning.

Although the Mississippi is expected to reach 40½ feet at St. Louis Monday, damage in the city probably will be confined mainly to riverfront sections as it was in the 1947 flood.

Only a small part of the city's industry is situated in the vulnerable area.

In Better Shape

The mammoth dikes on down the Mississippi from St. Louis are reported in better condition than they were in 1947, when the waters went to 40.2 feet here. Army engineers say they are expected to hold.

St. Louisians were urged to go sparingly on water. Rising waters have halted trains which supply the city's two pumping plants — one on the Missouri and the other on the mississippi—with coal and chemicals.

A small levee collapsed on the Missouri and water poured over the top of another, spilling over the Creve Couer area northwest of St. Louis where about 300 persons live. Some residents already had been evacuated and others were being moved out.

One Bridge Left

Only one Missouri River bridge remains in use between Kansas City and St. Charles near the mouth of the stream. Highway department officials were not sure how long it would remain open.

Kaiser's Son Dies In Germany

HECHINGEN, Germany, July 20 (AP)—Imperial Germany's last [illegible] Friederich Wil[illegible] little villa here early today after a long illness. He was 69.

Eldest son of Germany's last Kaiser, Wilhelm II, Prince Wilhelm since the Second World War had lived in near-seclusion here within sight of a hilltop Hohenzollern castle which he could not afford to run.

In the First World War he was in nominal charge—with general staff experts constantly at his elbow—of the German army in the bloody carnage of Verdun. After the heroic French stand had stemmed the German ofensive, he was kicked upstairs to command of an army group.

He followed his abdicating father into exile in Holland, remaining there five years. Allowed back in Germany in 1923, he settled down to managing the vast Hohenzollern estates. Russian occupation after the Second World War took most of them from him.

The crown prince, who was a direct descendant of Queen Victoria, occasionally received foreign guests in his last years and dwelt on his favorite topic—how much better off Germany would have been if the Hohenzollern monarchy had not been deposed in 1918.

Three Killed As Train Strikes Car

10 Children Left Fatherless In Schomberg Crash

SCHOMBERG, Ont., July 20. (CP)—Three Schomberg residents were killed early today in a midnight level crossing collision between a freight train and an automobile.

Dead are: Jack Piercy, 26, Grant Brown, 26 and Mervin Houghton, 30.

Ten children were left fatherless by the crash. All three victims were married and Piercy and Houghton each had two children and Brown six, ranging from two to eight years.

Police said the accident occurred 15 miles west of here. In December six persons were killed in a car-train crash just 100 yards away on a parallel railway line.

Barrie provincial police said the men had taken a load of meat to Tottenham, nine miles from here, and had returned by way of Beeton to pick up parts for Houghton's garage.

William Stephenson, Beeton section foreman, said the freight train and the car met head-on at 12 32 a.m. The car was torn to ribbons.

Schomberg is 25 miles north of Toronto.

OTTAWA, July 20 (CP). — A start will be made by the end of this month on the registration of some 400,000 additional Canadians entitled to federal pensions of $40 a month, beginning Jan. 1 next, it was learned Thursday.

Application forms now are going out to all parts of the country and will be available in post offices July 20. The plan is to make the forms available simultaneously in all parts of Canada.

Under the new program, the federal government will pay pensions of $40 a month to all 70 and over, regardless of means, provided they have lived in Canada for at least 20 years.

US Admiral Holds Talks With Britain

LONDON, July 20 (Reuters)—Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, United States chief of naval operations, arrived here today for talks with British military leaders.

He was expected to discuss results of his Madrid meeting with Gen. Franco, when he was believed to have discussed Spanish participation in western defence and the use of Spanish bases by the US.

Sherman, on his way back to Washington from Madrid and Paris, had luneh today with Lord Pakenham, First Lord of the Admiralty, British chiefs of staff and high army officers.

In Korea Till Peace Secure

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—The United States intends to see that United Nations troops remain in Korea indefinitely after an armistice.

This was made clear by State Secretary Dean Acheson in a statement Thursday night setting forth the reason UN negotiators at Kaesong oppose a Communist proposal for an agreement now on withdrawal of all "foreign forces" from Korea.

The statement bluntly linked the question of withdrawal of forces of the UN side to ultimate proof of Communist good faith in maintaining a Korean peace.

It had the effect, furthermore, of serving emphatic notice on the Reds at a critical point in the Kaesong talks that the issue of troops withdrawal, which had already deadlocked the conference, was one upon which the United States government was neither prepared to back down nor to compromise.

"If there is an effective armistice," Acheson said, " a United Nations force must remain in Korea until a genuine peace has been firmly established and the Korean people have assurance that they can work out their future free from the fear of aggression.

"The size of the United Nations force remaining in Korea will depend upon circumstances and, particularly, upon the faithfullness with which an armistice is carried out."

To the Chinese Communists and Russia Acheson offered assurance that the continued presence of UN forces would constitute "no danger or threat." He declared that the policies of the UN and the "very nature of that organization" provide "entirely adequate guarantees on this point."

On the other hand, he recalled that foreign troops — actually American forces—had been withdrawn from Korea previously and that this action had been followed by Red aggression against South Korea. He added: "The Korean people can be assured that a repetition of this act will not be tolerated."

Powerful Figure In Middle East, New Crisis Feared

CAIRO, July 20. (CP)—King Abdullah of Jordan was assassinated today as he was entering a mosque in Jerusalem. The killing promised new difficulties in the Middle East for Britain, already harried by the Iranian oil crisis. Britain put Abdullah on the Jordan throne after the Second World War and supplied funds to his government and its strong Arab legion. Abdullah, 69, was shot and killed at the entrance of the Aqsa Mosque in the old city of Jerusalem, the British Foreign Office said. The government radio at Amman, in announcing the death of the bearded leader, said Abdullah's second son, 35-year-old Prince Naif, has been named temporarily as Prince Regent. The crown prince, Talial, 40, has been under treatment for a nervous disorder.

Mullahs (Moslem priests) chanted verses of the Mohammedan Koran over the Amman radio in mourning as soon as the news was announced. Friday is the Moslem Sabbath.

The King claimed direct descent from the family of the prophet Mohammed.

The British foreign office said the assassin was identified as Mustafa Shakir. He was said to have been shot dead.

Known Terrorist

Informed British sources said Mustafa Shakir was a known terrorist who had contacts with the ex-Mufti of Jerusalem, now living in Cairo. The ex-Mufti and Abdullah had differed on the conduct of the Palestine war and negotiations with Israel.

Prince Naif already has taken the oath before parliament, Amman radio said.

The Amman radio gave this version of the assassination:

"King Abdullah was on the point of entering the Aqsa Mosque in Jerusalem.

"The killer was hidden behind a door of the Mosque and he opened fire on the king. King Abdullah's guards immediately killed the assassin."

Abdullah's violent death ended a reign marked by strife. The King wore a silver dagger always at his belt but presided over his

4 Mer. Apply As Husbands

VICKSBURG, Mich., July 20 (AP)—Four would-be husbands have answered Mrs. Jean Gregory's pleas for one—"a nice man who can pay my mother's hospital and medical bills."

Saturday, she'll meet three of them here—a mail carrier, an electrician and a factory owner.

But she isn't saying who they are or where or when she'll meet any of the four.

Mrs. Gregory, 27, led her three children into a newspaper office Saturday and told a reporter: "I need a husband."

From there she went on with her story. She was divorced two years ago and added that since then she has been struggling to support her young children, as well as her mother, a cancer victim.

Franco Appoints New Cabinet In Bid To West

MADRID, July 20 (AP).—Generalissimo Francisco Franco appointed a new cabinet Thursday night in a bid for American dollars and closer ties with the non-Communist west.

Highly-placed sources said also that the new cabinet, which is strongly monarchist, would place a king on Spain's throne. The throne has been vacant since Alfonso XIII fled in 1931. Restoration of the monarchy is expected to come only after long and delicate negotiations.

Franco himself remains as chief of state and president of the government.

The shake-up came shortly after the visit to Spain of eight American senators, representing the foreign relations committee, and of Admiral Forrest Sherman, the US navy chief, who was reported to have reached a basic agreement with Franco on American use of Spanish naval and airbases.

Military Reasons

President Truman told his press conference Thursday that the US has somewhat warmed its policy towards Spain mainly for military reasons. Britain and France have announced their opposition to closer US ties with Spain, even though limited to military fields.

In addition to the return of the monarchy, other changes expected to make the regime more acceptable to western public opinion and pave the way for US loans include:

1. Greater freedom of the pre , with liberty to criticize everything except the Roman Catholic

3 Refugees Overpower Russian Crew On Ship

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 20 — (AP). — Three Lithuanian refugees have arrived in Sweden after overpowering the crew of a small Russian ship at sea.

The Lithuanians told police they were fed up with life behind the Iron Curtain and wanted to go to the United States.

The fugilves said they locked up three Russian crew members of the trawler Samsun below decks, took all navigating quipment and escaped in the only lifeboat to Kalmar, Sweden.

The Russians drifted helplessly until they were picked up by a Swedish captain and brought to a Sewdish port.

The Lithuanians are being held by Swedish police at Kalmar pending dketermination of their status.

On Germany

LONDON, July 20 (Reuters).—The United States has proposed that Britain and France meet in Washington to discuss the problem of Germany's contribution to Atlantic defence, a foreign office spokesman said today.

He said Britain still was considering the proposal.

It is apparently aimed at speeding up the long drawn out discussions about the West German contribution to the Atlantic Pact forces.

Washington conference likely would study the report on recent talks in Germany between the West German government and the three western high commissioners. While leaving open the question of whether Germany should or should not take part in Atlantic defence, German military experts put forward certain specific proposals including, it is understood, the suggestion that the over-all German force should number 250,000, organized in units of not less than a division.

Say Gloucesters Seen In Camps In North Korea

KAESONG, Korea, July 20 — (AP)—A North Korean correspondent attending the Korean war cease-fire talks today told Allied correspondents: "Hundreds of survivors of Britain's Royal Gloucestershire Regiment are alive in North Korean prison camps."

The Communist correspondent could give no additional information, except that the troops were prisoners of war in barbed wire enclosures.

The fate of almost all the Gloucestershire men has been a mystery. They were trapped, surrounded and overrun by overwhelming numbers of Chinese Reds in the battle of the Imjin River in western Korean April 23-25.

Found One Survivor

Only 44 of more than 600 men of the regiment's 1st battalion were able to fight their way back to Allied lines. Thirty-three days later Greek troops recaptured the area and discovered one badly wounded survivor, Pte. Lionel Essex, concealed in a hut.

The rest of the men in the battalion have been listed as dead, wounded or missing.

Close examination of the ground where the men fought showed some shallow graves where the Chinese had buried some of the Gloucestershire dead. More bodies were buried on nearby ridges.

But comparatively few dead were recovered at the scene. That suggested many wounded and unwounded survivors had been forced to surrender to the Chinese hordes.

Cost of House Building Shows Rapid Increase

OTTAWA, July 20. (CP)—A rapid rise in the cost of house building was reported Thursday by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the Crown agency administering Federal Housing Legislation. In a quarterly report, the corporation said that "not since the 12 months following the removal of wartime price controls on building materials in September, 1947, have costs risen as rapidly as in the past year."

The combined index of wholesale prices of residential building materials and hourly wage rates of construction workers increased by 18 per cent to 248 in April, 1951, from 210 in April, 1950.

More Than Double

"The combined prices of residential building materials and construction labor wage rates now are about 2½ times as high as in 1939", the report added.

One corporation official said it is possible that one result of the increase might be that houses in the $10,000-and-under price range no longer will be available in some communities. This would apply particularly in the large centres.

However, it still would be possible in many communities across the country to build houses for $10,000 or less.

Wealthy Local Son Named In Divorce Case

A wealthy Toronto businessman, Joseph B. Dunkelman, has started a divorce action against his wife, the former Jean Lenore Samuels, it was revealed Thursday in papers filed at Osgoode Hall.

Mr. Dunkelman has named Lou Chesler of Forest Hill as co-respondent. Mr. Chesler is a son of Peterborough. He went to Toronto after leaving PCVS, and in the last dozen years has established himself there as an important businessman and real estate holder.

In his statement, Mr. Dunkelman is seeking custody of his three children: Howard, 16; Peter, 10; and Donald, 6. The Dunkelmans were married in 1933.

Mr. Chesler, who is married, is part owner of the Club One-Two on Adelaide St. E., and is prominent in Toronto entertainment circles. Break Up Dope Ring Six People Arrested

CHICAGO, July 20 (AP)—Police today reported the arrest of four men and two women and the break-up of a dope ring which they said supplied narcotics to hundreds of addicts, including high school students.

Hold 9 Youths In Robberies

TORONTO, July 20 (CP) — Police Thursday night arrested nine youths and men who they believe are responsible for several large robberies in Toronto since April.

The charges ranged from shop breaking to armed robbery and one man was charged with receiving large amounts of jewelry.

Among the crimes police believe they have solved is the theft of $30,000 worth of jewelry and almost $900 cash from Lord's Credit Jewelers, as well as several other jewelry store, loan company and drug store robberies.

The arrests followed raids on two downtown rooming houses and a midtown apartment. Police said they found three loaded revolvers in one house, along with adhesive tape and lengths of cord which officers believed were to be used in a planned tavern holdup.

One of the men, Tony Iata, 28, has a bullet in his lung, police said. He was wounded in an altercation with his father in his North Bay home but refused to testify against the father, who was freed. Iata was charged with having an unregistered revolver and with receiving stolen jewelry.

Two others were charged with an armed robbery in Sault Ste. Marie.

Healy was sentenced in Sydney to two concurrent terms of six weeks hard labor and fined a total of £100 (about $230). He was released on bail of £100 pending an appeal, which his defence said would be lodged immediately.

country with Oriental serenity.

A turbaned, little man swathed in flowing robes, Abdullah was constantly a thorn in the side of other Arab rulers because of his independence. A staunch friend of Britain who brought him to power and subsidized his strategically situated country, he often elected to play a lone hand in the complex politics of the Middle East.

Fought Israel

Abdullah joined with the other Arab states when they made war upon the budding state of Israel in May, 1948, a war which lasted a year and never officially has ended in a peace settlement. He emerged from the war with a large slice of what had been Palestine, including the old shrine in the walled city of Jerusalem and the city of Jericho, storied in the Bible.

Last Monday in Amman Riad el Solh, foreign minister of Lebannon was killed by Syrian Nationalists. The act touched off riots in Lebanon, where Solh was a leading political figure. He had long been an opponent of Abdullah's greater Syria ambitions.

His Majesty Ibn Hussein Abdullah, rule of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan, was the second son of the late Hussein, sherif (ruler) of Hejaz. His elder brother was Feisal, King of Syria, deposed by the French. The two were comrades in arms with Lawrence of Arabia in the Arab revolt against the Turks. Before the French left Syria Abdullah was intent upon armed invasion of that country to restore his brother to the throne but this never came off.

Born In Mecca

Abdullah was born in Mecca, holy city of the Moslems, and claims 39th generation descent from Mohammed. He grew up at the court of the Turkish tyrant, Abdul Hamid, in Constantinople (now Istanbul), held as a hostage for the good behavior of his rebellious father. He was active in his youth behind the scenes of the anti-Turkish movements which marked the declining days of the Ottoman Empire. His passion was Arab Nationalism; his goal, to increase the power and sway of the Hashemite family.

Abdullah was known as a friend of Britain. Glubb Pasha, the British commander of the Arab Legion, was one of his closest confidants.

Powerful Figure

Abdullah was regarded as one of the most powerful figures in the Middle East, holding the balance of power there with his formidable Arab Legion Army formed under British direction.

Recently, reports published in Egypt said King Abdullah was planning to amend his country's constitution so that he could appoint his grand-nephew, boy King Feisal of Iraq, as Jordan's Crown Prince and thus successor to the Jordan crown. Prince Abdul Ilah, Regent of Iraq, and Abdullah's nephew, recently visited the King in Amman.

Abdullah's small but tightly-knit kingdom is closely tied to Britain by treaty. Britain retains rights to base troops and planes in Jordan, a country strategically situated northeast of the Suez Canal and in the midst of the Near East's rich oil fields.

Abdullah gained international importance during the Palestine War, when his troops put up the main battle in the fight against fledgling Israel by her Arab neighbors. Since the end of the war his relations bettered considerably with neighbor Israel across the Jordan, and other Arab nations looked with some suspicion upon the Hashemite ruler.

Churchill Helped

Abdullah owed his throne to the influence of Winston Churchill and the utility of a string of telegraph poles.

Abdullah Ibn Hussein was playing chess at his home in Mecca one day in 1921 when news reached him that the French had deposed his elder brother, Feisal, King of Syria.

He and Feisal were more than royal brothers. They had been comrades-in-arms with Lawrence in the Arab revolt against the Turks. Gathering a faithful company of followers, Abdullah set out on an 800-mile-journey to invade Syria, with the intention of throwing the French out and restoring his brother to the throne.

By horse, camel and on foot, the invading force forged north, until [illegible] to the beginning of the

Invited To Be Emir

By this means, Abdullah arrived by rail at the little town of Maan, in the newly created Trans-Jordan Territory, which was under British mandate. Crowds of Arabs welcomed him, and a deputation asked him to proclaim himself Trans-Jordan's Emir. He did so.

Instead of pressing on the few remaining miles of Syria, Abdullah went to Jerusalem to see Churchill, even then a power in British politics. He was Colonial Secretary at the time. Churchill persuaded Abdullah to call off his attack on the French — and told him Britain would recognize him as Emir of Trans-Jordan.

DOCTOR APPOINTED

Latest appointment to the medical staff of Civic hospital is Dr. Eric L. Phelps, whose application was approved Thursday night by the board of governors. A graduate in 1944 of McGill University, he will specialize in obstetrics and gynecology.

Higher Trend Shown On Toronto Market

TORONTO, July 20 — (CP) — Heavy trading in a handful of base metal and Western Oil issues highlighted a moderately higher stock market as the session progressed today.

Mid-Continent was the market's most active issue with sales of about 480,000 shares as it gained 2½ cents. Redwater Picadilly, Oil Selections and Ajax Petroleum were also extremely active as they added pennies.

Heavily traded in base metals were United Asbestos and Mackeno, the former up 19 cents and the latter 14 cents. Steep Rock, Sherrett Gordon, Consolidated Smelters, East Sullivan and Falconbridge advanced fractions.

Industrials edged upward with gains ranging from fractions to more than a point. Papers, steels, utilities, constructions, refining oils an manufacturing companies showed a majority of advances. Banks weakened and the rest of the board were mixed.

A few senior golds moved a little ahead. Secondary golds were mixed with little change.

Spain's desperate economic situation looms large behind Franco's new policy. The country has been wallowing in the economic doldrums for many years. The people are finding it more and more difficult to make a living.

The highway and railway networks, the worst in western Europe, are in urgent need of repair. Industry needs replacements and raw materials to keep busy. The armed forces have only antiquated equipment and not enough of that.

American diplomatic representatives in Madrid and Franco's representative in Washington have long been telling him that American aid for depressed Spain would come only after he made some concessions toward liberalizing the regime.

Here And There In Sports

Hoisted With Hay, Man Falls, Smashes Wrist

Accidentally lifted into the air with a bundle of hay that was being raised to the top of his barn Wednesday, a farmer lost his balance and fell to the cement floor, badly smashing his wrist.

The farmer, Jim Fader of Maple Lake, Haliburton county, was drawing hay into the hay mow of his barn. He was placing the large lifting fork which was raised by a rope pulled by a team of horses.

He placed the fork in what he thought was short hay. He expected only a small bundle to be gathered up.

He stepped back only one or two paces and waited. However, the fork lifted a large bundle including the hay on which Fader was standing. He was hoisted up toward the roof.

He shouted to his helper driving the team, but the man didn't hear him. He lost his balance and fell. He was rushed to a doctor in Carnarvon where it was found he had severely fractured his left wrist.

The flood waters were ebbing at Jefferson City, the state capitol in central Missouri. There the Missouri had flooded parts of about 50 blocks and about 650 persons had to be moved out.

Missouri's highways were closed at 62 points by high water.

The cost of the flood in St. Louis thus far was estimated at $1,500,000. The figure included loss of business and wages and flood protection expenses. Actual water damage is not yet of serious proportions here.

'The Hasty Heart' Replaces 'Male Animal'

The Summer Theatre has altered its play schedule for next week and has rejected "The Male Animal," originally slated for production in favor of the notable Pulitzer Prize-winning drama "The Hasty Heart."

John Patrick, the author of "The Hasty Heart," was on his way home from the Burma front when hew rote the play, most of it on shipboard. He had been serving with the American Field Service and had been attached to the British Army. When he arrived in New York he found that there was but one other war play being presented—that was the John Hersey-Paul Osborn "A Bell for Adano," starring Fredric March.

Action in Hospital

Captain Patrick did not, however, look upon The Hasty Heart as a war play. It did have a war background, but its action occurred pretty far back from both front lines. The action passes in a convalescent ward in a British General Hospital in the rear of the Assam-Burma front. Here the strength and tenderness of the nursing sister, Margaret, is called upon to look after the six patients —a good-natured, mountainous cockney with an unearthly laugh, a mosquito-prone New Zealander, an American with no love for the Scots, an Australian longing to get down under again, a Bausto native whose only English word is "Blossom," and a proud Scot.

Past experience has taught the Summer Theatre management that discerning Peterborough audiences are genuinely interested in plays which are different from the usual run of summer stock fare. Plays, so to speak, with more meat than spice. The play folds into a category which has not been seen on the Summer Theatre stage before — that of the comedy-drama. "The Hasty Heart" is considered to be one of the most moving stories to have come out of the late world war. Laughter and tears are blended in a story that has the appeal of honest sentiment and convincing human reactions.

Two of the roles—those of the dour young Scot, Lachlen McLachlen, and the Yank, made stars of two relatively unknown young actors—John Lund and Richard Basehart. Frank Perry will play the role of Lachlen, while Gerry Sarracini will be seen as Yank. Mr. Sarracini recently played the role on the air in the successful CBC production. The role of the nursing sister will be played by Kate Reid, that of the cockney by Peter Mews, the role of the Australian by Cal Whitehead, while Michael Sadlier will be seen as the New Zealander, Barry Knibbs as Blossom, and Bill Needles, who is directing the show, as the Colonel—Old Cobwebs.

Rotation Scheme Planned Bring Troops From Korea

OTTAWA, July 19. (CP)—The army is expected to announce soon the details of a rotation plan to start bringing Canadian soldiers home from Korea whether the fighting stops or not.

The aim is believed to be to have hundreds of Korean veterans home at least by Christmas and other men sent over to take their places. If a cease-fire materializes, the scheme could be developed into a full-scale repatriation movement—if that becomes possible.

Indications are that those returned Korea veterans who don't want to enter the regular army will be offered their discharge after a leave in Canada, regardless of whether they have completed the 18-month term for which they enlisted in the special force.

First to come home would likely be the first who arrived in Korea, that is mainly the men of the 2nd Battalion of the PPCLI who landed there last December.

It still isn't clear whether the Patricias will come home as a unit, in groups or as individuals. That is the sort of question now under study by committees at army headquarters.

The 3rd Battalion of the Patricias regiment is in training at Wainwright, Alta., and has been sending reinforcements for the 2nd Battalion. William Boss, Canadian Press correspondent in Korea, reported Thursday that the 2nd Battalion would like to come back as a unit.

Whether the rotation plan flowers into a full-fledged repatriation scheme depends on the outcome of the UN-Red cease-fire talks. If peace does come, Canada would discuss with UN allies the question of withdrawing her troops.

The feeling here is that Canada would like to keep any garrison duties for her soldiers to a minimum but it is recognized that the other UN countries would probably feel the same way.

The rotation system Canada will apply to Korea is one adopted by the Defense Department as a basic principle since the war. It will be applied to the 27th Brigade when it goes to Europe. Single men will serve there two years, married men one, then be replaced.

In effect, the rotation system has already been operating for the navy. It has kept three destroyers operating in Korea by using five. There have been two tied up for Korea in addition to the three there. The aim is to rotate each ship every six months.

The air force is using the system, too. The fighter squadron now in Britain is coming home before Christmas and will be replaced by another.

The army rotation system means that thousands of troops are needed as replacements. Both the 25th and 27th Brigades have or are building replacements groups to spell off the men in the field.

Pinned By Bus Man Crushed

LINDSAY, July 20 — A Lindsay welder was pinned against the cement wall of his grease pit by the rear wheels of a bus that dropped into the pit where he was working Thursday.

He was rushed to the Ross Memorial Hospital suffering from seven broken ribs and a fractured right arm.

The welder, Rudolph Zehethofer, proprietor of a welding shop, had entered the grease pit by a side entrance slit to examine the door mechanism on the bus. He was standing in the slit when the empty bus suddenly rolled forward.

The rear wheels dropped into the slit and pinned him against its wall.

While two of his workers rushed to a nearby garage to get a tow truck to lift the bus off the man, two other me put a jack under the bus and lifted it enough to ease the pressure on the trapped man. But the jack could not lift the bus c[illegible] held pinned about 10 minutes.

The tow truck hoisted the bus off the welder and he was taken to hospital.

Lack Of Lifeguard Worries Cobourgers

COBOURG, July 20—(ENS)—Lack of a life guard at the beach is causing concern here in view of the unusually large crowds which have been bathing daily, particularly on weekends. The lifeguard duties used to be the job of the Rotary Club who hired a lifeguard to look after the beach during the summer months. After the recreational commission was formed two years ago, the Rotary Club made a grant to the commission in lieu of taking on the beach patrol and this was then handled by the recreational director and some assistants. However, the commission has not sufficient funds to pay a full-time recreational director and nobody this year has taken on the responsibility of the beach patrol. This week a canoe upset off shore and the flounderng occupant was brought in to shore in a motorboat. A child got into difficulties yesterday when a wave upset it. But still no life guard.

Protests Shutdown Of Red News Agency

TOKYO, July 20—(AP)—Maj.-Gen. A. P. Kislenko, Russian member of the Allied Council for Japan, today protested the Japanese government shutdown of Rengo, Communist news agency.

He made his protest at today's council meeting. The four-paper body took no action. Chairman William J. Sebald, United States delegates, said it was not a proper subject for council discussion.

Rengo monitored communist radio brodacasts and distributed news from these communist agencies: The Russian Tass, British Telepress and New China Communist News. It published a small monthly paper.

It was closed July 12 for expressing anti-occupation views.

MARMORA, July 20 (ENS) — The funeral of John McCracken took place Thursday, leaving the residence of his niece, Mrs. Donald McInroy at 1.45 p.m. for service at St. Paul's Anglican church where Canon J. M. Brownlie officiated as well as at the burial in Marmora Protestant Cemetery. Pallbearers were Hugh Phillips, John McCracken, James McCracken, Harry Dunlay, William Leonard, and Irwin McCoy.

Red Firing Squads Shoot 334 In 2 Weeks

HONG KONG, July 20—(AP)—Communists firing squads executed 334 persons in Peiping and Shanghai the first two weeks in July, Chinese Communist newspapers said Thursday night.

These slayings were in addition to 60 reported in Shanghai on July 9. The latest report said 277 died in Peiping July 10 and 57 in Shanghai July 14.

The Communist-controlled press said the victims were Chinese Nationalist spies and pro-Japanese elements.

The same report said 642 others were given more lenient sentences—mostly life imprisonment.

Let Bull Run Loose Pays $50 Damages

CAMPBELLFORD, July 20 — (ENS). — Whitfield Lawrence, Bonarlaw, was fined a total of $50 on two charges of allowing his scrub bull to run loose, in Campbellford Court.

Complaints were made by two neighboring farmers, Harry Dickinson and Allen Rutherford.

Lawrence was also ordered to pay $14.80 in costs on the conviction.

The bull is now tethered.

$100,000 More Needed For New Collegiate

Times are hard for public building, and Peterborough, which has had to do a great deal of it in the last five years, knows well the rising building costs, the scarcity of materials, the increased prices of sites. The Board of Education has had especially hard luck in its new Collegiate school project. To counteract the conditions already mentioned it has had to whittle its plans: no assembly hall, no laboratory frills, a single gymnasium instead of a double one. The trimmed school was thus to be built for $585,000. Ratepayers approved this expenditure in last December's elections. Now circumstances have again changed. The Board unfortunately struck wobbly sub-soil on the site, a condition which it could not have determined before the lot was taken over. The extra foundation work required will cost an additional $30,000. Another unforseen expense is due to rising building costs. The estimates pitched the cost at about $13 a square foot. The lowest tender runs about $14. This adds several tens of thousands to the bill. A third unforeseen expense is the increased interest rate on bonds. The city will have to market debentures for the new school in a tighter bond market where four to four and a half per cent. is the prevailing yield demanded—not three or three and a quarter as it was nine months ago. All told these new expenses add up to a sum approaching $100,000.

* * *

The Board is faced with a problem: to ask the Council for an extra $100,000, or to try to cut even more corners in the new building. If the gymnasium were excluded, the new school could be put up within the $585,000. Here, however, a complicated matter of Government grants enters. If there is no gymnasium the grants will be reduced. On the other hand, grants will not be paid on total building costs over the $585,000, so the Department of Education has told the Board, although it has approved the plan to build at the increased cost. It is six of one and half a dozen of the other.

* * *

That is the situation. We have examined it with some care and reluctantly concluded that the Board must take its courage in both hands and build, with gymnasium. When Provincial Municipal Board approval is secured the extra $100,000 can be required of the Council without further vote of the people. There is in fact no time to put it to vote. Delays will prevent the opening of the new school in September 1952 and may add much to the costs. The price structure may level off in Canada within a year but that is by no means certain. Anyway, this levelling-off would hardly compensate for the extra costs involved in adding the necessary gymnasium a year or two later.

* * *

For we believe that a gymnasium is necessary. Of all the embellishments which schools have acquired in the last forty years, gymnasiums are most likely to be permanent. Elaborate technical workshops, swimming-baths, salons to teach pupils to set table or dress hair, school laboratories which would do justice to universities: these may in time be considered unessential to proper sec-

* * *

Of course pupils can get along without gymnasiums: all they basically need are teachers, books and minds. But schools take on a life of their own. The new school must acquire its own esprit de corps, and a gymnasium to play games, hold school assemblies and focus gregarious social life of parents and students, is necessary to this. It must be remembered that the new collegiate school will have no auditorium. Will there not be discrimination against the pupils (and their parents) who live south of Sherbrooke Street, if the new school has no gymnasium?

* * *

The school will be a fine, modern building; substantial, efficient and attractive in design and equipment; it should be a school worthy of the southern part of the city where more than half our citizens live. If the matter of the $100,000 were put to a majority vote, there is little doubt that it would be approved. If the Board decides to build as planned, it should put the strongest kind of pressure on the Department of Education and the Government to allow adequate grants.

* * *

In these times of increased costs, why should grants not be based on the actual cost of $685,000 instead of something which Department of Education officials dreamily think is a desirable cost—$585,000. Peterborough can dream, too, but the bills come in. The Provincial Treasury can afford, and should afford, adequate grants to municipalities for such necessary work. Municipal taxing resources are restricted and the rates are already as much as property-owners can bear. Provincial taxing resources are wider and richer. Ontario has the money, Peterborough has not. The certain way to undermine representative provincial cities like Peterborough—cities which give the Province its integrity, its solidarity and its sure progress—is to break them financially. We do not believe that this is the deliberate poliy of the present Ontario Government. Therefore, let it meet the Board of Education half-way on the new collegiate school project.

Dropping Out Of The News

Many editors, sifting news day by day, year by year, must be tempted at some time or other to keep a log of all the headline stories which tail off into nothingness; the stories which have a noisy beginning, a brief life of a day or two on the printed page, and no ending: the murders unsolved, the public investigation never completed, the questions in Parliament unanswered, the crises in one corner of the world or another which neither explode nor subside but merely fade away like General MacArthur. (By the way, where is General MacArthur now?) Every week for a day or two the public is agitated by some strident story; the next week another story sweeps the slate, and the public mind becomes a tabula rasa, its surface unscratched by the earlier account. Yet beneath the surface must linger some faint impression which the x-ray of the subconscious may illumine at the witching hour of night. For instance, what has become of that flighty pair of British Foreign Office officials, who dropped into the melting pot of European espionage as completely as they have dropped out of the news?

What on earth made us think of them? Their story is dead; they are gone and forgotten by the public. Ah! two more diplomats are now under suspicion—American ones this time. They have been suspended from the State Department for reasons of "security" rather than question of their "loyalty". But they possessed secrets, like the British pair, and have been careless in the way they observed the secrecy of their information—a carelessness which may amount to disloyalty. So it is the repetition of history, rather than the light of the subconscious which recalls the British diplomats who fled their country. The American story is in the grooves of the earlier one; the moving finger of history is scratching the slate a little deeper.

14,400 Feet Up Without A Phut

An Ottawa glider—machine and man—last week rose 14,400 feet into the air without motor or anything propulsive except air currents and a good take-off. It sounds like a political trick to be expected in the national capital where air and tempers on Parliament Hill sometimes shoot off high and wide: sky high, but not two and a half miles up. In fact the gentleman who accomplished the feat is not a politician. He is Mr. Barrie Jeffery and he has established a new Canadian gliding record.

Appropriately enough, soaring over the Ottawa Valley is an intense pastime. There are three gliding clubs: the Rockcliffe Soaring Club, the Buckingham Gliding Club and the Gatineau Gliding Club; Mr. Jeffery belongs to the last-named. The Ottawa Citizen, which flies off on some very excellent tangents itself at times, has taken a dip into the art and science of gliding, and we who have never seen a glider closer than pages of an Encyclopedia of Sports defer to its learning. It says:

with it. The aim of glider pi... to find thermals, or ...

"Ottawa gliders operate in the Buckinghamshire district mainly because the weather is co-operative. A combination of hot ground and cool, moist air (flowing in from the north and northwest during summer) produces the thermals that the local gliding pilots are looking for.

"How long a pilot can soar depends on the size of the thermal. Mr. Jeffery, in setting a new Canadian record of 14,400 feet, was in the air for about 1½ hours. At Bishop, California, last January, William Ivans, holder of the world record, soared his Schweizer-123 to 42,000 feet.

"There is no problem involved in getting to the ground again. The gliders, which are equipped with airplane controls, may be landed more easily and accurately than any other plane except a helicopter. Moreover, their pilots need not worry about engine failure."

NOTE AND COMMENT

Those people who say that nothing is impossible should try to pawn a bridge prize some time.

The Department of Highways has a machine which will pick up 'stray nails, nuts and bolts'. The Provincial Police will continue to pick up a few nuts, too.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: Where does the stone used in the new city hall come from? I have been told that it is American, from Vermont. Isn't there lots of stone around here? Why can't we use our own?

ANSWER: The stone is Canadian. It is supplied by a Hamilton cut-stone firm and comes from the Niagara district. It is Queenston stone, a kind of limestone. Some Peterborough county stone is excellent for building purposes—witness St. John's church stone, which came from a Jackson Park quarry, long since abandoned. It has weathered well during its first century. All Saints church is built of Stony Lake granite. The difficulty about using local stone is that there are few quarries in operation now in the district. A building as large as the new city hall requires a great deal of stone—more than a casual quarry can supply, but less than necessary to make the reopening of a big quarry and the installation of expensive machinery practicable. I understand that All Saints church people are now in a quandary. When the church was built there was not enough money to build the tower. Now they want to build it, have money towards it, but cannot get the same stone. The quarry is closed.

ALPHA: Which country has more railway mileage line, Canada or the United States?

ANSWER: The U.S.A. It has (including Alaska) 227,244 miles of track. Second in mileage is the U.S.S.R. (Russia) with 57,487 miles. Third is Canada: 42,979 miles of single track.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR ALPHA: What does 'nom de plume' mean?

ANSWER: Pen-name—a literal translation into fake French. The French is all right grammatically, but the phrase is not used in France. The proper French term is 'nom de guerre', and it is thoroughly French, clearly indicating literary pseudonymity. In former days when a soldier enlisted, he took a surname which he retained as long as he served under the flag. It was a true nom de guerre (name of war). From this the phrase has been extended to apply to those who do battle in words anonymously. In reigns of terror, totalitarianism, or in touchy local matters, a nom de guerre is a useful shield to protect him who fights verbally for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Even Alpha finds his nom de guerre a useful protection!

DEAR ALPHA: I enjoy your column greatly and hope you will continue it. Will you kindly tell me: (1) What is meant by the 21st parliament? What are the previous ones? (2) Who are the seven immortals of England?

ANSWER: Thank you for your commendation . . . By "Parliament" is meant the institution, not the building, in its varying membership from 1867. There is a new Parliament every time a General Election is held. Since there have been 21 General Elections since the Dominion of Canada was created, there have been 21 Parliaments. The first was assembled November 1, 1867 and dissolved July 8, 1872. The party in power was Conservative. The present Parliament was opened September 15, 1949. A Parliament usually has several sessions, and usually one a year. There are going to be two this year, and already the fourth session has been prorogued. A session of Parliament is 'prorogued'; a Parliament itself is 'dissolved'. After dissolution there is always a general election.

The shortest Parliament in Canada's history was the 15th; it was opened January 7, 1926 and dissolved July 2 of the same year. It had only one session. The next shortest was the second parliament, opened Mar. 5, 1873 and dissolved November 7 of the same year. This Parliament had two sessions. Its second lasted only two weeks. Under Canada's constitution, no Parliament can last longer than five years.

As for your second question: I have never heard the phrase "seven immortals of England". I suppose one makes one's own choice, starting with writers like Shakespeare, doctors, like Harvey, or other immortals like The Earl of Sandwich (who gave the sandwich its name), Jack the Ripper and Johnnie Walker—oh, dear! He's Scotch, not English.

OLDEST BRICK HOUSE in Peterborough; Bits and pieces of information are reaching my ears, and I will try to have something more about it next week. I do wish that readers who have any information, either hearsay or actual evidence, would drop me a line at the Examiner.

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR: Here is another property of the number 9. Multiply it by the digits 1 to 10 and put down the answers in a column: 9, 18, 27, 36, 45, 54, 63, 72, 81, 90. Do you notice that the tens column reads down 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 8, 9 and the units column reads up the same way. Odd isn't it? Then, as another reader has already pointed out, the digits of each answer add up to 9, as the digits of all prod-terborough real... business. On both George and Charlotte Streets, rents have soared in the last two years and firms have been shifting from one building to another in an effort to escape overwhelming rentals. Businesses which have been in the same store for twenty, or forty years have fled or are fleeing: for instance, the drug store at the corner of Hunter and George; next door the dry goods business of Dicksons; farther down the street, in the next block, Warne's jewellery store. Much property in the business section has changed ownership also. This week, the city refused a $300 monthly rental offer for a store in its market building lot on the east side of George Street. The Council believe that they should have at least $350—not an unfair rental if it is true that the present Warne store across the street is to rent for $850 a month. It takes a great deal of business and profit to meet that kind of monthly rental. One wonders how a business in a store of modest size can keep above such costs.

DECISION APPRECIATED

The courtroom was crowded as the judge finished his lecture to the defendant in a divorce case. "So, I've decided to give your wife $50 per month," were his last words.

The husband's face lit up as he smiled. "That's fine, Judge, I'll try to slip her a couple of bucks now and then myself."

HIS CROSS

Manitoba Flood Wasn't All Disaster

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

THE flood disaster in the Kansas-Missouri area, causing damage estimated at $750,000,000, recalls the calamity that struck Manitoba last year, on a smaller scale. The full story of the Manitoba flood has not yet been told, since its aftermath has not yet been fully reported. But enough is known to indicate that it may prove a long-term blessing.

Provincial and federal assistance was sent, as well as private donations through the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund. Because of this, no Manitoban is known to be worse off today as a result of the flood. A number, indeed, are better off, for their homes were rebuilt, and in many instances old furniture and other worn household equipment has been replaced with new. Farmers have had their livestock renewed, and their farms enriched by the new soil deposited by the Red River. Aid has been given to everyone who could be helped, yet the relief fund has a surplus of more than $1,000,000.

Finally, the first important measure to protect Winnipeg and its immediate neighbours against future floods has been carried out. Dikes have been constructed which should prevent serious damage when the river again rises to abnormal heights. Even this protection, however, would not suffice in the event of an even worse flood than that of 1950. The chances of such a catastrophe are remote, but the record of the past century shows that they cannot be dismissed. The international joint commission is now having studies made of both the American and Canadian sections of the Red, to ascertain what practical remedial measures can be taken on this river and its tributaries to lessen the danger.

For the present, the system of dikes around Greater Winnipeg represents a fruitful result of last year's tragedy. Much the same happy results were reported following the flooding of the Fraser River in British Columbia in 1948.

Disasters such as these are the cause of great suffering at the time. Yet the spirit of man can rise to their challenge and turn them into victories over the elements.

Canadians Disrobing On U.S. Highways

(A letter in the correspondence columns of the Montreal Gazette.)

Sir: For the past few years the number of Canadians visiting our north country has been increasing. A great many of your countrymen make purchases in our stores before returning to their homes, and, you may be sure that we appreciate their patronage. Our country also provides many facilities that are desirable to many people. For instance, we have one of the most beautiful, gradual sand beaches in the world; we have state parks that are available for recreation; the scenery along our lake shore is superb; our highways also afford easy and comfortable travel via motor car, and we are happy to have people who visit our country appreciate these outstanding features.

However, we have been extremely annoyed by some of your citizens who make purchases in our stores, and who evidently do not wish to declare them at the customs. Using our side roads, and, sometimes the main highway, too, they disrobe and wear the new articles, and, in doing this they throw the boxes, cartons, papers, etc., along the sides of the road.

We also notice that many Canadians use our roadsides for picnics, and, when they are ready to leave, the garbage or rubbish is either left at the picnic grounds, or is thrown out of the automobiles along the roadsides and highway. As you can well imagine this practice is not only unsightly but it is a fire hazard, and our people are very much concerned with this behaviour.

We appreciate the beauties and advantages that our country affords, and, while we would like to share our precious possessions with our neighbours to the North, we feel that they, too, should show some consideration for the pleasures that they derive at our expense, for you must realize that in order to keep our highways clean and free from fire hazards that we are put to a tremendous expense.

Would you be so kind as to co-operate with us in telling your people that while we appreciate their patronage, we would also like their consideration in keeping our highways free from boxes, cartons, bottles, cans, papers and garbage.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And they were in the way going up to Jerusalem; and Jesus went before them: and they were amazed; and as they followed, they were afraid. And he took again the twelve, and began to tell them what things should happen unto him, saying, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the chief priests, and unto the scribes; and they shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him to the Gentiles; and they shall mock him, and shall spit upon him, and shall kill him: and the third day he shall rise again. (Mark 10: 32-34.)

✧ ✧ ✧

In the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it. . . .

And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay. And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.

And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy; and did run to bring his disciples word. (Matt. 28: 1, 2, 5-8.)

PAY AND PAY

Sir: From the advance information regarding the New Collegiate it appears like another Civic Hospital deal, where you pay and pay and are never done.

If the board wanted to save why buy so much land? Also why are we supposed to furnish a school for all Country pupils who wish to come.

In Toronto the School Board were promised $5,000,000 for their building program. This year they asked for $7,000,000 which the Controllers thought was too high and they were given $3,000,000 and told to make it do.

We don't have to give the School Board all they ask for. This idea of taking it to the Municipal Board in Toronto is a standing joke and us with the Municipal President right here. How much longer will people submit to this nonsense? I would like to hear from some other rate payers.

Thanking you in advance, I remain,

Yours truly,

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Call Off Wildcat Strike In Detroit

DETROIT, July 20 (AP) — A wildcat strike which made 15,000 Chrysler Corporation employees idle was called off Thursady soon after it was started. But Chrysler and other companies still were harassed by other walkouts and materials shortages.

Employees at Chrysler's Dodge main plant in neighboring Hamtramck, members of United Auto Workers local 3 (CIO), held an emergency mass meeting shortly after picket lines went up this morning, making the big day shift idle.

Local president Arthur Grudzen said they voted by a 3-to-1 margin to return on the afternoon shift.

A meeting of the local's grievance committee was arranged immediately with the Chrysler management to negotiate a dispute over the discipling of workers in an alleged "speed-up" dispute.

Other production standards disputes made 4,600 employees idle at two Chrysler De Soto plants—Warren and Wyoming.

Sun Shines In Midland After Gift To BC

MIDLAND, July 20—(CP)—Ever since Bill Cranston, president of Midland Chamber of Commerce sent that bottle of rainwater to Vancouver last Thursday, Midland has had its summer weather, the kind that made it famous as a resort centre.

The idea was a sympathetic gesture. Vancouver had been without rain for 40 days. During most of those days it had rained in Midland. A party of Midland Sea Cadets was leaving for camp on the west coast.

"Let's send Vancouver's weather back out west," the farewell party agreed.

Even as the bottle of rain water went aboard the train, the sun cracked out.

Yvonne de Carlo Tries Hand At Opera Role

By JACK QUIGG

HOLLYWOOD, July 20—(AP)—There she was, smack in the middle of the big stage, 7,500 pairs of eyes on her, 7,500 pafrs of ears listening.

It was quite a switch for Vancouver's Yvonne De Carlo, queen of the color-movie harems. She hadn't even been in a play before, let alone an opera.

How does it feel to perform for the opera set, with no camera around to rephotograph possible mistakes.

Says Yvonne: "I thought I was going to fall apart."

The French-Canadian brunette made her opera debut at the Hollywood Bowl last week, playing the role of Prince Orlovsky in "Die Fledermaus."

She had studied opera off and on for seven years, and this was her first chance to show her stuff.

"On opening night I kept wondering when the stomach butterflies would begin. I waited and waited and nothing happened."

"When I saw old-timers in the cast shaking I thought there was something wrong with me. "You'll probably go out there and faint," I told myself.

"I made my entrance feeling fine. I stayed fine until I sat down to watch the ballet. Then suddenly it hit me. I began trembling so badly they must have noticed it in the back row. I thought I was going to fall apart.

"I had to do something, so I started talking to myself. I told myself not to be afraid, that if the others could perform so could I. By the time the ballet was over I'd talked myself out of it."

Although the critics lauded her acting—"clever characterization" . . . "completely convincing"—they were less kind about her voice. "The present stage of her vocal development can scarcely be termed enchanting," said The Times critic. All agreed that it needs polishing.

Oshawa Downs Petes, 5-1 To Gain Ground on Leaders

Oshawa Merchants defeated the Petes 5-1 here last night before a big crowd to creep closer to the leading locals in the Viaduct Baseball League. Bob Carlson hurled two-hit ball till he ran into a wild streak and was relieved with two aboard in the ninth by Tony Delaurentis. A wild pitch by Tony let in the Petes' only run of the fixture. Doug Plunkett toiled on the home mound for seven heats, Lefty Bill Dadson finishing up with shutout ball.

Dick Berning led the Merchants at bat with two for three, as Roger Woods hit two in four tries, Charlie Walsh clouting a two-run triple and Jim Rogers banging out a two-bagger. Dick Golden's double and a single by Addy Milne were the only safe blows for the losers. Each side fashioned a neat double-play, but the Petes' fielding was below par. Oshawa turned in an errorless effort.

Neat Player

Defensive standouts were a catch back of short by Vic Napolitano, running pick-up later by the same player, and a running tag by Dick Golden at third to complete a double-play. On earned runs it should have been a 4-1 game, the Oshawa hurling earning the win handily. However, both Carlson and Plunkett had wild streaks to walk a bunch. Carlson fanned nine and Plunkett struck out six.

The Merchants tallied two in the first on a walk to Napolitano, a scratch single off the pitcher by Woods and Walsh's three-bagger. They clinched it in the seventh with three runs after two were out on a double-play. Rogers doubled, Walsh drew a stroller, both advancing a base on an infield hit by Morales. Barnes' walk forced in a run, and then a wild pitch let another one in and a bad throw to the plate scored the third.

The Petes only got four men as far as second and one to third for eight innings as batters waved feebly at a third strike or popped out to the infield to leave runners stranded. In the ninth, Stewart and Milne drew walks, and Manager Mike Mellis pulled Carlson in favor of Delaurentis in an attempt to get a shutout. Menzies' bunt forced Stewart at third as Milne moved to second. Dadson grounded to second to force Menzies. On a wild pitch, Milne raced in but Dadson was then trapped between second and third and touched out. The box score:

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

"Hey, do, it's off to work we go," that's what a husky bunch of timber-structured Petes' lacrossers are saying. The Petes have a heavy weekend, commencing here tonight against Brampton Excelsiors. They go to St. Catharines on the morrow and Toronto on Sunday, with none of the games likely to be a soft touch. Their tilt in Hamilton on Monday was laid over till next Wednesday. The Excelsiors will probably crowd the Crowe crew plenty this e'en at 8.45 in Miller Bowl, weather being right, and a hefty Friday night bunch of fans (a great many commencing holidays) is expected. Schedule has a month to go yet.

* * * * * *

Toronto Staffords meet the diamond Petes twice here Saturday, at three in the afternoon and eight at night in Viaduct Major Loop ball games. They too, have about a month to go yet ere playoffs start. Baseball followers here are finally convinced that Manager Ed Whitehill has a classy club this semester. Team leads the league by a fairish margin and, with rare exceptions, comes up with solid ball game after game. Pitching has held up real well, considering the grind, the fielding generally is okay, and the Petes are highly respected around the circuit for their power at the plate. Drop over there and see them go tomorrow afternoon and after supper.

* * * * * *

Some Quinte Thoughts

With the folding of the Border Pro League, the Quinte columnist wonders audibly if it isn't time for a revival of the COBL. The real Central League, not the mixed-up hash it is now. With good officials back in charge. He refers, of course, to Kingston Ponies, Belleville, Oshawa and Peterborough. Says the Petes and Oshawa are out by themselves in the Viaduct League and might like to return to the COBL fold. All parks now have light. Frankly, we doubt if this club is interested in the COBL until a whole lot of house-cleaning and bolstering around the circuit is done. And we very much doubt if Oshawa would be interested again, either.

* * * * * *

There are a few good clubs in that league now, but some are definitely weak sisters — though that's true of many a loop. Napanee is expected to give up the ghost anytime. Kingston may draw better now that the Class "C" club there broke up. Belleville showed a good team in a recent exhibition here. But would Kingston and Belleville maintain strong squads season after season, or would it again develop into pretty much of a two-team league as when Oshawa and the Petes were in there just before pulling out to join the Toronto setup? Rumors persist that Oshawa is interested in joining the Intercounty League next year, despite the long trips.

* * * * * *

Played Below Form

The Petes' effort at Riverside last night wasn't one of their best. They just weren't hitting, and their fielding wasn't up to form. Doug Plunkett pitched fair enough ball, a seven-hit chore, but he was wild at times, and Bill Dadson finished up effectively. However, Bob Carlson—a Michigan import—had the Indian sign on the locals as he held 'em to two hits till he was taken out in the ninth. He was wild, too, and he left two on in the final frame when Delaurentis came in. Latter uncorked a wild pitch which scored Andy Milne and there went the shutout. Merchants played impressive and errorless ball, and deserved to win by a 4-1 count. Some neat fielding in spots by a goodly crowd, but the Petes usually come up with better ball against Oshawa.

Walcott Plans To Visit Home Town.

PITTSBURGH, July 20 (AP).—Jersey Joe Walcott got set today for "one of the happiest days of my life"—a day when he goes home to Camden, NJ, with the richest ring bauble of them all.

The newly crowned heavyweight champion of the world could hardly control his excitement as he prepared to leave for Camden. He expected to arrive at the airport there about 4 p.m. (EST).

"I just wonder how many people will be on hand," said Felix Bocchicchio, manager of the Cinderella man who won the championship in his fifth try by kayoing Ezzard Charles in the 7th round of a scheduled 15-rounder Wednesday night.

"When Joe went back to Camden after his first fight with Joe Louis in 1947 around 100,000 were on hand. There'll probably be more today."

The size of the crowd didn't worry Walcott. The 37-year-old quiet spoken champ just said he was eager to "see my wife, six kiddies and all my friends."

A Busy Time

Walcott wasn't a bit tired although he found has first 24 hours as champion more rigorous than a training grind.

He climaxed his first day as champ by motoring 160 miles to Harrisburg, Pa., and returning to the steel city.

Making the trip to Harrisburg less than 24 hours after he was crowned champ, the New Jersey Negro made good on a promise many years ago that he'd visit Pennsylvania's State capital as soon as he won the heavyweight title.

Another date Walcott kept on Thursday was with 10-year-old Jimmie Slater, who lived near his training camp at McKeesport. Day after day it was a familiar sight to see the husky Walcott and the little boy trudging along a country road.

And, day after day, it was Jimmy who greeted Walcott at the ring and ran errands for him. Walcott said he promised Jimmy he'd come out to see him after the fight.

When Walcott and his police escort wheeled up to Jimmie's house the boy was overwhelmed.

"Gee, champ, gee," he said. "Thanks a lot for coming out to see me."

Prairie Man Wins Blind Golfers Tourney

TORONTO, July 20 CP). — Phil Lederhouse of Prince Albert, Sask., Thursday won the Canadian Blind Golfers' championship for the second straight year. He shot a 56-56—112 over the Summerlea course at Weston to beat Nick Genovese of Dundas, just as he had edged out the Ontario man last year.

Lederhouse was accompanied by Hubert Cooke, Prince Albert pro and coach of the Canadian champion.

Genovese shot 63-56—119 and would have been closer to the winner but he topk 12 strokes on the 16th hole after getting into the rough.

Third man was Dr. W. J. H. Oxenham from Toronto Rosedale with 60-60—120. Harold Mitchell of Hamilton Glendale, had 125 for fourth.

Syracuse Whips Rochester In 11-8 Triumph

By The Associated Press.

A major league dud but a minor league demon. Meet Carden Gillenwater, centre fielder of the Syracuse Chiefs.

That's the story of this strapping six-foot-one veteran. Remember him? He had chances with St. Louis, Brooklyn, Boston and Washington—and he flubbed them all.

Each time he was sent down, he bounced back. But the years are running out (he's 33 now), and Gillenwater may have had his last chance at the big time.

He's slowing up, sure, but his bat still speaks with authority.

The Chiefs are in second place today thanks to Gillenwater's hitting. He drove across five runs Thursday night—three on a home run—as Syracuse whipped Rochester 11-8.

Still Pay Off

Gillenwater boosted his average to .268, a modest figure but consider his 45 runs batted in. They still pay off in the run department.

Gene Costello, fourth of five Syracuse pitchers, was the winner.

The Chiefs picked up a half game on Montreal as the league-leading Royals split with Ottawa, winning the opener 4-2, but dropping the nightcap 3-2. Montreal still leads by 10 games.

In the only other game, the rising Toronto Maple Leafs went one game over the .500 mark by outlasting the Buffalo Bisons 9-8. For the second straight night, Les Fleming delivered the game-winning hit for the Leafs, this time a line single to centre in the 10th inning that scored Bobby Sullivan from third with two out.

Junior Petes Get Win Over Toronto

The Peterborough Filter Queens trimmed Maitlands in Toronto 20 to 3 last night in an OLA junior fixture to stay on top of the group race. They scored four goals in each of the first two quarters, and six apiece in the last two. Maitlands were held to two markers in the initial inning and one in the third of a clean game, the homesters drawing three of the five minor penalties.

Gary Robinson starred on the attack for Lou Vitarelli's winning crew, scoring seven goals. Brian Robinson counted two and aided on three more, Lou Nickel having one goal and four assists. Jim Heffernan tallied twice and helped on one, as Jerry O'Reilly clicked for two markers. Singles went to Frank Farley, Rocky Batley, Steve Morrissey, Grant Burns, Carl Brioux and Bev Groves. An assist apiece went to Bill Nicholls (who shone in the net) and Doug Powell. Bond, Parker and Dancy scored for Toronto. Teams:

Peterborough: Goal, Nicholls; defence, Groves and Nickel; centre, G. Robinson; wings, B. Robinson and Shearer; rover, Burns; alternates, Powell, Brioux, Morrissey, Heffernan, Batley, Farley, O'Reilly and Simmons.

Toronto: Goal, Stewart; defence, Corrick and Powell; centre, Chesman; wings, Maloney and Dancy; rover, Roubon; alternates, Parker, Davidson, Corcoran, McConnell, Bond, McQueen and Luttrell.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn Dodgers' fastballer, set a 20th - century Major League record by fanning 17 St. Louis Cardinals in a 10-inning game 26 years ago today. The mark still stands in the National League although Bob Feller of Cleveland Indians whipped 18 Detroit batsmen on Oct. 2, 1938 for the current Major League mark.

Argos, Tigers To Play In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 20 (AP) —Canadian professional football, which is attracting many of the better United States college and pro stars, will have its US debut here Aug. 12.

The Toronto Argonauts, 1950 Canadian champions, will meet Hamilton Tigers in an exhibition. The promoters hope some of the big men in US football will be on hand to see what all the shouting's about.

Carl Voyles, former William and Mary and Brooklyn Dodgers coach who now heads the Tigers, and Frank Clair, former University of Buffalo coach now at the helm of the Argos, were in Buffalo this week to drum up interest in the game.

There is a chance that the eastern Big-Four circuit—Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal and Ottawa—may expand some day into the United States, but there are too many sumbling blocks at the present. Biggest problem is the current limit of seven Americans on a Big-Four team. The Canadians are proud of their game and are slow to change it.

Fast Field Assured In London Tournament

LONDON, Ont., July 20 (CP) — A fast field of amateur golfers is assured for the Ontario amateur golf championship which starts Wednesday at the London Hunt and Country Club.

Several former champions will be trying to knock the crown from the head of Nick Weslock of Windsor who won last year at Toronto Golf Club. Included are Jack Nash of the host club, Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, 1949 winner, and Phil Farley, Toronto [illegible]rboro who last won the title [illegible]48.

About 140 of the province's best are expected to tee off Wednesday morning seeking a spot among the low 32 scorers to qualify for match play. Thursday and Friday will be devoted to 18-hole match play contests and the finals are scheduled for Saturday over 36 holes.

In addition to the fight for the amateur championship the qualifying round will provide a tight finish in the Willingdon Cup team trials.

RCAF Planes Will Help Land Supplies

OTTAWA, July 20. (CP) — RCAF aircraft will assist United States Navy and Coast Guard vessels in landing supplies at weather stations in the Canadian Arctic and in Greenland during July and August, it was announced today.

A similar arrangement was in effect last year.

Weather stations involved are the joint Canada-U.S. stations at Eureka and Alert, both on Ellesmere Island; Mould Bay, on Prince Patrick Island; Isachsen, on Isachsen Island; Resolute Bay, on Cornwallis Island, and the joint Danish-US weather station at Thule, Greenland.

US vessels will land supplies direct to weather stations if ice conditions permit. If not the supplies will be landed at Resolute Bay and at Thule, to be flown in to other weather stations later.

Six US Navy and Coast Guard vessels will carry out the operation, known as Nanook 51. The task force includes three ice-breakers and six helicopters. They will be aided by four-engine Lancasters from the RCAF's 405 Maritime Squadron, based at Greenwood, NS, commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. A. G. (Digger) Dagg of Vancouver.

99% Industry X-Rays New Workers

332 Checked During June Before Employment

The Peterborough county TB Association have been successful in gaining the co-operation of 99 per cent of the industries in the city in the association's pre-employment X-ray project.

This project has been in operation for two months. In June, the second month, 332 people were X-rayed before being taken on in city industries.

"The aim of our association is to have every industry in the city make an X-ray a must before employment," Charles H. Elliott, 1st vice-president, said today. "If the project is a complete success, everyone who is employed by an industry will have to be X-rayed before he starts to work."

His Worship, Mayor M. J. Swanston said that the city is definitely supporting the project and all new city employees are X-rayed before they start work.

The association hopes that this project may be expanded to include all retail and business establishment next year. In 1952 a mobile clinic X-ray clinic will be brought here and everyone in the county will have the opportunity to be X-rayed. The complete pre-employment X-ray plan for the city will begin following this country wide X-ray.

At present the Quaker Oats Co. leads the city in the project. One hundred per cent of the company's employees have been X-rayed.

During the recent industrial and retail X-ray survey sponsored by the association, some of the Quaker employees were away or for some other reason missed getting X-rayed. These employees were all sent to one of the city hospitals for X-rays. In addition the company has insured that all new employees, permanent or temporary, receive X-rays before thy start to work in the plant.

Only one case of active TB was found in the plant and that case is now being treated in a sanitorium. As a result the Quaker Oats Co. is completely free of this disease and intends to stay that way an official of the company said today.

TWO AMERICAN VISITING CRUISERS went over The Hump at the Lift Lock early today, Wisconsin-bound. The "Lormad" (Foreground) will eventually reach Chicago, her home port, at the end of August. She left there for Florida last October. The rear cruiser, "Bernice B" is owned by Nathan I. Bienenstock of New York City; they have come from New York City and will return via the Great Lakes and the Erie State Barge Canal.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Lift Lock Has Busy Week; Hoists 19 Craft

This has been a busy week for the custodians of the Trent Canal and especially the staff at the Lift Lock; 19 craft, eight of them American, have been passed through up to noon today both north and southbound.

Three large cruisers and a smaller one went over the "Hump" today by 9 a.m. The first two were 40-foot American craft. The "Lormad" of Chicago was the first to idle into the lower pontoon. It is owned by Lauren Drake of Chicago, who with his wife and Mrs. Ralph Rosco, are heading for the Wisconsin country and back to their home port. They left Chicago last October, went down the Mississippi, wintered in Florida and came north in the spring.

Most Beautiful Waterway

Mr. Drake said that the Trent Canal system is the most beautiful stretch of waterway they had cruised during the entire long voyage.

The second cruiser the "Bernice B" hailed from New Rochelle, NY. It was owned by Nathan I. Biepenstock of New York City. They came up the Champlain-St. Lawrence route and will also go to Green Bay, Wisc., and come down the Great Lakes and home through the Erie Barge Canal. Mrs. H. Phillpott and son Barton of Lexington, NC, were aboard with the Bienenstocks.

The third and smaller Canadian cruiser "Nomad" owned by Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hess of Hamilton will go no further than Clear Lake and will return to the port of Hamilton.

"Unfortunately, our holiday is just over," said the doctor. "But we will return next summer, we hope."

1,000 BABIES IN 1951?

Oshawa's birth rate may pass the 1,000 mark this year. Last year there were 752 births, and during the first five months of this year there were 468 births. In May there were 88 births.

Lindsay Man, Income Tax Office Tangle Over Section 112 (7); Who's More Confused?

LINDSAY, July 20 — Don. Marshall, of Lindsay, is confused. But not nearly so confused, he thinks, as the Income Tax Branch of the Department of National Revenue.

Early this year he filed income tax returns for 1947, 1948, 1949, and 1950. On each return he claimed a refund. Because of this he said he was not liable to any fine.

Near the end of June he received refunds on his 1947 and 1949 tax. No mention of the 1948 refund.

July 13 he received another letter, this time advising him that because of Section 112 (7) of the Income Tax Act, no refunds could be paid because claims were made after more than two years had elapsed after the tax was deducted from his regular pay.

He is thinking of trying again for his 1948 refund, hoping that the same clerk, who allowed his 1947 income tax claim—who obviously has not heard of Section 112 (7) — will handle his claim.

Civic Names Head Of Nursing

New director of nursing for Civic Hospital is Miss Evelyn Robson, it was announced last night at a meeting of the hospital's board of governors. She will also be principal of the school of nursing.

Miss Robson, a 1929 graduate of Toronto General Hospital, spent 16 years with that hospital with the exception of one year at Columbia University Teachers' College.

At St. Catharines

In 1946, she was named assistant superintendent at St. Catharines General Hospital, and in 1948 left there to become inspector of training schools with the Division of Nurses' Registration, Department of Health of this province.

In 1950, she left the government post and returned to Columbia University. Last month she graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Science, having majored in Administration and Guidance in Professional Schools of Nursing.

Young Bicyclist Hit On Chemong Highway

Knocked from his bicycle when he started to make a left turn on the Chemong road Thursday night, George Heard, 14, of 102 Bennett St. was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with slight injuries.

He is badly bruised but hospital authorities say his condition is not serious and he is being kept for observation for a day or two.

Young Heard, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Heard, was bicycling south on the highway on his way home. It is reported that when he got to Bellevue St. he started to make a left turn and he was struck by a car from behind, driven by John K. Welsh, 41, Demorestville, Prince Edward county.

Carried 45 Feet

Welsh slammed on the brakes but was unable to avoid a collision. The boy was carried some 45 feet on the hood of the car before he slid off onto the highway.

He was dazed but conscious when Welsh got to him. He insisted he was all right and started to get to his feet but was persuaded to lie there until an ambulance arrived to take him away.

The bicycle is a total wreck.

OPP Constable Wallace Mohns investigated.

Mr. Dobbin was one of four appointed for two years to the Board of General Purposes.

E. N. Gregory, Lindsay, was elected grand senior warden and James Sloan Ewing, Warkworth, was elected grand sword bearer. Grand stewards are Arthur Wellington Robson, Fenelon Falls and J. H. Sisson, Omemee. Percy Harold Naylor, Madoc, was elected grand standard bearer.

Prof. Nelson C. Hart of the University of Western Ontario, London, was installed as grand master.

Boy Hit By Bicycle Suffers Concussion

A six-year-old Sherbrooke St. boy is in Civic hospital today with concussion suffered Thursday night when he was struck by a b[illegible] of his home and about [illegible] in the house, saying he was sleepy. He went to sleep and his parents were unable to wake him after two hours.

His mother, Mrs. Ferdinand Malenfant, said she had noticed bicycle tire marks on the front of his right leg, and dirt in his hair and mouth.

The boy was taken to hospital, where he was found to be suffering from concussion. His condition today is reported good.

Two Dogs Poisoned

COBOURG, July 20—(ENS)—The death of two dogs from poison in town here has many people afraid that a poisoner is deliberately doing away with the dogs. However a veterinary points out that it would require examination by a pathologist to determine what kind of poison it was and there is a possibility that in both cases it was due to the dogs getting into something which had been sprayed or from uncovered garbage cans.

Gym Problem Up To City Board Decides

Board of Education and city council will have to decide between them the question of including a gymnasium in the proposed collegiate institute on Monaghan Rd. South, together with its financing.

That was the substance of the interview of their deputation on Thursday with a representative of the Ontario Municipal Board in Toronto.

Council was represented by Aldermen Waddell, Miller and Braund, and the Board of Education by Dr. Ralph Honey, chairman, and G. W. Craw, chairman of the property committee.

"The issue before the Board of Education is the inclusion of a gymnasium in the project in the circumstances of increased costs exceeding the $585,000 originally voted by the ratepayers.

$100,000 Extra

To construct the building as designed and desired would cost about $100,000 more than was estimated when the plans were first ordered. Extras cover increased cost of the foundation, plus the effect of a tighter money market, and the other difficulty reported from recent conference of the trustees and council.

Board of Education finds itself in a dilemma involving plans, costs and necessity of proceeding as soon as possible to provide the additional secondary school accommodation Peterborough actually requires.

The salient point of their problem is the question of $100,000 being made available for the financing of the school as planned, with the alternative of omitting the gymnasium for the present. Comments of some of the members of the council at their recent conference indicated reference of the extra financing to the ratepayers. Ontario Municipal Board was consulted both for discussion and some guidance.

Net result apparently is that the Board and council will have to follow the usual course of decision, followed by submitting a by-law, if that is to be their course.

Money bylaws are customarily sponsored by the Board, and the council submits them to the ratepayers, and it is likely that the decision of plan and financing will have to be reached by the Trustees, and also immediately.

Gave False Story Council Charges

PORT HOPE, July 20.—A Port Hope council member was called up on the carpet Tuesday night before an emergency meeting of the council on a charge of giving misleading information.

[illegible]'s Chairman, George Phillips and about [illegible] Most councillors claimed they had approved the project a week ago because of Mr. Phillips' statement.

Finance Chairman J. M. Rosevear explained that Bill Anderson, district head of the Highways Department, had stated that he had never been consulted about the project and that he would not recommend the department to pay 50 per cent.

Councillor Phillips denied having stated at the previous meeting that the approval of the department had been received.

The meeting ended with the resolution authorizing the paving be rescinded, but that the council approve the project and the proposed plans be submitted to the department for approval.

Workers Get Raise At Brinton

Union Security In 10-Cent Package Won By CCL Union

Production workers of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Thursday night unanimously voted to accept a package increase of roughly 10 cents an hour from the company. Some 237 production workers are affected.

Negotiations have been dragging on since before March 1, 1950, when the previous contract expired. During that 18½-month period the union—Local 822, Textile Workers' Union of America (CIO-CCL)—has applied twice for conciliation, had one conciliation report filed on its dispute with the company, and further negotiations that have now ended in mutual agreement.

New Items

Highlights of the proposed contract are a five-cents-an-hour increase to both hourly and piecework employees; three-and-a-half cents an hour C-O-L bonus; sick and accident plan paid for by the company, estimated at an extra one-and-a-half cents; and improved union security.

Albert E. Johnson, director of the joint board for the Trent Valley area, commented: "The current settlement represents a package which amounts to a small fraction less than 1 cent an hour for all employees, plus nearly 12 cents which has been picked up since the protracted negotiations began prior to March 1, 1950."

These gains were made automatically in line with the escalator clause for the cost of living.

There is an immediate increase of two cents (included in the 10¢ cent package) based on the latest C-O-L index figures, plus one and a half cents picked up by arrangement with the company on the understanding the formula will now be computed on an hourly rather than a weekly basis.

The new formula is one cent for each 1.4 point rise in the C-O-L index; formerly it was based on a 1.5 point rise.

Must Pay Dues

New employees will be required to pay union dues even though they do not join the union.

Pieceworkers now will get statutory holiday pay based on their average hourly earnings instead of the floor rate. This is estimated by union officials as a 30 per cent boost.

A sick and accident insurance plan will be paid for by the company giving $25 a week for men and $20 for women during 13 weeks of any one illness.

The work week is now established as being from Monday to Friday with overtime payment for all Saturday and Sunday work, unless these two days are specially designated as part of the employee's week.

Union Gains

Edward C. Clunney, assistant Canadian director of the TWUA, summed up the Peterborough workers' gains since the union won bargaining rights in August, 1948.

"The overall increase has been 30 cents an hour in that time," he said. "This is the greatest increase negotiated by any Canadian union during that period of time. Since March, 1950, the increase has been nearly 22 cents an hour or nearly a cent for each one-point rise in the C-O-L index."

The negotiating committee, headed by John Low, Local 822 president; Robt. Wilson, vice president; Sidney Field, recording secretary; Emmett McDonough, secretary-treasurer; Ethel Basciano, committee woman, and Frank Nichols, committee man.

Both parties expect the contract will be signed Monday. It will be effective from July 13 to February 28, 1952.

Tank of Tar On Fire

COBOURG, July 20—(ENS)—A tank of boiling tar caught fire at a service station under construction yesterday afternoon. Workmen were using the tar to waterproof the roof on the partially-constructed building when the big tank ignited. A large billow of black smoke rolled aloft, lit up by flames. There was plenty of sand nearby and the workmen finally put the fire out after a liberal smothering of sand. No damage.

Test Two-Way Radio

Chairman A. B. Burrows and two other members of the fire, water and light committee on Thursday afternoon attended a demonstration of the use of two-way radio in firefighting. Walkie-talkie sets were used and tests were made to see how the sets communicated with one another as well as with the central station at the firehall. The committee may recommend buying radio equipment that can be installed on a pumper truck and the chief's car. And for extreme mobility a couple or more walkie-talkie sets would be added.

Car Rolls Twice In Ditch, 3 Youths Hurt

Three Peterborough youths were injured shortly before 1 a.m. today when their northbound car went out of control on the Springville hill and rolled over a couple of times in the west ditch.

None of the injuries are believed to be serious.

In St. Joseph's hospital are Barry Thirnbeck, 21, 279 Westcott St., chest injuries; and David Dawson, 22, 422 Donegal St., spinal injuries. They are being X-rayed today to determine if any bones are broken.

The driver and owner of the car was Kenenth Coss, 21, 279 Westcott St. He has facial lacerations and bruises, and is being treated in Civic Hospital.

Driving Home

The trio were driving home to Peterborough when the car failed to make a turn at the Springville hill, five and a half miles southwest of the city. It plunged into the west ditch, rolled over a couple of times, and stopped 155 feet from where it left the paved surface of the highway.

Passing motorists had to pry open the wrecked vehicle to remove the three dazed and injured youths.

OPP Constables James Healey and George Rose investigated.

Much Rain Falls Hoses Stay Dry

Heavy rainfalls during the past month and a half have caused water consumption to drop sharply.

Consumption during June was down nearly 11,000,000 gallons from June of 1950, and July's consumption is following that trend, James Harrison, filtration plant superintendent, reported today.

Aided by this natural watering, homeowners have less trouble keeping their lawns and gardens moist, and this is one of the main reasons for the drop in consumption.

In June, 145,480,000 gallons passed through the city faucets, drinking fountains, etc., compared to 156,325,000 gallons in the same month of 1950.

June of 1950 showed a drop from consumption in June, 1949, when an all-time high of 172,627,000 gallons was used. In July last year, 164,759,000 gallons were used.

Civic Deficit $10,964 In 6 Months

Hospital Income Less Expenses Down Too From Budget Plans

Civic hospital's monthly financial statement, given Thursday night to the board of governors, shows an excess of expenditures over revenue of $10,964.20 for the first half of 1951.

This occurred mainly because there were fewer patients than expected; $332,364.04 was budgeted for as net revenue from patients, and $304,524.16 was the actual net revenue.

A second reason was that there were expenses in the first six months which will adjust over the year. That is, money was spent for supplies and services which will not have to be bought again this year.

Expenses Below Budget

Expenses were also down from the budgeted amount. It was estimated that $293,753.45 would be spent on salaries; $273,936.09 was spent in the half-year.

Total revenue was $419,471.90 in the first six months, against an estimated $438,032.72. Total expenditures were $430,436.10 against an estimated $437,612.65.

Fourteen items in the statement of expenditures were down from the budgeted amounts; seven were greater.

Up were, administrative expenses ($28,596.54 against an estimated $24,260.54), housing ($28,583.95 against $27,389.68), power plant ($30,517.35 against $28,261.59), pharmacy ($31-738.30 against $30,233), laboratory ($10,914.98 against $10,085.29), administrative nursing salaries ($24,815.18 against $24,747.90), and delivery room salaries ($4,-160.95 against $4,071.67).

Diet Costs Below

Down were: dietary costs ($89,-216.33 against $89,897.18), nursing school ($37,628.95 against $38,-886.23), medical and surgical supplies ($18,920.43 against $20,-000), nursing salaries ($59,-720.75 against $67,305.12), operating room salaries ($11,276.20 against $14,172.94), laundry and linen, telephone and switchboard, X-ray, physiotherapy, medical records, employee hospitalization, internes' salaries, residence salaries, and nursery salaries.

Small Book Explains Gov't System

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Canadians are so accustomed to governing themselves that they may sometimes forget how they actually do it.

A 90-page book now receiving wide distribution gives them the answers in simple language. The book is called "It's Our Business" and is written by George V. Ferguson, editor of The Montreal Star.

Explaining the title, Mr. Ferguson says:

"This business under discussion here is the most important business we have, for it is about Canada, your country and my country, the land we live in, the land we would rather live in than anywhere else on earth."

And, having told the story of Canada's government, how it has been inherited and adapted here, and its special problems, Mr. Ferguson comments:

"The method (of government) we have chosen has many imperfections. Nothing devised by human beings can be perfect. Not until the millenium can we hope for perfection. But our methods have one great and fundamental advantage over any other system of government ever invented: the individual, the little guy, cannot be pushed around by those in power, and he has ever freedom to talk about, to discuss, and to press for reform and improvement.

"Today in Canada we have a nice balance of forces acting on, and actuating our rulers: we have labor unions and trade associations, fishermen and farmers, retailers and sailors, business and professional men, stout-hearted individuals with ideas, and civil servants too.

"All these stand ready at the drop of a hat, indeed before the hat drops, to voice their views to government which in turn must make those concessions and compromises without which no happy Canadian family would be possible."

The book is, for the most part, a non-controversial presentation, but even if a reader finds himself in disagreement with some part of it, he will probably, from the reading, have a clearer idea of the matter on which he is in disagreement; and be stimulated into doing some solid thinking about it.

Korean Fighting Teaches Canadian Army Lessons

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, July 20 (CP)—It is almost a year since the Canadian government embarked on the formation of its United Nations force—the 25th Infantry Brigade group.

In that time the force has been recruited, trained and fielded, and now is engaged in aggressive patrolling that may be prelude to the end of its Korea campaigning

How has the training received in Canada and at Fort Lewis, Wash., withstood the test of battle and campaign?

Has Korea taught any lessons of future value to the army?

Basing their opinions on the performance of the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and later, on the rest of the brigade, authoritative observers answer:

"The training the troops received was excellent preparation for the conditions they later encountered here.

"And experience here indicates that part of the specialized training they received might well be integrated into the regular program at home."

Mountain Warfare

They consider it unlikely that Canadians will fight anywhere else under conditions equalling those imposed by Korea. They say only mountain warfare in the defence of Canada would place the same demands on the troops.

Even so ,anything which points the way to producing harder, tougher, better trained soldiers merits borrowing, and Korea has provided some ideas.

The Patricias learned in Korea to inure themselves to the country's difficulties of terrain and climate.

The rest of the brigade, in their training in Canada and Fort Lewis, underwent, it is said here, exercise conditions for prolonged periods far worse than anything they have encountered in "the real thing."

What has Korea taught, then, that can be used to improve Canadian training?

Infantrymen must be conditioned into taikng 2,000 and 3,000-foot mountains in their stride. They must learn to climb them with 50- and 75-pound packs on their backs. They must reach the point of physical fitness that it becomes just another, if more taxing, form of walking.

Water Discipline

Troops must be taught water discipline—not to drink on the ascent, to ignore their thirst and conserve their water for the summit. Troops who empty their water bottles on the climb find they've perspired all the water away by the time they get there, and have nothing left to shake the accentuated thirst.

Troops, too, might learn while in training in Canada the taste of treated water so that the slight bitterness len by purification tablets and chlorination does not put them off water, coffee or tea when soldiering really begins.

They should learn more uphill fieldcraft—how to fight their way up a mountainside, making best use of cover and concealment.

That means they should be taught uphill weapons firing and grenade-throwing. Grenades are better than bayonets for emptying enemy-occupied dig-outs or killing their occupants. But they also have to be thrown skilfully lest they fall back onto the thrower.

Once at the top the men have to eat, usually on tinned rations they've carried with them. They should be taught field cooking, individually and in small groups of four and fiv, how to use their canned-heat tablets economically, and the craft of building a smokeless fire with dried twigs when the tablets give out.

The Canadian army always has been foot-conscious. In mountainwork it has to be more so. The buddies who pair-up in their slit trenches must learn to care for one another's feet, to massage them, to use foot-powder (which now is issued) properly.

Turning from the infantry to the other arms, C squadron of the Lord Strathcona Horse has demonstrated that keen armor will go practically anywhere the infantry it is supoprting goes. That means training grounds in mountain areas.

Similarly with the artillery and mortar men. They need mountain firing ranges with plenty of razor-backed spines on which to practise. In this sort of country, with false crests and tricky gullies, the difference of one foot in elevation can mean whether a shell will land where it's supposed to, or go careening on into the next valley.

Korea also has emphasized the value of daily maintenance and good road discipline for the army's transport. Without attention of a mother the vehicles jostle and bounce apart. Unless drivers learn to kee their 50-yard intervals between one another traffic jams and free-running traffic is unable to threat its way through convoys.

Korea has had its lessons for everybody — even the signallers, who have had to be tough enough to climb with the infantry, stringing out behind them 50-pound dispensers of wire linking up unit communications. Physically, the signallers have the most exacting [illegible] in the army.

British Doctors May Quit On Pay Question

LONDON, July 20 (AP) — All 20,000 physicians in Britain's socialized health service told the government Thursday they would resign Sept. 25 unless their demands for increased pay rates were submitted to arbitration

The ultimatum was delivered to Health Minister Hilary A. Marquand after British Medical Association committees from all counties conferred for seven hours in London.

Unless arbitration is agreed upon by the deadline, the BMA statement said, the resignation of the 20,000 should be considered submitted as of that date.

The doctors now get a flat fee of $250 a year per patient and are allowed to sign on a maximum of 4,000 patients. They have been complaining they have to take on too many to earn a decent living.

Most Doctors Belong

The medical men, who signed up under Britain's national health service, include all except 1,000 of the country's general practitioners. The income of each is estimated between $3,000 and $6,000 a year. The average British worker is credited with an income of $873 a year.

The program was three years old July 5.

Negotiations for pay increase have been under way for months between the ministry of health and the physicians' group, but the doctors insist they have been getting nowhere.

In May the Labor Government pushed through parliament, against strong opposition within its own ranks, a bill ending free spectacles and false teeth under public health service. Now Britons must pay half the cost of these items. The government insisted the change was necessary to cut the cost of socialized health service in order to provide more funds for rearmaments.

Bullet Lodges In Leg Boy 11 Digs It Out

HOBOKEN, NJ, July 20—(AP)—Two 11-year-old boys found a .32-calibre bullet and fired it from a popgun.

When the bullet lodged in Joseph Lawless' leg he calmly dug it out with a penknife and walked to a nearby hospital.

As an intern started probing in the wound for the bulelt, young Joe told him:

"You don't have to go digging in there doc. I already dug it out with my penknife. Just put some peniciling in it."

Amputate Leg

Youth Charged With Murder

MONTREAL, July 20 —(CP)—Norman (Red) Roy, 18, was charged with murder Thursday in the death of Robert D. Fowler, restaurant worker.

Fowler was found dead of a broken neck in a Montreal tourist home July 8.

Charles Hanlon, 20, who drove Roy to Hawkesbury, Ont., after the slaying, was charged with being an accessory after the fact of murder.

Preliminary hearings for both were set for July 26. Hanlon was allowed bail of $1,000.

The murder charge against Roy came shortly after a coroner's jury, which deliberated only three minutes, found him criminally responsible for Fowler's death.

The slight, baby-faced youth surrendered after his mother had pleaded with him on the telephone to return to Montreal from Cornwall. He formerly lived in Toronto.

Killed By Truck

WINDSOR, July 20 — (CP) — Robert George Young, 17-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Young, was killed Thursday when two wheels of a milk truck passed over his body as he sat on the road in front of his home. Police identified the driver of the truck as 25-year-old Joseph Ditty, of Windsor, an employee of a Windsor dairy.

Six MP's Seeking Oust Red Dean

LONDON, July 20—(Reuters)—Six Conservative members of parliament Thursday decided to seek the ouster of the "Red" Dean of Canterbury from his office.

They said he is guilty of preaching subversive and heretical doctrines and resolved to urge the House of Commons to ask the King for his removal.

The dean, Dr. Hewlett Johnson, 77, is known for his pro-Communist views. He has just returned from a visit to Moscow where he received the Stalin Peace Prize.

On Tuesday Prague radio quoted the dean as saying that even if he were turned out of Canterbury Cathedral or murdered there before the altar it would not affect the struggle for peace.

He is appointed by the King on the advice of the Prime Minister. He can only be removed by the King—again on the Premier's advice.

Plane 6 Feet From Peak Took 58 Canadian Lives

GRENOBLE, France, July 20. (CP)—The crash of the airliner Canadian Pilgrim last Nov. 13, which cost the lives of 58 persons, could have been avoided if the plane had been flying six feet higher, an official investigating party reported Thursday night.

The DC-4 was on its way back to Canada from a Holy-Year pilgrimage to Rome when it hit near the top of 8,500-foot Mont l'Obiou in the French Alps during bad weather. Forty-nine Canadian pilgrims, including 13 Roman Catholic clergymen, and a seven-man Canadian crew were killed. An American and an Itlian priest also lost their lives.

The investigators were the first to reach the wreckage to make proper investigation of the crash possible.

On their return they said the plane would have cleared Mont l'Obiou if it had flown six feet higher.

The plane was reached originally by a rescue party the day after the crash. All but two of the bodies were brought down. These two still are missing.

But ice and snow prevented a thorough investigation of the cause of the accident.

The 30 climbers led by Maurice Bellonte, head of the French Air Security Office, started off at dawn to scale Obiou peak. The wreckage was reached at noon and the instrument panel and other clues to the crash were removed from the plane. Searchers reported that two of the bodies were missing.

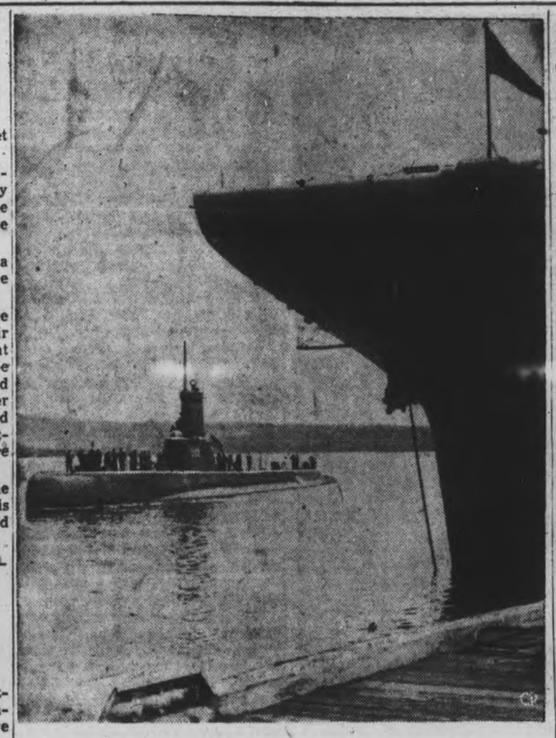
The party reported that the scattering of the bodies and debris showed that the Skymaster had exploded.

Shashlik Scandal Shakes Russians, Demand Action

MOSCOW, July 20—(AP)—A great shashlik scandal broke in the USSR Thursday.

Certain officials, said the government newspaper Izvestia, have been exchanging the makings of shashlik for diplomas in a Central Asian agricultural school—lambs for sheepskin, in effect.

Shashlik is lamb, spiced and roasted on a sword over an open fire. The tribesmen of the USSR's Central Asian provinces are mad about it.



Izvestia, with a discernible note of shock, reported that some graduates of the Bayram Ali Agricultural Technical School got their diplomas by fattening up lambs and, as Izvestia put it, greasing certain palms with mutton fat. One student whose father's sheep made him rich drove up to school one day in his new Pobeda sedan, unloaded a fat lamb from the rear seat, and won a diploma in one hour flat.

The newspaper hinted darkly that the shashlik gang had connections in the Republic Ministry of Agriculture. Here, it said, Deputy Chief of Personnel Kasumov was always willing to give a letter of recommendation to the Bayram Ali School, and thus confer education upon certain persons without any effort on their part.

Those responsible — shameless lovers of shashlik—are still unpunished, Izvestia said.

National Army

QUEBEC, July 20 (CP)—Archbishop Maurice Roy, of Quebec, Roman Catholic ordinary of the armed forces, said Thursday night the Canadian army "is truly a national army because it reflects the bilingual character of the country." He made the statement at a regimental dinner for 350 high school army cadets and their 130 instructors now in training at nearby Valcartier.

Provincial Police May Stay At Resort

TORONTO, July 20 — (CP) — Crystal Beach may continue to have provincial police officers enforce the law within its limits.

Provincial officers were sent to the summer resort community 15 miles west of Buffalo, NY, after reports indicated that Crystal Beach was on the way to becoming a "wide open" town, with violence and rowdiness, bootlegging, illicit sex and narcotics peddling. The village dismissed its own police chief.

Attorney-General Porter said Thursday that the Crystal Beach council conferred with him Wednesday about its police problems.

Use No Influence On Milk Board

Hint Possibility Strike May End

TIMMINS, July 20 (CP)—Possibility of a settlement of the Hollinger Mines strike, now moving towards its 11th day, was seen Thursday by Mayor Philip Fay.

The mayor returned from Ottawa Wednesday night with Karl Eyre, Liberal member of parliament for Timmins, after discussing the strike with government officials.

"I'm keeping my fingers crossed," he said. "Two or three words might upset the whole thing."

A mine official said company officials were not ready to discuss anything new with union representatives. However, they would talk with a mediator.

E. L. Longmorezn, general manager of the mine, said vacation wages due striking miners would be paid. He said strikers lose $16,830 a day in wages.

The 1,600 miners struck July 9 to enforce demands for a wage increase of 17 cents an hour and a check-off of union dues.

Ontario Will Renew Plea For Housing Loan

TORONTO, July 20 (CP)—Premier Frost said Thursday that the Ontario government will renew its representations to federal authorities for restoration of the additional one-sixth National Housing Act Loan which was available to home builders before credit restrictions were tightened this year.

In 1948 a provincial plan was instituted to provide persons lacking funds for an NHA down payment with a second mortgage loan of up to $1,250. By a subsequent federal-provincial agreement this down payment help was achieved by permitting larger NHA mortgages and separate Ontario loans were dropped.

Ship Trouble Between Rival Unions

MONTREAL, July 20 (CP)—A spokesman for Hall Corporation of Canada said Thursday night "there is no trouble between ourselves and the crews" although a union statement from Detroit said Hall ships have been declared "hot" at United States ports on the Great Lakes.

The spokesman here was quoted as saying "The trouble is between the two unions."

The spokesman was referring to the National Maritime Federation, "with whom we have contracts," and the Seafarers' International (AFL) who, the spokesman said is "no doubt trying to make an effort to organize among our men."

None of the company's 13 ships are tied up "our crews always seem to have been satisfied. No complaints have come to the office."

Hal C. Banks, Canadian director of the SIU, said his union had not called anyone on strike.

He said some crews may "come to us for help or advice" when they are dissatisfied with conditions under which they are working.

Won't Cross Lines

If these crews walk off, he said, it is the AFL policy not to cross picket lines.

Officials of the NMP were not immediately available for comment.

Earlier, the company said one of its ships is in dock at Kingston, but that it was only awaiting orders. There was no connection with labor difficulties.

The spokesman summed the affair up Thursday night by saying: "We have no trouble. There is nothing to it as far as we are concerned."

The Walter B. Reynolds, a Hall ship, originally was strike-bound in Ogdensburg, NY, but arrived in Prescott, Ont., Wednesday night. It was reported there the ship was manned by a skeleton crew, 10 seamen sent from Montreal, but a company spokesman later said the vessel carried a full, new crew.

Original Foil Bathing Suits HighlightOrnamentalShow

"The finest swimmers I've seen declared the chief director of the Canadian National Sportman's Show of Peterborough Ornamental Swim Club as he introduced thier annual presentation to the public here Thursday evening, at the Lions Club pool.

Mr. Loyal Kelly of Toronto explained in like terms why the Peterborough girls were selected for the program at his Toronto show last May and also declared that they were "tops" on that program which aims to present the finest talent available.

The swimmers this year portrayed the fantasy, brought up-to-date with "dogpatch" comedy, Aladdin and his wonderful lamp." They did it well although the pool amplifier was out of order and badly distorted their special music. Mr. Kelly, at the conclusion complimented the girls on carrying through in spite of this difficulty as true 'sports."

They were aided by the Citizens Band which played also before the show.

Glowing color "foil" bathing suits and caps highlighted the show. Of original design, it was the first time they have been used by the Club. The first suit of the kind was worn just a year ago by the winner of the international synchronized swimming competition at Detroit. Other snappy costumes made use of another modern material, plastic.

The costumes, which mainly interpret the story to the audience, are all designed by the coach of club, and choregrapher of all the shows and performances of the swimmers, Mrs. Pansy Forbes. Without Mrs. Forbes' constant efforts Peterborough would not have a swimming club that is so widely recognized and acclaimed, in spite of financial limitations.

A shivering crowd that stayed to the finale gave evidence by applause that they appreciated most of the patterns formed on the surface of the water. If the show could be presented at a time when they could see the underwater precision movements of the swimmers, their enjoyment of the other intricate tricks would therefore be very greatly increased.

Seeing only heads, hands and feet does not give the viewer a good conception of synchronized swimming which requires the precision, grace and body control of a ballet dancer. It is because the Peterborough girls have so well mastered the art by hours of practice that they are able to tell a story as they perform noiselessly in the water.

The part of Aladdin was taken by Mary Rutherford who first appeared in the pool with a coming star swimmer, four-year old Janice Crary, elder daughter of Mrs. Isabel Crary who was one of the precision swimmers. Jean Millard first appeared as a canary bird and later took the part of the princess who married Aladdin. Mrs. Betty Welch played Aladdin's mother, Mrs. [illegible]ne Storey, the magician. Prince Lovejoy was Mrs. Iris Reilly, the Fairy Queen, Norma Gant. The Geni was Mrs. Shirley Moldaver who gave the crowd the best showing of solo work.

Dogpatch characters, "Daisy Mae" (Norma Gant), "Moonbeam McSwine", (Jean Millard), "Lil Abner" (Beverley Rumary) and "Lonesome Polecat" (Iris Reilly) were introduced as a part of America at the request of Sultan Joan Monks. Flowers of the garden come to life did a very enjoyable quintet number, and a military precision number by a quartette of guards to the Sultan's palace was very good. The Spirit of Youth was Nancy Doubt of Lakefield.

During the show Miss Lois Payne of Toronto, former junior diving champion of Ontario, performed skillfully from the high board.

Prior to the opening, Herb Cardwell of Wallace Point, and sons Bob and George, demonstrated what "not to do" in a canoe, then showed balancing feats and acrobatic stunts with canoes. Mr. Cardwell evidenced skill that will be difficult to surpass, though the sons are getting benefit of his training.

Immaculate Conception Church was the scene on Tuesday morning of a double ring wedding ceremony uniting Mary Margaret Doreen Crough and Raymond Callistus Arthurs of Whitby. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Crough of Peterborough and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Arthurs of Lindsay.

The Rev. Father Greenan said the mass and Rt. Rev. Monsignor McCauley of Lindsay was present in the sanctuary.

Red roses and lilies decorated the altar. During signing of the register Mrs. Leo Martyn sang "Ave Maria." Wedding music was played by organist Mr. H. Michel.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle Mr. Loyola Moloney with whom she has made her home. Her gown was of Chantilly lace fashioned with a skirt in three tiers of lace, each edged with a deep net ruffle, and the Peter Pan Collar which finished the fitted bodice with long, lily point sleeves was also edged with a net ruffle. Her circular veil of illusion was trimmed with lace and caught to a lace Juliet cap with pearl bead trim. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

In attendance was her sister Miss Coletta Crough, gowned in yellow marquisette made with puff sleeves and large shawl collar with ruffle trim. A soft sash of the same material was draped at the waistline and formed a large bow at back of the full skirt. Her headdress was of mauve flowers and she wore mauve mittens. She carried a prayer book with streamers and Talisman rosebuds.

The groom was attended by his nephew Patrick Arthurs and the ushers were Emmett and Paul Crough, brothers of the bride.

The reception was held at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Loyola Moloney, RR 9, Peterborough. Dinner was served there to 90 guests and about 175 attended the reception in the afternoon.

Mrs. Moloney was gowned for the occasion in navy mesh and wore white and blue accessories and a corsage of red roses. She was assisted in receiving by the bride's mother who wore navy sheer with white accessories and pink carnations, and the groom's mother who also was in navy sheer, wearing navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The bridal couple left later for Toronto, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and other points. Going away the bride wore a dress of triple sheer in bouquet blue shade and had navy and pink accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthurs will live in Whitby.

STOLE STYLE—Several yards of coarse black fish net make this elegant stole an invaluable aid to "dressing up" the simplest cotton dress.

DOROTHY DIX

Father Thwarts Stepmother In Training Of Children

DEAR MISS DIX: How is a mother to have any influence over her children if the father blocks her at every turn? And especially how is a stepmother to help the children if their father takes their part in everything they do and makes them think that the stepmother's ideas are silly and useless? I married a widower with two boys, 12 and 14 years of age. They had been taught no table manners, not even how to speak correctly. I am very anxious to be of some real service to these children, but when I try to get them to eat wholesome food instead of stuffing themselves on candies and cookies their father makes fun of me before them. When I ask them to do some little household task, he thinks it is funny when they impudently refuse. And when the oldest boy uses vile language and calls the other child horrible names and I try to stop him, the father says: "What's wrong with it?" Is there anything I can do about it?

Dorothy Dix

DISCOURAGED STEPMOTHER

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It takes teamwork, a mother and father working together, to bring up children properly, and it is virtually impossible for either one to do it alone and turn out a good job.

Youngsters Catch On

Children are amazingly clever and soon find out which parent is the soft one who can be cajoled or frightened or worn down into giving them their way. This nullifies all family discipline. For when little Johnny discovers that he can appeal from Father to Mother, or from Mother to Father, he is left free to follow his own sweet will.

It is very difficult for even an own mother, whose children have the habit of affection for her, to do anything with her youngsters if their father opposes her attempts to rear them properly. And for a stepmother the task becomes impossible under such conditions. For the children, in addition to their instinctive dislike for being civilized, always think that the stepmother is trying to impose upon them.

If you are strongly imbued with the missionary spirit, you may continue your efforts to turn your adolescent stepchildren into gentlemen, but with their father thwarting you at every step I fear it will be love's labor lost.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Is there anything wrong in widows and widowers marrying again? Life in the later years can be very lonesome for people between 50 and 65 whose families are grown up and in their own homes.

L. W.

ANSWER Many widows and widowers of the ages you mention find happiness in marriage, after they have brought up their children. It is much better to settle down with a companion your own age than to hang onto your children like a millstone and make their lives, as well as your own, miserable. Companionable people in the twilight of life, who share similar interests such as music, books, gardening or even travel, can live out their days in usefulness and contentment, contributing the sum of their wisdom to the betterment of community life.

Such marriages seem an idyllic solution, but unfortunately the ever-present problem of middle-aged loneliness is not a simple one. The difficulty lies chiefly in the scarcity of men in the upper age brackets as contrasted to the number of women who are long-lived. Man has a shorter life span than woman, which leaves most widowed mothers of grown-up families alone to combat the vicissitudes of age. Most of them, thank heaven, do a very creditable job of it!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For some time I have been going with a fellow who has asked me to marry him, but I refused as I do not love him. My grandmother heard of his proposal and told me that I was silly not to accept his offer. She says these days you can't marry for love but must think of a husband who will give you a good home. I know this chap will do that but I think it is foolish to marry someone you don't love. I am 18, and this boy is 25.

DEBBIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I have a tremendous respect for grandmothers, and usually find their advice of great value, so I am sorry indeed to have to disagree with your grandmother. Nothing could be worse than her suggestion that you marry someone you don't love. You're only 18 and have lots of time to find a man you'll really love and who can also give you a good home. Have your good times for a while yet. Grandma in this case is a little out of line.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

New Ideas For Sandwiches Will Brighten Picnic Lunch

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Picnicking? Then you may want some new ideas for sandwiches.

Home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have come forth with suggestions on "The Art of Making Sandwiches."

Correct estimate of supplies is important, particularly when it is a case of making sandwiches for large groups of people. One small sandwich loaf cut into 30 to 40 slices—each slightly less than ¼ inch thick.

One loaf needs ⅛ pound of butter, say the home economists. Enough moist meat filling for 2½ cups (1¼ pounds) spreads one loaf of bread.

One dozen hard-cooked eggs, choped and mixed with onion and salad dressing spreads one loaf.

If crusts are to be cut from sandwiches save butter and filling by removing crusts before spreading bread. Crusts can be used for crumbs, bread puddings, and so on.

Butter will go farther if creamed until light and fluffy.

Garnishes For Glamor

Fancy sandwiches always need coolr. Here are garnishes to remember: Red — beets, cherries, cranberries, pimento, radishes; green—asparagus, celery, green pepper, pepper grass, watercress; yellow—cheese, pears; orange—pimento cheese, apricots; black—prunes, pickled walnuts, ripe olives; brown—dates, figs, potato chips.

Peanut butter mixed with salad dressing, fruit juice or honey; chili sauce and crisp bacon; honey and grated carrot; mashed or sliced banana and salad dressing or marmalade or honey.

Artsy-Craftsy

Individual rolled sandwiches—Use fresh bread, sliced thinly. Be certain crusts are removed. Spread with salad dressing or butter, then with filling. Roll like a jelly-roll. Seal edge of each roll with salad dressing, butter or filling. Wrap rolled sandwiches in slightly dampened tea towel or waxed dampened tea towel or waxed paper. Chill until set before toasting or serving plain. Toothpicks may be used to keep the sandwich rolled.

Pinwheel sandwich—Use fresh bread, slice loaf lengthwise and make certain all crusts are removed. Spread filling on slices. Beginning at the end, roll like jelly-roll. For a contrasting centre place one of the following across one end of each slice and begin rolling from this end—a peeled banana, a dill pickle (whole or with centre removed and stuffed with cream cheese); halves or quarters of hard-cooked eggs; a row of marachino cherries or stuffed olives.

Wrap roll in wax paper and chill. Slice before serving. Each roll will cut into from six to eight pinwheels.

Ribbon Sandwiches

Using fresh or day-old bread, stack alternately two slices of brown bread and two slices of white bread, filling with one or more spreads. Firmly press together. With a sharp knife using a sawing motion slice crusts from all sides of each stock. Cover with wax paper or a moist cloth. After cutting the one-half inch slices cut each slice in thirds, halves or two to four triangles.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Reader Asks For Drum Cake Hungarian Walnut Layer

Question: Would it be possible to obtain the recipe for the traditional Hungarian "Drum Cake" and their rich "Walnut layer cake"?

The drum cake is in 8 layers and it is something like jelly roll in texture. The Walnut cake has, in my opinion, a rum flavour with the walnuts. They are both iced with chocolate.

Edna C. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

Answer: Luckily a friend of mine has a friend who is a Hungarian and who makes these cakes you are enquiring about. I have details direct from the Hungarian lady.

Hungarian Walnut Layer Cake

Ingredients: 12 tablespoons sugar, 12 eggs—yolks and whites separated, 3 tablespoons flour, 6 tablespoons ground walnuts, 3 tablespoons breadcrumbs, 1 tablespoon baking powder.

Method: Beat egg whites and yolks in separate bowls. Add the sugar to the yolks and beat well. Add the flour, breadcrumbs and walnuts to the yolks gradually while beating. Take ½ teaspoon of baking powder and add it to the yolk mixture. Add the remaining ½ teaspoon baking powder to the whites, folding it in. Combine the beaten whites with the yolk mixture folding so that no air is lost. Pour into 3 9-inch layer or pie tins which have been buttered. Bake about 15 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr.

Icing For Walnut Cake

One-half pound unsalted butter, ½ lb. sugar, ½ cup cold strong coffee, 4 eggs, 2 or 3 tablespoons cocoa. Beat the eggs, yolks and whites together, then add the coffee and beat and put on to boil over low heat stirring constantly to prevent burning. Keep stirring until almost all of the moisture evaporates. Cool. While this is cooling cream the butter with the sugar. Press the cooled egg and coffee mixture through a sieve to make it fine. Add it to the butter-sugar mixture then add the cocoa and mix well. Press through sieve again to make it very fine.

Now break one of the layers of the cake up into about ¾ or 1-inch pieces and pour over it ½ cup cooking rum. Now ice one layer of the cake and put the rum soaked crumbs over this iced layer. Ice the crumbs. (My informant tells me the icing is so soft it is quite manageable and will spread over the moist crumbs.) Put on last layer and ice it with the remaining icing. Let it all set well before cutting.

Hungarian Drum Cake

The same method and same icing are used for Drum cake as are used for the walnut cake but the ingredients are changed a little. Ingredients; 12 eggs, 12 tablespoons flour, 12 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon baking powder. Beat yolks and whites separately. Add the flour to the yolk and sugar mixture. Add ½ teaspoon baking powder to yolk mixture. Fold the beaten whites into the yolk mixture. Butter 8 tin cake or pie plates of 8 or 9-inch diameter and spread batter on to only pancake thickness. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. Keep opening oven door to watch these or they might burn. When they shrink a little from sides they are done—about 12 or 15 minutes. Put together with Walnut cake icing between every layer.

Ex-Catcher Dies

SONOMA, Calif., July 20. (AP)—Sam Agnew, one-time American League catcher, died in a hospital Thursday night after a two-year illness with heart trouble. Agnew's Major League career began in 1913 with St. Louis Browns. He moved to Boston Red Sox in 1916 and to Washington in 1919. During the 20's, he played with the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League.

FAMILIAR STORY

In the 1850s the Connecticut Legislature banned nine-pin bowling because the sport had been overrun by gamblers.

Citation Ends Million Dollar Racing Career

By BOB MYERS

INGLEWOOD, Calif., July 20—(AP)—"The big horse is through."

With those five words, finis was written to the racing career of Citation, the first million dollar winner in turf history and a thoroughbred many call the greatest of all time.

Jimmy Jones, the Calumet's trainer, who has guided Citation since first he groped as a shaky-legged yearling in his native Kentucky, said the words. He said them with tears in his eyes, sadness in his voice.

Retirement of Citation at the nice old age of six was the wish of Mrs. Warren Wright. She is the widow of the master of the Calumet farm in the Bluegrass country, and it was her husband who set the final goal for Citation.

Well Over Goal

The goal was $1,000,000. Citation hit and passed the mark last Saturday when he won the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup Handicap. The $100,000 sent his all-time earnings up to $1,085,000.

The mark will stand for a long time. There is no one on the scene now, from all appearances, able to threaten it.

The cold record shows that Citation raced 45 times. Of those starts, he captured 32 wins. He ran second 10 times—seven during a troublesome year of 1950. He raced third twice, when he was just getting going again early this spring. He ran out of the money one time. He's bowing out at a great time. And if we raced him some more—well, any horse can get broken up in a race. Might never happen, but again, it might.

"Yes," concluded Jimmy, "I guess this is the time, when he's at the peak."

Citation was the scourge of the three-year-old division in 1948. He won the triple crown—Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont—in scorching fashion.

Indians Edge Boston 5-4 As Tigers Split Twin Bill

By JOE REICHLER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Bob Avila, fleet-footed Cleveland second-baseman, is the principal reason why the Indians today are only 1½ games behind the American League-leading Boston Red Sox.

It was Avila's batting and fielding Thursday that gave the Indians an 11-inning 5-4 victory over Boston, their ninth in 15 meetings with the pace-setters.

The victory left the Tribe still in fourth place, but a bare two percentage points behind third-place New York which bowed to Chicago White Sox 2-1.

Only 17 points and 1½ games separate the first four clubs in one of the tightest races on record.

Detroit and Philadelphia divided a doubleheader. The Tigers won the nightcap 4-3 after Morris Martin hurled the A's to a 5-0 decision in the opener. In the other league game the Browns scored six runs in the eighth inning to whip Washington Senators 9-7 in a night affair.

Rain wiped out the National League schedule.

Has "Cousins"

It wasn't until this year that Avila discovered he had "cousins" as far north as Boston. In fact the stocky little Mexican from Vera Cruz has a flock of 'em. They all pitch for the Red Sox.

In 15 games with Boston, Avila has socked Red Sox pitchers for 28 hits in 62 games at bat, a rousing .452 batting average. Three of his four homers have been banged off Boston twirlers all in one game. Seven of Bob's 24 RBI's have been at their expense too.

Avila has been just as murderous against the Red Sox on defence. He has made only one miscue in 103 chances for a .990 percentage.

Avila, a singles hitter, (only 15 of his 87 hits have gone for extra bases), slapped four Thursday to lead the Indians to victory. His fourth single scored pinch-hitter Bob Lemon with tying run. Sam Chapman then singled behind third. Left fielder Ted Williams, expecting Avila to stop at third, held the ball momentarily; Avila, with a burst of speed, surprised Williams by continuing to run to beat Ted's throw to the plate.

Early Wynn went the route for the Tribe to win his fifth straight and his 10th of the season against nine losses.

Take Rubber

Outhit 11-5, the White Sox nevertheless took the rubber of the three-game set with New York on the erratic but effective hurling of Howie Judson. The right-hander yielded at least one hit in each of the first seven innings, and put runners on base in every frame until relieved by Billy Pierce in the ninth.

The Sox got their runs off loser Ed Lopat in the third. Chico Carrasquel singled, Joe Erautt walked both runners advanced on a sacrifice and scored on a fly by Bob Williams and a double by Fox.

First-baseman Lou Limmer's wild throw allowed the Tigers to tally a tie-breaking run in the eighth inning and win the second game after Martin had held them to five hits and no runs in the opener.

Control Bill Partly Saved For Truman

Strip Many Features Before Passing Patchwork Measures

WASHINGTON, July 21. — (AP)—A stripped-down economic controls bill, minus most of the added features President Truman wanted, was passed by the House of Representatives early today.

The measure, extending wage, price and other controls for one year, now goes to a senate-house committee to iron out differences between it and an eight-month extension voted by the senate. On the whole, the two differed but little on several major points; none on a few.

As the house bill finally emerged, it was a patchwork of amendments which appeared to satisfy neither Democrats nor Republicans.

Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston said the bill does not give consumers "the break they deserved."

Partial Victory

In the gruelling 14-hour wind-up session ending early this morning, administration leaders were able to snatch at least partial victory out of a fight studded with defeats over the last two weeks.

They knocked out an amendment freezing price and wage ceilings for 120 days at July 7 levels.

They succeeded in reversing a previously-adopted requirement that price ceilings on farm and manufactured goods must reflect costs plus a "reasonable profit."

Administration forces also managed to reverse an earlier house action which assured meat packers and processors a profit on every animal processed.

And they salvaged the recent 10-per-cent cutback on live beef prices, though the house refused to grant the additional nine per cent planned by price stabilizer Michael V. Disalle.

On several other major issues, the administration suffered stinging defeats.

Among other things, the house torpedoed Truman's repeated pleas for livestock slaughtering quotas; denied him authority to acquire and operate defence plants or create new government corporations; refused him powers to licence business or regulate commodity speculation; banned the import of foreign fats and oils for two years; refused to consider farm subsidies, and slapped down a request for a new formula for figuring farm parity.

PEI Woman School Teacher Captains Team To First Bisley Cup Victory Since 1934

BISLEY, England, July 21—(Reuters)—A team of Canadian sharpshooters won the Commonwealth Rajah of Kolapore Imperial Challenge Cup here toda for the first time since 1934.

A woman captained the team —Lieut. Mary MacLellan, a school teacher from Alexandria, PEI, first Canadian woman ever to compete in this all-Commonwealth shooting tournament.

Ranges were 300, 500 and 600 yards, with a maximum possible of 150.

Canadian scores were: Capt. G. J. Gamble, Winnipeg, 133; Cpl. G. H. Farkuharson, Kamloops, BC, 137; Lieut. G. A. Colville, Winnipeg, 143; Capt. M. M. Morgan, Winnipeg, 134; CSM N. L. Beckett, Hamilton, 140; S Sgt. G. B. Kay, Hamilton, 140; Sgt. R. S. Potter, Hamilton, 144; and Lieut. G. S. Boa, Toronto, 145. The total was 1,120.

Britain scored 1,119, Guenrsey 1,090, and Jersey 1,078.

As captain of the winning team, Mrs. MacLennan wins a silver medal given by the National Rifle Association, sponsors of the meet.

Miss MacLennan teaches at West Kent School, Alexandria, and is a member of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps Supplementary Reserve at Charlottetown. A brother, Sgt. G. G. MacLennan, a member of the PEI Highlanders, accompanied Canada's team to Bisley in 1928.

The Canadian team, which wins the cup, presented in 1871 by the Rajah of Kolapore, took second place last year with a total score of 1,097. Southern Rhodesia, with a score of 1,100, was the 1950 winner.

Truce Talks Postponed, Red Request

Will Meet July 25 UN Negotiators Reluctantly Agree

MUNSAN, Korea, July 21. — (AP)—Korean cease-fire talks at Kaesong were recessed today until July 25 at Red request. The Communists said they wanted the recess "to enable both sides to study the proposals thus far presented."

After today's meeting, Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief United Nations negotiator, flew to Tokyo to confer with United Nations supreme commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

Reporters there asked him if things were going all right and he replied: "I guess so." He had no further comment.

Joy was accompanied by Maj.-Gen. L. C. Craigie and Rear Admiral Arleigh Burke, two other members of the Allied five-man negotiating team.

The delegates will return to the Allied peace camp here Monday.

See No Need

United Nations headquarters in Tokyo said in a statement the UN command agreed to the temporary halt in the talks "although it sees no need for such a recess in view of the agreement reached thus far on points it considers necessary for an agenda."

A question not immediately answered was: Did that mean that not many points had been agreed upon?

Or did it mean that negotiations had been progressing so smoothly and agreeably that the United Nations delegates saw no reason for any backward looks?

At Eighth Army headquarters, Associated Press Correspondent Nate Polowetzky said there was speculation that Communists needed time to receive further instructions to deal with the UN delegation's adamant stand against withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

Today, for the first time, the United Nations command disclosed officially that the "basic" issue

Foreign Office Official Fired, Scientist Barred

LONDON, July 21. (CP)—Britain's Foreign Office today fired one of its officials after requesting that he turn in his passport and simultaneously impounded the passport of a London university atomic scientist, bound for a goodwill trip to Russia. The foreign Office said neither case is connected with the disappearance last month of two other Foreign Office officials, Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean. The scientist, London university's Professor E. H. Burhop, cancelled an air trip to Russia with members of a British goodwill delegation half an hour before the plane was to leave, it was reported.

The suspended foreign official was not named, but it was reported his passport had not been cancelled, but returned to the authorities.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the two men were on a list of 12 persons forbidden by the government to leave the country. The list was issued to all air and sea ports with instructions to detain any persons on it if they should try to leave.

Party Of 20

Burhop was to have accompanied a party of 20, visiting Russia through the British-Soviet Friendship Society, a Communist-front organization.

The other 19 members left London airport as scheduled.

William Ridsdale, Foreign News Department Chief, said the decision to prevent the Australian-born Burhop from going to Moscow was that he was in possession of scientific knowledge.

Burhop worked on atomic bomb projects in the United States during the Second World War. He is vice-chairman of the British Association of Scientific Workers and a leading member of its atomic sciences committee.

At a farewell dinner Friday night, Burhop said he was looking forward to meeting Soviet scientists and spending two days on a collective farm.

It is not known whether the suspended Foreign Office official had been planning a trip outside Britain. The government said the 12-man list was issued as a precautionary move, "taken as the result of inquiries."

Can't Take Chances

The action against Burhop had been taken because "it is not in the national interest that this gentleman should make this projected journey to Moscow at this time."

The leader of the Russian-bound party, Dr. I. Gilliand, said he knew nothing of the matter except that Burhop had suddenly cancelled his plane reservation.

The party includes several university professors and Mrs. Harry Pollitt, wife of the British Communist Party secretary.

MacLean, head of the American desk in the Foreign Department, and Burgess, former second secretary in the British Embassy in Washington, disappeared late in May. They were traced as far as Rennes, France, where the trail grew cold.

Responsible officials have expressed the fear that they may have fled behind the Iron Curtain with important British-American secrets.

Fear Dynastic Struggle Between Sons Of Murdered Jordan King

CAIRO, July 21. (AP)—Prince Tallal, the anti-British eldest son of murdered King Abdullah of Jordan, was reported furious today because his younger brother, Prince Naif, has been named Regent, and thus the apparent successor to Jordan's throne. The Egyptian news magazine, Akhbar El Yom, reporting this in a dispatch from Geneva, Switzerland, predicted Tallal would make a surprise visit to Jordan. If he does so, a dynastic struggle might ensue which could plunge the whole Middle East into strife.

The magazine declared, however, that Tallal, 40, would not succeed to the throne because of his nervous state," even though members of his entourage were addressing him as "his majesty, the king."

(Some weeks ago, the Israeli press declared Prince Tallal had been taken to a hospital in Beyrouth after shooting Brig. John Glubb Pasha, British-born commander of the crack Arab legion. Officials in Amman denied the attack. After Abdullah's assassination in Jerusalem Friday it became known that Tallal had left Beyrouth for a vacation in Switzerland.)

Another possibility in the explosive Middle East was a renewal of the Palestine war. And to the north, Russia watched the whole scene with great interest.

No Correspondents

The Jordan legation here announced that it was "temporarily forbidden" for newspaper correspondents to go to Jordan, which always has had one of the tightest censorships in the Middle East.

Reports reaching Cairo from Jordan's capital of Amman have attributed King Abdullah's death to a follower of the exiled mufti of Jerusalem. Arab league informants said the mufti, Haj Amin El Husseini, was in Cairo, but reporters were unable to find him for comment.

Abdullah, staunch friend of Britain was counted on by the west to maintain some semblance of order in the Middle East. Britain and the United States also hoped, through him, to obtain final peace in the Arab-Jewish quarrel over Palestine.

The murdered king's personality was the force that made Jordan a strong power among Arab countries, even though his small country was so poor it depended on British subsidies to keep going.

The British-run legion apparently had the situation in Transjordan under control for the present.

US State Dept. Gets Evidence On Oatis Trial

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP). —The full record of the trial and conviction of Associated Press correspondent William N. Oatis in Communist Czechoslovakia has been received by the State Department from American Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs in Prague.

Department officials said today it showed no evidence of what any government outside the Iron Curtain would call espionage. Oatis, who was arrested April 23, was sentenced July 4 to 10 years' imprisonment on a charge of spying.

The Oatis case is unique among trials of foreigners in the Communist countries, department experts said, because the record shows so clearly that the defendant was judged guilty of doing well the job which he had been officially admitted to the country to do.

Build Up Case

Throughout the transcript of the testimony the Communist prosecutor treats routine news inquiries from Associated Press offices in New York and London as "instructions" for espionage. Oatis is pictured as the "head" of an espionage network. His news reports, though published for the world to read, are referred to as if they were secret dispatches to a hostile government.

Officials here said much of the questioning at Oatis' trial was designed to show that Oatis was guilty of espionage simply because he sought to dig out information which the Czech government wanted withheld.

After being in jail two months, and denied counsel, Oatis "confessed" to espionage and, more generally, to activities hostile to the Czech state.

Con Man Made $88,000 "Plan to Bribe Officials"

WASHINGTON, July 21. (AP)—The fabulous Sam Mason admitted Friday that he tapped "clients" for thousands in "sewer money" on promises to bribe Washington officials.

"But," he asked senators, "what's wrong with that?" In answer, a Senate investigating committee turned over his testimony to the Justice Department and Internal Revenue Bureau, with a view to prosecution. The committee has charged that Mason fleeced "gullible victims," including two Greek Catholic priests, out of $330,000.

Most of it was supposed to be used in lining up bargain dollar-a-year leases on government buildings. There would be a lot of buildings available, he told his clients, because the government was going underground to escape an atomic attack.

Confidence Man

The committee said the 59-year-old Mason of New York, is really a Russian-born confidence man by the name of Mussman with a long criminal record.

Mason testified he had taken $88,000 from "clients" but said he had turned over most of the money to a mysterious Mr. Eungart.

He also admitted he had not filed an income tax return since 1929 because he never had any money left at the end of the year. He said he lost a lot on horse races.

Mason testified that he told his clients their money would be used as "sewer money," but that he did not want to use the word bribe. He admitted taking money from two Greek Catholic priests and three other witnesses who testified Thursday. But he whittled their estimates of the total take from more than $200,000 to only $88,000.

He said he gave most of it to Eungart who, he said, was the go-between with government officials.

Missing Dog Finally Found

MONTREAL, July 21 (CP) — Perra, the Yugoslav dog which helped her master and family escape from the Communists, was recaptured Friday. Robert Gauthier, a student, found her sleeping in his backyard.

Perra escaped July 9 after she arrived by plane from Europe. Her master, Josef Silih, now is en route to Canada with his family.

Gauthier said Perra was asleep in his backyard at near-by Bourdeaux when he found her Friday morning. She made friends with him immediately and he called the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which has been directing a search for the Alsatian.

Perra was the heroine of the Silih family's escape through armed border guards from Yugoslavia to Austria. She warned the family of the approach of border patrols.

When the family arrived safely in Austria, they received a chance to settle in Canada. But they refused to go unless Perra could also make the trip. Perra was sent ahead by plane in a crate. She fled when an airport attendant went to feed her.

Engineers Hope St. Louis Dikes To Hold

ST. LOUIS, July 21 (AP)—Fed by the devastating flood crest of the Missouri river, the Mississippi is expected to climb late tonight to its highest level at St. Louis in 107 years.

Th predicted crest of 40½ feet at midnight tonight would be just .9 of a foot under the all-time record set June 27, 1844.

The Missouri was swollen to a width of five miles in many places. It smashed one dike after another as the crest moved across the state from Kansas City, in the hardest-hit area, to the point where it is emptying its grimy burden into the Mississippi 15 miles north of here.

Most of St. Louis is on high ground out of reach of the flood, but precautions were taken against a water-shortage and contamination of the supply from sewer seepage.

Takes 41 Lives

As the Missouri crest passed into Mississippi, Maj.-Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of US army engineers, reported the billion-dollar flood had cost 41 lives in Kansas and Missouri.

Reporting to a senate sub-committee in Washington after an on-the-spot survey, Pick gave the following breakdown covering the area for the period up to last Tuesday.

Two million acres flooded, 1,074,000 in Kansas and 926,000 in Missouri; 518,000 persons displaced, 368,500 in Kansas and 150,000 in Missouri, 17 bridges swept away in Kansas.

The Missouri smashed nearly all the flood barriers near its mouth, spilling the flood over thousands of additional acres in the area where nearly 60,000 acres already was flooded.

Army engineers still were confident that nearly all of the major dikes on the Mississippi downstream from St. Louis would hold.

Canadian Breaks Kashmir Law

SRINAGAR, Kashmir, July 21 (CP)—Reliable sources said Friday the Kashmir Government has protested that a Canadian UN officer violated Kashmir state regulations by bringing his wife into the country without a permit.

The sources said Kashmir protested to India over Lt.-Col. M. E. P. Garneau, military observer with the UN commission for India and Pakistan.

Kashmir learned of the alleged irregular entry when Garneau applied for a permit for his wife to leave by air.

Entry into Kashmir is regulated by permit. Garneau was said to have brought his wife into the States of Jammu and Kashmir from Pakistan across the ceasefire line. She travelled in a UN jeep enjoying diplomatic immunity, the sources said.

Water Babies Ready To Swim From France

LONDON, July 21 (Reuters).—The Florida "water babies"—Bubba Tongay, 5, and his sister, Kathy, 4—left here by air with their parents for Paris today on their way to try to swim 20 miles across the channel from France to England.

"The kids have been training for a month in holiday camps here and we are more confident than ever" said Russel Tongay, their father.

They had one-way tickets to France, and reservations have been made for their return flight to the United States Aug. 15 — from London.

"We don't need air line tickets back here—Bubba and Kathy will swim it and the wife and I will be in the following launch. We've already booked that ," said Tongay.

When the Tongay family arrived here June 22, the British government forbade the children to attempt the tough swim—from the English side at least.

Expect Goose Bay Airport Important Part of US Chain

OTTAWA, July 21 (CP)—Canada's big northern airport at Goose Bay, Labrador, is expected to play a part in United States plans to throw up a global ring of airfields around Soviet Russia.

The word here is that the US is going to pour men and money into Goose Bay to enlarge the facilities and better fit it into a chain of airpower ranging from Greenland to the Middle East. The expansion is believed part of the proposed $5,767,000,000 military construction program now before Congress.

The airport, built during the Second World War, will continue under RCAF command but the American establishment there is expected to be increased.

The development would tie in with the rebuilding of wartime US airfilds in Greeland along the top-of-the-world bomber routes from—and to—Russia. Goose Bay would be a stepping stone to them.

Canada herself is skipping the strategic bombing field in peacetime, leaving it to the major powers and concentrating on fighter strength.

The US has its own airfields in Newfoundland but they are in the south. They were ceded to the US in 1941 at the time of the destroyers-for-bases deal between Washington and London.

Another—and more expensive—Canadian development expected to emerge from Congressional approval of the military construction program is a number of radar stations at various spots in this country. The radar program will cost more than $100,000,000 and buttress those stations Canada is building herself.

The Goose Bay airport is used by Canada for various purposes. It is an alternate landing field for commercial airlines when they can't land at Gander, in Newfoundland, a base for northern transport flying and the pivot of many a northland search.

Bury Crown Prince Near German Castle

HECHINGEN, Germany, July 21. (AP)—Former Crown Prince Wilhelm, who died at his villa here Friday, will be buried Thursday in the Hohenzollern family cemetery near his castle.

The funeral date was set by his son, Louis Ferdinand, who came here from Bremen.

Royalty from Germany and other European countries are expected to attend the Protestant services.

Reds Build Up New Defences

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, July 21 — (AP). — Communist forces today continued to bolster front-line positions but there were no indications an attack was imminent.

An Eighth Army spokesman said that "all along the front the enemy now has probably as much as he had for the April 22 offensive."

United Nations patrols stabbed close to main Red lines and met blistering attacks. Several withdrew. There were many short, sharp clashes, especially on the central front and eastward.

Increased Communist front-line strength appeared to be no more than bolstering of defences. UN air observers have spotted no significant movement of Red troops or supplies behind the front.

Rain hampered air operations, but medium and light bombers attacked North Korean targets using radar to sight through the clouds.

There was no ground contact Friday around the neutral zone of Kaesong, but patrols sighted Red forces building new defences.

Accept Invitation

LONDON, July 21 (Reuters).—Britain has accepted the United States' invitation to a three-power conference in Washington on Germany's contribution to Atlantic defence, the foreign office spokesman said today. He said the date of the conference was not yet fixed.

Thieves Take Citadel Cannon

QUEBEC, July 21 (CP)—Disappearance of an old brass cannon from the Citadel Wednesday night was revealed Friday night.

The affair was termed a "practical joke" by a high-ranking army officer.

"We know where the cannon is —not in Quebec City—and it definitely will come back where it belongs," he said.

The cannon, weighing more than 250 pounds, disappeared from its place on the grounds of the Citadel, an old British fortress on the heights of Quebec City.

The cannon, dating back to 1775, was taken from United States troops by British forces, he said.

Missing Boy Found After 24-Hour Search

FORT FRANCES, July 21 (CP) —Ten-year-old Lloyd Langstaff was found Friday night apparently unharmed after being missing more than 24 hours in the dense bush and swamp country near here.

About 500 persons, including many experienced bushmen and three planes took part in the search.

The boy walked out of the bush unaided about two miles from where he was lost. He was picked up by Mrs. Art Renberg of Fort Frances who was driving an automobile.

Leaves For London

VALETTA, Malta, July 21 — (Reuters) — The Duke of Edinburgh left by plane for London today ending another phase in his career—command of the Royal Navy frigate Magpie. The Duke's active naval service now will be suspended for a time, during which he will accompany Princess Elizabeth to Canada next October.

US Restores Canada's Pride

OTTAWA, July 21 (CP)—Canada's pride has been restored.

External affairs headquarters reported Friday the US government has corrected a statement that Canada is among countries which have been getting US aid since the war.

Canada, proud of her record of standing on her own feet, reacted with a kick recently when a list put out by officials in Washington included Canada among those countries getting help.

The whole thing, said spokesman, was a mistake. The mistake has been corrected, at the request of the Canadian embassy in Washington, and all is well again.

US GETS SPANISH BASES—Map shows location of Spanish air and naval bases whose use by the US in defense of western Europe has been agreed upon "in principle." The agreement was negotiated between Generalissimo Franco and Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, under strong British and French protests.

Search Offices, Homes After Assassination

BEIRUT, Lebanon, July 21 — (AP) — Police investigating last Monday's assassination of former Premier Riad El Solh searched offices and homes of members of the Syrian National party today.

Police reported no results and no arrests. They also visited the weekly Kolchai.

Three gunmen shot El Solh in Amman, Jordan, just after he visited King Abdullah. They were identified as members of the outlawed Syrian National party.

The Lebanese government is sure to consider Syria's attitude on the investigation of the suspected party unfriendly, and may send a strong note calling attention to the effect on Syrian-Lebanese relations.

All is quiet today.

Shot Dad's Dog Resort Keeper Put On Probation

COBOURG, July 21 (ENS). — Kenneth McMahon, Hamilton township, was allowed on suspended sentence yesterday on a charge of shooting a dog, when he appeared before Magistrate W. Philp of Peterborough.

The youth's father, Hilliard McMahon, said that his two sons, Kenneth and Nelson ran a tourist camp at Rice Lake. On the morning of July 12 he visited the camp and found Kenneth had been drinking. Kenneth offered him a bottle of beer and when the father refused and suggested that his son shouldn't be drinking and running a tourist camp, Kenneth became angered and went into his cabin and came out with a shotgun.

"He said to me, 'I've shot better men than you.' I said go ahead and shoot the dog, because if there was going to be any shooting I would rather he shoot the dog than us, so he shot and killed the dog. Nelson took the gun away from him and Kenneth said he had another gun in the cabin but Nelson went in and got it," testified Hilliard McMahon.

To defence counsel he said that he did not tell Kenneth to shoot at the dog to scare him away from the tourist camp. He admitted that Kenneth had complained about the dog hanging around the camp.

"Beered Up"

Nelson McMahon said that he and his brother were in partnership in the tourist camp. On the day in question, Kenneth was "pretty well beered up." His father told him what he thought of him. Ken ordered him off the place but he, Nelson, told him to stay as he had some business to talk over with his father.

"Ken told him to go home and take the dog with him. I think the whole trouble was that he had been drinking," testified Nelson McMahon.

The defendant testified that he was drunk but that he resented his father's dog being on the tourist camp grounds as the tourist camp inspector had warned him about dogs running at large in a tourist camp.

"I told my father to get the dog out of here and he dared me to do something about it, so I got the shotgun and fired it with the intention of scaring it but the shot killed it. I didn't aim it at the dog," testified the accused.

"I must find you guilty and place you on suspended sentence for a year. I hope you and your brother and your father forget about this whole thing and that relations are friendly," said the magistrate.

Town Lacks Lifeguard Club May Supply One

COBOURG, July 21 (ENS). — The question of supplying a lifeguard at the beach, a job once handled by the Rotary Club before turning it over to the recreational commission, was discussed at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club but no definite action was taken.

Due to lack of funds, the recreational commission was unable to go ahead and hire a lifeguard at the beginning of the season. At one time the Rotary Club supplied the lifeguard but after the recreational director was hired, the lifeguard duties were merged with his. Right now the town does not have a full-time recreational director because there is not enough money to pay him.

Lindsay Girl Leukemia Victim

LINDSAY, July 21.—A nine-year-old Lindsay school girl recently became the victim of leukemia, the dreaded disease that destroys red blood cells.

She is Sandra Best, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Best, of William St., Lindsay.

Like any other child, she began her summer holidays, laughing and playing with other children. Gradually she became listless, suffered occasional headaches and didn't want to play with other children.

Worried, her parents called a doctor, who diagnosed her illness. Sandra was sent immediately to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

She is there now. Living nearby are her parents who are in constant touch with her.

Lindsay's Rotary Club arranged for her transportation to the Toronto hospital, and kind-hearted neighbors have made individual offers to help.

Sandra's happy smile when she was well opened the heart of Lindsay to her. Now she is ill, and the whole town is anxious to aid her.

Port Hope Station Gets Spruced Up

PORT HOPE, July 21.—Plans are underway to improve the condition of the Port Hope CNR station.

M. A. Metcalf, vice-president of the CNR has told the Port Hope Board of Trade that a thorough investigation will be carried out.

This action followed a letter of complaint sent by the town board to Donald Gordon, CNR president, calling the station, a disgrace from a tourist point of view. It also pointed out that Princess Elizabeth and the Prince Consort are expected to visit the town sometime during the fall. Repairs and renovations totalling $500 were suggested.

Already one of the station nuisances, a large puddle, which invariably formed and flooded the parking lot area after every rainfall, because of plugged up drainage facilities, has been eliminated. The drain has been repaired.

Pacific fleet air force headquarters said the squadron has undergone tests and training the last six months.

FLORAL NOTE

Potatoes are blooming in local gardens, a merely utilitarian blossoming. Time was when home owners used to boast about their small garden crop but that was before those Manvers men organized 500 and 800-bushels to the acre clubs. Anybody who grows potatoes when John Blakely and the Weatherilts, Olans, and others can do it so much better and prolifically, is wasting an effort.

FLOCK OF US CARS

Friday noon hour occupancy of the new parking lot on Water St. included five cars from West Virginia. There were more U.S. automobiles together in one compact space than Peterborough has ever seen before 'en bloc'. They were three or four from Ohio and one or two each from New York, Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania. The lot was well filled again this morning, at a reasonable revenue for the accommodation the city is now providing.

2,000 Workers Consider Strike

WINNIPEG, July 21 — (CP) — A union representing some 2,000 civic workers met for two hours Friday but no statement was issued on strike-action discussion at the closed meeting.

More than 500 members of the Federation of Civic Employees (CCL) heard Leon Mitchell, business agent, report on discussions earlier in the day with Manitoba government officials.

Mr. Mitchell said a statement may be issued today on the union's decision in connection with city council's rejection of a working agreement.

A strike would be the first general work stoppage in 32 years in Manitoba's capital, which has a population of 350,000. A work stoppage would disrupt service from the power and water utilities and halt garbage collections. The federation embraces all civic employees except policemen and firemen.

The proposed agreement, which would cost the city an additional $772,250 annually, would provide for a 40-hour week beginning next Jan. 1 and other benefits.

Melville Johnston Named To Control Exhibition Dust

Probably by this time the news has caught up with Mel Johnston that he's got another job. It appeared not so long ago that he was supposed to be easing up not only in farming, but also in outside affairs. As a check on his activities, he was retired from the North Monaghan reeveship, and then he was appointed county weed inspector and a month ago he was elected president of the Ontario Conservation Association.

Directors of the Peterborough Exhibition last night put the finger on him for special duty, even if it is only for four days.

Clare Collins was insisting that more attention be given to keeping the dust down and out of the display buildings. For that there should be general applause from all quarters.

Special Job

Mr. Collins said it was something the secretary-manager, G. A. Gillespie, hadn't time for. It required a specially delegated director to concentrate on catching the dust before it gets into the air and the display booths. That official should have at least one man with the sole responsibility of actually doing the work.

So Mr. Collins fashioned the job and John Kitney named Mr. Johnston, in his absence, as supervisor. He ought to put both their names in his little black book, if he carries one, which is highly improbable. Nearly 25 members of the board attended the meeting, with quite a showing of juniors. By this time it might be suggested that Mr. Johnston should be ready for an unofficial position of assistant greeter.

Instead, he gets the bow for a tough job. He'll have to keep merchants and manufacturers, exhibitors and the customer trade satisfied from Wednesday to Saturday night, and it is altogether likely that he'll walk right into it. In such matters he doesn't keep the little word "no" handy and on a quick trigger.

Dustman

One aspect of this special directorial job that should be in his favor is this, that with a dustman responsible to him for that and nothing else, he ought to be able to show considerable improvement over other years.

Mr. Collins also outlined, as publicity director, a new Friday program. Wednesday is established as children's day, Thursday junior farmers' day, but Friday was just another day.

Ladies' Day

Mr. Collins came up with ladies' day, featuring a Canada Packers cooking school, maybe a fashion show, Mrs. Alison Grant, of CBC, and other items.

John Kitney reported that the district honey producers would like to put on an educational display of their product. That was immediately accepted as being in line with the agricultural purposes of the "Ex," and Alex Huston moved that they be given space without charge.

Charlie Quinlan, director in charge of the horse racing, is doubtful about the removal of the Park St. tall board fence all the way past the barn of the race-horse men.

Exposure of the barn premises which have already been thoroughly screened by the departed fence might stir up some objections from the several neighbors across Park St. Other directors said there could be no street complaints if the harness men kept their place as tidy as the board required in any case. So, it is up to them if they want to continue in use of the barn and track.

He is the third political leader asked to form a cabinet since the election.

Before Mayer took on the task, Conservative Maurice Petsche and Robert Schuman, a popular Republican, had declined it.

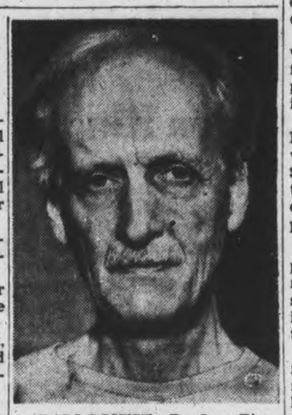
NO LIFEGUARD



No lifeguard is on duty at Victoria Park beach, Cobourg. In past years the financial backing for a lifeguard was provided first by the Rotary Club and for the last two years by the Recreation Comission. This year, the commission hasn't enough money and no other group has offered to provide a lifeguard.

Prices Edge Higher On Stock Market

By BILL DANIELS
Canadian Press Staf Writer.

Prices edged upward this week on stock markets. Activity continued slow on the New York and Montreal Exchanges, while Toronto showed signs of breaking its five-month slump.

For three weeks the Toronto Market has been at its slowest trading pace of the year. But on Monday activity perked up and sales became greater each successive day. Friday Toronto's volume of 2,321,000 shares was the largest since February 16 when the 20-month bull market was still in progress.

But the increased trading and a weekly gain in prices did not mean the sluggishness of the last five months was over. The advance in prices came only in selective issues, and the caution of the 21 preceding weeks was still evident. The activity was not reflected in New York and Montreal and was mostly accounted for by wide play in a few lower-priced mining issues and western oils.

Slip Slightly

Prices opened mixed on Canadian markets Monday following last week's moderate advance. Towards the close mild selling appeared and prices slipped slightly.

On Tuesday, industrials were a little firmer at Toronto while mining issues held even. Papers weakened in an otherwise mixed market at Montreal.

Selective buying developed on Wednesday and Canadian markets moved higher. This movement continued Thursday in early dealings, but by the close Toronto was mixed and Montreal only slightly ahead.

Prices resumed a moderate advance Friday with gains ranging from fractions to more than a point. Toronto interest was again in a few lower-priced stocks.

In New York prices declined Monday after a three-session advance. Losses ranged up to about $2 a share. The selling was partially offset by good gains in several issues—principally chemicals.

Buying Came Back

Buying came back Tuesday and prices climbed quietly. On Wednesday they turned mixed with a slight tendency to decline. TV issues found support and bucked the trend for good increases.

On Thursday, trading was irregular, but towards the close a rally started that lifted prices higher. Friday the market maintained its forward movement, but only with a struggle. Utilities, railroads, aircrafts and airlines were strong while some steels, motors and radio-televisions weakened.

From Friday to Friday the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials up 2.67 at 327.43, golds up .54 at 78.36, base metals down .82 at 170.19 and western oils up 2.61 at 104.45.

In the Montreal averages industrials were up 3.3 at 226.3, papers up to 10.18 at 811.38, banks off 0.33 at 29.42, utilities up 0.2 at 85.1, combined up 2.3 at 179.3 and golds up 0.41 at 60.49.

In New York The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 10 cents at $92.30.

U of T Student, Boy 12, Provide Regatta Highlights

BANCROFT, July 21 (ENS) — Ted Gibson, a 12-year-old boy from Ajax, and Gregory Anderson, a second year medical student at University of Toronto, provided two of the biggest highlights at Bancroft Lions Club third annual regatta at Baptiste Lake on Wednesday afternoon.

Ted, who weighs 89 pounds, and who is entering grade seven in public school this fall ably drove his sea-flea To Be Ke to an easy victory in the A-1 class. Watching his every move were his father, a garage owner from Ajax and his two younger brothers, who also pilot racing boats but not in open competition.

Gregory, the son of a local doctor, entered the boat that he made in the workshop behind the family residence, in the A-1 and local classes. He won two thirds, nearly a summer's supply of marine lubricating oil and spar varnish.

Altogether $240 in prize money was given to the winners in the boat races. Firsts received $25, seconds received $15 and thirds prizes in merchandise, usually something useful for the outdoor person.

Besides the boat races there were swimming events for boys and girls, parachute jumps, aeroplane rides, water clowns, canoe races and exhibitions of water skiing and canoe jousting. The evening ended with a dance in the community hall.

A crowd of just over 1,000 paid admissions was slightly below the crowds of 1950 and 1949, but it was such a good day for haying that many of the local farmers decided to spend the first good day in the fields.

Gordon Minty of Peterborough was the master of ceremonies for the day and Bill Hawthorn of Madoc was the starter for the races. Every member of Bancroft Lions Club, aided by the Lionettes and a few volunteer helpers helped to keep everything moving along smoothly. Cecil Wiggins, the club president, was in overall charge of the affair.

Proceeds from the regatta, the largest money-making event that the local Lions have yearly, is for yeneral welfare and community work.

The winners of the various events were as follows:

Boats, A-1 Class—Ted Gibson of Ajax, Percy Luxton of Bowmanville, Gregory Anderson of Bancroft. B Class—George Miller of Consecon, Levi Terry of Consecon, Chuck Phillips of Consecon. B-1 Class—Roblin and McCabe of Napanee, tied; George Miller of Consecon. B-1 Special Class, John Palmer of Wellington, McCabe of Napanee. Dr. Webster of Port Perry. Grand free-for-all, any class boat — Miss Madoc, Newt Kincaid of Madoc, My Reuthie, John Palmer of Wellington, Jinx, Dr. Webster of Port Perry. Local boats—Jim Murphy, Reg. Canning, Gregory Anderson.

Swims, open half mile, William Naslin, Bruce Canning; girls' quarter mile, Berta Sankey, Marlene Labarge, Muriel McKenzie; girls under 15, Marlene Labarge, Wendie Nurse, Gail Rafter; boys under 12, Charlie Burgess, Ralph Chamberlain, Garth Truax; boys under 15, Ralph Chamberlain; girls under 12, Wendie Nurse, Gail Rafter, Beverley Nicholl.

EDITOR RETIRES — Archie H. Wills has retired as managing editor of the Victoria Daily Times after 45 years with the paper. His service with the Times was interrupted only by two years overseas during the First World War. In four civic elections in the city he headed the aldermanic poll, but quit civic politics when he became managing editor.

Police Give Up Fugitive Search

WINDSOR, July 21 — (CP) — Provincial police late Friday gave up a search in a wooded area near the airport for a fugitive who had eluded them in a wild chase through the city and suburban areas since morning.

The 25-year-old man — whose name was not disclosed—is wanted on several charges of housebreaking. He dodged a posse in a hail of bullets, and disappeared in the woods on the city's outskirts about 1 p.m.

3 Strikes Account For 71% Time Loss

OTTAWA, July 21 — (CP) — Three strikes accounted for more than 71 per cent of the total time loss and affected more than 50 per cent of the workers involved in work stoppages arising from disputes in Canada during June, the Labor Department announced Friday.

Strikes of rubber factory workers at Bowmanville and New Toronto, sewing machine factory workers at St. John's, Que., and screw and gear factory workers at Toronto were responsible for a combined time loss of 92,000 man-working days and involved a combined total of 6,950 workers.

WELL-READ DANES

There were 135 daily newspapers in Denmark in 1950.

TUNEFUL DUEL—Even Germany shows the impact of the silly season, as these pictures testify. They illustrate the long-distance piano duel being fought at Frankfurt between James Strickland, British champion, and the German title-holder, Heinz Arntz. Arntz, pictured being fed by his wife, leads with 201 consecutive hours of playing to his credit. Strickland, right, who trails with 193 hours, is getting shaved as he tried to overcome his opponent's lead.

Four Women Win Certificates

HAVELOCK, July 21—(ENS)—Four members of the Belmont Girls' Club were recently presented with certificates of achievement by Miss Jean Noble, Bowmanville home economics teacher.

Those receiving the certificates were Mrs. Clarence King, Miss Lois Fraser of Belmont township, and Mrs. Edward Bowen of Cordova Mines.

These young women spent nine years covering the following courses: club girl entertains; supper club; summer clothes for girls; club girl stands on guard; cotton may be smart; sleeping garments; cotton accessories for the bedroom; clothes closets up to date; being well dressed and well groomed.

Calls for Joint Development By US-Canada in North

By VERN HAUGLAND

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP) —Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman called today for joint development of the far north by the United States and Canada.

He said:

1. Alaska alone, given a boost by the US government, has a multi-billion-dollar future and could produce 50,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours of hydro - electric energy annually.

2. Thinly-settled northwestern Canada, properly developed, could support a population of 6,000,000.

In a report to Congress on a recently-completed field study of the enginering and economic problems of the Northern regions, Chapman said:

"In contemplating full utilization of Alaska's resources, the adjoining northwestern regions of Canada—the Yukon territory and Northern British Columbia — should be taken into consideration.

"A recent Dominion Government survey shows this area is capable of supporting as many as 6,000,000 persons.

"Like Alaska, it, too, is rich in natural wealth.

"It is possible that a large portion of its mineral resources could be shipped to tidewater Alaskan plants for smelting, processing, manufacturing or marketing.

Provide New Market

"Moreover, this Canadian region would provide a nearby market for Alaskan products.

"As the northern region of the North American continent experiences development during the next century, it appears imperative the two nations co-operate to the utmost in exploring the economic possibilities of this vast region for full utilization of its natural wealth, the defence of its shores and skies, and the welfare of the millions who will settle it—the men and women who will ultimately add to the greatness of both the United States and Canada."

Chapman's report was submitted wit hthe approval of President Truman, but without specific recommendations for legislative or fiscal action. It has been reviewed by the budget bureau, the agriculture and commerce departments, and other agencies.

The report said there are possibilities for significant discoveries of oil in Alaska. The territory has sufficient deposits of building materials for many of its own growing needs. Deposits of mercury, chromite, platinum, tin, tungsten, zinc and antimony might, under more favorable economic conditions, contribute importantly to American industrial needs.

It recommended immediate investigations of Alaska's water resources for power and other benefits.

"Several medium-size dams should be constructed immediately to supply pent-up demand for power. Several more should be constructed son to supply power demands assured in the near future."

Montreal Waiter Gives Himself Up

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 21 (CP)—Jean Paul Baillarqun, 27-year-old Montreal waiter, gave himself up to the police here today, saying he is wanted at Sudbury for two robberies with violence.

A companion, Jean Paul Morin, 30, of Hull, Quebec, was arrested later on a charge of stealing a drive-yourself car at Montreal in May. Police say he rented the vehicle on May 25, and drove it 10,000 miles during the past two months.

Morin, police said, was wearing a hat owned by one of the Sudbury robbery victims when he was arrested.

Police said Ballarqun told them that one man was robbed of $75 after being beaten up in Riverside Drive at Sudbury about 10 days ago. He said he took another man from a Sudbury beverage room, robbed him of $250, his watch and clothing. Then six days ago another man was beaten and robbed at Sault Ste. Marie.

MATADOR RICHARDO in a Madrid bull-ring, forgot one of the basic military principles — never leave your rear unprotected. As seen above, the bull was quick to note this lapse and taught Richardo a lesson, forcefully driving the point home to the detriment of Richardo's dignity and his pretty red and gold pants. The match was stopped while assistants hastily sewed up his rear exposure. He returned to the fary and, mindful of the fragility of the emergency repairs, killed the bull without dropping a stitch.

What Strange Bedfellows We Seek!

Who are the western democracies' ardently-wooed allies? The fearful and strange list includes Italy, Germany and Japan, the three principal nations which, ten years ago, the western democracies were fighting to keep freedom alive in the world. To this weird list must now be added another nation, if American leadership is accepted in the matter: Franco's Spain. The difference between Italy, Germany and Japan on the one hand, and Spain on the other, is that the first three were dictatorships supposedly smashed in the war; the Spanish dictatorship continues unquashed.

* * *

It is now assumed that Italy, Germany and Japan are cleansed and worthy to be ranked among the angels of democracy. We are not so sure. Were these peoples merely sheep in wolf's clothing before and during the war? Certainly the Japanese must be regarded with special care. The homeland of Japan suffered less from the war than either Germany or Italy. If the war taught anybody a lesson, it did not teach the Japanese as sharply as it did the Germans. The Americans have revived Japan in a most remarkable fashion; the MacArthur administration there successfully reorganized the laws, industry and trade. Has it been as succesful in re-ordering the people politically, in any liberal democratic sense? The peace treaty which the Americans have drawn up—and they are very proud of it—is generous. Is it too generous? We are a Christian country, in name at least. Japan is not. We do not want to be smitten on the other cheek by a people who can strike as viciously as the Japanese did.

* * *

Perhaps the West should not be fussy about where or how it chooses its co-belligerents for peace. Perhaps it should take them where it can find them. After all, in the history of international politics, morality has little place. Therefore, let us be realistic about our bedfellows, even if they are lousy. That is one point of view, a view which the United States seems to take, having before it the responsibility of wielding world power. Outsiders may hold a different view, and believe that the West, particularly the United States, is so strong and secure that it can afford to be choosy, afford to take a moral attitude.

* * *

Our list should include another dictatorship of a different colour: Tito's Yugoslavia, a Communist country. Certainly the West is catholic in its choice of comrades.

Aged Musical Innovator

Arnold Schoenberg died in California at the first of this week. His age was 76. That is almost an antithetical statement, for this innovator in music is still so new and modern that it is hard to realize that he died an old man. Schoenberg was a musical theorist whose genius has yet to be widely comprehended, though he seems assured of a permanent place in the history of music.

Arnold Schoenberg was an Austrian composer, born in Vienna in 1874. In musical theory he was practically self-taught. By 1908, and before he went to live in Berlin, he had entered upon experimental composition, putting the romantic writing of his time behind him and going back to Bach and earlier polyphonic writers for his inspiration. His campaign to "free harmony from all rules" was fifty years old when he died; he had said at the beginning that it would take half a century before his aims were understood. He underestimated the inertia and conservatism which all innovators must face. Today few people have heard a single Schoenberg composition; fewer profess any liking or understanding for his music. It is labelled "atonal", when in fact it is based on different tones from those which the ordinary ear is accustomed to. He evolved a twelve-tone scale of mathematically equal intervals. But since this is as foreign to ears used to the tempered diatonic scale as Chinese music, it seems dissonant.

Schoenberg was a stubborn pioneer and he never made concessions to the ordinary listener. He allowed him fifty years to catch up with the revolutionary idiom. Audiences have not yet done so. His was the fate of most other great innovators in the arts. They are spurned, ignored or reviled by most contemporaries and critics, but a coterie builds around the creator and gradually his work is exhibited, explained and understood. Thus it was with Van Gogh and James Joyce. Even Bach in his time was condemned for his church music. Beethoven was an unruly musician and gained understanding slowly; even today his last quartets are appreciated only by the initiated. The Romantic English poets Wordsworth and Coleridge, and the pre-Romantic Blake wrote in idioms which broke with the eighteenth century neo-classic tradition. Their work was first considered uncouth, inferior and not worthy of the name of poetry.

Schoenberg was probably a more radical innovator than any of these, and for reasons which we shall not attempt to explain, innovation in music is more strongly resisted by the intelligentsia than new modes in words and pigment. Schoenberg died respected and admired in Europe and America (where he took up residence before the last war), but almost unheard and uncomprehended. If his idiom has the durability and universality required in valid art, history will hear him. But he may be forever the forerunner, the genius who lays the basis on which others practise and which they develop.

It is a shock to realize that this ultra-modernist in music, the composer whose works are still too far in advance of his time for most concert halls and most audiences, laid the basis of his music half a century ago, and was 76 at his death.

More Rain Than Needed

For once the farming and urban sections of this district's population are unanimous: we have had too much rain. The farmers do not like it because it has interfered with the harvest and flattened crops. Towns-people resent it because it interferes with their week-ends and holidays. We have indeed had much rain. But why yelp? In the year 2051 our descendants will probably be shooting atom bombs into the air to stir up rain. Water is precious; it is already scarce in thickly-populated areas of this continent.

Let us be thankful for what we get. Our rain does not usually fall in dreadful torrents, in the Oriental way that produced Somerset Maugham's shocking short story Rain. It comes down hard enough, with Canadian firmness. There is no mistaking our rain for a Scotch mist, a London fog, or an Irish drizzle. It falls, flat and hard. Then it is done with for a few hours at least. But it is sufficiently untimely to prevent prosiness. No one in Southern Ontario invites guests before or after the rain, as people do in Rio de Janeiro.

We refuse to join in the general chorus of disapproval of the recent rains. Even if we cannot store up for ourselves treasures in heaven we can fill our wells on earth.

Another Great Airport

Canada has several big airports, Malton and Dorval being the best known in this part of the country. Dorval actually ranks with the greatest in the world and handles world-wide traffic. There is another airport within our range: Uplands at Ottawa, but it is comparatively insignificant, since Ottawa does not lie across the main aviation routes. It is to be unimportant no longer. Plans are under way to make it the largest airport in Canada—in area and length of runways. Some eighteen million dollars will be spent on it within the next dozen months. One of its runways will eventually be five miles long.

The expansion of Uplands pleases Ottawans but puzzles others. Why should a great airport be built out there in the hinterland? Is every blessed civil servant to travel by air henceforth? The reason for a grandiose Uplands is not primarily commercial. It is to be an Air Force hub and a research field; the base of defence squadrons of jets, the proving ground of new planes and engines which may be so powerful and fast that Malton and Dorval will be too puny to handle them. Already Malton is out of date.

And so Ottawa is to have a really big airport, to be built by the Government at a cost of more than eighteen million dollars. Too bad Peterborough or Kingston cannot get a slice of this to build themselves even little airports.

A U.S. press dispatch says that American diplomats look for Russia to put forth a major proposal in the next few weeks to promote its current peace offensive. So peace has become offensive. The next step is "peace aggression."

Persia And The Law

By
WALTER TABLIN
(U.K. Information Office)

AT the root of the dispute over Persian oil lies a threat of disorder. It is a dual threat, affecting the existence of orderly relationships both inside Persia and in the world at large. The danger is plain enough to be seen. Already, in little more than two months, the decision to seize the property and interests of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company has produced a state of affairs in which the maintenance of order in Persia has become completely precarious.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE first ominous stories of labour indiscipline and looting are beginning to come in from the Gach Saran oilfield, from which the British staff has been withdrawn. In the absence of revenue from oil royalties the national finances of Persia are only held together by improvization. The final breakdown of the Abadan refinery, which would be certain to follow a complete British withdrawal, could give the final jolt to a balance which is already dangerously unstable. It is difficult to forecast all the consequences of internal breakdown in Persia—including, of course, industrial and transport breakdown, for the Persian economy runs almost entirely on oil fuel. But one thing is certain—those consequences could not be confined to Persia.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE threat of Russian intervention, with the treaty of 1921 as a pretext, is always in the background. The repercussions of the cutting off of Persian oil on the world economy would be bound to be serious. The injection of yet another element of uncertainty into the politics and economics of the Middle East would seriously complicate the task of keeping the peace. There is no clearly foreseeable limit to the possibility of disorder. And yet the opportunity of checking and even eliminating that possibility is there for the asking—in the submission of the central problem of the future operation and ownership of the Persian oil industry to the decision of the International Court of Justice at The Hague.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE potentiality for an amicable settlement through the International Court has been, on the whole, understated rather than overstated since the British Government first submitted the dispute to The Hague on May 26. It remains true, of course, that settlement by direct negotiation is in itself preferable to reference to a court of law. In fact the British Government tried the direct approach before May 26; it was tried again in the discussion which took place in Teheran between the Persian representatives and a delegation from the oil company in mid-June; and the possibility of a further resort to it is still open. But once the question is fairly and squarely before the International Court, there can be complete confidence on all sides in a process which, whatever the final decisions may be, will have a cooling and calming effect.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR the law is orderly. It is the very antithesis of that disorder which threatens to engulf Persia and shake the world outside Persia. What is more, the operation of the law takes time, and that—far from being a disadvantage—is one of the essential factors in a reasonable settlement of the oil dispute. After all, what has made the Persian situation one of immediate danger has been the determination of Dr. Moussadek and his Government to go too fast.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE whole attitude of the Persian Government is full of irrational factors, but its persistent refusal to allow the law to take its course at The Hague is one of the most difficult of all points to explain. The action which the Court has so far taken is precisely that which would be expected to any impartial body intent on a stable and just settlement. It has recommended that neither party should take any action likely to make the situation worse than it already is. It has indicated that the question of its own jurisdiction in this particular case is one to which it will give proper consideration—a point which the Persian Government chooses to ignore while continually repeating the curious doctrine that the competence of this "the principal judicial organ of the United Nations" (to quote Article 92 of the Charter) is something which has been settled finally and unilaterally in Teheran. It will not proceed to consider the main case until this preliminary point has been settled. What more could be asked, in the name of fairness and impartiality?

✧ ✧ ✧

THE fact is that, in the eyes of the world, Persia could strengthen her own prestige (which has suffered a considerable setback through the actions of Dr. Moussadek's Government in the past three months), improve the chances of reaching a settlement which would safeguard Persian security and prosperity by maintaining the country's chief asset in working order, and give a new impetus to the hopes of world peace which have arisen with the armistice talks in Korea. She could do it either by reopening negotiations with the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company or by abandoning her policy of hostility to one of the main organs of the United Nations, of which Persia is a member in which her own Dr. Entezam is a highly respected and efficient functionary and a great force for good. In so doing she would only be recognizing the Court to which Persia a few years ago appealed with success in her attempt to rid the country of Soviet troops.

✧ ✧ ✧

AT the same time, by reversing her Foreign Minister's latest and most serious statement, of July 9, to the effect that Persia withdraws her signature of the United Nations declaration regarding the powers of the International Court, she can avert a threat to the unity of the United Nations itself. This would not be too much to ask of any nation in the world which is genuinely interested in the maintenance of peace and order. In the particular case of Persia today it would not prejudice in the least her chance of securing an entirely acceptable and reasonable settlement of the oil dispute. And to obtain all this the Persian Government is not called upon to make any positive effort. It has—on the contrary — only to cease the very considerable efforts which it is making at this moment to maintain an untenable position.

DECEIVING

"They look such a happily married couple, John."

"You can't go by looks, dear. They probably say the same about us."

Which Side Are You On, Joe?

Canada And Air Traffic

(EDMONTON JOURNAL)

CANADIANS have long been convinced that their country stands among the world's leaders in commercial aviation. This is fully confirmed by a survey in the British magazine Aeroplane. It shows the United States dominating the airline picture in 1950, but it also shows Britain, Canada, Australia and France next in line and much on a par with each other. No doubt Russia would place in this group, but, as one would expect, no figures were available from that secretive land, or from any of the Communist countries.

One of the more interesting tabulations in the survey is that which ranks the 10 leading airlines. The tenth is Trans-Canada Airlines. The first five are American—there are six American companies altogether—and the others are the publicly-owned systems of Britain, France and The Netherlands. While T.C.A. stands only tenth on the basis of comparison used, namely "revenue ton-miles," it actually topped the French and Dutch systems in one respect—total number of passengers. All these airlines, incidentally, broke their 1949 records.

Considering that passenger carrying by air didn't get properly under way until the end of the First World War, the present size of this traffic is quite astonishing. Without counting those in the Communist countries, airlines operating on schedule carried more than 30,000,000 passengers during 1950. This does not include non-scheduled charter flying, which in Canada, for instance, is a fair-sized business.

American companies carried 60 per cent. of the 30,000,000 passengers. Australia's total was about 1,500,000, Britain's 1,100,000, Canada's 1,044,000 and that of France 770,000.

On the financial side, the Aeroplane makes two instructive observations. The first is that, especially in the U.S., an increasing number of the world's airlines are achieving solvency without recourse to direct or indirect subsidization. Since failure to achieve this was a matter of serious concern only a few years ago, it is an encouraging development—doubtless the result of traffic growth and greater efficiency.

The magazine also observes that the majority of the airlines showing annual profits are to be found in the private enterprise division and most of the losses under government ownership. This was the case with Canada's two main systems, Canadian Pacific Airlines showing a modest profit and T.C.A. a substantial loss. Canadian taxpayers naturally will hope that T.C.A. will get "out of the red" soon.

Sad News From Dublin

(NEW YORK TIMES)

THE Abbey Theatre burned! And what will Dublin be without it? There must be a new Abbey very soon. We cannot be left only with memories, rich and great though they are, of forty-seven years of Irish life, Irish lore, mystical, humorous, poignant, infinitely sad. And what writing and acting! The names that one can conjure up are those of a renaissance—Yeats, Lady Gregory, Synge, Colum, Shaw, St. John Ervine. Just two nights ago the company was playing Sean O'Casey's masterpiece, "The Plough and the Stars," in which Barry Fitzgerald created the part of Fluter Good. That was in 1926, two years after O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock," the greatest success in the history of the Abbey group, with Sara Allgood playing Juno.

Was there ever such a theatre? Part of it really was an ancient theatre entered from Abbey Street, but the one we knew has annexed the old City Morgue on Marlborough Street for a main entrance. From footlights across the stage to the back alley was no more than five or six yards, and from there you could throw a stone into the River Liffey. The actors must have been the poorest paid in hard cash of any noted theatre group in the world—$40 a week for an F. J. McCormick or a Dudley Digges, and much less for the lesser lights. But many of them went on to fortune as well as fame in Hollywood, New York and London.

Since the shell of the theatre is standing, perhaps it can be rebuilt inside and look the same outside, but will the flavour be the same, that musty red atmosphere, cold, drafty, uncomfortable, unique in its gloominess everywhere except on the simple stage that glowed with a rich art and a great acting tradition? It is impossible that the curtain has gone down for the last time in the Abbey Theatre. One of these days soon the deep-toned gong will sound thrice—and the curtain will rise again.

Quiet, Please!

(Los Angeles Times)

Inflation is a terrible thing but, like the worst clouds, sometimes reveals a silver lining. Now it is the juke box. Cost of playing a record is going up 100 per cent from a nickel to a dime. Expense of this and that, explains the National Association of Music Box Operators, requires the increase, which is understandable. But even a juke-box addict is apt to clutch a dime longer than he would a nickel. So it may be possible to consume a ham-and-egg sandwich, perhaps even a short beer, in peace and quiet.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

These are the words of the covenant, which the Lord commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, beside the covenant which he made with them in Horeb. (Deut. 29: 1.)

✧ ✧ ✧

I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing: therefore choose life, and that both thou and thy seed may live: that thou mayest love the Lord thy God, and that thou mayest obey his voice, and that thou mayest cleave unto him: for he is thy life, and the length of thy days. (Deut. 30: 19, 20.)

✧ ✧ ✧

In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathway thereof there is no death. (Prov. 12: 28.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses....Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not highminded nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy; that they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life. (I Tim. 6: 12, 17-19.)

Letter To The Editor

INSURANCE AND THE AGE OF DRIVERS

Sir: Statistics quoted in the Globe and Mail early in this month showed that the percentage of accidents for drivers under 25 was 102 per cent greater than for all ages together over 25. The proportion should be the important aspect for insurance underwriters. I mention the above again, since reading in your editorial of Thursday, that "drivers in middle life have more accidents than young ones", which could be possible only if the total number in the former class is very much larger.

When Motor Boats Run Wild

(Montreal Star)

It is high time, as Associate Director Beauregard of the provincial police suggests that motor boats were put under the same sort of legal control that motor vehicles operating on land have always been. If it is necessary to go to Ottawa for an amendment to a federal law by which alone such control can be exercised, by all means let such application be made. An amendment to the criminal code would take some time to obtain and as, without it, the provincial police are helpless, it would be a good idea to take whatever steps are needed as soon as possible.

The motor-driven boat in the hands of an irresponsible or drunken person can be just as dangerous—in some ways more dangerous—than the motor car, similarly operated. A "near miss" by a car may be disturbing enough, but the waves from a speeding boat have still to be reckoned with, even though there has been no collision and there have been many and many drownings from this cause.

Small marine motors are becoming more and more powerful and boats equipped with them consequently more speedy and dangerous. The Star has received many letters complaining of the misuse of motor-equipped pleasure boats of all kinds in waters surrounding Montreal Island. They have for years been an added danger and should be brought under police control.

In this season of high summer our thoughts turn to water sports here in the Kawarthas. There are the usual string of regattas with Crowes Landing on July 28 and Juniper on Civic Holiday, Aug. 6, and numerous other district events whose dates will subsequently be published in this column.

Of most importance and main highlight is the Canadian Dinghy Association sailing regatta which will be held on Aug. 15-18 on Clear Lake with sailing headquarters at South Beach Hotel.

It is important because this is the first time the meet has ever held on inland waters. Toronto and Montreal usually copped the honors. And an honor it is for the Kawarthas. The grand trophy will be for the Governor-General's Cup, but it is hardly likely that His Excellency will be on hand to present it.

It is difficult to say whether sailing is a great spectator sport in this district, or not. Those who have done any sailing, even in canoes, follow the sport avidly. And hundreds of cottagers like to watch sailing craft heeling to the wind as they slip by their cottages. Perhaps we can create some interest in sailing, especially of this major event, by writing about it from time to time.

But that is difficult, too. Unless the publicity committee of this event supplies us with plenty of dope and well in advance, too.

Last Sunday, for instance, I was assigned to "do" the Examiner Trophy sailing race at Juniper Island. Conditions were marvellous and to see 15 craft in three classes dusting over the Viamede-Eagle Mount Buoy course was a thrilling sight. It was on the starting dock that mention was made about publicity for the Clear Lake classic in August. I found it hard to nail anyone down who could give me the cold facts. Let me hear from you early next week.

Cruisers are coming through the Trent just now in great style. They were slow in starting this season for some reason or another but their passages through locks and the Lift Lock are keeping custodians working steadily. On Thursday morning I watched two large American jobs going "over The Hump." One of them, the "Lormad" was Chicago-bound, its home port. Owner Lauren Drake left his home city last October and went to Florida via the Mississippi and is now on his way home. Without twisting Mr. Drake's arm one little turn he said that the Trent system was the most beautiful he had sailed on. He's been around a lot, you must admit, and I feel his is QUITE a testimonial.

Was talking to a familiar-looking man in Lakefield recently who was mounting a strange type of outboard to a small floating houseboat. He explained something of its characteristics but I was more interested in where I had seen him before, not the motor. But didn't ask him. This morning Outboard Mariner Johnny Madden tells me it was Mike Blicquey, a well-known oldtime bush pilot that pushed Junker freighters around the north for years. He was with an opposition line to ours, but his fame was unimpaired nonetheless. I hear from Johnny that the "Count", as we used to call him, is tinkering with outboard-powered barges or flat boats. Must see Mike again and get a story for you. He is an interesting guy.

Had a nice letter from Rich Greene of Erie, Pa., this week who liked some story I wrote in the Vacation Guide about manufacturing muskies in the Kawarthas for fishermen sport. He says, somewhat regretfully, that he is a muskie man of the Sudbury-West Nipissing country. Come and see us, Rich, in September, say, when we generally have the big ones biting down this way.

District fishermen might take note that fishing in general is only fair everywhere this year. Down on Lake Ontario commercial fishermen are finding it so lean that they are putting away their gear till next fall. A few are doing alright, the Belyea brothers lifted six lake trout this week weighing 105 pounds in the round.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

There was certain proof of the lure of our playground district when a friend of mine, Cliff Blackie of Cleveland visited me this week. I brought him to the Kawarthas with me from Cleveland 24 years ago and he has never come back since, until this week. Just goes to show you that the bug'll get you if you don't watch out. He and his wife are enjoying themselves in great style down Belmont Lake way.

KAWARTHA SCOREBOARD: Fishin' is picking up here and there throughout the district. Just about time, too....Best report comes from 'Caygeon where two anglers took two muskies apiece; the lucky men, Allan Barker of Toronto, White House guest, a 23½ and a 10-pounder, both out of Sturgeon. D. J. Isner of Akron, O., landed a 25½-pounder and 16½-er in Pigeon. Both of these chaps took their limits in one day....Hardwareman Roy Bottum of Bobcaygeon counted 30 fishing boats on the village waterways on Thursday noon ....Lake trout are holding up in Jack's and Chandos Lakes, parts of Haliburton and North Hastings. Russell Moore of Lake Catchecoma netted a 15-pound, 13-ounce LT at Anstruther (Eagle) Lake; it is lying rigid in Windover's quick freeze, Mississauga Lake....Guide Gordon Manley of Club Whitesands boated an 8-pound laker this week....Irvin Moore, 70, of Frankford hauled in a 19-pound 'lunge on Clear Lake near Young's Point....In the safe keeper class is Merle Faloon of Massilon, O., who boated a 37½-incher at Deer Bay; he is a guest of Victoria Springs....Somewhat smaller, but still keepers, were a pair to Harold Swihart of Canton, O., and Allan Jones of Toronto, each fish 33½ inches; they are staying at Birchcliff Cottages, McCracken's Landing....There is one doubtful item. Young Colin Glassco of Camp Kamanao, Upper Stony, landed what was reported as a 5½-pounder. There was a picture in this paper this week of him. The fish LOOKED larger but doubt if a 5½-pounder is a keeper. I hope camp counsellors are familiar with fishing laws and keep the boys on the straight and narrow....Vic Morris of Belleville took a big one above Corbeyville on the Moira River. He said it was "about 40 pounds", but, what did the scales say?.... Eldon Kimball of 163 Fradette Ave., nailed a 7-pound walleye below Lock 19; he used bucktail.

TENT IN JACKSON PARK where Dr. James Bingham, Peterborough Health Officer, sojourned with a smallpox patient and cook in winter weeks about 1901, checking epidemic threat. Incident illustrates the heroic measures necessary to the field of curative and preventive medicine some ten years before the Isolation was established north of the city. Resourceful energetic self-sacrificing Dr. Bingham earned for himself a high place on the Honor Roll in the era of Horse-and-Buggy Doctors who served so well in Central Ontario.

MOH Lived In Tent With Smallpox Patient Decade Before Isolation Hospital Built

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

If Tolstoy was right in his dictum that great art should tell a story transmitting an emotion, picture-making reached a high peak in the Victorian days when Sir Luke Fildes painted "The Doctor."

Older people will remember the renowned picture of the family physician seated meditatively surveying the stricken child lying on a pallet of two chairs. The young mother, in her anguish, bent at a table, her head upon her arms, while the father stood tensely awaiting the medical pronouncement.

Canadian medical history, like all our other history, abounds in moments of dramatic crux which might well call into action the divine afflatus, or whatever it is that moves Canadian paint-brushes (No. 1 rubberset bristle; eminently good brushes for the money.) Canada's real-life drama has had an indigenous freshness, not laden with sentimental cliches, for those who have had eyes to see it.

Doubtless the nearest Canadian approach to "The Doctor" as a study in the human emotions was George A. Reid's "Mortgaging the Homestead." At the old Toronto Fair this canvas never failed to call forth tears and seismic heartthrobs. (This was in the days before the old Homestead on the Ninth Line began to thrive on the sale of hot dogs and the renting of the barn for a summer theatre.)

Haphazard Photographs

In these days of "millions for hospitalization" it is rewarding to glance back at the mingled tragedy and comedy of the struggle between health and disease that went on ceaselessly in the small towns and countryside in the older days. Alas, we need look for no story of the local medico in action set down in the manner of a Fildes. For the pictorial record we have little more than haphazard photographs—and few of them. And we are reminded that the medical arts were making history in Canada long before the first daguerreotype appeared.

The Examiner fortunately finds it possible to reproduce herewith a photograph taken about 1901 showing the heroic measures to which it was then necessary to resort in the struggle against communicable disease — in this case smallpox, which was then regarded with a dread difficult to understand today. The camera in its own mechanistic way gives us a glimpse of a Canadian medical drama of the outdoors. The rugged setting contrasts interestingly with the cottage interior which was the background of the Fildes picture.

The Medical Health Officer of Peterborough is here seen maintaining his own hospital amid the snows of Jackson Park some 50 years ago—living with his patient through the ordeal of weeks in zero weather.

The MOH was Dr. James Bingham, who will be remembered by some of the older generation for his droll stories and well-filled quiver of pointed epigram. The Jackson Park episode took place some 10 years before the establishment of the Isolation Hospital on the hill north of the city (about 1910-1911).

No Fear of Smallpox

With the discovery of the smallpox case, Dr. Bingham went into action with a resourcefulness and energy rare in a man of his years. He had retired from private practice on appointment to the civic office. Never did gallant charger, seasoned in many campaigns, respond with greater alacrity when the bugles called to battle anew. He was not afraid of smallpox. He had had it in Ireland. If the city would provide a tent and a cook (shown in photograph) he would attend the patient personally, he told the authorities. After the tent sojourn, Dr. Bingham, with an inner chuckle that belied his immobile face, would recount some of the interludes of the camp life. Especially was he amused by the speed with which deliveries from the grocery and provision stores were effected, the drivers whipping up their horses until out of range of the pest-house.

With a wry smile, Dr. Bingham recalled the fate of his fancy, colored vest. People about him were chary on his return to his office. He decided to boil the waistcoat in an antiseptic solution of high voltage. Net result: A mass of pulp which could have been useful only in a linen paper industry.

Dr. Bingham's qualities of resourcefulness and initiative had been gained in the hard way in years of country medical work. He had practised in Enniskillen, Ont., and in Warsaw, where he had married Harriet Burnham Choate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Choate in 1862. His daughter, Celestia Elizabeth Bingham, became the wife of George Stevenson of Peterborough, who served in his youth with the Bertram hardware firm and for some time as secretary of the Lock Works. He was secretary also of Peterborough's first Boating Club. Dr. Bingham practised in Peterborough 40 years after removal from Warsaw and in his later years was appointed City Health Officer, serving in that position 11 years. He was succeeded by Dr. McPherson. Dr. Bingham died in 1918 at the age of 96. Burial was at Warsaw.

DR. JAMES BINGHAM, who practised medicine in Peterborough 40 years, and served as Medical Health Officer 11 years. Photograph taken by George Street studio which adopted the name "R. Thompson & Sun" (sic), shows Dr. Bingham in days of active practice.

Prayers and Porridge

Born in Ireland, Dr. Bingham studied some time for the ministry. But, coming to Canada, he concluded, as he put it, that the clerical way of life offered "too many prayers and too little porridge." He became one of the early graduates of Queen's Medical School, Kingston, where the Medical Faculty was thrown up rather hurriedly after consideration had been given the case of students who were not disposed to accept the rigid Anglicanism of that time at the Trinity School in Toronto. One of the first graduates was Dr. W. L. Herriman, whose son, Dr. W. C. Herriman, a third generation physician, devoted a lifetime of singular usefulness to institutional work in the period when psychiatry was emerging from an embryonic stage in Ontario.

Dr. Bingham liked to recall some of the humors as well as the trials and vexations that colored the lives of the country doctors of his day. Stories were often told about that time of how Dr. Sawbones had been seen driving his horse at a gallop up the Sixth Line of Gillifraxa. Later, it would be bruited about that Joe Dilly-dock had been snatched from the jaws of death by medical science, plus horse-power. From which it might be deduced that Sawbones, M.D., was a "good man on inflammation of the lungs" (pneumonia), or perhaps "inflammation of the bowels" (typhoid). Thus by taking thought Dr. Sawbones might add to his stature and emoluments.

But things were not like that in Enniskillen when Dr. Bingham and Dr. S. C. Hillier, later of Bowmanville, were practising in that small village, where life went on unhurriedly. The two medicos were close friends. There was no cut-throat rivalry and they came into competition only on the local croquet green where professional and business life converged. Patients might arrive from farms roundabout. But soon they would be seated on the croquet-court sidelines, ailments forgotten as they applauded bits of mallet finesse. A game of such cosmic moment was not to be interrupted lightly, any more than Drake's game of bowls was to be spoiled by the mere approach of an Armada.

At Croquet

There were emergencies, to be sure, which wouldn't wait for scalpels and stethescopes; but it is not recorded that any patient ever lapsed into an advanced state of rigor mortis while the game went on. Always there was one doctor (it didn't matter much which) who would set forth with horse and buggy and plenty of calomel, while the other carried on for the glory of Old Aesculapius against the village butcher and baker.

In his later years Dr. Bingham lived alone in his rooms and office on Hunter Street, just west of the Post Office. As Health Officer his duties were relatively few as measured by today's standards. But when emergencies arose, as in the smallpox outbreak, extraordinary measures were necessary to provide treatment in isolation in the absence of hospital and nursing facilities.

REAL FREEDOM

Freedom is achieved only by a complex but just structure of law, impersonally . . . enforced against both rulers and the governed.

—Robert H. Jackson, associate justice US Supreme Court

Always a humanist and broadly tolerant in his religious views, the doctor nevertheless had a sense of order and fitness which revolted against meretricious or ill-timed displays of piety. On an occasion a local clergyman called upon him. Rising to leave, the cleric announced, "We shall now have a word of prayer". The doctor was prompt and brusque: "We shall have no such thing, at this time and in this office. Besides us here is a lawyer's office and a real estate office."

Resourcefulness of Dr. Bell

Many instances might be cited which illustrates the courage and resourcefulness not only of the doctors, but of Peterborough County people in general in coping with the threat of smallpox and other communicable diseases in what we may call the pre-hospitalization era. Dr. Alexander Bell who was Medical Health Officer at Lakefield about the Nineties was the central figure in a stern battle which checked a smallpox outbreak in a lumber camp in a remote area beyond Apsley. To deal with the case in midwinter, it became necessary for Dr. Bell to travel by relays of horses which had to make their way through high-piled snowdrifts. Arriving at the scene, the doctor at once placed the camp in quarantine and posted guards on the roads to prevent travel to or from the "shanty" which housed a large force of men. Vaccine and provisions had to be obtained under conditions of almost incredible difficulty, arrangements being made to assure the service of drivers and teams to maintain the relay. The M.O.H. is clothed with wide powers which he may exercise at his discretion. Older people in the Northern area still speak with gratitude of Dr. Bell's enforcement of sanitary measures in the summary manner of the commander of a garrison in a beleaguered town.

The case of a Warsaw merchant also is remembered. He contracted smallpox while transacting business with a visiting commercial traveller. In the late winter he went to a summer cottage near McCracken's Landing, Stony Lake, where he stayed alone while the malady ran its course. Faithful to him throughout was an Indian who had a camp in the woods nearby where his family made baskets. The Indian, who had no fear of smallpox, called twice daily, speaking through a window to the sufferer, acting as intermediary between the latter and those who drove from Warsaw with food and medical supplies. The self-imposed regime was entirely successful and no contagion resulted.

Beware Dutch Elm Disease

By HENRY PREE, NEA

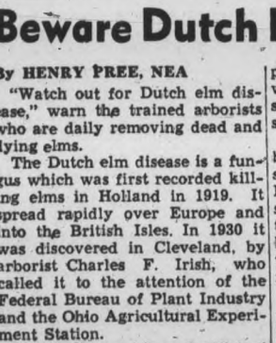
"Watch out for Dutch elm disease," warn the trained arborists who are daily removing dead and dying elms.

The Dutch elm disease is a fungus which was first recorded killing elms in Holland in 1919. It spread rapidly over Europe and into the British Isles. In 1930 it was discovered in Cleveland, by arborist Charles F. Irish, who called it to the attention of the Federal Bureau of Plant Industry and the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

Due to the quick and efficient co-operation of these two offices, the disease was eradicated and no diseased trees were found in or near Cleveland for a number of years.

In 1933 it was found in New Jersey and New York. It spread, and although apparently dormant at times, it is now killing hundreds of trees in the States and Canada.

All American and European elms are subject to attack by this fungus, and individual owners and communities should take protective measures for there are no federal or state funds available to supply aid in protecting our elms from the further spread of this disease.



Every elm tree should have a protective spray against insects which spread the disease. Several sprays of arsenate of lead or DDT should be applied.

Small, chestnut-brown bark beetles are the culprits which spread the elm-killing disease. Elms weakened by last winter's storms will be more susceptible than ever. First symptoms will be a sudden wilting of leaves in the treetops, followed by yellowing and premature leaf fall.

Only by laboratory cultures can positive identification of Dutch elm disease be made.

It is essential that every tree infected with Dutch elm disease should be detected as early as possible.

During the months of July and August, your elms should be inspected by an arborist experienced in recognizing the early symptoms of the Dutch elm disease.

KEEP YOU EYE OUT for this little beetle—he's the scourge of the nation's elm trees.

Gardening Questions

Q—We are bothered by numerous large flies from a dairy barn near our house. What preparation is the most effective?—O.S.

A.—The USDA approves sprays containing lindane, available at garden supply shops in either wettable powder or emulsive liquid concentrate. Lindane is also available as a 1 per cent dry powder for application to animals, window ledges, doors, sleeping quarters, etc.

Q. — Lily-of-the-Valley overruns much of the shrub border around our house. Please give some cultural hints as we want to move it to a better location—J.F.

A. — Lily-of-the-Valley likes shades as well as moisture. It thrives where the soil is rich in organic matter and plant food. Additional feeding with a 4-12-4, or similar, fertilizer each autumn is beneficial. Because they spread rapidly thinning or transplanting becomes necessary every two or three years. A neglected planting of Lily-of-the-Valley produces few flowers.

On Katchiwano, Clear and Stony Lakes, the boats operating in the 1880s were: the "Col. Strickland" (57 tons) a paddle tug built in Lakefield and used by the Stricklands for towing logs, until put out of service about 1881; the "Tiger" (3 tons), a passenger propeller boat built in Toronto in 1876 and used north of Lakefield until put out of service in 1885; the "Cruiser" (31 tons), a Lakefield passenger propeller boat owned by Capt. Reynolds, put out of service in 1882, then reconstructed as the "Golden City" (but still called the "Cruiser" by most); the "Fairy," brought in by the Youngs of Young's Point by flatcar from Kingston about 1880 for passenger service, and wrecked on Clear Lake about 1885; the "Undine" (5 tons) a propeller tug built at Lakefield in 1886, and used by the Stricklands for towing work; the "Mary Ellen" (44½ tons) built 1887-88 at Lakefield, a propeller passenger boat used by the Youngs of Young's Point on the northeast lakes. As noted above, 1890 was a banner year, when steamers were able to sail from Lakefield right around to Bridgenorth, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Lindsay and Port Perry; the first round trip excursions are recorded: Peterborough to Lakefield by train, Lakefield to Lindsay by boat, and Lindsay to Peterborough by train.

The older boats operating on the Otonabee and Rice Lake were: the "Isaac Butts" (239 tons) a paddlewheeler used for passenger and towing, which stopped running in 1885; the "Whistlewing" (87 tons) built 1872 at Peterborough, a Calcutt passenger and freight paddlewheeler which was broken up in 1889; the "Spider" (15 tons), a paddlewheel tug built 1868 on Rice Lake; the "Aln" (35 tons) a paddlewheel passenger vessel on Rice Lake, put out of service in 1881; the "Maggie Sommerville" (13 tons) a propeller passenger boat built at Cobourg in 1876 and used on Rice Lake until about 1881; the "Fairy" (23 tons) a propeller passenger boat used on Rice Lake and the Otonabee until 1888; the "Golden Eye" (61 tons), built for Calcutt at Peterborough 1876, a sidewheel passenger boat used on the Peterborough-Harwood run; the "Ada" (39 tons), a passenger paddlewheel boat used on Otonabee excursions. In this decade the following were added: the "Dora" (20 tons) a propeller passenger boat built in 1881; the "Beaver" (18 tons) built 1883 at Gore's Landing for excursions and towing on Rice Lake; the "Pearl" (7.7 tons) built in 1885 at Peterborough and owned by Mr. Faucher; the "Sunbeam" (13½ tons) a propeller tug built at Birdsall in 1886 for use on Rice Lake; the "Daisy" (7.2 tons) built in 1889 at Peterborough for small excursions; and the "City of Peterborough," a large sidewheeler launched in 1889 at Peterborough for Calcutt. The "Kingfisher" was also operating on the Otonabee in this period, but no details have been located about her.

Marine Activity

Thus in addition to 20 boats on the western lakes and 5 on the northeast lakes, there were another 15 on the Otonabee and Rice Lake, a total of about 40 on the Kawartha Lakes. In addition, there were a number of small private steam yachts or launches; in 1887 W. H. Chamberlain was offering for sale in Peterborough "A firstclass Steam Yacht at a bargain—will make 9 miles an hour and carry 15 or 20 persons." Calcutt built several "Palace Scows" for excursions, at his repair yards at the foot of Mark Street in Ashburnham, where his boats were drawn up for the winter on a marine railway. It was a sign of the times that after 1885 the steamship owners no longer advertised their passenger schedules in the local newspapers, as they had done in the previous 40 years, except in summer months for tourists and cottagers.

Yet they were kept busy in the shorter season; between May 24 and Thanksgiving Day each year there were on the average 30 to 40 excursions. In 1889, for example, some of the more interesting excursions were: June 13: Farmers Picnic at Jubilee Point—F. Birdsall general chairman—Hon. C. A. Drury, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, and many other notables present. Five steamers carried more than 2,000 to the Point. June 18: Masonic Excursion to Bobcaygeon, first over Chemong Railway. Took "Beaubocage" and "Paloma" at Chemong. June 20: County Council annual picnic to Burleigh. July 2: Sons of England Picnic at Jacobs Island; July 11: Little Lake Regatta — four steamers brought spectators and contestants upriver; July 19: Moonlight Excursions popular; Aug. 12: Steamers take hundreds to Methodist gospel meetings in Campbell's Grove, North Monaghan; Aug. 14: Port Perry Fire Brigade Excursion here by steamer and train; Aug. 15: Civic Holiday—five excursions down river, one to Chemong Lake and one to Clear Lake; Aug. 30: Catholic Picnic from Harwood to Jubilee Point; Sept. 12: 100 farmers up on "Beaver" from Rice Lake; Sept. 16: Labour Day—large excursion on two boats to Campbellford; Sept. 24: Peterborough Fair opened—all boats busy bringing people from Rice Lake and Otonabee shores to town.

Montreal Bows To Ottawa In 3-2 Upset

By The Associated Press.

Montreal, the experts insist, can't miss as International League champion this year. But try to tell that to Syracuse Chiefs.

The Chiefs, although nine games behind the high-flying Royals, keep plugging away. Friday night they cut the deficit by one game, blanking Baltimore 2-0 on Bill Miller's two-hitter. Montreal, meanwhile, was losing 3-2 to Ottawa.

In other games, Springfield nipped Rochester 4-3, and Buffalo downed Toronto 6-3.

Jack Mayo, Baltimore centre-fielder, got the only two hits off Miller. Mayo singled to start the game and scratched another single in the third inning. After that, Miller, in winning his 10th game, was untouchable.

Errors Help

Three Baltimore errors gave Syracuse a run in the first inning, and that was enough for Miller, who pitched his second two-hitter of the season.

At Ottawa, John Ketkovich knocked in two runs for the winners. Harry Nicholas was credited with his first victory.

Springfield downed Rochester when Jack Wallaesa smacked a three-run double in the second inning. It gave Frank Marino his eighth victory against five losses.

Fred Nancoen's three-run triple in the fourth inning helped Buffalo's Lynn Lovenguth register his second triumph. In addition to his game-winning three-bagger Hancock smashed two doubles.

Dressen, Palica End Their Feud

BROOKLYN, July 21—(AP)—Manager Chuck Dressen and pitcher Erv Palica of the Brooklyn Dodgers shook hands Friday night to bring their feud to an end.

Dressen two days ago called Palica "a gutless kid who doesn't belong in the majors." Dressen charged that Palica "chokes up and always has something to crab about."

Palica said that Dressen "had better watch out." The pitcher claimed he was worried about his wife who expects to have a baby in the next two or three weeks.

Dodger vice-president Buzzy Bavasi asked Palica: "Why didn't you punch Dressen in the nose?" Palica replied: "Imagine me punching my manager in the nose? I'd probably get a heavy fine and kicked off the team to boot."

Bavasi said the Dodgers have been trying to get Palica "mad" for two years. Dressen said: "I once punched Paul Derringer in the nose and he won 22 games."

Dressen said that Palica would pitch next Monday in the exhibition against Cleveland at Cooperstown, NY. After that Palica would return to Ebbets Field and work out until the powers that be believe he is capable of pitching major league ball.

Merchants Whip Whitby 12-8

LINDSAY, July 21. — The front-running Lindsay Merchants counted seven runs in the sixth, to come from behind and whip Whitby Merchants 12-8, in a free-scoring Lakeshore League baseball game here Friday night.

Righthander Gordon Neal, who hurled until the sixth, slammed a two-run homer over the left-field fence in the second to put the visitors in front briefly.

Neal held the locals to one run and two hits for the next three frames and his mates gave him an 8-5 lead in the top of the sixth. Vic Jewel opened Lindsay's big rally with a double and veteran Grant Wickett finished up the seven-run splurge with his seventh two-bagger of the year.

Junior West, who took over from Lew McTaggart in the sixth, got credit for his second victory.

Two senior ball games on tap today if the weather behaves. A three p.m. touch in Riverside betwixt Toronto Staffords and the Petes, and the same squads are back at it at eight p.m. in the same park. A Viaduct Major League twin bill, one being a postponement from earlier in the season. Bill Edger, Bunny Maeson and Lefty Dadson ar all available, though the latter is off this weekend for a weeks vacation. Holidays cut in on a hurling staff at this time of year, and the Petes have to keep winning to maintain their slim margin o'er the second-place Merchants of Oshawa. They'll likely be in fighting form for both these games.

Several years ago, the late Pete Campbell of Toronto Maple Leafs tried to interest Peterborough in putting in a Class "C" pro ball club. Probably with the Border League. Pete got support from some of the club officials but the council and manufacturers as a whole didn't get too enthused. Maybe the older ones recaled the pro team we had here just prior to the First World War. Some, too, thought that it wouldn't be a paying proposition and that local amateur players would be forgotten. Anyway, the plan fell through and, as it turned out, this was a good thing for baseball here.

Couldn't Make Money

The Class "C" Border League recently folded after a run of five and a half years. Kingston, Cornwall, Ogdensburg, Geneva, Auburn and Watertown are out of it now, and a number of players are seeking diamond jobs elsewhere. The pulling-out of Ottawa to go Triple-A and the falling off in attendance this season put the loop on the rocks. After Cornwall dropped out, also. President John Ward of the Border League told The Star: "To any civic group which considered taking a franchise in our league, I always warned them they couldn't make money. They'd provide wholesome entertainment and help keep baseball alive. A Class 'C' league is merely a ball school to help get boys ready for the big league." He added that major league clubs didn't help the minors much but paid big bonuses to players. And Ward blamed televising of major league games as doing much harm to minor ball.

That we can well believe where television reception is good. And it will improve here in another year or two. Folks will prefer to sit in an easy chair and sip a cool one while watching the highly publicized big leaguers perform. It's easer than driving through traffic to see minor pro or amateur ball where you also pay to get in. But Pete Campbell didn't tell us that we'd make no money if this city fielded a pro team; no, sir! Much better that we go along with good amateur ball (breaking about even) and see local players in action. An agreement with a major league club —with a definite financial understanding on both sides— might be okay, but no out-and-out pro ball here.

Just A Brisk Waltz

Nothing much to it at Miller Bowl last p.m. as the loop-leading OLA senior Petes rolled over Brampton Excelsiors 23-10. True the visitors weren't at full strength but they would have found the locals tough last eve, in any case. It might not be so easy tonight in St. Kitts or even in Toronto on Sunday, but the Crowe crew were right impressive against the fourth-place Excelsiors. Russ Slater (we haven't his picture) certainly stared in this fixture, banging no less than seven markers into the enemy cage. Other high point-getters were Ike Hildebrand, Don Crowe, Harry Wipper, Jerry Fitzgerald and Curly Mason. Several more were in on three. The Petes looked nifty in their greenish outfits, which they wear when rival teams' uniforms clash with their sweaters.

Lots of fun and fury out Omemee way the other evening in a softball game, one winding up in a 15-all draw between Lindsay Silverwoods and Omemee Combines. 'Twas climaxed by a free-for-all fight in which most of the players joined with hearty enthusiasm. Seems the fun started early when Tom Parsons was ordered off the Omemee bench for riding the plate umpire. Later Manager Carm Whitmore sent big Tom in as a relief twirler and the visitors kicked, saying he was out of the game. Heckler Perk Foshay of Lindsay drew the ire of Parsons, who threw the ball at him, and then the battle was on.
